House Approves Conscription Bill, 263 to 149

HITS 24 MILLION BETWEEN AGES 21 TO 45 YEARS

Act Held Up 60 Days for Volunteer Call.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 7.—The house of representatives tonight approved legislation requiring 24 million American males between the ages of 21 and 45 to register with draft boards and be subject to 12 months of military training. The final vote was 263 to 149.

Rep. Hamilton Fish, sponsor of 60 day volunteer plan.

The conscription measure now goes back to the senate, to iron out differences between the house measure and a draft bill passed by the senate last week. The two bills conflict in three major respects. They are:

1. The senate bill specifies age limits between 21 and 31 for draftees. The house bill sets age limits of 21 to 45.

2. The senate measure provides for condemnation of industrial plants where needed to facilitate the defense program. The house measure provides merely for the taking over of such plants under a "fair and just" rental.

3. The house measure provides that a 60 day period shall elapse before the draft is put into effect, during which a voluntary enlistment program shall be undertaken. The senate measure makes no such provision.

Owners May Be Prosecuted.

The amendment to conscript industry, which the house adopted by the overwhelming vote of 330 to 83, authorizes the President to take possession of any plant manufacturing military supplies whose owner refuses to accept orders for defense materials. The head of the firm, moreover, is subject to prosecution, and upon conviction could be imprisoned for three years and fined $50,000.

"A fair and just" compensation must be paid to the owner of the plant as rental.

The senate amendment would permit the government to condemn plants needed for national defense and operate them. The courts would fix compensation for the owners.

The senate amendment is so worded that many members feared it might apply to concerns in no way associated with the national defense, such as newspapers, radio broadcasting companies, and the like.

The house amendment stipulates that the President's power shall extend only to plants whose clear purpose is the manufacture of military supplies.

Substitute Plan Defeated.

The house adopted the amendment after defeating, by a vote of 117 to 100, a substitute which would have called upon the national defense advisory commission, rather than the President, to negotiate with industry.

The 60 day voluntary enlistment provision was endorsed tentatively in the house two days ago by a vote of 185 to 155. This amendment, sponsored by Representative Hamilton Fish [Rep., N. Y.] was termed by New Dealers as an attempt to sabotage the conscription measure.

Strenuous efforts were made by the administration to reverse the vote. Majority Leader Sam Rayburn of Texas thought he had garnered enough votes, but when the showdown came tonight, almost solid Republican support and a sizable block of Democrats combined to keep the volunteer amendment in the bill by the narrow margin of 207 to 200.

The Fish amendment is expected to remain in the bill because the plan was defeated in the senate by only two votes, 43 to 41.

Call for Volunteers.

The President is empowered, under this provision, to issue a call for 400,000 volunteers immediately after enactment of the measure. The draft is to be deferred for 60 days while

CAROL ESCAPES MOB'S BULLETS ON EXILE FLIGHT

BUCHAREST, Rumania, Sept. 7 (AP).—Fifty Iron Guardists, armed with revolvers and dynamite, were reported authoritatively tonight to have attacked former King Carol's special train as it crossed the border into Jugo-Slavia.

Amid a rain of bullets they shouted that they wanted to remove Magda Lupescu, Carol's woman friend. The train sped on without stopping.

The Guardists, it was said here, tried to stop the train at the town of Timisoara.

Fireman Wounded.

When they asked the station master if it would halt, he answered "Yes," but at the same time wired a nearby station to signal to the train to speed right thru.

It passed on thru while the band of 50 fired pistols and threw stones. The fireman on the locomotive was reported seriously wounded.

20 Guardists Seized.

Others took taxicabs and tried to beat the train to the town of Jimbolia at the frontier. When they reached there they were intercepted by a company of soldiers which had been quickly summoned. About 20 Iron Guardists were arrested.

They told the soldiers emphatically that they wanted Mme. Lupescu, not the ex-king.

With Carol continuing his journey toward temporary refuge in Switzerland, where he was expected tomorrow, diplomatic circles here said the ex-king and Mme. Lupescu were planning to take up their exile in Canada where she has large property holdings.

Here in Bucharest, Gen. Ion Antonescu, adopting the significant title of "chief of state," called upon the Rumanian people today to curse the memory of their former leaders.

Makes Radio Appeal.

Gen. Antonescu also took over four vital cabinet posts for himself and issued sweeping decrees aimed at those who became wealthy under 10 years of rule by King Carol. He took over the ministries of war, armaments, navy and interior.

Among the new orders were those abolishing the uniforms of Carol's party and ambassadorial posts. Diplomatic envoys henceforth will have the rank of ministers.

The general, Rumania's military dictator, went to the country by radio to explain why he forced the abdication of King Carol—it was to "save my country," he said—and suggested nationwide prayers tomorrow "for forgiveness of our faults which brought about the misfortune of our brothers who remain under foreign rule."

At the same time, he declared, "We must blaspheme the ones to blame for this misfortune."

During the day Rumania consummated one more in the series of territorial cessions which were followed by Carol's downfall. In Sofia, the Bulgarian government announced the completion of a formal agreement by which Rumania returns southern Dobruja, an area of 2,883 square miles with a population of 375,000.

Round Up Carol Aids.

The press, however, still was rampant. Carol was denounced without restraint—called a "scourge," a "degenerate"—and accused of having deposited $4,000,000 in a London bank in anticipation of his dethronement.

The roundup of men associated with the Carol régime continued. Gen. Antonescu, who has dispatched friendly mesages to Adolf Hitler and Benito Mussolini, formed a stop-gap cabinet, made up mostly of preabdication politicians.

Helen to Bucharest Tomorrow.

BERLIN, Sept. 7 (AP).—Employés of the Dresden sanitarium said today Princess Helen of Greece, divorced wife of Rumania's abdicated King Carol and mother of the new king, Michael, expected to leave Dresden Monday for Bucharest.

ROARING DOWN TO RIO

The log of a 16 day round trip by air to the world's most beautiful city

BY JOHN T. McCUTCHEON

Five years ago we flew our eldest son around South America and across the Atlantic on the Graf Zeppelin.

This summer we noticed an expectant look on our middle sized son. So, as airplanes and South America are still of upper bracket news value, we decided on Rio.

There was another reason. Last time I got some delicious chocolate caramels in Petropolis, lovely hill station near Rio. I have commissioned two emissaries to get me some, but for some reason they failed. So I had to go and get them myself. I admit this reason wouldn't get very far on an expense account.

On Aug. 13 we flew to Miami on a great silver Douglas plane. The second day we flew, nonstop, to San Juan, Puerto Rico, in one of the huge four motored stratoliners, making her third passenger-carrying flight. We traveled at over 15,000 feet, sealed in like a thermos bottle. It was most comfortable.

When we were three miles up over Andros Island in the Bahamas we looked over 40 miles away and distinctly saw our own island near Nassau with its beaches and watch tower!

At San Juan the United States army is busy enlarging their air field. It will soon be the major Caribbean air base.

The third day a two-motored Pan American baby Clipper carried us to Trinidad by way of the Windward and Leeward Islands—historic region made glamorous by Columbus, Drake, Nelson, Blackbeard, Capt. Kidd, and Henry Morgan. Scarcely an hour between stops at St. Thomas and Antigua. Hardly more between Guadaloupe and Martinique.

At the latter, in the harbor of Fort de France, lay the French airplane carrier Bearn, said to have over three hundred million dollars in French gold on board; also the big cruiser Jeanne d'Arc, seven or eight smaller war craft, and many planes.

Positively no photographing! Cameras all sealed.

We saw the town in the crater of Saba, Brimstone Hill on St. Kitts, the luxuriant valleys of Dominica, and Mount Pelee of fateful memory.

Thousands of feet below a British warship patroled, ready to intercept any French ship seeking to run the gantlet.

Detouring a black squall, we skirted Venezuela and coasted over the Bocas into Port of Spain, Trinidad. Many tankers in the roadstead. Saw concentration camp of European refugees. Tropical setting detracted from grimness.

On the last three mornings we were called at four. Flew in the baby Clipper all the way to Rio. Felt quite homelike. Left Trinidad in rain. Dropped a Canadian mining engineer at British Guiana. Saw a German ship, Goslar, lying across Surinam river at Paramaribo. Scuttled by crew the day Holland was invaded. Dutch Guiana in for rough sledding. Of her three million budget, half has always been provided by Holland. At Cayenne we bought some flowers made of brilliant bird feathers by the French Guiana convicts. Devil's Island lay off to the left. It can stay there.

Just at sunset we crossed the yawning mouth of the Amazon, bumped over the equator at 11,000 feet, and dined in Para, sometimes called Belem, Portuguese for Bethlehem.

It is a long two day flight for seaplanes around the eastern bulge of South America, with many stops and a night at Recife, much nearer to Europe than to the United States. After Sept. 1 the new stratoliner will short cut overland from Para to Rio, saving a day.

On Aug. 18 we slid over the surrounding mountains into Guanabara bay. Nora and Edward Ryerson were waving from Rio airport. They had just arrived via the west coast, over the Andes to Buenos Aires. We go homeward together.

When we explained to our fellow passenger, Mme. Elisabeth Rethberg, that we were meeting friends from Chicago, she said, "But would it not have been easier to see them at home?"

There followed five days in Rio—"these wonders to behold"—the black and white mosaic sidewalks, royal palms as tall as the modernistic skyscraping apartment houses, the casinos, operas, jungle drives over Tijuca, the sweeping curves of the beach boulevard lights, and the breath taking panorama of it all from the platform below the Christ on Corcovado. A real thrill—even if you've just flown 7,000 miles, is swinging up to the Sugar Loaf in a little boxcar dangling from its cables. Also the sight of the middle sized hopeful diving from the 30 foot platform into the Copacabana pool. Hotels were crowded with refugees, including many noblemen from Poland. Our very able ambassador and his Chicago wife are supervising the building of a handsome United States embassy.

On Aug. 24 we settled down comfortably in the big four motored Brazilian Clipper for the trip home. The Panair ships like to start early, and hop "upstairs" at once to the smoother levels at 10 to 12 thousand feet. Reassuringly, they don't start when conditions ahead are bad.

On the way north we made fewer stops. On the 27th we were called at 3 a. m. in Trinidad, took off by moonlight, made one stop each in Puerto Rico, the Dominican Republic, Haiti, and Cuba, and just before sunset glided into Miami three minutes ahead of schedule. Our jolly chatter was suddenly silenced by a young man popping thermometers into our mouths, and then we dined overlooking Biscayne bay, about 1,800 miles across the sea from where we had breakfasted.

Next morning, the 28th, we embarked on another Eastern Air Liner for our last hop back to Chicago. Saw a lot of cloud formations, a lot of camouflaged warplanes headed for Canada, and an inspiring lot of prosperous looking country. When we landed we heard all about what bad weather you had been having.

Willkie to Talk Friday Before City's Workers

Wendell L. Willkie, preparing for his campaign swing to the west coast, altered his schedule yesterday in order to spend next Friday in Chicago and make four speeches in which, his supporters said, his appeal "will be carried directly to the people."

The Republican nominee's initial appearances here will not be made at great night massmeetings with local political organizations doing their utmost to pack the meeting places with Republicans. Instead, three of the speeches will be before workers in industrial centers. The fourth will be at a rally of colored voters at a south side ball park.

Auto Tour of City Possible.

Willkie changed his original plans in response to the advice of Chicago advisers. The stop will be made en route to Coffeyville, Kas., where he is to make the official opening speech of his campaign on Sept. 16. His day in Chicago may include an automobile tour of the city and of the loop district, if time permits.

Willkie's official party of 42 persons is expected to arrive by automobile from Gary early in the day. It will be greeted by state and county party officials and nominees. The automobile procession will then go to the stockyards.

Here Is Willkie's Schedule.

Willkie's platform appearances then will follow at these places:

10:30 a. m.—Platform in front of Live Stock Exchange building in stockyards.

Eyewitness Story of Raid

BY DREW MIDDLETON.

LONDON, Sept. 7 (AP).—The glow of fire spread over sections of London tonight as German raiders launched a night time attack after striking hard at the city late in the afternoon.

Taxis were huddled by the curbs and buses careened madly down the Strand.

The city appeared dead at first, but as one walked there was plenty of life. Men and women in evening clothes, forsaking fine dinners at elegant restaurants, were madly flagging buses.

Fleet Street Sees the Show.

Near Fleet street, the newspaper center of London, pressmen and linotype operators thronged the streets. They watched a plane caught in searchlights.

"It's ours," said one. "Looka the light it's showing and there ain't no antiaircraft."

Off to the south there were recurring thuds of bombs.

I saw a signal light in the glow above the fires. For a few moments there was a steady fire of guns, then flashes dotted the glow over that section of the city.

Glow Creates a Dream World.

The fiery glow turned familiar sights into a fantastic dream world. The griffin atop Temple Bar monument, which marks the ancient boundary of the City of London, where Fleet street and the Strand meet, shone balefully in the odd light. Off the Victoria embankment, the buildings of the temple, sacred to the legal profession, looked like a medieval castle.

Searchlights probing the sky above the darkened city gave the only 20th century touch to a scene that harked back to the great fire of September, 1665. The lights now and then caught a German plane, and the antiaircraft guns opened their throaty chorus anew.

Leading to the Cheshire Cheese, a Dickensian restaurant, one man said to another standing in an alleyway: "You know, if we are to play Harry and Cyril tomorrow for a shilling a hole, we really should go home and get some sleep. After all, our chaps are doing this every night to the Germans."

In the sections that had been bombed, bedraggled men who looked as if they had not slept for weeks were sweating over fire equipment. Women staggering under loads of clothing, mattresses, and household goods stumbled past, their faces haggared in the fitful glare. Around the fire, figures ran, worked and gesticulated. There was no sound louder than the roaring of the flames. In a little park, birds awoke and twittered in the trees.

Many Snore in Shelters.

In an air raid shelter, a few persons were awake, but most of the others were snoring lustily. There was a heavy smell inside, compounded of smoke and dust and unwashed clothing and bodies. A baby whimpered.

In a raid that began at 5 o'clock this afternoon, I counted 150 German planes in 90 minutes. The first formation of seven thundered in just as the west end shows were letting out.

Chorus girls trooped into the streets with the audiences to watch the new performance, laughing at worried air raid wardens until the streets got too hot.

At one football field, they tell me, a crowd of 4,000 turned their eyes from the playing ground to the sky to watch the battle, most of them glued to their seats.

Sky Speckled with Bursts.

Wave after wave the German planes came in groups of from 5 to 35 or more. There must have been 50 dive bombers alone, attacking in relays of 10.

The rumble of their bombs shook the table where I was writing. Buildings trembled from the thud of explosives and the crescendo of antiaircraft fire.

Directly over the Associated Press building, two blocks from the Thames and a mile east of Charing Cross, the sky was speckled with antiaircraft bursts. Nine raiders, just within eyeshot, flew over the city.

VICHY, France, Sept. 7.—The three highest leaders of the old France—former Generalissimo Maurice Gustave Gamelin and former Premiers Edouard Daladier and Paul Reynaud—were arrested today in the "war blame" cases.

They were placed in detention at Château Chazeron, near Chatel Guyon. The term officially used was "administrative internment." The specific accusations against them were not made known, nor was anything directly said as to their trial.

But the present government of Marshal Henri Philippe Petain in its long preparations for a series of prosecutions against those it holds responsible for France's fall has charged that France was not prepared for war, that her then heads knew she was not, and that they continued the struggle amid military blunders when it was obvious she could not win.

Seized in Homes.

Daladier was premier when war was declared; Reynaud took over later and was in office until just before the surrender. Gamelin was head of the allied land forces until he was ousted in favor of Gen. Maxime Weygand.

Daladier, it was reported, was taken into custody at his home in Vaucluse and as he was led away he told his son:

"Whatever happens, remember it was not I who lost the war."

Gamelin was arrested at Limoges and Reynaud at Digne. Gamelin, Daladier, and Reynaud were the most prominent figures against which the Petain government has acted.

Seek Other Leaders.

Warrants have been issued for the arrest of former Air Ministers Pierre Cot and Guy la Chambre, who are now in the United States.

Former Interior Minister Georges Mandel was arrested in July and specifically charged with plotting against the security of the French state.

[The German wireless broadcast a message under a Vichy dateline which said the arrests were "explained as a precautionary measure enforced on the basis of a law recently passed by the ministers' council to maintain public security, according to which any person regarded as dangerous to the state may be placed under precautionary arrest for the duration of the war."]

PLEDGES GRAND JURY ACTION IN UNION BOMBINGS

Waterloo, Ill., Sept. 7 [Special].—State's Attorney Edgar A. Zimmer today promised speedy prosecution of six members of the A. F. of L. Common Laborers' union, accused of bombings that terrorized rural communities in this area for a year. He said he will ask that a special Monroe county grand jury be called.

The defendants, held in the county jail here under heavy bond, are said to have confessed that they participated in the bombing of three homes built without union labor and one union built home for which the basement was dug by a nonunion farmer. The homes were in Waterloo, Columbia, and Valmeyer.

Edward J. Riebling, union president, and Walter Kuehner and Anton Helfrich, members, were held in bonds of $25,000 each on charges of malicious bombing, which carries a maximum penalty of 1 to 20 years in prison. George A. Dahmer, former business agent, and Peter Arras, a member were held on bail of $10,000 for malicious destruction of property. Elmer Wilde was held in bond of $5,000 as an accessory in the bombings.

GERMANS SET BIG FIRES AND HIT FACTORIES

Pound at Heart of Besieged City.

BULLETIN.

LONDON, Sept. 8, Sunday (AP).—The all clear signal ending London's longest air raid alarm of the war sounded at 4:50 a. m. (10:50 p. m. Chicago time Saturday). The alarm lasted 8 hours and 18 minutes.

LONDON, Sept. 8, Sunday (AP).—The mightiest aerial assault ever made upon this capital raged on early today amid fire reddened skies and exploding bombs in the heart of the city. Flames touched off by Nazi incendiary bombs set the sky aglow.

Just after midnight, the air ministry—officially calling this "the first big Nazi air raid on London"—reported that at least 65 German raiders had been shot down against 18 British fighter craft.

[The Germans said 87 British planes had been shot down to 26 German losses.]

The Germans struck this, the most savage blow yet to fall in the battle for Britain, at 8:32 p. m. last night, after a heavy daylight raid of hundreds of planes which itself broke thru the city's inner defenses.

Keep Pounding Away.

Nearly four hours later, as midnight passed, they pounded on with undiminished ferocity. At that time—at 12:14 a. m., the doors of the Associated Press building, just two blocks from the Thames and a mile from Charing Cross—shivered under the detonation of a bomb.

At 3 a. m. newspaper trucks moved off with the usual Sunday editions while the raid continued. Another raider roared overhead and dropped bombs south of the Thames, starting fires at three points.

The raiders were concentrating, not on one, but several districts. Fire apparatus in many an area was fighting separate blazes.

A bomb fell directly in front of a crowded London bus, injuring many passengers. The heavy guns of inner London, as well as the aircraft batteries ringing the city, were in roaring action.

Bombs Work Rapidly.

One instance of the rapidity of action of the German incendiaries was observed by an Associated Press staff man on the roof of its office. Ducking his head a moment at the scream of a downrushing bomb, he raised it instantly to see that a blaze had started on the opposite bank of the Thames.

The damage to London's industrial area and vital municipal services, it was indicated, was the heaviest of any so far admitted.

Despite the resistance of British fighters and antiaircraft guns, a joint air and home security ministries communique acknowledged that some German raiders sifted thru to the east London industrial area.

Communications Disrupted.

"As a result of these attacks," the communique disclosed, "fires were caused among industrial targets in this area. Damage was done to the lighting and other public services and some dislocation of communications was caused."

Altho it gave no details, the communique acknowledged attacks also on London's huge waterfront and admitted that fires had been started at industrial plants along the north shore of the Thames estuary.

The air ministry said the Germans had sent 350 planes to strike at the London area and at airdromes in Kent, Surrey, and Essex. Not all of the planes reached their objectives, however, the ministry said.

[The Germans announced that 500 planes participated in the latest attacks on London. Another German statement said "several million pounds" of bombs were dropped on London. If each bomber carried a ton of bombs and the word "several" used by the German officials meant, for instance, four, this would mean that 2,000 planes took part in the raids. However, it is known that bombers frequently drop their loads, return to their bases for new bombs, and then resume the attack.]

In the prolonged night raid, flames in one industrial target drew returning raiders. They dropped three more heavy bombs that rattled Fleet street windows and deepened the glow in the evening sky.

Antiaircraft guns kept up a heavy barrage to drive the circling attackers away from their targets.

A vaudeville theater and a store were hit in one London district. As usual, the raiders took a northerly course over the city, their throbbing motors plainly audible in the streets. As they passed, fires from the afternoon bombing still raged in the crowded east end and their red glows lit the sky.

In one London area, hundreds of people, unable to use normal routes to their homes, were caught on the detour by the second warning, taking cover again. Several fires by that time were burning.

Hospital Is Struck.

A heavy bomb hit a hospital, but the wing which was struck was not occupied.

The flight of one of the German squadrons was marked by three earth shaking explosions.

Searchlights kept fingering the darkness, looking for the evercircling bombers. A bomb smashed a gas main. Another demolished a house. The night raiders seemed to concentrate on several districts which had been attacked earlier in the day. They could be heard swinging in to drop their explosives, then speeding away.

At first Londoners ignored the afternoon alarm to stand gaping in the streets at the battle overhead, but the raid became too hot and they ducked for cover. When the sirens sounded the all-clear at 6:38 p. m. thousands of sightseers emerged from shelters to follow clanging fire engines and survey the damage.

A Revenge Raid.

What brought this on London was the royal air force's raid on Berlin over Friday night. The air ministry said the raiders smashed at a Berlin power station, oil tanks, and railway yards, besides dumping bombs en route on the German advance striking airdromes near Dunkirk and Calais and attacking big gun emplacements on the French channel coast.

From the southeast of London during the afternoon attack, rooftop observers saw smoke rise a moment after they heard the thud of falling bombs. At least 15 distinct explosions could be discerned one after the other in a quick succession.

Scatter British Fighters.

Evidently large German formations broke up on the outskirts to attack in smaller units which could filter more easily thru the antiaircraft barrage and scatter the British fighter planes.

Altho there had been a lull in London itself between the last of six alarms Friday and the terrific first attack yesterday German raiders kept up their day and night assaults on scattered British cities.

One raider was said to have been shot down over a southeast coast town while London was being raided and another shortly before when British fighters intercepted a Nazi formation over the Thames estuary.

Early in the day, after a night of what the air ministry called "curtailed" activity, air attacks were confined chiefly to the northwest, southwest, and southeast.

Antiaircraft fire turned off one formation of 30 Nazi planes approaching a southeast airfield. A school and other buildings were damaged in a west country cathedral town.

MOSCOW PURGE CHIEF NAMED TO FOREIGN OFFICE

MOSCOW, Sept. 7 (AP).—Andrey Y. Vishinsky, the state's prosecutor in the 1938 "Trotskyite" purge trial, became vice commissar of foreign affairs today in one of a series of government appointments. A new commissariat of state control was created and placed under Lev Mekhlis, former chief of the political department of the Red army.

Mekhlis, whose army post was abolished with elimination of political commissars for the Red forces, was given the task of overseeing general finances, labor and production of all state organizations.

The central committee of the communist party appointed P. N. Pospelov as editor of Pravda, the party newspaper which previously was controled by an editorial board.

Nazis and British Trade Air Blows

BERLINERS RUSH TO SEE DAMAGE OF BOMB ATTACK

Capital Seeks Better Air Defenses.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

BERLIN, Sept. 7.—Berlin citizens scurried about the city today to look at the wreckage left after the early morning raid by British bombers. It was the biggest air attack which Berlin has experienced since the beginning of the war.

Late this afternoon firemen still were on duty at the old Moabit courthouse in the center of Berlin. Debris and charred documents were strewn around. Crowds stood around the wreckage for hours. It was in this building that Martin Niemoeller, the Evangelical Lutheran pastor, was tried by the Nazis.

Gaze on Burned Stores.

Around the freight station of the Lehrte railroad, from which trains for Hamburg and northwest Germany leave, other Berlin citizens studied the small stores which were partly burned.

In Berlin's poorer working class section quite a number of streets were cordoned off. The death of some civilians was admitted, but the exact number of fatalities was not disclosed. Relatives of doctors in some of Berlin's hospitals declared the doctors had to work overtime.

In Brandenburg, 37 miles southwest of Berlin, the Germans acknowledged that the British had destroyed searchlight batteries and that several men were killed and others wounded.

Improve Berlin's Defenses.

Since these night raids are expected to continue, new measures are being taken to improve Berlin's defenses. In the densely populated district of the southwest "flying antiaircraft batteries" were set up at dusk last night at the intersections of wide avenues.

After taking part in this morning's battle, the batteries were removed toward dawn and returned to their position this evening.

Told to Go to Bed Early.

Berliners are comparing notes on just how low the British planes flew over the capital. Machine gun fire could be heard, and many Berliners believe that the planes came down as low as 600 feet.

The president of Germany's Antiair-raid association, Gen. Von Schroeder, today warned the Berlin population that it must go to bed earlier "in order to have some hours of sleep when the alarm is sounded." Sleep before midnight is the healthiest, he said.

Gen. Von Schroeder cited the example of the people in the Rhineland and Hamburg who, he said, have made it a habit to sleep before the raid alarm is sounded.

"In that region alarm clocks are set for 11 o'clock at night, and thus the population is not scared out of its wits by the sound of the sirens," he declared. Berliners were advised to set their alarm clocks for midnight.

Gen. Von Schroeder also called upon housewives to draw upon their imaginations to improve the comforts of the shelters. He recommended deck chairs as "ideal for shelters."

U. S. Observer Watches Mediterranean Sea Fights

ALEXANDRIA, Egypt, Sept. 7 (AP).—Lieutenant Commander John Opie of Long Beach, Cal., first United States observer with the British Mediterranean fleet, has been an eye witness of naval actions in the vicinity of the Islands of Rhodes and Scarpanto, it was disclosed today. He has observed operations from a British battleship and has made confidential reports to Washington. It is understood that additional observers probably will be assigned to the fleet by the American staff now in London.

DROP MILLIONS OF POUNDS OF BOMBS: BERLIN

Claims Attack on London Dwarfs All Others.

BERLIN, Sept. 8, Sunday (AP).—An unending German offensive by all types of planes hurled "several million pounds" of bombs on London yesterday and last night in an onslaught so gigantic that the Nazis said it put everything previous "in the shade."

German sources emphasized the tenacity of the British defenses, but said the British were unable to stem the continuous waves of attacking planes. They declared 87 British planes had been shot down to 26 German losses.

Heretofore concentrating on airports, armament works, and defenses around London, the Germans said now industrial sections of London, the great harbor works, and the east end suffered heavily. East end streets were torn up so that traffic could not continue, and at least two gasworks were exploded, they said. Many buildings were declared to be shambles.

Call It "Reprisal" Raid.

The raiding was "of such extent that it puts everything hitherto in this respect in the shade," declared DNB, official German news agency.

In a special communique the high command said the attack was the first yet made by "strong forces," and was "in reprisal for the night raids of the English air force on nonmilitary objectives in the reich's territory."

"One single cloud of smoke," it added, "stretches from the center of London to the mouth of the Thames."

One battle unit messaged that it had scored a full hit on the Silverton dock at London, causing fires in nearby storage tanks.

"Several storage buildings collapsed," the military report said. Great clouds of smoke over the Royal Albert dock and the Becton Gas works also were seen, the airmen said.

"The heart of the British world empire was laid open to onslaughts of the German air force," an authorized source said in describing the attack in which Germany sent every type of bomber in her aerial armory against London to pay the British off for their stubborn raids by night on the German reich and capital.

In Broad Daylight.

"Efforts of the British antiaircraft to stop our planes were unsuccessful," this source said. "New waves of planes flew to the attack as others rid themselves of their bomb loads and flew back to their bases.

"Tremendous damage inflicted on the nerve center of the British empire had to be paid for with sacrifices, but at this time the only thing which appears important is that the German air force bombed London in broad daylight."

Adolf Hitler himself announced three days ago that German bombers would "erase" British cities if the R. A. F. attacks on Germany continued. Berlin was bombed again early yesterday and the reprisal was not long in coming.

The following, according to the German wireless, is how the squadron leader of a Heinkel squadron radioed the progress of the attack on London:

"8:40 p. m. Saturday: Broke thru successfully, approaching target.

"Have passed Hawkings air fields.

"Noted fires in hangars.

"Heavy caliber craters on runway.

"Great flying activity over London.

"Machines unmolested.

German airmen made their most savage attack so far upon the center of the British capital early today. Names of places mentioned in this morning's dispatch are heavily underscored. Other important locations in the city are indicated. Because of censorship, the dispatch did not specifically name the areas bombed.

FRANCE EXPECTS 'REAL' AFRICAN WAR IN 3 WEEKS

Link with Nazis Looms in Cabinet Shift.

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VICHY, France, Sept. 7.—Further study today of the political changes wrought by Marshal Henri Petain's decision to revamp his government disclosed two principal underlying facts.

The first is an indication of a rapprochement between France and Germany. This is signalized by the abolition of the ministry of national defense and the substitution of a ministry of war headed by Gen. Charles Huntziger, who was chief of the French delegates at the Weisbaden armistice conference. Added to this is the fact that all parliamentarians have been ousted from the cabinet except Vice Premier Pierre Laval, who remains as the coördinator and the outstanding exponent in politics here of continental consolidation and animosity to England.

The second is the appointment of Gen. Maxime Weygand to a post in Africa as the delegate of the Petain government with plenary powers. This foreshadows that the French government is anticipating a severe struggle for its African possessions and is coördinating under Weygand what remains of its powers of resistance against intrigue and open attack.

It is believed probable that a struggle between England and Italy on a large scale will begin in Africa within three or four weeks, or as soon as the weather permits.

Various actions in the Mediterranean have indicated that the stage is being set for the struggle. These include the dispatch of more British warships to the area, the difficult position of Egypt, and political shiftings there.

Weygand Recuperating.

Where Weygand will establish his headquarters has not yet been announced nor is it known when he will leave Vichy. He suffered cuts on the face in an airplane accident and now is recuperating.

Weygand's main task, it is believed, will be to keep French possessions in north Africa consolidated and at the same time resist dissensions in French Equatorial Africa stirred up by the British and the "free" Frenchmen under Gen. Charles de Gaulle.

The Petain government also has taken measures to avert trouble in Indo-China. Frontier vigilance there was ordered redoubled and action taken to "face any eventuality" after Chinese crossed the border two days ago and clashed with French forces. The Chinese were reported to have been repulsed but only after one French soldier was killed and ten wounded.

AIR CRASH KILLS PARAGUAY'S HERO PRESIDENT, WIFE

Estigarribias' Pilot Also Dies in Fog.

ASUNCION, Paraguay, Sept. 7 (AP).—Gen. Jose Felix Estigarribia, president of Paraguay for more than a year, and his wife were killed today in an airplane crash.

Gen. José Estigarribia.

The plane was reported to have run into fog near its destination and the pilot apparently was driven off his course. The pilot also was killed.

Commander of Paraguayan armies in the Chaco war with Bolivia, and the nation's hero in that conflict, Estigarribia was elected president April 30, 1939, and took his oath of office amid public rejoicing the following Aug. 15. He had served a short term as minister to Washington.

Estigarribia, who once was exiled from his country, abolished the representative régime last February 18, assumed dictatorial powers and drafted a new constitution for the avowed purpose of "protecting and purifying democracy" in Paraguay.

Nation Told of Death.

"With most profound grief I inform the nation that in an airplane accident today his excellency, the president of the republic and general of the army, Jose Felix Estigarribia, and his wife lost their lives.

"This loss deprives the republic of one of its greatest sons, and it is necessary that people doing honor to our glorious chief should redouble their purpose and follow his luminous tracks toward concord and the national welfare."

Estigarribia was one of the first to see action in the war with Bolivia. His success in the recapture of Forts Pitiantuta and Boqueron won him command of the army in the southern sector. In 1933, his army surrounded and captured two full Bolivian divisions at Campo Via. He won another military success, the victory at Canada el Carmen.

Gen. Estigarribia was born, Jan. 21, 1888 in Caraguatay. In 1917, he married Julia Miranda Cueto. Their daughter, Graciela, became the wife of the Paraguayan minister to the United States, Dr. Horacio A. Fernandez.

Marquez, in accordance with a previous promise, resigned as soon as the decision was announced. His successor, Gen. Juan Tonazzi, will take office on Sept. 9.

FRANCO STRESSES SPAIN'S HOPE FOR TRIUMPH OF AXIS

Nazi's Highest Award Conferred on Him.

BY MAURICE ENGLISH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MADRID, Spain, Sept. 7.—Solidarity of the Spanish government with Germany and Italy was proclaimed by Generalissimo Francisco Franco yesterday in two diplomatic ceremonies during which he expressed his conviction victory will crown the axis in the fight for "a new order" in Europe.

The ceremonies were held in the Oriente palace in the morning. In the first, Gen. Franco received Francisco Lequio, who presented his credentials as the new Italian ambassador. At the second, Franco received the grand cross of gold of the Order of the German Eagle, which is the highest decoration Fuehrer Adolf Hitler can bestow, at the hands of German Ambassador Eberhart von Stoher.

Press Shows Enthusiasm.

All Spanish newspapers displayed editorial enthusiasm over Spain's friendship for Italy and Germany and stressed Franco's speeches to the two ambassadors.

Lequio assured Franco that "Il Duce understands completely the legitimate aspirations of the Spanish people and wishes them the best of luck in the realization of their rights." This might or might not be a reference to Gibraltar solely.

In reply, Gen. Franco, after commending the "brotherhood of battle fields" which links the two régimes from the days of the Spanish civil war, assured the new ambassador, "The Italian people can count on the good will and enthusiasm of my government whenever they ask for it."

Veiled Attack on Britain?

Franco also referred to the unidentified forces which were "trying to take advantage of our poverty and sacrifices to break down the power and dignity of our country."

His reference was veiled, but there has been a great deal of outspoken resentment here over a recent article in the London Daily Express suggesting that Britain might promote a revolution in Spain should this country drop its nonbelligerency and join the war openly.

Aid to Listeners

This map, showing the defense system of the United States, including the sites for new air and naval bases which are being acquired by lease and gift from Great Britain, is printed for the use of those listening tonight to a radio speech by Colonel Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE TRIBUNE. The talk will be broadcast by station W-G-N on the Chicago Tribune Symphonic hour, between 9 and 10 p. m. The map will also be of use to readers of the text of the talk, which will be printed in full in Monday morning's TRIBUNE.

In his radio talk Col. McCormick will discuss the uses to which the new bases could be put in the defense of the United States and Canada.

U. S. TO JOIN WAR AFTER ELECTION, BRITON WRITES

J. L. Garvin, Publicist, Gives 2 Reasons.

[Copyright: 1940: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, Sept. 8, Sunday.—In an article discussing the Anglo-American destroyer bases deal, J. L. Garvin says in the Sunday Observer that the United States will join the war as soon as the Presidential elections are over. Garvin is known as the dean of all British publicists and is editor in chief of the Encyclopedia Britannica. He is declared to have excellent sources of information.

First Motive Is Security.

"We are convinced," he writes, "that if Britain holds out a few months more the United States, when the Presidential elections are over and clouds of controversies are cleared away, will become a mighty belligerent at the overwhelming demand of her people irrespective of party.

"This opinon is based on two plain reasons. First, America will swing in for its own sake. British sea power is the bulwark of her security and her institutions no less than her own navy. It is we who are the great outpost of American defense. By comparison, the new chain of small outposts which Washington has leased are bagatels for the purpose of this war, however effective they may become later.

Offers a "Wider" Reason.

"Second, the United States must come in for a wider reason, which equally concerns ourselves and the conquered nations, including France. No sufficient securities for future world peace can be wrested out of the worst of wars unless America comes in to clinch the total victory of freedom and assure the solidarity of a just peace."

It was emphasized in official circles that Garvin had not consulted any member of the foreign office before he wrote.

TROLLEY HITS BOY ON SCOOTER.

Richard Monaco, 11 years old, of 833 Grand avenue, was injured seriously last night when he was struck by a street car as he was crossing in front of 505 North Halsted street on his scooter. The boy was taken to the Norwegian American hospital, where physicians may have to amputate his right leg.

HAIFA FIGHTS OFF RAID BY ITALIANS, BRITISH REPORT

CAIRO, Egypt, Sept. 7 (AP).—Italian planes which raided Haifa, oil port in British mandated Palestine, were driven off by antiaircraft fire before they could do any effective bombing yesterday, the British near east command announced today. It said there was no damage and no casualties.

Three air raids on Mersa Matruh, Egypt, with "some" casualties, were acknowledged.

The British reported they made an attack yesterday on the Jibuti-Addis Ababa railway, scoring four hits on a bridge at Awash, 90 miles west of Addis.

Big Fires Set, Say Italians.

ROME, Sept. 7 (AP).—Italian planes set large fires in a bombardment of oil tanks and refineries in Haifa, a main British oil terminus in the near east, the Italian high command announced today.

In attacks on British shipping in the Red sea, an Italian submarine sank an oil tanker and Italian planes bombed a ship convoy, damaging a British cruiser and two steamers, a communique said.

In North Africa, the communique added, Italian air formations bombed the Alexandria-Mersa Matruh railroad and shot down two pursuit planes.

Fighting on German Soil Hailed as Canadians' Job

SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND, Sept. 7 (AP).—Maj. Gen. Victor W. Odlum, in an order of the day, told the 2d Canadian division today that "we will not rest till we defend our homes on German soil. We are not here merely to defend Canada and the empire on British soil."

CLINNIN PUSHES ORGANIZATION OF RESERVE MILITIA

4 Regiments Planned to Replace Guardsmen.

Plans for establishing a two way radio network to link all Illinois armories after the Illinois National Guard has been called into federal service were announced yesterday by Brig. Gen. John V. Clinnin, who was requested by Gov. Henry Horner and Adjt. Gen. Lawrence V. Regan to organize the reserve militia of the state.

"The two way radio system will be one of the most important features of the reserve militia setup," said Gen. Clinnin. "The radio network will be coördinated with the radio systems of the city police and state highway police."

Asked to Form 4 Regiments.

Gen. Clinnin disclosed that he was asked about a month ago to begin organization of four reserve militia regiments totaling 6,000 men to replace the Illinois National Guard when it enters the federal service. [One unit of the Guard, the 202d coast artillery—antiaircraft—will enter federal service on Sept. 16. The rest of the Illinois Guard awaits a call at some later date.]

The decision to begin organization of the reserve militia was based on a law approved June 25, 1917, which now is incorporated in the military and naval code as sections 214 to 219, inclusive, Gen. Clinnin said. This law says in part:

"Whenever the governor . . . shall deem it necessary or advisable for the purpose of executing the laws of the state, or of preventing the actual or threatened violation thereof, or any other emergency or suppressing actual or threatened insurrection or riots, or when the nation is at war and a requisition or order has been made, or is likely to be made, by the President of the United States calling the National Guard, or parts thereof, into the national service, he may issue a proclamation or call for volunteer companies, battalions, regiments, brigades, or other units of land forces to be known as the reserve militia, which shall be formed from and out of the unorganized militia of the state."

State Militia Defined.

The military and naval code, in another place, identifies the unorganized militia as a part of the "state militia." The state militia is made up of all able bodied male citizens between 18 and 45 years of age and those between 18 and 45 who have declared their intention to become citizens. The code specifies that the state militia is divided into the National Guard, the naval militia, and the unorganized militia.

Clinnin said volunteers between the ages of 18 and 21 will be sought for the reserve militia. If and when they are called for conscript service they will have to resign from the reserve, he said. Applications for enlistment may be made at any armory in the state.

The 6,000 men are to be organized into four rifle regiments of 1,500 men each. Each regiment will have three battalions, each of four companies, with the units spotted thruout the state. Two regiments, to be called the 1st and 2d, will be in Chicago, and two, to be known as the 3d and 4th, will be downstate.

Herman E. Weimer already has been named to command the 1st regiment, and Robert Wigglesworth has been chosen to command the 2d, both with the rank of colonel. Weimer and Wigglesworth, like Gen. Clinnin, are world war veterans. Weimer was a lieutenant and later captain in the 131st infantry, and Wigglesworth was a captain in the 132d infantry, both Chicago units of the 33d division. Both men were awarded the Distinguished Service Cross.

Mayors of those Illinois cities which have armories have recommended the names of men for officers of companies to be located in those cities, Clinnin said. It is proposed to organize units of the reserve militia in each of the following places: Elgin, Aurora, Joliet, Kankakee, Waukegan, Rockford, Dixon, Sycamore, Rock Island, Galesburg, Quincy, Kewanee, Peoria, Pontiac, Bloomington, Streator, Springfield, Decatur, Champaign-Urbana, Danville, East St. Louis, Mount Vernon, Cairo, Carbondale, and Salem.

Gen. Clinnin warned against attempts bp unauthorized organizations to form defense units. Such activity is a violation of state law, he said, and no permits for organizations so formed will be issued by Adjt. Gen. Regan.

Occupation Sept. 14

SOFIA, Bulgaria, Sept. 1 (AP).—The signing of a formal agreement with Rumania for return to Bulgaria of southern Dobruja gives Bulgaria 2,883 square miles of territory and a population of 375,000. Occupation is expected to begin Sept. 14 and military occupation four days later.

The territory restores the frontier to that of 1912, when southern Dobruja was taken from Bulgaria after the Balkan wars.

Bulgaria gets a strip of land more than 40 miles wide, including the provinces of Durostor and Caliacra and the cities of Silistra and Balcic.

The unit, commanded by Capt. Richard J. O'Keefe, moved on to Springfield yesterday to take more enlistments. It will go later to Eau Claire, Wis.

Men between the ages of 21 and 27 who qualify are given $75 a month and maintenance while they are training for the air corps. Upon graduation they receive commissions as second lieutenants.

HOUSE APPROVES DRAFT BILL; SETS AGES AT 21 TO 45

the response to this call is awaited. If 400,000 men were raised in this fashion, the draft would not go into effect.

The President would be authorized to issue a call for another 400,000 volunteers after Jan. 1, 1941. Again there would be no draft if the quota were filled. Any deficiency, however, would put conscription into effect to obtain the full 400,000.

Before voting on final passage, the house unanimously approved draft law legislation designed to retain jobs for persons inducted into the military service while they spend a year in camp.

The legislators strengthened the section in the law which provides that employed persons shall be restored, after military service, to their positions without loss of seniority, insurance participation or other benefits. They must receive the same pay and shall not be discharged without cause within one year after the restoration.

Vote "Leave" for Employés.

An amendment adopted by voice vote fortified these provisions by stating that the person drafted shall be considered on furlough or leave of absence. Chairman Andrew J. May [D., Ky.] of the house military affairs committee explained that this amendment was intended particularly to preserve the status of railroad employés taken from their jobs for a one year period.

Another amendment approved by a vote of 93 to 84 carried a declaration of policy that no alien, communist or German-American bundsman should be given jobs in private industry left vacant by citizens called into the army.

Representative Karl E. Mundt [R., S. D.] told the house that he realized congress could not constitutionally force industry not to hire aliens, communists or bundsmen, but urged his colleagues to indorse the principle of the amendment. Since aliens are excluded from military service by the bill, he argued, they should not be permitted to take jobs vacated by citizens.

40 Days to Apply for Jobs.

The job insurance section in the measure provides that persons taken from permanent employment, who complete a year of satisfactory military service, shall be entitled to their former positions if they make application for reëmployment within 40 days after they are relieved from military service. If holders of federal jobs, they are to be returned automatically to their positions. If holders of state jobs, the bill declares it to be "the sense of the congress" that they should be restored to their former status.

The provision relating to private employment declares that the employer shall restore the person "to a position of like seniority, status, and pay unless the employer's circumstances have so changed as to make it impossible or unreasonable to do so."

If a private employer fails or refuses to reëmploy a man who has returned from military service, the local Federal court is given power to require him to comply with the law.

Attorney Is Provided.

Speedy hearings are provided. The United States district attorney is required to act as attorney for the employé in pressing his claim.

By a vote of 152 to 93, the house defeated a proposal by Representative Dewey Short [R., Mo.] that local draft boards be bipartisan in composition. Another amendment, providing that a majority of the boards should be veterans of the world war, was also rejected.

Short aroused a political controversy with a blast against Democratic Vice Presidential Candidate Henry A. Wallace. Representative R. Ewing Thomason [D., Tex.] retorted that Republican Presidential Nominee Wendell L. Willkie had indorsed everything in the Roosevelt administration and predicted that Willkie will approve a third term before he is thru.

"The Democrats are sacrificing democracy on the altar of military conscription," shouted Short in return. "The supporters of this bill who are laughing today will weep after the November election."

Low Incomes Debated.

The controversy between southern and northern congressmen over volunteer enlistments was revived by Representative Clare E. Hoffman [R., Mich.]. Noting that the southerners were boasting about the fact that more volunteers were coming from the south than from the north, Hoffman produced a table to show that per capita income played an important part in army enlistments.

"It will be seen from this table that a job in the army at $21 a month—with board, lodging, medical and dental care, and opportunity for both education and advancement—is more alluring to a young man living in Alabama, where the average opportunity for income is but $189 a year, than it would be for the same young man in Connecticut, for example, where the average income opportunity is $607 a year," Hoffman remarked.

Summary of Draft Measure

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 7.—The opening section of the newly enacted conscription bill carries a declaration by congress that an increase in the nation's armed forces is imperative. Military training in a free society ought to be shared equally and therefore a system of selective compulsory military training is essential, the bill states.

All male citizens and all male aliens between the ages of 21 and 45 are required to register for the draft. [Aliens may claim exemption from service because of their noncitizenship.]

All registrants are liable for training in the land and naval forces of the United States, regardless of race or color. A 12 month period of training and service is provided.

While the registration is going on, however, the President is required to issue a call for 400,000 volunteers. The draft does not go into effect until 60 days after this call, and if the full 400,000 should be obtained, the draft would not go into effect. The same provision applies to a second call for 400,000 volunteers to be issued by the President after Jan. 1, 1941.

Limited to Million Men.

A limitation is placed on the power of the President to induct men for training and service by a provision that except in time of war there shall not be more than 1,000,000 men in the nation's armed forces.

The draftees may not be called upon to serve beyond the limits of the western hemisphere except in territories and possessions of the United States, including the Philippines.

College students may claim exemption until July 1, 1941.

While the training period is for 12 months only, draftees may be called upon for longer service if congress declares that the national interest is in peril.

After completion of the training period, each man is to be transferred to a reserve component of the land or naval forces. He remains a member of the reserves for 10 years, or until he reaches the age of 45, whichever occurs first.

Army Pay Increased.

Quotas for each state are to be determined on the basis of the male population in each state.

Exemptions are provided for diplomatic representatives, the Vice President, all members of congress, all government officials, all judges of courts of record, ministers of religion and students in theological schools, and inmates of monasteries.

The President is authorized to seize any plant manufacturing military supplies, or capable of doing so, which refuses to accept government orders for defense items. The government will pay a fair and just rental.

The President [which means the local draft board] may defer the training and service of men employed in industry, agriculture, and other occupations found to be necessary to the national health, safety or interest. Regulations are also set up for defering the training of men with dependents or those found to be physically, mentally or morally deficient.

Objectors Given a Hearing.

Detailed provisions are set up for those who are conscientious objectors to participating in war of any kind. If the department of justice finds, after an inquiry, that their claims are just, they will be assigned to noncombatant service. If not, they will be forced into military service.

The benefits of a world war act are extended to all draftees. It suspends all court proceedings and other actions which might harm a citizen during his absence in the army. In addition, the bill insures that a draftee's job will be open to him upon his return to civilian life. If an employer refuses to reëmploy a man who was drafted, the latter may press his claim in the federal courts with the assistance of the United States attorney for his district.

Two youth charged with malicious mischief, assault and battery, and assault to rob, were advised to join the army yesterday by Municipal Judge Frank M. Padden, who called them "smart aleck tough guys."

The two, Earl Davenport, 19 years old, 920 West 19th street, and Emil Ochodnicky, 18, of 1942 Carpenter street, were accused of breaking windows in a neighbor's home and assaulting a physician who was dressing their hand injuries.

When the two said they had been thinking of joining the army, Judge Padden continued the case to Oct. 3, setting bond at $6,000 each.

DEATHBED STORY TO FORCE UNION GANGSTER PURGE

Speedy Action Follows Taylor Disclosures.

Developments yesterday followed thick and fast upon the disclosure Friday night of the sensational deathbed statement of Mathew Taylor, president of the Chicago Elevator Operators' and Starters' union. The Taylor confession told of mob rule, murder, extortion, and robbery among racketeers seeking control of unions.

The big developments of the day were:

1. State's Attorney Courtney announced he will use Taylor's affidavit as a club to purge gangsters and racketeers from Chicago unions.

2. It was reported that A. P. Madden, special agent in charge of the intelligence unit of the bureau of internal revenue in Chicago, is preparing to prosecute Thomas J. Burke for income tax evasion. Burke is a vice president of the Building Service Employés International union, with which the Taylor group was forced to affiliate in 1937.

3. Reuben C. Soderstrom, president of the Illinois Federation of Labor, said Taylor's statement proved the wisdom of the federation's position that unions must clean house by driving out racketeers.

4. The executive board of the elevator operators' union prepared to meet tomorrow night to select a successor to Taylor and to decide what action to take in view of his statement.

5. New York prosecutors studied the disclosures because Taylor's story was tied up with testimony of witnesses at the current trial in that city of George Scalise, hoodlum and panderer and former president of the Building Service Employés' International union. Scalise, who took over Taylor's elevator union as part of his labor empire, is charged with stealing union funds.

Jurisdiction Shift Forced.

Taylor, a labor leader for 39 years, died Friday in a Naperville sanitarium. His affidavit—a 65 page document—had been made in the presence of State's Attorney Courtney and Wilbert F. Crowley, Courtney's first assistant.

Taylor, who said that since last April he had rebelled against gangster extortion from his union, told of being forced to shift the 3,500 elevator operators under his jurisdiction from the Elevator Constructors' International to the Building Employés' International in 1937. This was after Scalise had convinced the executive board of the American Federation of Labor that the elevator operators belonged in his international.

In his statement Taylor also told of taking more than $30,000 of his union's funds and turning the money over to "the mob" because his life had been threatened.

Last night Courtney was working on all phases of the statement and investigating the clews it gave to unsolved crimes.

Story Powerful Weapon.

"Racketeers and gangsters must be forced out of Chicago unions," Courtney said, "and this statement gives us a powerful weapon to that end. I want labor to aid in cleaning its own house. My office will always welcome union people who want to help in the inquiry."

Courtney's office is seeking four men for questioning on Taylor's affidavit. They are Paul B. David, secretary-treasurer of the Building Employés' international, who is reported to be in hiding in Wisconsin; Kenneth Ashley, bookkeeper for this organization, who is also in hiding; Lee Powers, former treasurer of the Elevator Operators' union, and Henry Biehl, a former business agent for the elevator operators.

David and Ashley fled after being questioned concerning Scalise's account with the union. [Ashley had the keys to Scalise's safety boxes.] Powers is said to have disappeared last April when a $3,400 shortage of funds came to light. Biehl had been a business agent for Taylor.

U. S. Agents Examine Books.

The books of the elevator operators' union have been examined here by internal revenue agents from New York, as well as those from Chicago.

Taylor, in his statement, said that he gave the $30,000 of his union funds to Burke in instalments in 1939 and up to March of this year. This was in addition to 50 per cent of union funds turned over to Scalise and the Building Employés' international.

Investigators learned that the 3,500 members of the elevator operators' union pay $48 a year dues—a total of $168,000. The union is required to pay the international $4.20 a year per member—a total of $14,700. Each union member is given $1,000 life insurance and $15 a week for sick benefits. It is estimated that there now is $100,000 in the union treasury.

Voucher System Discarded.

It also was learned that when Scalise's international took over Taylor's union in 1937 the constitution of the latter organization was changed to give Taylor wider financial powers and his salary was raised from $100 a week to $900 a month. The voucher system in bookkeeping was discarded, so that an accurate scrutiny of expenidtures would be difficult.

Soderstrom, president of the state federation of labor, said Taylor's statement will be considered at the federation's annual convention, which opens Sept. 15 in Rockford.

"The federation always has stood for driving racketeers out of unions," Soderstrom said. "After study of this document we doubtless will reaffirm our resolution."

Two Considered for Post.

The executive board of the elevator operators' union will meet tomorrow night after Taylor's funeral. Robert Marcus, who had lived in Taylor's household, said a successor to Taylor will be appointed and the statement will be considered. Among those mentioned for the presidency of the union are Al Matha, a vice president, and Thomas O'Grady, a business agent and close friend of Taylor.

In Taylor's statement, relating events in 1939 when a lawyer told Taylor the "mob" plan was to have Burke take over the elevator starters' union, Taylor said: "I got my people in here, all my friends . . . people who stuck with me like Tommy O'Grady and Al Matha. I took Tom from his job at the city hall and made him business agent and he made good. I didn't want him to lose out."

While a selection for president may be tomorrow night, the regular union election of officers is not until June, 1941.

Promotion by Gang Told.

One of Scalise's associates, testifying against him at the New York trial, said Scalise was made international president thru activities of the Chicago "mob." The deal was reported to have been arranged in a Chicago restaurant. Taylor's statement tended to corroborate these circumstances.

Another phase of Taylor's story was verified yesterday by Elwood Glass, manager of the Bankers' building. Taylor said Patrick Sullivan, president of the Building Trades' council, threatened to throw Taylor's union out of the council unless he called a strike of Bankers' building elevator operators to aid painters who were on strike there.

"That's the story Taylor told us at the time," Glass said. "I didn't deal with the painters until Taylor told us of the threat to throw out his union. I believe the Taylor story is absolutely right. He had told me some of the things in his death bed statement."

Courtney disclosed yesterday that Taylor, in his statement, said his bitterness toward Scalise and Burke became so strong that he planned to kill them in a Chicago hotel last April.

"I was going to kill them and something went wrong," Taylor said. "The maid stepped into the room—they made up the beds at certain times. I was that bitter. I didn't know there were other people working on this thing."

California Threats Described.

It was recalled that last February Charles S. Hardy, president of the San Francisco, Cal., local of the building service employés, testified in Superior court there that his life had been threatened on three occasions by Scalise and Burke.

Scalise and Burke were trying to oust Hardy and his two sons from the union. The court held that Scalise and Burke could not participate in the hearing of any charges against the Hardys before the executive board of the international.

Funeral services for Taylor will be held at 2 p. m. tomorrow in the chapel at 1820 Michigan avenue. Burial will be in Mount Emblem cemetery. Pallbearers will be officials of his union.

SCALISE FACES STATE TRIAL ON INCOME TAX CASE

New York, Sept. 7 [Special].—George Scalise, ex-convict and former president of the Building Service Employés International, faces prosecution on charges of evading state income taxes, it was learned today. Scalise now is on trial accused of stealing over $60,000 from the International union.

Spencer E. Bates, deputy commissioner of the state tax commission, revealed that the commission has just completed an inquiry into Scalise's income. He refused further comment, but it was reported in other quarters that the evidence gathered has been turned over to District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey's office.

Meanwhile, when Scalise's trial is resumed Monday, Judge Jacob G. Schurman Jr. is expected to rule on whether Prosecutor Murray Gurfein can proceed with questioning on alleged income tax coverups by Scalise.

POLICE MONKEY DETAIL BRINGS ONE BACK ALIVE

Oak Park's police monkey detail had a rough time yesterday afternoon. A monkey appeared in the back yard of the home of Edwin T. Schneberger at 1007 North Humphrey avenue in the suburb, and immediately outwore its welcome by biting Richard Garcia, 8 years old, 2418 Fullerton avenue, a visitor.

Policeman Fred Wolff and Frank Ramacitti were sent to the scene. Jack Pickett, the police radio operator, told them: "Don't come back without the monkey."

Wolff and Ramacitti spent an exciting 45 minutes before they inveigled the monkey from the trees to the ground and flung a wire basket over it. They took it to the station, where C. J. Muntwyler of 1014 North Hayes avenue in the suburb claimed it later. The monkey will be held, however, for 15 days' observation at the Oak Park pound.

Catches a Fish

Four hours after the Chicago Park district fishing contest opened yesterday morning, Gus Johnson, 5129 West 24th street, Cicero, was leading all anglers with a 3¾ pound large-mouthed black bass hooked in the Douglas park lagoon. The contest will continue until ended by bad weather. The Izaak Walton league has put up $100 in prizes for the largest fish caught in eight lagoons in the city's seven parks. Several big ones were taken in the Jackson park lagoon by midafternoon.

U. S. SHUTS ITS LEGATIONS IN 3 BALTIC LANDS

Washington, D. C., Sept. 7.—Bowing to a demand by the soviet union, the state department revealed today that it had closed its legations and consular section in Lithuania, Estonia and Latvia. The legation were officially closed as of Sept. 5.

The Stalin government, after taking over the three Baltic states, insisted that diplomatic missions could not be maintained there, giving rise to reports that mass executions and GPU activities were in progress in the territories occupied by Russian military forces.

SURVEY REVEALS DEARTH OF ARMS FOR BIGGER ARMY

Equivalent German Force Held More Formidable.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 7.—While the administration is pressing for conscription of men for the armed forces, a survey shows that the army is woefully short on equipment for those men. Even when the program is completed for equipping the various sized armies to be called up indications, on the basis of present plans, are that the equivalent German forces would be much more formidable.

It has been found that the driving and firing power of the German infantry and panzer [mechanized] divisions greatly exceeds that of the American forces, and that the United States army has clung to low caliber guns despite increasing reports of the effectiveness of German heavy artillery used within the German infantry division as well as to bolster the infantry drive. The German firepower runs as much as 50 per cent above that of American divisions.

Germans Use Larger Guns.

For instance, the United States army abides by the outdated 75 mm. gun which has proved deficient in the European war, the Germans using 105 mm. and 150 mm. guns and howitzers instead. The United States army is also placing its faith in the 37 mm. antitank gun, despite the failure of the French and British to stop the heavily armored German tanks with guns of similar low caliber.

The French 75 mm. guns were found to be the lowest caliber gun effective against the Germans in their drive across France. The 20 mm., 25 mm., and 47 mm. antitank guns used in the allied armies finally were abandoned as the French moved large numbers of 75 mm. guns into position for direct fire against armored vehicles. Even these did not stop the Germans in their drive to the English channel because the allies lacked armor piercing ammunition and sighting equipment for the 75s which would permit continuous tracking of the moving targets.

See Lesson for America.

Experts say this is one of the lessons from the European war which should be taken into account by the United States army. It is true that the German army uses the 37 mm. antitank gun but the tanks of its opponents were less heavily armored.

A comparison of the American and German equipment by infantry and panzer divisions shows the superiority of German firing power. Accurate data is not available on the potential equipment of the contemplated American armies as stacked against German armies of the same size because the organization is not well enough known.

The Germans have maintained strict secrecy on the details of their army organization and equipment and the United States war department also has clamped down the lid on vital information, refusing to reveal "defense secrets."

Data on Equipment.

In an accompanying table are figures on equipment on hand for an American army of 450,000 as of May 1, for the latest reported strength of approximately 519,000, for the contemplated army of 750,000 plus replacements of 250,000 by the end of this year and the ultimate goal of an active army of 1,200,000, plus replacements of 800,000 based upon active conscription. These figures on armed strength cover the regular army, the National Guard, the draftées after Oct. 1.

Data on the plans for an army of 1,200,000 men necessarily must be only an approximation because the army officially has refused to disclose this information. It is still weighing a request from Senator Harry F. Byrd [D., Va.] for information on the amount of equipment it needs. The data on equipment on hand Aug. 1 was obtained by representative James E. Van Zandt [R., Pa.] only after persistent demands upon the war department to furnish it.

While the figure of 140,000 trucks estimated as necessary for an army of 1,200,000 appears to be high it was obtained from a high authoritative source fithin the army, and further indicates the present low state of equipment.

The army has about 1,000 155 mm. guns on hand, but only 4 of these are modern. New designs recently were adopted for the 155 mm. gun, the 105 mm. howitzer and the 8-inch howitzer, and these are contemplated in the program for future needs. The army has not contracted for any 155 mm. guns since May 1 and plans to order in the near future only slightly over 50 of them.

The army has 15 old 105 mm. howitzers and plans to order only 180 more. On the other hand it has about 3,000 of the outmoded world war type French 75s on hand, of which 241 have been modernized. More than 1,000 additional will be modernized. There is no indication of replacing the 75s with 105s and 155s.

Compared with German Army.

Altho no totals are available on the total equipment strength of the German army, a study of the organization of divisions and smaller fighting units indicates that the German army could outshoot our army on the basis of known organization. This is how the infantry and panzer divisions compare; according to the best available information:

The German panzer division contains in all about 3,000 vehicles of all types. The American mechanized division is based upon the German organization and is only now in process of organization, the army having set up a corps of two divisions. The divisions of the German army are organized as light mechanized, heavy mechanized [panzer], infantry, motorized and mountain units. The German antitank armament is the heaviest of any army in the world.

The unknown but potent factor in German infantry attack is the special artillery regiment supporting the infantry regiment. This artillery regiment, in addition to artillery within the infantry, includes an unknown number of 420 mm., 210 mm., 150 mm., 105 mm., and 75 mm. guns. The American divisional commander, on the other hand, has at his command only 75 mm. guns and 155 mm. howitzers. The army has in production some 105 mm. howitzers.

Even in the infantry squad the German army is calculated to outshoot the American squad, having a maximum fire power of 840 rounds per minute, compared with the approximately 480 rounds per minute for the American unit.

"All [German] commanders, from chief of section up, are enjoined to seek superiority of fire on the enemy," according to a translation of German artillery instructions, published by the Field Artillery Journal. Against mechanized forces the Germans use ordinary shells at the longer ranges and armor piercing shells below 1,000 meters [6-10 mile].

U. S. WILL SHARE ISLE BASES WITH LATIN AMERICANS

Hull Announces Offer to Other Republics.

BY WILLIAM STRAND.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 7.—The new United States air and naval bases in British western hemisphere possessions will be made available to all Latin American nations on a full coöperative basis, Secretary of State Hull announced today.

He said formal notification of the acquisition of the bases by this country has been transmitted by the state department to the South American republics. Facilities at the bases are to be opened to the neighbors of the United States for "the common defense of the hemisphere," it was explained.

Under the terms of an agreement with Great Britain made public earlier this week, the United States receives 99 year leases for bases in Newfoundland, in the islands of Bermudas, the Bahamas, Jamaica, St. Lucia, Trinidad and Antigua, and in British Guiana.

Two Outright Gifts.

The right to base American sea and air forces in Newfoundland and Bermuda were outright gifts. The other bases were allowed in exchange for 50 overage United States destroyers which already are being transferred to the British for use in the war with Germany.

"The government of the United States has taken this step to strengthen its ability not only to defend the United States but in order the more effectively to coöperate with other American republics in the common defense of the hemisphere," the notification to the Latin American republics stated.

"The resulting facilities at these bases will, of course, be made available alike to all American republics on the fullest coöperative basis for the common defense of the hemisphere and in entire harmony with the spirit of the pronouncements made in the understandings reached at conferences of Lima, Panama, and Havana."

May Mean Other Bases.

This move is designed at least in part to induce the Latin American nations to provide the United States with additional basing facilities in South America, it was said.

Particularly desired for completion of the defense of the Panama canal, it was said, is one more base somewhere along the outward hump of Brazil.

The same sources say that the administration now believes that Brazil and any other nation where defense outposts might become necessary will feel justified in volunteering such facilities in exchange for the use of the new United States bases.

U. S. SEA FORCE JOINS BRAZIL'S LIBERTY MARCH

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil, Sept. 7 (AP).—Four hundred sailors and marines from the United States cruisers Quincy and Wichita, here on a good will tour, marched today in a parade of Brazilian forces celebrating the 118th anniversary of the nation's independence from Portugal.

Artillery in the parade included 8 recently acquired Krupp [German made] antiaircraft cannon and 21 smaller antiaircraft guns, and 23 light tanks.

Fifteen thousand soldiers, sailors, marines and police and students of military naval and reserve schools were in the line of march.

BABY BOY SMOTHERS IN CRIB.

Steven Gerdes, seven weeks old, smothered yesterday in his crib, in the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Otis Gerdes, 4112 Broadway. A fire department rescue squad tried in vain to revive him.

Prisoners Escape

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, Sept. 7 (AP).—The escape of 15 interned officers of the scuttled German pocket battleship Admiral Graf Spee from Martin Garcia island aboard a seized launch was reported today by the Argentine government.

Details of the escape from the island, which is in the River Plata estuary, were not immediately forth coming. The ministry of the interior ordered special police to hunt for the fugitives.

There have been previous escapes of officers and enlisted men of the Graf Spee, which was scuttled in the harbor of Montevideo, Uruguay, after it was disabled in a battle with three British cruisers. After the first escapes the officers were placed under military detention on the island and the enlisted men were sent into the interior.

U. S. DESTROYERS PUT IN BATTLE TRIM IN CANADA

AN EASTERN CANADIAN PORT, Sept. 7.—Canadian and American sailors today worked at putting the finishing battle touches on the first group of the 50 over-age destroyers traded to England by the United States. Early next week the Stars and Stripes will be hauled down while the sailors of both nations stand at attention and the captains shake hands, and the transfer of the ships to the Union Jack will be complete.

Rear Admiral Stuart Bonham-Carter of the British navy and Rear Admiral Percy W. Nelles, chief of the Canadian naval staff, expressed delight over the good condition of the United States destroyers. Britain wants to use them for antisubmarine patrols and they are perfect for the work, Admiral Bonham-Carter said.

Several of the destroyers arriving later will become part of the Canadian navy, it is believed.

PUT ROOSEVELT UNDER FIRE ON ARGENTINE MEAT

Congressmen Stirred by Talk of Lifting Ban.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 7.—President Roosevelt was under fire from congressmen today in a storm stirred by reports that he had promised action, after the election, to lift the controversial ban on meat imports from Argentina.

"Once again Mr. Roosevelt has had to deny," observed Representative Frank O. Horton [R., Wyo.], "that he has made a secret agreement promising Latin American countries an increase in United States imports of their agricultural products."

Horton referred to the President's denial earlier in the day that he had said anything to Argentine officials to lead them to conclude the ban would be removed. The optimistic conclusion was disclosed yesterday in Buenos Aires by Dr. Leopoldo Melo, chairman of the Argentine delegation to the Pan-American conference in Havana, and a recent confrère with Mr. Roosevelt at Hyde Park.

What Cuban Chief Told.

The President previously had to issue a hurried denial, Representative Horton said, after Col. Fulgencio Batista, president elect of Cuba, told the Cuban legislature recently that a treaty was in preparation with the United States to cut tariffs on Cuban sugar.

"I believe that both Dr. Melo and Col. Batista are as entitled to belief in their statements as Mr. Roosevelt is in his denials," Horton declared.

Senator John Thomas [R., Idaho] charged that the administration intended to destroy the sanitary law which banned imports on Argentine meats because of a United States contention that foot and mouth disease is prevalent in some sections of Argentina. The importation was most bitterly opposed by the middle and far west.

Recalls His Prediction.

The Idaho senator recalled his own prediction in the senate last March 28 that if the Hull trade agreement program was indorsed it would mean a revival of the trade agreement negotiations with Argentina and the drastic lowering of the tariff on virtually every agricultural commodity this country produces, including live stock.

"I might well have added," he said, "that we could expect this after the November election. Here is abundant evidence to support that contention."

In a statement the President made from Hyde Park thru his secretary, Stephen Early, he asserted he had told Dr. Melo there was no chance the senate would ratify the 1935 sanitary convention treaty, admitting Argentina lamb, mutton, and beef to this country. He added he thought that dispatches of Dr. Melo's statements were "obvious misquotations" or were garbled in transmission.

Dr. Melo Gives His Version.

Commenting in Buenos Aires tonight on the President's denial, Dr. Melo said it was true Mr. Roosevelt did not tell him the senate would ratify the treaty, but neither did the President tell him there was no chance of ratification. Dr. Melo said he had not quoted the President as saying the treaty would be ratified.

"Mr. Roosevelt explained to me," he said, "that due to the institutional organization of the United States, Nevada with less than 100,000 inhabitants has two senators as has New York with 14,000,000, and added that the senators logically would listen to their voters since the present hour was a political one not propitious for considering this matter, for which a solution would be found later, taking into account the reciprocal interests of the two nations."

6. The quickest way to get your children to learn how to sing important hymns, national anthems, and other valuable songs would be to

.... Read them the biographies of the song writers.
.... Remind them of the cultural or religious value of those songs.
.... Offer them a quarter for each song they could sing in entirety.
.... Tell them they may become radio singers if they learn good music.

Score yourself as follows: 0-2, poor; 3-6, average; 7-8, superior; 9-10, very superior. [Note—The last question counts five points.]

AMERICA FIRST CAMPAIGN GETS ROUSING START

Gen. Johnson Speech Stirs Enthusiastic Response.

An enthusiastic response thruout the nation to the campaign of the America First committee, which got under way with Gen. Hugh S. Johnson's speech Thursday night in Philadelphia, was reported yesterday by R. Douglas Stuart Jr., director of the committee.

Stuart said hundreds of telegrams and telephone calls arrived at committee headquarters here in the Board of Trade building, and that many called in person in response to the committee's appeal. All heralded the campaign of the committee to keep the United States out of the European war and volunteered their help, Stuart said.

The America First committee, which has "Defend America First" as its slogan, is a non partisan organization. It was organized by a group of liberals, conservatives, Democrats, Republicans, and leaders in industry and business.

Group Favors Defenses.

Membership in the committee's activities is open to all who believe in the principles that American democracy can be preserved only by keeping out of the European war and that the United States must build an impregnable defense as its best safeguard. Fascists, communists, and pacifists are barred. The committee is characterized as an "all-American" organization.

"The response to Gen. Johnson's speech," Stuart said, "substantiates our belief that the majority of American people believe we must look out for the interests of America first."

In his speech Gen. Johnson predicted America's entrance into the war within two weeks if President Roosevelt is reëlected.

A Few of Telegrams.

"Thank God some one has spoken for America at last. Enroll me in your organization."

"Your outstanding talk should be shouted from every American housetop. Please advise how I can help."

"Three cheers for back to earth talk."

A Chicago business man offered a donation and said: "I want 500 copies of Gen. Johnson's talk and whatever other literature you have."

Another caller said he wanted more information so he could spread the word to his friends and neighbors.

Stuart said the committee will mail out its first batch of literature this week. Buttons and stickers bearing the committee slogan also will be distributed.

Thousands of Water Lilies Blooming in Park Gardens

The Park district's aquatic gardens are now at the height of their beauty, William Blaesing, acting chief horticulturist, said yesterday. Thousands of hardy and tropical water lilies, ranging in size up to a foot in diameter, will continue blooming until frost. Displays may be seen in Garfield, Douglas, Humboldt, Lincoln, Jackson, and Gage parks. Night time visitors will be able to view the blooms, since the lilies bloom both night and day.

Bedford, N. Y., Sept. 7 (AP).—Margaret McGrath, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Sims McGrath, of Mount Kisco, N. Y., and David Rockefeller, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. John D. Rockefeller Jr., were married today in St. Matthew's Protestant Episcopal church.

The bride made her debut several years ago after attending Shipley school at Bryn Mawr, Pa., and Miss Chapin's in New York. Her father is a New York attorney.

City School Board Proud of New System.

The board of education's health education program was termed a success yesterday by August H. Pritzlaff, director of physical and health education, as it neared the end of its first four years. High school seniors who graduate next February will be the first "health conscious" students to complete the full course, which was begun in February, 1937.

Pritzlaff said the school board discarded traditional conceptions of health education when it adopted the new program. Principal subjects formerly were anatomy, physiology, and hygiene concerning, respectively, the structure, function and care of the body.

"We dropped the emphasis on anatomy and physiology," Pritzlaff said. "Such things as the number of bones in the body and the working of the liver are important to doctors, but not to the average person who merely wishes good health.

Stimulate Mental Health.

"In their place we have attempted to provide mental, physical, social, and spiritual acquisitions that tend toward an ideal adjustment of the individual to society. Just to know health is not enough. We want the students to live health and stimulate health conscious generations to come."

In elementary schools pupils attend two physical education classes weekly, but the major part of the program begins in high school. To the physical education instruction is added a weekly class in health education. Many reference books, rather than a single textbook, are used.

Pupils' interest is aroused by the use of movies, slides, and diagrams. They are given assignments to learn about health conditions in their own communities, and report their findings to their classes. They learn why health is important, as well as the methods by which health may be attained, Pritzlaff said.

Aids Philosophy of Life.

Topics which are studied and discussed in the classes include living healthfully in the home, school, and community; safety practices, choosing a healthful vocation, the development of the public health movement, sanitation, the individual's health responsibility to the community, the dangerous effects of stimulants and narcotics, and the way to build up a wholesome philosophy of life.

Emphasis in the studies for ninth grade pupils is upon orientation to various phases of healthful living. Tenth grade pupils concentrate on the hygiene of the various parts of the body, and upon the problem of living healthfully.

Public Health Stressed.

Public health is the main theme of 11th grade courses, while in the 12th grade the program attempts to correlate the previous three years' instruction and to provide the pupil with a wholesome philosophy and the incentive to live healthfully.

Pupils are encouraged to go to their family doctors for complete medical examinations, and to have defects corrected if possible. In some schools more than 80 per cent of the pupils have responded, Pritzlaff said.

"Health is a fundamental factor in the national preparedness program," Pritzlaff said. "In time of war a healthy man makes a better soldier, and costs the army less in medical and dental care. The population at home bears the mental strain of war better if the people are in good physical condition."

KANKAKEE RAIL WORKER DIES.

Kankakee, Ill., Sept. 7 [Special].—Axel F. Peterson, 68 years old, retired New York Central roundhouse foreman, died last night at his home here. A native of Sweden, he lived in Kankakee 45 years. The funeral will be held Monday.

GUARDS ON FIELD DUTY TO VOTE BY ABSENTEE POLL

Arrangements are being made for members of the 202d coast artillery [antiaircraft] regiment of the Illinois National Guard to vote in the November election by absentee ballots, Lieut. L. F. Weber, who is in charge of the recruiting desk at Broadway armory, said yesterday. The regiment is among the National Guard units called to a year's active duty.

"We will file a list of our men with the election board before leaving for Fort Bliss, Tex., the latter part of this month," Lieut. Weber said. "The election commissioners will forward to us absentee ballots for those men who are properly registered."

Yesterday's enlistments brought to 206 the total of new men under consideration as recruits in the 202d regiment. Some may be rejected later, but Lieut. Weber feels the recruiting station set up at the armory will supply within a week the 250 men needed to bring the regiment to peacetime strength. The nine officers needed will be promoted from the ranks of older men, all of whom may take examinations for advancement.

LOHENGRIN FILLS THE AIR AS FALL WEDDINGS BEGIN

Roxane M'Kenzie, Joanna Rogers Among Brides.

BY JUDITH CASS.

Dozens of early fall weddings kept the strains of "Lohengrin" echoing in Chicago and the suburbs.

Miss Roxane McKenzie became the bride of Alfred Marsden Price at 5 o'clock at the Winnetka home of her father, William D. McKenzie, the Rev. Thomas J. Burke officiating. The bride wore a charming gown of white satin trimmed with lace from the wedding dress of her late mother and carried Killarney roses and ivy. Her two pretty attendants, Miss Alice Blair and Miss Jehanne Price, were dressed in lemon yellow chiffon draped in Grecian style and carried token roses and ivy leaves.

The ceremony took place before an island of shrubbery on the lawn. The garden was flanked with arrangements of yellow gladioli in two huge French water jars.

Mr. Price, son of the Benjamin M. Prices of Hubbard Woods, and his bride will make their home in Chicago after a wedding trip to the Smoky mountains.

Stafford-Rogers Nuptials.

Miss Joanna Rogers of Lake Forest and Philip Truesdale Stafford, son of Mrs. J. E. Stafford of Chicago, were married at 4:30 o'clock in the Lake Forest Presbyterian church with a reception following in the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George T. Rogers. The bride wore her mother's wedding gown of ivory satin with a ruffled lace bertha and carried gardenias and lilies of the valley. Mr. Stafford and his bride will make their home on the south side.

Miss Nancy Claire Parker, daughter of the C. Paul Parkers of Evanston, and Edward Watts Saunders, son of Mrs. Walter H. Saunders of St. Louis, were married at 8:30 o'clock in St. Mark's church with a reception following at the Country Club of Evanston. The bride wore a long waisted gown of ivory satin with short puffed sleeves and carried white begonias. After a three weeks wedding trip to Canada Mr. Saunders and his bride will be at home near the University of Chicago where he is a law school student.

Eleanor Hammer Weds.

Miss Eleanor Goodrich Hammer and John M. Suiter were married at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon in the Riverside home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. Harry Hammer. The bride is to be a senior at the University of Chicago, and the newlyweds will make their home near there. Her gown was of white organdy and she wore a string of pearls, the gift of her grandmother, Mrs. Henry Goodrich.

In Barrington, Miss Doris Caesar was married to Dr. Lyman Smith, son of Mrs. William Dayton Smith of Dundee, at 4:30 o'clock in the home of her father, Orville S. Caesar. The bride wore a full skirted dress of white faille and carried a small cluster of stephanotis with added loops of English ivy. Her attendants were in emerald green taffeta and carried Finch roses. Dr. Smith and his bride will live in Barrington.

SELECT NAVAL COMMANDER FOR ALASKAN AREA

Washington, D. C., Sept. 7 (AP).—Capt. Ralph Chandler Parker has been named commander of the navy's expanding defense forces in Alaska and related waters.

Announcing today that Capt. Parker had been given command of the newly created Alaskan sector of the 13th naval district, the navy department said that Parker already is on an inspection tour of the sector, aboard a destroyer. With him is Brig. Gen. Simon B. Buckner, commander of United States troops in Alaska.

Parker will be in command of naval establishments at Unalaska, Sitka, and Kodiak. Congress has appropriated $2,000,000 for a naval air station at Kodiak and $2,900,000 for the naval station at Unalaska. Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox announced recently that work on these projects was going forward swiftly.

Centralia, Short of Water, Forbids Washing of Autos

Centralia, Ill., Sept. 7 (AP).—Effective Monday, the washing of automobiles, sprinkling of lawns and use of water for drilling oil wells and other unessential purposes will be prohibited in Centralia, Sandoval and Wamac. The Centralia city council passed an ordinance curtailing water use to conserve water which has been diminished by drouth. Sandoval and Wamac buy water from Centralia.

KNOX PUTS BRITAIN'S CHANCE TO HOLD OUT AT MORE THAN 50-50

HONOLULU, T. H., Sept. 7 (AP).—Secretary of the Navy Knox expressed the opinion today that Great Britain had a "better than 50-50 chance to hold out," adding he would not have made that remark a month ago.

The navy secretary, here to inspect island defenses, said the existence of the British fleet bottled up the German navy and that the Nazis thus far had been unable to establish sufficient air supremacy to make surface invasion of England feasible.

Should Great Britain fall before Germany, Secretary Knox ventured the opinion that Adolf Hitler would not attempt to move directly against America but would first try economic and political penetration, which he said the United States couldn't afford to permit.

"We can't afford to let any one get a foothold in South America," he said.

Seize 29 Men and Women and 25 Gallons of Whisky

Sergt. Frank O'Sullivan and a squad of detectives from the office of Police Commissioner Allman yesterday raided a house at 847 14th street. They arrested 29 persons—eight white men, five white women, seven colored men, and nine colored women—and seized 25 gallons of moonshine whisky.

RAKES WALLACE CHARGES G. O. P. SLOWS DEFENSES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 7.—Senator Warren R. Austin [R., Vt.] in a formal statement today smashed back at recent campaign assertions by Henry A. Wallace, Democratic nominee for Vice President, that the Republicans have been obstructing the national defense program and that there is "something sinister" behind their efforts.

Wallace's charges are an outrageous slur upon millions of patriotic Americans which will be deeply resented by them, Senator Austin declared.

"Mr. Wallace has impugned the patriotism and the motives not only of Republican members of congress, but of Republicans everywhere, in his frantic and desperate effort to discredit Wendell L. Willkie," the senator said.

"The hysterical character of his accusation is apparent from a check of Republican votes in house and senate, which show overwhelming support of the national defense program. Democrats, on the contrary, have led the opposition to the President's program, as every reader of the newspapers is aware."

Announces Details of His Itinerary.

Pledge of Peace

Rushville, Ind., Sept. 7 [Special].—Wendell Willkie pledged tonight that if elected President he will not lead the United States into any European wars or appease dictators.

The nominee also took a shot at Henry A. Wallace, Democratic Vice Presidential nominee, who has been campaigning on the slogan that the Republican party is the party of appeasement.

"If Wallace meant to say that the Republican party is the party of peace, he spoke the truth," Willkie said.

BY PERCY WOOD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Rushville, Ind., Sept. 7 [Special].—Wendell Willkie today announced details of his 7,200 mile western tour which will carry him, by special train, thru 18 states between Sept. 13 and Sept. 27.

The Republican Presidential nominee will make 43 rear platform speeches and will leave his train on 26 other occasions to drive about various cities and will undoubtedly make more or less formal addresses in each. Four of these off the train excursions will be in Chicago next Friday, and he will spend that night there.

Before releasing his western itinerary, which has been in the process of compilation for weeks, Willkie announced he had been pledged the support of a prominent Chicagoan, Gen. Robert E. Wood, chairman of Sears, Roebuck & Co.

Switching from Roosevelt.

Gen. Wood was the nominee's luncheon guest. He told Willkie, the latter said, that he voted for President Roosevelt both in 1932 and in 1936, but was switching his allegiance this year.

Principal stops on Willkie's western tour, in addition to his day and night in Chicago, include Coffeyville, Kas.; Amarillo, Tex., where the nominee will make a bid for the southern vote; Albuquerque, N. M.; Phoenix, Ariz.; Los Angeles, Cal.; San Francisco, Cal.; Portland, Ore.; Seattle, Wash.; Butte, Mont., Sioux City, Ia., and Omaha, Neb.

The nominee's train will leave Rushville at 11:30 p. m. next Thursday, arriving in Chicago the following morning. After his day and night in Chicago, the train departs over the Rock Island lines at 8 a. m., Sept. 14, and will make seven stops in downstate cities en route to Davenport, Ia.

His Illinois Schedule.

Joliet—8:50-9 a. m.
Morris—9:30-9:35 a. m.
Ottawa—10:10-10:20 a. m.
La Salle—10:40-10:50 a. m.
Peoria—12:30-1 p. m.
Galesburg—2:20-2:40 p. m.

The nominee will arrive in Rock Island at 4:05 p. m. and will be in the Tri-Cities until departing from Davenport at 6:30 p. m.

KILLS PHEASANT, BUT LAW MAKES IT UNPLEASANT

A single shot yesterday by William O'Brien, 19 years old, 3725 Bosworth avenue, killed a pheasant near Geneva and cost the young huntsman $60. Because:

He had no license.
He fired from a state highway.
He shot a pheasant out of season.
He shot a hen pheasant, illegal at all times.
He used a sawed-off shotgun without a permit.
He trespassed on a farmer's land.

O'Brien said he was guilty on all counts, and added that he hadn't thought so many laws could be broken so fast.

Pleases His Wife

The Swiss inventor, left anonymous by the caption writer, and his wife both enjoy an evening at home in Geneva.

BERNE, Switzerland, Sept. 7 [Special].—A Geneva housewife's complaints against the discomfort to her and the discoloration of her curtains which resulted from her husband's cigaret smoke has driven him to perfect a unique invention. He punched two holes thru the window pane, inserted rubber tubing, thru which he is able to inhale and exhale cigaret smoke without getting any on the curtains. The cigaret is inserted in the end of the tube outside the window. Now domestic tranquillity reigns in the inventor's home.

DUTY WINS OVER POLICE CHIVALRY; GIRL GETS NO CAR

Chief of Police Rex R. Andrews of Highland Park is a gallant chap and it hurts him to disappoint a lady—especially a young and pretty one. But he had to yesterday. She wanted to borrow a squad car.

The young woman, about 19 years old, came into the station, found the chief, and explained that her family has paid taxes in Highland Park for a number of years. She said she was in a hurry to get to Winnetka, where she had to deliver a present. No policeman would be needed, she said, but she'd like to borrow a squad car. She'd drive it herself.

Chief Andrews gently explained that her request was impossible. The young lady pouted, seemed about to weep, and finally said in a bitter voice: "All right for you, chief," slammed the door, and left. Chief Andrews says he was even more startled than when another young lady once asked to borrow an unmarried policeman for the evening.

HOOVER SAYS WILLKIE SENTIMENT GROWING IN WEST; HERE ON VISIT

Former President Herbert Hoover arrived in Chicago yesterday enthusiastic over the growing sentiment in the west for Wendell Willkie, Republican nominee for President. He flew in from San Francisco on a United Air Lines plane for a week-end visit with his friend Arch W. Shaw of Winnetka.

Hoover said the rising Willkie tide is especially evident in California, his home state, where Senator Hiram Johnson recently rolled up a huge vote on both the Republican and the Democratic tickets despite the opposition of President Roosevelt to his candidacy.

"The people of this country want to return to sound principles of government and the only way that can be done is to elect Mr. Willkie," the former president said. "Moreover, it is evident that the people are firmly and vigorously opposed to our involvement in the war in Europe."

'DAY OF PRAYER' TO BE OBSERVED IN THE CAPITAL

Washington, D. C., Sept. 7 (AP).—Many churches in the nation's capital will hold special services tomorrow in response to President Roosevelt's proclamation of that day as "a day of prayer."

The President, in a proclamation issued last month, called upon all citizens to observe the day with prayer, "beseeching the Ruler of the universe to bless our republic, to make us reverently grateful for our heritage and firm in its defense, and to grant to this land and to the troubled world a righteous, enduring peace."

Altho the chief executive himself will not attend services here, having left last night for a week-end visit to Hyde Park, N. Y., St. Thomas Episcopal church, of which he is a member, was among the churches planning a special peace program.

breaks the biggest news it ever gave America!

For 1941, Pontiac will present an entirely new line of motor cars—every one a "Torpedo"—your choice of a six or an eight-cylinder engine in any model. These are by far the greatest Pontiacs ever built. They're longer, lower, wider, roomier, more powerful. They're more comfortable to ride in, easier to handle, and give record economy of gas and oil. The new line includes a low-priced "Torpedo" which any new car buyer can afford. It comes as a climax to the greatest year in Pontiac history.

RIVAL CARAVANS TO ROLL OUT FOR VOTES THIS WEEK

G. O. P. and Democrats Will Swing Downstate.

BY PARKE BROWN.

Four groups of state candidates—known politically as four caravans—will start out this week on a five weeks' tour to present to the voters of the 101 downstate counties in Illinois their versions of the issues involved in the election of Nov. 5.

Two of the caravans will be Republican and two will be Democratic. The Republican headliners, Dwight H. Green, nominee for governor, and Wayland Brooks, for senator, will not take part in these invasions until next week, but the top men on the Democratic side, Harry B. Hershey, nominee for governor, and Senator James M. Slattery, will lead the two groups setting out for their party.

G. O. P. Chiefs to Be with Willkie.

Green still is inconvenienced by an infection of his left arm and has been ordered not to neglect it. In addition he will be kept in Chicago for important conferences this week. Both he and Brooks will be with Wendell Willkie during the Presidential nominee's 24 hour stay in Chicago next Friday and probably will travel across Illinois with him on Saturday.

Because of Green's absence from the front lines, his opponent in the Republican primary last April, Richard J. Lyons, who has been campaigning steadily for the nominees, will substitute for him in this week's downstate engagements.

In the caravan with Lyons will be Warren Wright, nominee for state treasurer, and Stephen A. Day, nominee for congressman at large. This trio will spend the week in the 23d, 24th and 25th congressional districts in the south end of the state frequently described as Egypt. Their first meetings will be at Olney and Newton Tuesday morning at Robinson and Lawrenceville in the afternoon, and at Fairfield and Mount Vernon in the evening.

Cross Heads Second Party.

The other Republican caravan will include Speaker Hugh W. Cross, candidate for lieutenant governor, George F. Barrett, nominee for attorney general, and Justus L. Johnson, seeking the office of secretary of state. Their territory this week includes the 20th, 21st and 22d congressional districts in the southwestern section of the state. Tomorrow night they will be at Virginia in Cass county and on Tuesday they will be at Roodhouse, Carrollton, Winchester, Meredosia, Mount Sterling, Beardstown, Jacksonville and Springfield, with night meetings in the last two cities.

A third caravan including Brooks, Arthur C. Lueder, running for state auditor, and William G. Stratton, nominee for congressman at large, is scheduled to spend its time in and around Chicago this week and go downstate next week when one of the caravans now downstate will take its turn in Cook county.

Democrats Head for Egypt.

The Hershey Democratic caravan, in addition to the nominee for governor, will include Harold G. Ward, nominee for attorney general; John C. Martin, nominee for auditor, and Edward J. Hughes, who is seeking reëlection as secretary of state. Opening up at Shelbyville tomorrow morning, this group, like one of its Republican rivals, will tour Egypt, touching Cairo Wednesday evening.

With Senator Slattery will travel State Treasurer Louis E. Lewis, now candidate for lieutenant governor; Homer Mat Adams, nominee for treasurer, and Walter J. Orlikoski, nominee for congressman at large. This group has its first meeting at Winchester Tuesday afternoon and that night it will be in Quincy. Their itinerary for the week keeps them in the western part of the state and carries them as far north as Rock Island.

Working Girls' Club Will Hear Willkie Group Leader

Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank, former Democratic national committeewoman from Illinois, will address the Working Girls' Willkie club at 6 p. m. Tuesday in the La Salle hotel. Mrs. Fairbank, who heads the Democratic division of the Associated Willkie Clubs of Illinois, will speak on "How to Get Votes for Willkie."

DIES ABOARD STREET CAR.

Thomas Joseph Farrell, 79 years old, of La Salle county, died on a Cottage Grove street car near 26th street yesterday, apparently of a heart attack.

Winning Hands

Elaine Sterns hands, called Chicago's most beautiful.

They are hands that have defied all the warnings of beauty ads. They're not afraid of greasy plates and soapy water. They carry gloves, winter and summer, but rarely wear them. They're not pampered by a manicurist weekly, but are strictly home cured.

Their owner is Elaine Stern, 5417 Harper avenue, 19 years old, a secretary, who has helped with the housework at home for years. She won the lovely hands contest for about-to-be brides conducted by the American Cosmeticians National association in the Hotel Sherman yesterday.

Elaine will get a large silver loving cup, and a smaller one will go to Miss Helen Berman, 7708 Kingston avenue, runner-up, at the closing show of the associations' convention Wednesday evening.

The jidges said Elaine has the ideal hand—size—six and a half. It is femine, but strong, large, but graceful, healthy, but finetextured.

PLAN TO READMIT DIVORCEES STIRS EPISCOPALIANS

Convention Fight Seen on Commission's Plea.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Remarriage after divorce again will be the most controversial subject of the triennial convention of the Protestant Episcopal church beginning Oct. 9 in Kansas City, Mo. This became apparent yesterday when the Rev. Walter K. Morley, head of the social service department of the Episcopal diocese of Chicago, 65 East Huron street, made public proposed revisions of the church's canon law prepared by the church's joint commission on marriage.

The Rev. Mr. Morley said a provision in the proposed canon would permit readmission to the church of persons who had been excommunicated for remarrying while former spouses were alive. The proposal also would permit the church to give its blessing to such unions. This policy would be based on the church's belief in the forgiveness of sins.

Procedure Is Outlined.

The proposed procedure would be as follows: The remarried divorcee seeking readmission to the church would lay the case before his pastor. The pastor would brief the case for the bishop, who would be charged to consider "the characters of the parties" and the circumstances of the divorce. If the bishop decided favorably, communicant status would be restored to the petitioner and the pastor then would "formally give the church's blessing" to the remarriage.

At the same time, the commission proposes to tighten restrictions by doing away with the "innocent party" clause in the present canon. This clause permits the remarriage of the innocent party in a divorce granted on the ground of adultery, but in all other cases forbids the remarriage of a communicant as long as the former spouse is alive. Thus, if the new law passes, excommunication would follow in all cases, subject to later appeals for readmission.

Chicago Delegates Conservative.

The Rev. Mr. Morley said the Chicago delegation to the forthcoming convention at Kansas City is conservative and that it probably would oppose any liberalization of the church's attitude toward remarriage of divorced persons.

"The commission in suggesting the changes has differentiated between preparation and counsel before marriage, and the problems of marital discord after marriage," said the Rev. Mr. Morley. "The present proposal represents nine years of study by the commission."

Other proposed changes in the marriage canon would require pastors "to use all diligence in preserving the peace and concord of every family." Where church conditions are imperiled, the proposal reads, "it shall be the duties of the parties [married couples] to lay before him [the pastor] the causes and circumstances thereof, and it shall be his duty to labor by all godly means to restore them to charity with each other."

SCHOOLS TO JOIN IN COURSES FOR FLYING STUDENTS

The University of Chicago and the Illinois Institute of Technology have combined their facilities to train approximately 250 students in extended Civil Aeronautics authority flight courses during the coming year, according to Dr. Walter Bartky, director of civilian pilot training at the university.

Flight training will begin in October at the 160 acre Lansing airport, which the university leased from the Ford Motor company.

Arrangements have been made for three courses thruout the year—a preliminary course, a secondary course, and an instructor-apprentice course. Students from both institutions will take part in the flight program, Dr. Bartky said yesterday.

Gland Specialist Arrives

To Stay 6 Months

Jersey City, N. J., Sept. 7 [Special].—Dr. Serge Voronoff, 74 years old, the European gland specialist and his 24 year old wife arrived yesterday aboard the Excalibur from Europe for a six months' stay in this country. The doctor, known for his work with monkey glands, said he is seeking ways to aid in finding a cure for cancer.

PIGGISH TACTICS LAND 2 DANCERS IN THE DOGHOUSE

Down Central street at Green Bay road in Evanston at 2 a. m. yesterday danced two little white pigs. Policemen Floyd Jenkins and George Peske were amazed, because good little pigs usually are sound asleep in their sties at that time of night.

The policemen got out of their squad car and chased the pigs. They caught them eventually and took them to the station to wait for Chief Charles Paasch. There the pigs raised havoc with the station's discipline.

When the chief came they still wouldn't squeal about why they were out so late, so he packed them off to the dog pound, where they enjoyed dog biscuit and milk and enough attention to turn the head of even a debutante.

MOVE TO COLLECT $10,000 FINE FOR N. Y. MILK STRIKE

New York, Sept. 7 [Special].—Action has been initiated in the Supreme court to force unit No. 3 of local No. 584 of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, Chauffeurs, Stablemen, and Helpers of America, an A. F. of L. affiliate, to pay a $10,000 fine levied for violation of its contract with the Sheffield Farms Dairy company, it was announced today by Arthur Peck.

The fine was levied against the union by Arthur S. Meyer, impartial chairman of the milk industry, after the union had called a one day strike of milk delivery men last February.

After the fine had been imposed, the company announced it would accept $5,000, appliable to its employés' pension fund if the union paid before Aug. 15. The payment was not made and the union has not stated its intentions.

WPA Rolls in Illinois Increase 2,501 in Week

Employment on Works Projects administration rolls in Illinois increased 2,501 during the week ended Aug. 28, Paul R. Kerschbaum, state WPA statistician, reported yesterday. The total employment on Aug. 28 was 111,902, including 48,313 in Cook county.

4 THUGS ATTACK COUPLE; 2 SEIZED IN POLICE CHASE

Two young Negroes were captured by Hyde Park police yesterday shortly after they and two companions, who escaped, robbed a young woman and her escort of $15 in cash and a wristwatch near 50th street and Greenwood avenue.

Miss Ruth Pracat, 21 years old, of 4650 Woodlawn avenue, was walking with Wayne Peterson, 24, of 4250 Drexel avenue, when the gang jumped from a car and accosted them. Miss Pracat screamed as they robbed her companion and was knocked to the ground.

Policemen Albert Boone and Burton Barry, walking nearby beats, heard the screams and ran up as the robbers were leaving. They shot at the car and it was curbed. The gang jumped out and fled. The policemen seized Larry Jones, 19, who said he lives at 5506 Indiana avenue, and Oliver Cross, 21, who gave 3505 Indiana avenue as his address.

FIND PEDESTRIAN KILLED; HIT-RUN DRIVER BLAMED

Victim Discovered Lying on Bridge.

A hit-and-run driver was believed by police yesterday to be responsible for the death of Peter Sypien, who was found dead early in the day on the drainage canal bridge at 34th street and Kedzie avenue. Sypien's skull had been fractured. He was 62 years old. Relatives said he had been pensioned only Friday after 34 years of service with the International Harvester company. He lived at 3807 South Albany avenue.

Herman Dreyer, 2850 North Racine avenue, died of a heart attack shortly after he had been injured slightly in an automobile collision four miles west of Michigan City on U. S. route 20. He was 72 years old. Dreyer's car was struck from the rear by a truck. He was taken to the Clinic hospital in Michigan City for treatment of lacerations. There he collapsed and died.

William Hoysen, 47, of 2951 East 92d street, a bartender, died in South Chicago hospital of injuries incurred Friday when he was struck by a truck in front of 8912 Commercial avenue. The driver was Samuel Levy, 1516 South Kostner avenue.

Arthur Hermanson, 29, of Route 3, Woodstock, a circus employé, died in Northwestern hospital, Des Plaines, of injuries incurred in an automobile crash at Mannheim road and Bryn Mawr avenue Thursday night.

Chicago's August motor death toll this year was 49, or 10 lower than that of August last year, it was disclosed yesterday by George W. Fleming, general secretary of Mayor Kelly's Keep Chicago Safe committee.

Up to 2 p. m. yesterday, 579 persons had been killed in automobile accidents in Cook county since Jan. 1. Of these, 423 were killed in Chicago, where 15,914 were injured in the same period.

CHASE S. OSBORN ANNOUNCES HE'S FOR ROOSEVELT

New York, Sept. 7 [Special].—Edward J. Flynn, Democratic national chairman and "boss" of the Bronx county machine, today made public a letter from Chase S. Osborn, former Republican governor of Michigan and a 1936 Republican Presidential elector at large from Michigan, bitterly assailing Wendell Willkie and announcing his support of President Roosevelt.

The letter said the President had "done more for the real, material, social, intellectual, and moral interests of the masses than any man who ever was President."

It assailed Willkie as a "rapacious capitalist and a speculator and acquisitor of the first class" and contended that the Republican nominee was "an unfit man for President of the United States."

Earlier in the day the Workmen's Circle, a Jewish labor fraternal organization, composed of 300,000 members, indorsed the President's third term nomination.

THE CAMPAIGN
Both Sides of it

REPUBLICAN

They Think We Are Dumb!

BY CARLISLE BARGERON.

(Assigned by Republican National Committee.)

We want to bring up one matter in connection with that sensational swap of part of our navy for naval bases. The New Dealers are jubilantly hailing it as equal to the Louisiana purchase. Time will probably tell whether they mean the first Louisiana purchase or what Westbrook Pegler calls the Second Louisiana purchase.

There certainly was a lot of rough stuff involved, not the least of which was Mr. Roosevelt's persistent denial that anything of the sort was in the wind, and also the fact that the attorney general, Bob Jackson, had to write three different opinions before he could get one to make the transaction legal.

Ships Might Be Used Against Us.

You know, there had been a lot of criticism that England might be defeated and these destroyers would fall into Hitler's hands to be used against us, just as the planes we sent to France are being used against England.

Well, Mr. Roosevelt thought he ought to do something to stifle this criticism. So the little stunt of the exchange of notes was worked out. Winston Churchill promises that under no circumstances will the British fleet be turned over to the Nazis!

That settles that! And it should take a load off all our minds. If this promise means anything, then Mr. Roosevelt must quit frightening us about Hitler. Because, regardless of what happens to England, the British fleet will always be between us and him. This is the case because Winston Churchill has promised.

Of course, all of this is the bunk. If Hitler defeats England, Winston Churchill WILL HAVE VERY LITTLE MORE TO SAY ABOUT THE DISPOSITION OF THE BRITISH FLEET THAN YOU HAVE.

It has long been a matter of speculation as to just what would happen to the fleet. THE UNCERTAINTY, WHICH THE HULL-CHURCHILL "BARGAIN" IN NO WAY CLEARS UP, is the cause of our concern. Undoubtedly, the fleet could escape. The presumption has been, in fact, that it would carry on the fight from this hemisphere.

Possible Seizure of Hostages.

But the other contingency which has been explained time and again, is that Hitler MIGHT HOLD THE WIVES AND CHILDREN of the navy as HOSTAGES for the delivery of the fleet.

Now, this being the case, you wonder why in the name of heaven Mr. Roosevelt had such an exchange as this cooped up. Obviously the reason is that we, the people, are considered simpletons or, as Harry Hopkins says, just too damned dumb to understand.

This attitude of the New Dealers toward us, besides being highly offensive, is in no small degree responsible for our present troubles. Until we get some SINCERITY in Washington, we aren't going to have an adequate defense; we are going to continue to have millions unemployed, and still other millions hanging onto mediocre jobs for dear life. We will continue to have millions with the "right" to bargain collectively—but with no employers to BARGAIN COLLECTIVELY WITH.

[O. K., Willkie Democrats, take it away.]

DEMOCRATIC

The Roosevelt Social Gains.

[Provided by the Democratic National Committee.]

As a relief from the humdrum but all important subject of national defense, this column will be devoted to the amazing social and economic gains registered under the stimulating urge of President Roosevelt's leadership.

The primary need for defense is a stout and loyal national morale. Big guns and heavy tanks are meaningless if people feel beaten down in the daily struggle for life—if they fear the clutch of hunger and poverty and resent the do-nothing attitude of those in authority.

The President assumed office a little more than seven years ago. Class warfare? It was on then in deadly earnest. It was reflected in the muttering discontent of millions of idle factory workers and the rumblings of angry farmers fighting against foreclosure sales. It was reflected in congress where a Republican senator suggested that perhaps a dictator was necessary to pull the country thru.

This was the era of the "farm holiday" when growers refused to send their products to market. It was the er aof bread lines, soup kitchens, and the skimpy dole on which whole families were supposed to exist for a trifle more than nothing. It was the era of Pollyanna economics when those in authority in Washington imagined that a few optimistic statements, plus a few apple vendors on the street corners, would revive a badly shattered economic system.

Those days are long since gone and under the influence of brighter times we are apt to assume that they disappeared in the usual course of the "economic cycle." Actually, the depression bit far deeper than that. It took leadership and statesmanship of the highest order to restore balance and stability to the social system. The fact that we got our house in order in time has put this country far ahead along the road to adequate defense.

The Roosevelt Record.

The insurance of bank deposits, which gave security to savings and ended the wholesale collapse of banks.

The covering of 50,000,000 workers by old age insurance, plus additional insurance for unemployment.

The farm program which cut interest rates on farm mortgages an average of 40 per cent and doubled the annual cash income of producers.

The minimum wage act which gave protection from sweat shop pay to 2,400,000 workers and reduced their hours of labor.

The securities and exchange act which halted the issuance of wildcat securities and saved investors an estimated billion dollars a year.

It has been said that the United States could have idled its way out of the depression, that the cost was too heavy to justify the expense. Of course the country could have waited for recovery as Mr. Hoover waited. But waiting was not so easy for the millions of depression victims. The cost in human lives and human morale was too great to justify the gamble.

An enterprising journalist recently dug back into the files of 1933 to recapture, if he could, the mood and temper of the times. From this far off vantage point he wanted to discover if conditions were actually as bad as they had been painted—if dissatisfaction and discontent had really been eating away at the foundations of social order. He studied the farming section because the tillers of the soil are naturally conservative and the last to resort to radical public action.

He uncovered an amazing situation which he pieced together from a series of incidents related in the press of early 1933. Judges who insisted upon dispossessing farmers were threatened "with the rope." Sheriffs were forcibly prevented from seizing farms. Here is a sample of how the farmers felt:

"At about the same time a crowd of 800 in Wood county, Iowa, prevented a finance company from bidding in a farm on which it had a mortgage. The mortgage was $800; the finance company's first bid was $1.35. Its representative was escorted off the premises and the farmers themselves bid the property in for a total of $14, buying horses for a dime and plows for a nickel. Then they turned it all back to the owner, a man named Wallace Kramp."

The country has come a long way since then. Those who scold about "class warfare" should feel reassured. The class struggle ended some years back.

The convention will be that of the National Federation of Women's Republican clubs which, altho organized only two years ago, has a membership of nearly 300,000. The session will last two days, with Wendell L. Willkie, Republican Presidential nominee, as its principal speaker the first night. A crowd of 20,000 is expected to hear him.

Plans for the meeting are nearing completion, according to Mrs. Joyce Arneill of Denver, national president, whose campaign office is in the Republican national committee headquarters at 120 South La Salle street. An estimated 2,000 delegates, representing 3,500 clubs, will attend.

Dairy Owners Would Halt Sunday Morning Deliveries

De Kalb, Ill., Sept. 7 [Special].—Dairy owners here and at Sycamore at a meeting held here yesterday went on record as favoring nondelivery of milk and other dairy produce on Sunday mornings. Increased use of domestic refrigeration now enables families to keep their dairy products fresh longer, dairy officials said. Reason for the proposed change of policy is to give drivers and other employés a chance to attend church and enjoy a day of rest.

WOMEN TO HOLD VOTERS' SCHOOLS THRUOUT COUNTY

The Cook County Legion of Women Voters is making preparations for a series of voters' schools to be held before the November election, Mrs. William M. Bryant, president, announced yesterday.

Each local league in the county organization will conduct an all-day school for voters, Mrs. Bryant said. At the morning sessions instruction will be given in standards for citizens and officials, proper machinery and forces which mold public opinion. The afternoon discussions will center on basic governmental problems such as the merit system, office group ballot, constitutional revision and the election code.

School dates: Southwest side, Sept. 12; Flossmoor, Sept. 16; Woodlawn league, Sept. 30; Evanston, Oct. 3; South Shore, Oct. 9; Winnetka, Oct. 14; north side, Oct. 16, and in Hyde Park, Oct. 28. All except two will be conducted by Mrs. W. W. Ramsey, vice president of the Illinois league. Mrs. Walter T. Fisher will conduct the one in Evanston and Mrs. Will F. Lyon will conduct the Woodlawn school.

THE HOUSE OF THE WEEK

THE MAYFLOWER

This did not come over on the Mayflower, but its counterpart is typical of the charming Colonials that those thrifty New Englanders built for themselves, but with all the modern conveniences and gadgets added. SURE—this house looks like a lot of money, but believe it or not, there is less than 33,000 cubic feet in it and its 80 foot front spells resale value at a profit any time you want to sell it. There are three exposures to most of the principal rooms. You enter a lovely hall, back of which is a panelled library with open fireplace and built-in bookcases and a lavatory off, so that it could be pressed into a spare bedroom on occasion, large living room with open fireplace and bay window, dining room, kitchen, glassed-in dinette, butler's pantry, maid's room and bath. Three large master bedrooms and two baths and a dressing room on the second floor. Yes, sir, an open fireplace in milady's chamber. MR. ROOSEVELT IS TOO BUSY.

Mr. Roosevelt's friends must have noted that he hasn't been coming off very well in his interchanges with Mr. Willkie. He won't qualify for more than half of the famous phrase, describing another gay ruler, "who never said a foolish thing and never did a wise one." He is saying foolish things in his replies to the Republican candidate who wants to debate with him.

Raymond Moley, in his "After Seven Years," says that Mr. Roosevelt never wanted to get tangled up with Ogden Mills when he was campaigning eight years ago. Mills was Hoover's secretary of the treasury and Mr. Roosevelt knew that if he gave Mills an opportunity to go after him on financial questions he would be demolished. So he and his ghost writers were careful not to give the secretary of the treasury a chance. Apparently Mr. Roosevelt has the same respect for Mr. Willkie's ability in debate and that is why he is too busy to break a lance with him.

When Mr. Willkie asked Mr. Roosevelt to say whether he favored the provision of the conscription bill which would allow him to seize the industrial plants of the country, he replied that it had been his fixed rule since his inauguration in 1933 not to discuss a matter pending in congress. That was a foolish thing to say. People would wonder what Mr. Roosevelt meant by it. It enabled Mr. Willkie to pick up the record of Mr. Roosevelt's discussion of matters pending in congress and show that it has been his fixed rule to talk ad lib. He has made it a practice to go into a stubborn man's district and try to raise his constituency against him if he disagreed.

Mr. Roosevelt's refusal to debate the great issues of the campaign was based upon a pretext which couldn't stand up. He said he was too busy with public affairs to do any campaigning. He isn't too busy to entertain royalty. He wasn't too busy to dedicate the TVA dam and the Great Smoky park, Labor day, and to make political speeches on both occasions. Representative Martin, the Republican national chairman, would like to know whether the political excursion 'nto Tennessee went on the public expense account.

Nearly everything that Mr. Roosevelt is doing for defense is given a political twist and there is a political speech in every pronouncement he makes. His appointment of Mayor La Guardia on the joint defense board to plan with Canada was nothing but politics to carry New York City. Except politically Mr. La Guardia as head of the American section is a joke.

Apparently Mr. Roosevelt never remembers one day what he said another. He forgets now that when he was campaigning, four years ago, he said that the new neutrality law placed new instruments in the President's hands to preserve peace but that it would need resolute and courageous men in the White House and the department of state if the clamor for war was not to lead to war. He forgot that when he was demanding the repeal of the neutrality act. He forgot that he said that Mr. Hoover's deficits would be the ruin of the country and that the national debt would send idle men walking the streets, looking vainly for work.

If Mr. Roosevelt were to accept Mr. Willkie's challenge he would be unable to evade the inconsistencies which have characterized his two terms. Maybe he deceives himself. Maybe he deceived himself when he told the Democratic convention one night that he had "no purpose to continue in the office of President or to be a candidate for that office, or to be nominated for that office." Maybe he deceived himself in his next message to the convention when he accepted the nomination because "my conscience will not let me turn my back upon a call to service."

Maybe he deceived himself when he made it impossible for any other candidate to make a bid for the nomination. [Even Mr. Farley's was not a bid. It was an act of defiance.] Maybe he deceived himself when he not only drafted himself for the third term but picked a candidate for Vice President out of his vest pocket and told the convention to like Mr. Wallace.

Possibly a candidate does get easily confused when he runs for a third term. There are no precedents to guide him. He is the first man in the history of the country to seek to extend eight years into twelve and put the sign of permanent tenure on the White House lawn.

SIMPLIFYING NAMES.

Benn Kay of the Milwaukee Sentinel informs his friends by letter of his new name. It has been Kinovsky. The decision was inspired by the children. They found that people had trouble in spelling and pronouncing the family name. The head of the family thought it would be wise to change and he kept the first letter K and wrote it Kay.

Name changing began with colonization. Even before the revolution people from many lands were coming in and moving on to the back country. They learned to speak English if it was not their mother tongue and soon their family names were being modified. In many parts of the old settlements in the interior, in the river valleys, it is difficult or impossible to distingush a national origin by a family name. In the lower Mississippi valley German names took on a French form. In the Shenandoah and in the North Carolina and Tennessee valleys they became Scotch, English, and Irish. The historian and genealogist find some curious items.

The habit of adjustment was not new in this country. It comes gradually to smooth out daily associations. There is, of course, a natural desire to retain family and national associations and people develop some proficiency in mastering the difficulties of other tongues. The radio broadcaster must do so. The football season brings familiarity with the sound of names which in type stop the unaccustomed eye. Time and usage work it out. If it did not we'd never have known anything about the melting pot.

ON SELLING THE ARMY.

The army, as Senator Wheeler recently disclosed, is doing a far better recruiting job than certain people in the administration are willing to let the public know of, but its recruiting methods still leave much to be desired.

This depicting of an angry Uncle Sam saying "Fight for your country" is a poor way to sell the army, particularly at this time, when the future soldier cannot be certain whether his commander-in-chief is bent on defending his country or some other. The army could learn much of salesmanship from the navy.

For a long time the navy played the slogan, "Join the Navy and See the World," for all it was worth. Today it bases its appeal for recruits principally on the education that the seaman gets in the service. The navy has naturally, for many years, been far in advance of the army in mechanization and a high percentage of its enlisted men have received training in mechanical arts that has stood them in good stead when they returned to civilian life.

The army now is being mechanized as quickly as possible, and its recruiting service will be making a mistake if it does not emphasize this fact. Opportunity for an education with pay is as great today in the army as it has been in the navy. The army should advertise it.

Whether or not conscription comes, the army will still have to be sold to its recruits. A disgruntled conscript army would only invite repetition of the disaster that the French and English armies met in the battle of France.

HARRY WALSH.

Harry P. Walsh, chief of THE TRIBUNE's watchmen, has left the hospital after a seven week battle against bullet wounds received in combating a pay roll holdup on July 19. He was wounded at the start of the encounter and, altho he was being fired upon from three sides, emptied his own gun. Then, with six wounds, he ordered the driver of his car to pursue the bandits instead of rushing him to a hospital.

The pleasure of saying these few words about the courage of our quiet chief watchman is greatly increased by the knowledge that he is going to read them. For a few days it was feared that he would not be able to do so.

Altho both the Chicago police and THE TRIBUNE's own staff have made and are still making a vigorous investigation of the crime, the robbers have not been arrested. The investigation will continue until they are caught.

THE TRIBUNE is offering a reward of $10,000 for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the robbers. We have never believed fables about honor among criminals. If all other leads fail, we are confident that one of the gang will eventually sell out his accomplices.

STRATEGIC SITES FOR INDUSTRY.

The war department has established five zones in the interior of the country in which, for greater security, it will seek to have established new plants working on defense orders.

Too much of our essential productive facilities for armaments is now concentrated in the triangle bounded by Pittsburgh, Boston and Wilmington, Del., the army believes. The present policy, it is announced, will be to locate plants 200 to 250 miles from our international borders and coast line. So located they will be far less vulnerable to sporadic bombing attacks.

It would be more encouraging if there were assurance that this sensible new policy is to have more than lip service from the administration. This is all it has had hitherto. The announcement came out on the same day that the Glenn L. Martin company broke ground for a huge new airplane plant that will employ 24,000 workers when finished. It is being built next to the existing Martin plant in Baltimore.

Industrial concerns that are expanding to handle defense orders naturally will prefer to enlarge their existing plants rather than build new ones at other sites, because operation of a unified plant usually makes some contribution to efficiency. The gain in efficiency is of less importance at the moment than security against bombing or invasion offered by inland sites. Where the additions are for the sole purpose of executing army and navy orders, as the new Martin plant is, the army should insist that they be placed within the great natural citadel of the Mississippi valley.

THE FIRST DEFENSE MILLIONAIRE?

[St. Louis Post-Dispatch.]

President Roosevelt said in his speech announcing the defense program last June that he hoped rearmament would make not one new millionaire. It now appears not only that this hope is doomed to frustration but that the first man under the tape may be the secretary of the Democratic national committee.

According to a story from Washington yesterday, the engineering firm of Lawrence Wood Robert Jr., the party secretary, has received fees totaling $931,560 on navy contracts for engineering service since June, 1939.

The firm of the dapper Georgian received one fee of $450,000 last month for engineering on a $13,000,000 contract for aviation facilities at Corpus Christi, Tex. None of the awards to Robert & Co., as the firm is titled, was made on the basis of competitive bids.

When a large volume of contracts goes without competitive bidding to a highly placed party official, the public is rightfully suspicious. Here in Missouri, it makes us think of Boss Pendergast's ill famed Ready-Mix Concrete company.

Commenting on the Robert disclosure, Senator Bridges referred to "Mr. Roosevelt's acute sensibilities on the subject of political morality." Unfortunately, there are things in the President's record which justify this heavy irony.

To mention only one, there is his failure to curb Son James' proclivities to cash in on his father's position. In the moral spectrum, it is hard to distinguish between Chip Robert's drumming up trade for his engineering firm and James Roosevelt's collecting large fees for writing insurance for firms such as the National Distillers corporation, the Associated Gas and Electric company, the Columbia Broadcasting company, and various other corporations which have favors to ask of the government regulatory agencies.

An even clearer case is his writing insurance on federal cotton shipped to China by the RFC, or his taking a job with Samuel Goldwyn at $50,000 a year when Goldwyn and other movie executives were under federal indictment.

As to Mr. Robert, he should, of course, be ousted as secretary of the Democratic party. He never should have had the post in the first place. In southern business and political circles he is a Bourbon of Bourbons and never had anything in common with the forward looking members of the New Deal.

The chances of our carrying thru the gigantic rearmament program without a major scandal will be vastly improved if all the gentry who seek profit by combining business and politics are sent packing from the national capital.

INTERVENING IN THE WAR

BY CHARLES CHENEY HYDE.

[Hamilton Fish professor of international law and diplomacy, Columbia university; formerly solicitor for the department of state.]

Sometimes it is worth while to look at the law—even the law of nations. When we exchange overage destroyers for naval and air bases in the course of a European war, how does that law regard the transaction? The President's announcement on Sept. 3 of the agreement made on the previous day by an exchange of notes between the secretary of state and the British ambassador has made the correct answer to this question one of importance.

When we look at the burdens normally resting upon the United States as a neutral, and as laid down in the Hague convention of 1907 concerning the rights and duties of neutral powers in naval war, which may now be taken as declaratory of the law, we read: "The supply, in any manner, directly or indirectly, by a neutral power to a belligerent power, of warships, ammunition, or war material of any kind whatever, is forbidden." The same injunction is contained also in the Havana convention of 1928, on maritime neutrality.

It cannot be lightly assumed that those in control of the foreign relations of the United States are deliberately flouting the law and are simply contemptuous of international duties resting upon the nation. The 1940 platforms of the two major political parties are far from indicating approval of such a course. The Republican platform favors the "extension to all peoples fighting for liberty, or whose liberty is threatened, of such aid as shall not be in violation of international law or inconsistent with the requirements of our own national defense." The Democratic platform pledges to such peoples "all the material aid at our command, consistent with law and not inconsistent with the interests of our own national self-defense." The term "law" is, however, not defined.

Still, here are impressive warnings that there are limits beyond which the interest of the United States may not sanction the giving of aid, and that one test of that limit is to be found in the law of nations. Releasing American destroyers to Britain must mean, therefore, that our government feels that the prohibition resting upon us as a neutral is simply not applicable. We cannot squirm out of a legal duty to a foreign belligerent merely because we dislike the restriction that is involved, or the philosophy of that belligerent and prefer to see its enemy win. What then does serve, in the eyes of the law, to free a neutral country such as ours from the common duties which it owes to a particular belligerent? This is a delicate question. Much may depend upon the circumstances of the particular case.

When the neutral is itself the victim of lawless conduct on the part of a belligerent that is directed against the neutral itself, the latter is not fettered in its choice of remedies by restrictions or rules growing out of the law of neutrality. It may in such case have recourse to measures of self-help, and these may prove to be hurtful to the cause of the offending belligerent in its major conflict. Moreover, the neutral need not go to war in order to defend itself. In such case it is the wrongfulness of the treatment to which it has been subjected that releases the neutral from the normal injunctions that would otherwise hold it in leash. But suppose the neutral cannot show that it has been dealt with wrongfully by the disfavored belligerent, is it free to participate in the conflict and to furnish naval aid to the enemy of that belligerent? It would be difficult to make an affirmative answer to this question.

In seeking, therefore, a solid and convincing ground on which the United States may today itself proceed to help a friendly belligerent in its hour of need with much coveted destroyers, without violating a duty to Germany, we must proceed on the theory that Germany is definitely bent on a course which, if successful, is bound to be not only detrimental, but also wrongful to our own country. The mere enlargement of German military power in consequence of vanquishing its foe might not in itself suffice to establish that in defeating Britain it was doing the United States a wrong. In what way, then, would we be wronged by a German victory or by the results of it? This question must be put, and the answer sought, with utmost honesty, for the good faith and high purposes of the United States are already at stake.

As we examine our assertions under the Monroe Doctrine we gain some light. The United States claims in substance that non-America must neither acquire new territory in this hemisphere, nor interfere with the political independence of the American republics, because such action would be dangerous to our own peace and safety, and a wrongful impairment of our own defensive requirements so long as our own conduct was unoffending. We can always confidently challenge the right of any foreign state to jeopardize our safety when we ourselves have done it no wrong. When that safety is thus jeopardized by the acts of a foreign country, regardless of whether it is a belligerent, we may be fairly guided by what we conceive to be the requirements of our own defense.

It may be contended with force that a German conquest of England as well as of Canada, especially in view of what they stand for, is as dangerous to the safety of the United States as that of Argentina or of Chile. If it is not unreasonable for us to say to Europe or Asia, "Hands off Patagonia," it may be no less logical for us to say under certain conditions, "Hands off England." In a word, the relation of an unfettered and independent England to the safety of the United States is a matter of fact that is capable of ascertainment and exact appraisal; and it may be found to have a closer connection with that safety than the status of any American republic south of the equator. This has of late frequently been noted.

Again, it is asserted in some quarters that there is impressive evidence indicating that the downfall of England in the present war would be the certain precursor of a vigorous German attempt to gain by force the ascendancy over portions of the American continent. Unable to pass upon the soundness of this assertion, the writer would merely suggest that if the government of the United States has solid reason to believe that the downfall of Britain would produce such consequences, it need not await their occurrence before it acts.

Such are outlines of the bases on which the United States may be expected to defend its present course should the propriety of it be challenged at Berlin. In legal contemplation the transaction which marks the yielding of American destroyers to Britain constitutes military intervention, for it is interference in a foreign war designed to uphold a favored belligerent and weaken its foe. The character of the arrangement is, of course, not affected by the attractive price which that favored belligerent is willing to pay for what it gains. Inasmuch as intervention oftentimes savors of caprice and is the bald expression of a policy that reeks with lawlessness, it behooves the United States as a country which professes to respect international law, to convince society in every quarter that it is violating no obligation to any foreign country in its naval offerings to England.

Ordinarily a state that is not participating in a war cannot expect to become the naval aid of another that is fighting for its life without making itself the foe of its enemy. How Germany may react to the American contribution of destroyers to Britain need not be here discussed. Attention is merely drawn to some legal aspects of the transaction.

SELECTING A PHYSICIAN.

A LARGE proportion of the inquiries which come to this department have to do with the selection of a physician. All too frequently this subject presents a real problem. It was this same query—oft repeated by employés—that prompted a metropolitan newspaper to establish the office of medical counselor. Conferences are now held with members of the personnel for the discussion of questions concerning their health or that of their families. The service has been not only appreciated by the organization but has made for a fine spirit of cooperation. Furthermore, it has saved some lives and has been the means of directing hundreds to sane, conscientious, and worth while doctors.

But how can one who is new to a neighborhood—who looks at a sea of names in the telephone book—find the right man? To trust one's life to an unqualified or an indifferent individual is something to be avoided. There are several requirements that may govern the choice.

As a rule, reputable and well established hospitals have no hesitation in suggesting members of their staffs. They know these men and can speak with first hand knowledge of their attitude toward patients, average fees, and efficiency.

The most popular physician may not be the best, as he may rely more upon personality than ability. Moreover, he may be quite too busy to give adequate attention to you or to me. When in doubt, a young man with a degree from a class A medical school who has had an extensive hospital experience will rarely fail. If in addition he is known to be honest, forthright, and devoted to his calling, all should be well. Nowadays, graduates are not content with a single year spent within the walls of a home for the sick. They extend their apprenticeship sometimes to five years or more. On the other hand, time is a great teacher and the older chaps who have retained their student interests and enthusiasm are invaluable.

We must shun the one who guarantees a cure, who solicits business, or who boasts of his countless successes. The ethical representative of the healing art does not brag. Neither will he waste your time in relating the puzzling cases that have been restored to health under his guidance. While character is essential, however—more so than technical lore—we realize that sincere but stupid practitioners are utterly ineffectual. The specifications call for both integrity and proficiency

Beware likewise of the physician who is money hungry. Large fees may not prove competence, altho this is sometimes the method resorted to in order to build a reputation. What is his standing among his colleagues? Is his opinion sought in the scientific society to which he belongs, or is he so wise that he does not need to learn? The fact is that so much new material is coming to light that the one who refuses to keep posted will soon be left far behind the procession.

It is seldom wise to go directly to a specialist. You may not require his services at all. If a consultation is called for let your own doctor advise you. Communities are to be envied who possess able general practitioners whose insight into the lives and physiques of their people is so desirable.

The job of the public is to be critical, discerning, and cautious. There is no room for the one who is insensible to suffering or who fails to recognize danger because of carelessness. In these days of higher standards, greater opportunities for study and the acquisition of skill, we can be certain that the number of well trained medicoes is increasing year by year.

But no so-called "mender of the maimed" should be allowed to enter your home or mine who is not actuated by a desire to serve his patients with sympathy and understanding.

THE SENATE NOT CONSULTED.

Salt Lake City, Utah, Sept. 3.—In connection with the transaction whereby the United States is to obtain 99 year leases on areas in British territory for use as military bases in exchange for 50 old destroyers, with the stipulation that this country will reimburse private property owners affected, it may be of interest to note the following facts:

A lease of territory is a contract, because it is a transaction which extends over a period of time, regardless of whether or not payment due under the terms of the lease is made completely at the start of the lease, since in any event the occupation of the territory leased will extend over a period of time.

It follows, therefore, that when one sovereign state leases territory from another the transaction is a contract and hence a treaty. Consequently, the transaction whereby we obtain leaseholds in exchange for destroyers is a treaty.

Section 2 of article II. the United States constitution says the President "Shall have the power, by and with the advice and consent of the senate, to make treaties provided two-thirds of the senators present concur." By implication, therefore, the President does not have the power, under our constitution, to make treaties without the concurrence of two-thirds of the senators present when the matter is acted on by the senate.

It follows, therefore, that the President has not the power, under our constitution, to make the aforesaid exchange of destroyers for leaseholds, without the consent of the senate. M. B. STERLING.

SPEAKS FOR THE ALIENS.

Chicago, Sept. 4.—Well, the alien registration law is now in force. It is another one in a long list of discriminatory laws aimed at a friendly minority composed mostly of Poles, Czechs, Norwegians, Swedes, and others who find it hard to learn the English language and thus to pass the ordeal of naturalization. The Nazi fifth columnists who can learn our language easily and who are as a rule naturalized or native born are untouched by any law.

It is incredible how a nation of 130 million persons can spend a whole decade in morbid discrimination against a helpless and insignificant alien minority, while neglecting such major problems as unemployment, defense, and others. F. J.

ROOSEVELT CALLS "KING'S EX!"

Chicago, Sept. 3.—How many of us recall the strenuous games of our childhood—tag, for instance? When the going became too fast or a youngster was cornered and about to be tagged out, that child would call "King's ex!" so he could stand on the side lines for a time to catch his breath and recuperate.

Who would believe that our President would find it expedient to resort to such childish tactics in avoiding meeting issues of his own making?

IT'S UP TO THE PRESIDENT.

Nebraska City, Neb., Sept. 3.—Mine is just a small voice out here on the border of the short grass country, but not out of harmony with other home loving, liberty loving Americans. I just want to commend the well deserved honor you have given Senator Hiram Johnson in your front page editorial. The strength shown by Senator Johnson confirms the very strong opinion we have here, which I believe to be in the majority, that the first need is not so much registration and conscription of an army, but to have some definite statement of what it is we are to prepare to defend, extent of territory, and against whom.

We are not finding fault with Mr. Willkie for being honest in expressing his convictions but we question his too hasty endorsement of conscription, and believe his course and policy on that issue might have been better chosen. WM. H. PITZER.

"I NEVER TALK SHOP."

Chicago, Sept. 3.—President Roosevelt's assertion that it is his rule never to discuss pending legislation brings to mind the story [recently printed] of an inmate of a state institution who thought he was God. A bishop, visiting the place, met the patient and this conversation followed:

"I am honored to meet you," said the bishop. "I understand I am addressing God."

"You are," said the patient with dignity.

"Well, there is one thing I would very much like to ask you about. You say you made the world in six days. I should be most grateful for more information on that subject."

"Bishop," was the solemn reply, "I make it a practice never to talk shop." MRS. DALE.

GIVE MR. WALLACE TO THEM.

Chicago, Sept. 3.—I note that Mr. Roosevelt is grieved by the so-called crop surplus in South America, and proposes to extend aid to those countries, including five hundred million of American taxpayers' dollars.

Let Mr. Roosevelt present his greatly beloved aid, Mr. Wallace, to South America, to settle their problems, thereby saving all that money and at the same time settling a problem of our own, to wit: How is this country ever going to stand another four years of Mr. Wallace's "service"? MR. FIXIT.

JOBLESS SOLDIER.

Chicago, Sept. 5.—I enlisted in the United States army Nov. 14, 1933, and served my country faithfully for six years; honorably discharged. I went out into the world with the idea that my army service would help me find a job. I found out different after looking for a job for almost nine months. I still can't find work, because I have no experience. I have told everybody that I have had six years' army service and would take any kind of a job so long as I could work, but every one told me that it was a good thing I had army service but they could not use me as I did not have any experience in their line of work.

I am 27 years old now and rather discouraged to think that I gave six years of my life to serve my country and now nobody will give me a break to get something for it. It seems to me that the only thing to do is to go back to the army. I even tried to get a government job, but outside of 5 per cent preference because of military service I can't get anything because of lack of experience. J. K.

CONSCRIPTION OF WEALTH.

Danville, Ill., Sept. 3.—Judging from your article on the conscription bill passed by the senate, one would think that you feel that it might be O. K. to conscript men but not material wealth and industry. But we have three sons, ages 23, 25, and 30, all to be subject to service in "defense." We think "defense" is only a word used to take off the keen edge of "war," and we think you do, too, because your paper has indicated this all the time.

Why, then, should you or any one object to turning the reins of your business over to the President, when the boys turn their lives over, to be used in any way the government see fit? If it is a good thing for men to lose control of their actions by conscription, it does not seem out of place to also turn over big business to support these men to the utmost.

If we must have another war in which we have no interest, except to save something that belongs to some rich men, then let us have universal conscription of wealth and industry as well as men. A useful life is worth infinitely more than the largest and most useful industry in America. At any rate to those from whose families such lives are taken. C. H. M.

BECOMING A "GIMME" NATION.

Chicago, Aug. 27.—In a newspaper poll on the coming election for President, I announced myself as for Willkie for President, stating my reasons.

Since then, because my address was given by the paper printing the letter, I have been the recipient of vulgar letters, one signed with a nom de plume, giving no house address, and posted in a north suburb, and one quite anonymous. I expect to get more. The last line of my letter proves my point; that this country is fast becoming a "gimme" nation.

I shall vote for Willkie, even if I am snowed under with anonymous letters, and even if the entire government pay roll crowd came down to try to stop me. FLORENCE G. BRUCKNER.

ESTATE ADMINISTRATION.

Chicago, Aug. 23.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Since I have encountered differences of opinion regarding settlement of an estate, as an executor, will you advise:

1. In the preparation of the final report to the court, is it necessary to include therein all monies received, rents, etc., and all monies paid out concerning both personal property and real property, or, to report only those items applicable to personal property, since the real property descended immediately to the heirs, to whom I should be accountable therefor?

2. Should the executor's fee [of a small estate] be based on an amount not in excess of 6 per cent of income, and in addition thereto, [3] may he be reimbursed for the actual expenditures incurred, such as traveling, postage, etc.? A. R.

REPLY.

1. No. In general, the administrator has nothing to do with the real estate. If he handles the real estate it is by virtue of express or implied authority from the other heirs and his accounting to them should technically be separate. Nevertheless it is not an uncommon practice to lump the two together.

2. This was the figure under the old statute, but since the beginning of this year the new act is in effect which names no definite percentage.

3. Yes.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

OLD AGE PENSION.

Chicago, Aug. 16.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I am anxious to know [1] if I, as a voter, am entitled to old age pension in the state of California [2] when I am unable to find any record of my birth or baptismal record. I am in a position, however, to prove I was born in the United States of America. I am anxious to know this before I return to the state of California, where I made my home for 35 years, but now find myself alone and in want. Just what will I do? M. C.

1. Take the matter up with officials there.

2. Other methods of proving your age are permissible. We attach an Illinois summary that will be roughly applicable.

The act grants old age assistance to citizens 65 years old who have resided in Illinois five years of the preceding nine years, the last year being continuous, who are not supported by public institutions, have no children able to support them, and have not purchased full care in private institutions. Assistance will not exceed $30 per month.

If the applicant has a private income, the pension is scaled down proportionately, the act stating that $360 per year is a "reasonable subsistence compatible with decency and health." Funeral expenses up to $100 are payable where the estate proves insufficient.

Age can be proved by proper copy of birth certificate, Bible record, application to a fraternal order, application for insurance made before Jan. 1, 1920; school record, enlistment in army or navy, or of marriage license application. For further information apply to the office on the seventh floor of the Merchandise Mart. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Sept. 8, 1664

The 50 year old Dutch settlement of New Amsterdam taken over by the English and renamed New York. The Dutch had built a wall across Manhattan Island where Wall street now is, to protect themselves from the British, but Col. Richard Nicolls won the burgomaster of the settlement and a number of prominent citizens over to the British thru promises of favorable treatment. Governor Peter Stuyvesant was forced to surrender without fighting. In 1673 a Dutch fleet made a surprise capture of New York, but the city was again turned over to the English when England and the Netherlands agreed on peace.

FIRST TEST LEAP MADE TO LEARN STRATO SECRETS

Parachutes 12,500 Feet as Scientists Watch.

Scientists watched yesterday as Arthur H. Starnes made the first of four parachute jumps which are expected to answer some of the problems that now confront stratosphere flying.

Starnes stepped from The Tribune plane at a height of 12,500 feet, with a pneumograph strapped to his chest to record his breathing. Five minutes later he touched the ground to submit to medical examination and turn over the pneumograph to the observers.

The development of stratosphere flying is expected to free aviation from many of the weather hazards encountered at lower levels. But some problems first must be solved.

Dropping Distance Important.

The United States army air corps, the aviation industry, and medical authorities wish to know how far a flyer must fall before pulling the ripcord of his parachute to avoid asphyxiation in the rarefied and subzero temperature, in case he is forced to abandon his ship in the stratosphere.

It is also essential to determine whether or not the flyer's body can withstand the necessary fall without permanent impairment of his faculties.

Observations are therefore being made on four parachute jumps: that of yesterday, another of 18,500 feet, another of 25,000 feet, and finally one of 35,000 feet.

Scientists Watch Leap.

Starnes went up yesterday, with Howard West piloting The Tribune plane, from the Rubinkam airport at 159th street and Western avenue. Scientists who watched the flight were Dr. Anton J. Carlson, University of Chicago physiologist; Dr. Andrew C. Ivy, and Dr. Louis Krasno, Northwestern university physiologists; and Dr. Albert H. Andrews Jr., Northwestern university eye, ear, nose, and throat specialist.

Starnes will carry a radio transmitter, a motion picture camera, and an oxygen tank, as well as instruments for recording his bodily reactions, when he makes the final leap of 35,000 feet. Yesterday, however, he carried only the pneumograph and an altimeter which was strapped to his right wrist, as the first three flights are intended only to test his equipment.

When Starnes rose to a height of almost 2½ miles yesterday he was wearing an emergency parachute fastened to his chest, as well as the standard one on his back. He dropped from 12,500 feet to 3,000 feet before he pulled the ripcord. The standard parachute worked perfectly, so that he did not need the emergency chute.

Falls 9,000 Feet in 50 Seconds.

The observers said he dropped 9,000 feet in 50 seconds, or approximately 120 miles an hour. He dropped 12 feet a second after the chute opened.

The pneumograph showed that he took two deep breaths in the 9,000 foot fall he made before pulling the ripcord.

Starnes' daring jump was witnessed by his wife, Charlotte, and their son, Robert, 14 years old, who were among the 500 spectators. The other jumps are to be made within the next few days.

2 SLUG CURRENCY EXCHANGE CLERK AND TAKE $2,800

Two gunmen forced open the rear door of a currency exchange a block from the Englewood police station, slugged a clerk, and escaped with $2,800 early yesterday.

They attacked the clerk, Ralph Mayer, 621 Surf street, as he arrived for work at the exchange, at 214 West 63d street, forced him to open the safe, and then bound and blindfolded him. Mayer freed himself after the robbers fled.

Police reasoned that the men had been in the office for some time as the floor was littered with cigaret stubs. They took Mayer to the Englewood hospital for treatment of a scalp wound.

CHICAGO OFFICES SET UP IN YOUTH BUSINESS MOVE

Junior Achievement of Chicago, a movement to help youths between the ages of 16 and 21 organize miniature business enterprises, opened permanent headquarters yesterday at 6 North Michigan avenue.

The movement, a national one, is backed in Chicago by a group of business men who underwrote the organization for a year. It encourages boys and girls to organize miniature companies in the hope that thru the experience gained they may grapple more easily with later problems.

A group of 15 can apply for a charter, A. R. Snyder, assistant to the president, said. The group elects officers and directors, and the directors recommend three adults to serve as leaders. It then goes into a business, such as a "factory" in a basement or garage, sells shares, and runs its affairs on a business scale.

HANGS SELF IN BERWYN HOME.

Frank Cizak, 46 years old, a designer, was found hanged yesterday in his home at 2349 South Grove avenue, Berwyn. His widow told police he underwent an operation several weeks ago.

Parents of Child Attacked in Park Hunt Dog Owner

Mr. and Mrs. Kalman Steiner, 5215 Cornell avenue, are anxious to find the owner of a white wire haired fox terrier that bit their son, Tommy, 6 years old, as he played in East End park last Thursday evening. Their physician has advised them to have the dog placed under observation for rabies. Tommy's brother said the dog was with a woman who spoke with a German accent.

WOMEN FLYERS COMPETE TODAY IN AIR TOURNEY

Stunts, Races, Bombing Forays on Program.

Today is the day when the 60 housewives and professional women who make up the Chicago Girls' Flying club heed the call to come out of the kitchen.

Fifteen of them—the more expert flyers—will take part in the club's fifth annual air meet at Sky Harbor airport, two miles west of Northbrook on Dundee road.

A dozen thrilling events are on the program, which will start at 2 p. m. Two cross country races, round trips to Naperville and Lake Zurich, and a closed pylon race of 25 miles for planes of 50 to 70 horsepower are scheduled.

Bombing Flights Scheduled.

There will be much in the way of comedy stunts and precision flying, the latter demonstrating the accuracy with which the girls make spot landings and drop bombs made of flour and paper bags.

Miss Lydia Christensen, a member of the club, will make a parachute jump.

Those contesting represent a wide variety of vocations. Jerry Truesdell, the club's treasurer, is secretary to an industrial engineer. Miss Janet Mayhercy, president, is assistant to the head of an oil company. Mrs. Helen Budwash is cashier in a theater, and Miss Mabel Sherman teaches art.

Two housewives—Mrs. Alice De Witt, who holds a commercial pilot's license, and Mrs. Frances Anderson—will be among leaders in the speed races.

Professional pilots and members of the Civil Aeronautics authority will attend the meet. Capt. Ora Young, Richard Loreway, Richard Fender, and Norvel Richardson will represent the aeronautics board. Jack Vilas, Charles Arens, C. L. Miller, Frank Hlavacek, Lieut. Noel F. Parrish, L. M. Churbuck, and Dr. Donald Cook, all well known flyers, will judge the meet.

THE tremendous advances in medical knowledge during the past fifty years have been one of the greatest achievements of modern times. Through the reduction of infant mortality and control over the infectious diseases of childhood the average span of life has been lengthened many years. As a result . . . our country is considered one of the healthiest places in the world. And so it is . . . especially for that group of individuals who, because of age and other factors, have received through education, vaccination and periodic examinations the benefits of adequate medical supervision and care. The danger period begins in early adult life, when individuals assume responsibility for their own way of living and during their most productive years dispense with recognized methods of health protection. It is during these unprotected years, usually the late twenties, thirties and early forties . . . that heart disease, cancer, diabetes, nephritis, tuberculosis or other preventable causes of disability and early death gain a foothold within the body. As evidence of this fact, hardly a day passes that does not bring to our attention the untimely death of prominent persons in this age group. There are perhaps, various reasons why people neglect to safeguard their health, but experience proves that the "high cost" of adequate medical care is the principal one. For as medical science advanced it became impossible for any one man to master it all and the individual fees for specialized services were beyond the ability of most persons to pay. As a result only the well-to-do could afford the protective services medicine is equipped to render. Many prominent health authorities acknowledge that the big problem in medicine today is no longer a lack of knowledge or proper technique, but a wider utilization of present facilities. Eight years ago the founders of a United Medical Service believed that lower fees would help to solve the problem. They also knew through a former experience in a highly specialized field of medicine that group practice supported by complete modern facilities under one roof was the secret of low costs. So they pooled their knowledge and training in all fields of medicine and surgery . . . installed the most modern and scientific equipment in four floors of a centrally located office building and made public announcement of the various services at fees all income groups could afford. The success of this effort proves conclusively that this plan is fundamentally sound. It has enabled thousands to receive the protection of adequate medical care who were formerly among the 75 per cent of our population which leading health authorities say are being denied the benefits that new discoveries in medicine are making possible today. Good health makes life worth living and is perhaps a more important factor in our lives at present than ever before. Here you can obtain through a competent medical staff, supported by extensive X-ray and Laboratory equipment all preventive and curative services which modern medicine can render at low cost. The fees are fixed and the same to all. Visitors invited.

FEDERAL BUREAU FOILS A PLAN FOR MODERN HOUSING

Refuses Loans to Group of Professors.

Lansing, Mich., Sept. 7 [Special].—An ambitious experiment in modern housing attempted by Frank Lloyd Wright, noted architect, and a group of professors at Michigan State college has been halted by disapproval of the Federal Home Loan Bank board.

Loans were refused because the houses were planned not to have paint, radiators, garages, separate kitchens, separate dining rooms, or basement foundations. Federal Housing authorities contended the architecture of the homes was so advanced they would have little if any resale value.

"In other words," lamented Architect Wright, "they disapproved of everything that modern dwelling has gone beyond. It means a thoroly safe investment killed because government experts can be wrong for more than 50 years."

Hired by Professors.

The architect had been engaged by eight university professors to design modern homes which they planned to build on a 40 acre tract of land they had acquired just outside the East Lansing city limits. Wright had planned to put into effect his famous "form following function" design and to make each home architecturally harmonious with the others.

The iconoclastic methods encountered difficulties, however, when the plans were submitted to local loaning agencies. When the FHL office at Detroit withheld approval either for loans on the project as a whole or on individual dwellings, loaning agencies declined to give the project further consideration.

Consequently, only one of the proposed homes has been constructed. Altho it was built on another site, it follows Wright's original plan. Its owners, the Misses Alma Goetsch and Katherine Winckler, women art instructors at the college, obtained independent financing.

Its Cost Is $8,000.

The dwelling, built for about $8,000, embodies all of the advanced construction features which caused loaning authorities to veto the Wright project. It has just been completed in a rustic setting a few miles from the college campus and near the village of Okemos.

Appearing to crown the entire top of a low knoll, the one story, flat roofed structure displays its component parts of California redwood, plywood, concrete, steel, and brick. The depth of the building is more than 100 feet. More 1,000 square feet of space is contained in the main room, which has a kitchen alcove and provides built-in dining facilities which may be shifted to advantageous positions.

Interior charm is heightened by a huge fireplace and a window bank of plate glass giving a view of a wooded ravine of exceptional scenic quality. Ceiling lights and indirect fluorescent lighting are used thruout the house, on terraces, and in the "car port."

A Novel Garage.

Instead of a fully enclosed garage, the home has what Wright terms a "car port," a sheltered partial enclosure over which a portion of the roof extends to give full weather protection and leaves the car parked within a few steps of the living room entrance.

The kitchen, while not completely partitioned off from the main room, occupies an alcove in one corner, its built-in conveniences minimizing the space occupied and adding to culinary efficiency. The electric stove fits into a niche in the brick and concrete center wall, which forms a sort of a masonry backbone concealing chimney and ventilating flues.

The large fireplace on the opposite side from the kitchen serves as anchorage for the steel beams which support the roof. Instead of radiators, the heating which is from a fully automatic, oil burning furnace, is accomplished thru the floors, which are underlain with steam pipes spaced two feet apart and packed in crushed rock.

A Cooling System.

Low fuel bills and the ultimate in even heat are claimed for the heating arrangement. In summer, cold water from a deep rock well can be pumped thru the heating system by the electric water pump, cooling the floors and lowering house temperatures well below those outside.

Instead of the conventional basement foundations, the concrete floor and footings for the house are tied together on a form of floating foundation similar to that used by Wright in the famed Imperial hotel in Tokio, which withstood an earthquake. Only two small basement cells are provided, one for the furnace and the other for the electric pump and incidental facilities.

Decorating maintenance costs are extremely low, it is claimed, because of the natural wood finish. A special wax is used to coat the redwood exterior and interior,

Seized in $4,724 Robbery

ARREST 2 OTHERS OF BANDIT TRIO IN $4,724 ROBBERY

Smart work by the robbery detail resulted in the arrest yesterday of the last two of a trio of holdup men who took $4,724 Tuesday from an armored car company safe in a filling station at 10408 Indianapolis boulevard. The leader of the gang, a former employé for the armored car service, used a pass key of his own to open the safe.

In custody are Emerald Blair, 335 West 157th street, the gang leader; Louis Pajack, 1103 Moss street, Hammond, and Emil Rola, 4726 Baltimore avenue, East Hammond. Police said all have confessed.

Immediately after the robbery Lieut. John J. Walsh, Lieut. Kyran Phelan, and Sergt. John Hanrahan decided that it was done by some one who knew the layout thoroly. By a process of elimination they decided on Blair, who was discharged a year ago as manager of the Hammond branch of Brink's Express company.

William Bacon and George Breazeale, the filling station attendants, were taken to the Inland Steel company plant, where Blair is employed as a switchman, and identified him. Since this was in Indiana, Lieut. Walsh arrested Blair at his home in Illinois that evening. Blair implicated the others, who were picked up yesterday.

Blair, police said, admitted having stolen the master key prior to his discharge. He said he had waited a year before using it in order to avert suspicion. In his home police recovered several other keys, $1,300 in currency and silver, and two guns.

Pajak and Rola said the holdup was their first venture into crime, but police said Rola has served time in Indiana for burglary. The two men said they had given Blair $38 each from their share of the loot on his suggestion that they pool a part of their money to be used for better guns and more ammunition. Blair told police the robbery netted only $1,600, less than half of what filling station officials said was in the safe.

MICHIGAN VOTES TUESDAY; 6 RACE GOV. DICKINSON

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 7 [Special].—When a million Michigan voters go to the polls for the state primary election next Tuesday, their interest will be centered on the race of 81 year old Governor Luren D. Dickinson against six younger men for the Republican nomination for governor.

The governor's wife died recently and he has made a passive campaign, but political observers believe he has a good chance to win.

Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg, seeking renomination, on the Republican ticket, is opposed by Bowen R. Gover of Detroit. Five are seeking nomination in the Democratic senatorial race.

BALLAD RETELLS TRAGEDY OF LAKE STEAMER SINKING

BY JOHN KELLEY.
[Retired Tribune Police Reporter.]

Eighty years ago yesterday the treacherous shore line of Winnetka was the scene of one of Lake Michigan's worst marine disasters. The sidewheel schooner, Lady Elgin, after being rammed by a lumber schooner, heeled over and sank, carrying more than 300 persons to their deaths.

Henry Clay Work.

The mishap saddened scores of homes in Chicago and Milwaukee, the ports between which the Lady Elgin plied, and so shocked the entire country that a doleful, minstrel type ballad which chronicled the sinking became a best seller. "Lost on the Lady Elgin" was heard in theaters from coast to coast and was sung in homes, on street corners, and in barrooms.

Printer Writes Ballad.

The ballad was written by Henry Clay Work, a Chicago printer, who 80 years ago today was setting up the type that told the story of the disaster. At the end of his shift he went to his lodgings and began composing.

Many persons still living remember the song, which remained popular even thru the four years of civil war which followed. Published by H. M. Higgins of Chicago, the ballad began:

Up from the poor man's cottage,
Forth from the mansion door,
Sweeping across the waters
And echoing along the shore;
Caught by the morning breezes,
Borne on the evening gale,
Cometh a voice of mourning,
A sad and solemn wail.

CHORUS.

Lost on the Lady Elgin,
Sleeping to wake no more,
Number'd in that three hundred
Who failed to reach the shore.

There were two more verses which described the tragic scenes on the big steamer.

The boat began her career as a liner and mail carrier between Buffalo, Milwaukee, and Chicago. After 10 years, however, the mail contract was lost to the railroads and the Lady Elgin became an excursion steamer. Just after midnight on Sept. 7 the vessel left Chicago with 400 passengers aboard.

As she slipped down the river and into the lake shortly after midnight, a storm broke. The rain fell in sheets. Lightning flashed and thunder boomed.

At 1:30 a. m., when the Lady Elgin was off Winnetka, there came without warning a splintering crash. A lumber schooner, the Augusta, plowed into the steamship just aft the wheelhouse and cut half way thru it. The Lady Elgin careened and began settling rapidly.

Lumber Ship Continues on.

The Augusta backed away and continued its voyage almost undamaged. The windjammer captain reported to Chicago port authorities later that he believed he had hit a steamer up toward Evanston, but that he was not sure.

Aboard the stricken excursion boat Capt. Jack Wilson made a mighty effort to save his passengers. Mattresses from bunks were stuffed into the gaping hole. Two hundred head of cattle were driven overboard to lighten the ship, but to no avail.

The heavy engines crashed thru the shattered hull and sank. The hulk of the vessel followed them, leaving only the hurricane deck and superstructure afloat. Here the passengers clung for their lives until the angry waters shattered the flimsy decking.

Hundreds Go to Rescue.

Some of the crew reached the shore in a yawl. They awakened the villagers. A Winnetkan hurried to Evanston to awaken the young divinity students of the Garrett Biblical institute. At dawn hundreds of persons were standing along the jagged shore to attempt a rescue.

But sand bars out in the lake were breaking the waves into a foaming maelstrom. The Lady Elgin's passengers were hurled toward the 50 foot bluff that formed the shore, and many were drawn back in the undertow.

2 HELD IN TOLEDO ON CHARGES OF OFFERING BRIBES

SOX BEAT INDIANS, 5-4; YANKS, TIGERS WIN

PACE SETTERS SUFFER SIXTH DEFEAT IN ROW

Detroit Within Two Points of Lead.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Cleveland, O., Sept. 7.—The White Sox, always unpredictable, turned unexpectedly today on the Indians, the team they have kept in first place. Jim Dykes' dudes, welcomed to town as generous cousins, abandoned their charitable rôle and knifed the unpopular leaders, 5 to 4, in a battle that added complications to the already dizzy American league race. It marked the sixth straight defeat for the Indians, but only the fifth the Sox have handed them in 20 engagements.

So the mutinous Indians, who think themselves too good to take the biting remarks of their manager, Oscar Vitt, without shedding tears on front office desk tops, now are confronted by the possibility of having to go home instead of to a world series. The Detroit Tigers are tied with them in victories and defeats, altho the Indians hold a first place percentage edge of two points. Just to the rear, one game behind but coming fast, are the Yankees. And even the White Sox, in fifth place, are only six games away. The fourth place Red Sox trail by four games.

Sox Score Four in 4th.

The Sox delivered the lethal punch today in one inning. For three rounds, Bill Dietrich and Mel Harder were the principals in a 1 to 1 duel. In the fourth the Sox let go with some base hits involving Luke Appling, Taft Wright, Mike Tresh and Bob Kennedy. Four runs scored, the third of the batch because of a bad throw by Jeff Heath from left field and the fourth, which proved the winner, because Rollie Hemsley, the revolutionists' candidate for manager, failed to get away with a piece of trickery. He tipped the bat of Jimmy Webb.

For six innings Dietrich had little to worry about except for an enemy run in the first inning and a homer by Heath in the fourth. But in the seventh bespectacled Bill lost his control and he went away just as Harder had gone in the fourth. Clint Brown stepped into a full house with one out and Lou Boudreau doubled, two scoring. Then with the tying run on third and another on second Brown revealed his real rescuing skill to insure Dietrich his eighth success of the year.

Indians Jump Into Lead.

The Indians assaulted Dietrich with a pair of hits for their first inning run, but their joy was short lived. With one out, Weatherly doubled over third, moved up a notch on Chapman's infield out, and scored on Bell's single to right.

The Sox maltreated Harder in the second, but only the tying run scored. Solters led off with a two bagger to right and scored immediately on Appling's single past first base. Wright also singled, after which Tresh sacrificed, and Kennedy was purposely passed. Dietrich laid down a perfect bunt, but Appling apparently didn't know the squeeze play was on. He was forced at the plate on Harder's throw to Hemsley, and Webb popped to Mack for the third out.

The Indians bounced two more hits off Dietrich's delivery in their half of the second, but played their cards poorly. Keltner opened with a single

Bob Kennedy, 19 year old White Sox third baseman, jars ball from Catcher Rollie Hemsley's mitt sliding home with the decisive score in Chicago's four run fourth inning against the Indians in Cleveland yesterday. Kennedy beat Mel Harder's throw after Mike Kreevich had grounded to the Indians' pitcher. The umpire is Lou Kolls, and Joe Kuhel, Sox first baseman, registers elation. Arrow points to ball. Sox won, 5 to 4, and all but pulled Cleveland down to a tie for first place with Detroit.

Earl Averill, pinch hitter for Dick Bartell, singled to drive in two runs in the ninth inning yesterday, and then crossed the plate on Bruce Campbell's double to complete a three run rally as the Detroit Tigers defeated the St. Louis Browns, 5 to 4. As Averill slides home (above), Catcher Bob Swift waits in vain for a throwin from the outfield. [Associated Press Wirephotos.]

Boston, Mass., Sept. 7 (AP).—The pitching of young Marius Russo and the hitting of Joe DiMaggio today put the world champion Yankees definitely on one side of the American league's championship triangle. The combination gave the New Yorkers a 4 to 3 triumph over the Red Sox before 19,000 and put them only a game behind the Indians and Tigers.

Ted Williams, temperamental young Red Sox outfielder, was almost a match for the Yankee heroes. Williams drove in all three Boston runs, the last being his 19th homer.

DiMaggio, getting two hits, made his second appearance a most timely one, hitting his twenty-ninth homer of the season over the left field wall in the fourth when the Yankees were trailing, 2 to 1. George Selkirk, who had replaced the injured Tommy Henrich, was on base at the time.

Both teams scored a run apiece in the first inning—the Yankee tally coming when Henrich singled, scoring Joe Gordon who had walked and stole second. Henrich, in trying to stretch the hit, twisted a ligament in his left knee and had to retire. He will be out three or four days.

The Sox evened the count in their half when Dom DiMaggio singled, got to third on a sacrifice and Jimmy Foxx's single and scored on Williams' long fly.

Boston went ahead, 2 to 1, in the third when Roger Cramer walked and scored on singles by Foxx and Williams. Then DiMaggio hit his homer in the next inning. The champions scored once more in the sixth on DiMaggio's walk and Keller's double.

Cleveland Rebels Now Eating Bitter Fruit of Own Planting

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Cleveland, O., Sept. 7.—The Indians' rebellion against their manager, Oscar Vitt, is bearing fruit. It's bitter fruit. And those of the Indians who nursed the seed of dissension into full growth are doing the eating much against their wishes. They are experiencing griping pains and in the midst of their suffering—they lost their sixth straight today—they can't find anybody willing to offer sympathy. And, of course, Mr. Vitt is suffering, but from a different cause.

For weeks the local newspapers made light of the rebellion. They printed what could be learned, but because of civic pride, or something, they preferred to regard the insurrection as a temporary matter and play on the possibilities of an All-Ohio world series. But even the ball writers have given up flag talk. They've trained their darts on President Alva Bradley, who is being pictured as responsible for the mess because he didn't take a firm stand either for or against the revolt when it first broke out last June.

The Writers Let Go.

As a result of the last meeting of the mutineers, held in Detroit last Thursday, Bradley today informed the press he was back of Vitt, but this neither served to clean up the situation nor caused the writers to refrain from letting go with both barrels.

Here's what one fellow wrote:

"Following a complete mental, moral, and physical collapse of the Indians in Detroit, I am giving the Cleveland ball club back to the Come-to-Cleveland committee. Maybe a dose of civic endeavor will win the pennant, but I doubt it, because even in civic endeavor you must have some basic stability, some fairness in deal-

BIG 9 POSTPONES ACTION ON BID TO ROSE BOWL GAME

BY WILFRID SMITH.

The Western Intercollegiate conference will not send one of its football teams to compete in the Rose bowl game in Pasadena, Cal., Jan. 1, 1941.

This was the obvious result of the decision yesterday afternoon of the faculty committee to postpone further discussion of the interconference association with the Pacific Coast conference until the December meeting of the Western conference in Chicago.

The faculty representatives, after hearing the Rose bowl game discussed by Prof. W. B. Owens of Stanford, Charles C. May of the University of Washington, and L. W. St. John, director of athletics at Ohio State university, debated the proposal for two hours.

Propose Further Investigation.

"The matter of the Rose bowl game was discussed. No final decision was reached, it being the sense of the representatives present that between this time and the December meeting [of the Western conference] the representatives should canvass the views of their respective faculties."

The agreement to "canvass the views of respective faculties" is presumed to have broken what amounted to a deadlock, altho Dr. Leib de-

BY HOWARD BARRY.

Burning Star, a 6 year old stallion owned by Pat and Dick Nash, came charging right down the middle of the sunlit stretch to get to the front in the last sixteenth and win the $6,420 Hawthorne handicap yesterday. He beat B. F. Masterson's Busy Morn by three-quarters of a length in this mile and a furlong run, while Bob's Boys was taking third money.

The crowd of 20,000 gathered at the Hawthorne track had established Charles S. Howard's Advocator as the favorite at 5 to 2—but favorites cannot be taken very seriously in Chicago's stake events this season. Like most of his predecessors he was soundly beaten, winding up in sixth place. Burning Star had been made the second choice at 7 to 2.

Busy Morn Keeps Rivals Busy.

It was a wide open betting race. Tho heavy money was poured in on the first and second choices, many of the fans were of the opinion that there were quite a few others in the field of eleven which had excellent chances. They played Valdina Star, Busy Morn, Bob's Boys, and Forever Prince at odds ranging from 9 to 2 to 14 to 1.

Busy Morn, which had won the $5,000 Beverly handicap at Washington Park and had closed with a rush to finish second in the Hawthorne Inaugural handicap, made her rivals run all the way. On the break from the starting gate, Jockey Earl Pool sent her away swiftly, worked her across the field from the No. 11 post position and drew into a clear lead on the clubhouse turn.

Rude Awakening was running second at this stage, with Forever Prince and Bob's Boys close up. Advocator and Burning Star were with the trailers, the former having been away poorly. During the run down the back stretch, Busy Morn increased her lead to two lengths.

Burning Star Goes to Work.

As they went into the far turn, Jimmy Ashcroft began to move with Advocator, but Jack Richard was watching him closely and sent Burning Star right along with him. Both of them moved forward swiftly during the swing around the bend but Busy Morn was still out in front, racing brilliantly, three lengths ahead of her closest pursuer, Rude Awakening. Bob's Boys also was going well in third place.

Coming into the straightaway, Richard took Burning Star to the extreme outside and put him under a hard drive. Burning Star moved past Advocator and conquered Bob's Boys while the weary Rude Awakening was dropping back. Then Burning Star went after Busy Morn. Steadily he overhauled the pace setter. He caught her in the last sixteenth and drew away, crossing the finish line three-quarters of a length in the lead.

Burning Star's time for the mile and a furlong was 1:50 4-5. Busy Morn had cut out a good pace, being at the half in :47 4-5, the three-quarters in 1:11 3-5 and the mile in 1:37 3-5. In the mutuels the winner returned $9.00, $5.00, and $4.00 across the board. Place and show tickets on Busy Morn were worth $6.60 and $4.60 while Bob's Boys paid $6.60 to show.

The betting handle for the day reached $496,655, which was a substantial increase over the figure of $362,020 which went thru the totalizator on the first Saturday of last year's meeting.

Pool Set Down.

Jockey Pool, the 42 year old dean of Chicago's jockey colony, was set down for 15 days for causing interference in the day's first race. While driving Thomas Platt's Onemore to the front in the stretch, he allowed his mount to go over sharply toward the rail, blocking off some of his rivals. Subsequently Onemore tired and finished third in a three horse head and head finish, but was disqualified.

Easy Flying won this opening race of the afternoon. She beat Gallant Sis by a nose in this six furlong sprint for 2 year olds. The winner paid $7, $4.40, and $3.20.

Jockey Bill Thompson, who had

Averill, Campbell Hit in Pinch.

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 7 (AP).—The courage of the Detroit Tigers reached a season high today as they put on a three run rally in the ninth to defeat the St. Louis Browns, 5 to 4, and climb into a virtual tie with the Cleveland Indians for first place in the American league. Detroit is now 2 percentage points behind the Indians.

Two former Cleveland players—Earl Averill and Bruce Campbell—supplied the finishing punch in Detroit's 17th victory in 21 games with St. Louis this year.

Walks Start Rally.

In the ninth inning Vernon Kennedy, former Tiger who had pitched superb ball for the Browns, lost control and walked Billy Sullivan and George Tebbetts with none out. Frank Higgins, injured Tiger third sacker, batted for Relief Pitcher Alton Benton and sacrificed.

Averill, one of the year's best pinch hitters, hit for Dick Bartell and singled to send two runs over and tie the score. Campbell then doubled down the right field foul line to score Averill and break up the game.

The Tigers were held to seven hits, including Hank Greenberg's 29th homer with the bases empty in the sixth. The Browns got 11 safeties off Johnny Gorsica and Benton.

Browns Take Early Lead.

The Browns gained an early lead with runs in the second and fourth. In the second singles by Harlond Clift, George McQuinn, and Johnny Berardino netted a run. Walter Judnich's single, Clift's double, and a long fly by Berardino produced the fourth inning score.

In the fifth Detroit got its first hits and a subsequent run. Tebbetts opened with a walk, but was forced by Gorsica. Dick Bartell then bunted

FOOTBALL DRILL OPENS TUESDAY FOR BIG 9 TEAMS

Ohio State Is Picked to Keep Championship.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

The football teams of the Western conference, which now has shrunk to the Big Nine with the withdrawal of the University of Chicago from the sport Amos Alonzo Stagg helped make nationally famous, begin preparations Tuesday for what promises to be the most unpredictable campaign in a decade. Chicago's departure amid a storm of innuendoes and halfhearted recrimination by athletic directors which failed to wash any dirty linen in public view, has left Michigan with only four conference games. This may affect the final standings in recent seasons. Chicago was victory insurance to Michigan, Illinois, and Ohio State.

Four Western conference teams open their seasons in 18 days and three of these games are important intersectional contests. The University of Washington meets Minnesota in Minneapolis, Pittsburgh plays Ohio State in Columbus, and Michigan, replacing the Chicago game, journeys to Berkeley to face California. Purdue will entertain Butler in West Lafayette on the same afternoon.

Four Play Six Big Nine Foes.

The contrast to Michigan's four game schedule, which includes only Ohio State in the first bracket, are the schedules of four other universities, Minnesota, Northwestern, Wisconsin, and Ohio State. Each will play six games, and judging them on the basis of 1939 performance and present material, Wisconsin may be awarded the palm for the most difficult schedule.

The Badgers play Iowa, Northwestern, Purdue, Illinois, Indiana, and Minnesota, in this order. Marquette opens Wisconsin's season and the Badgers meet Columbia in New York the week before the Indiana game. Ohio State, Michigan, and Indiana may be grouped in the first flight of Big Nine teams altho Alvin Nugent McMillin, Hoosier coach, does not care for the ranking, and Iowa may feel neglected since the Hawkeyes finished in second place in 1939 as the Iron Men made conference history and gave their alma mater the best record since the days of the Devines and conference championships.

Ohio Defends Title.

The Buckeyes are defending champions. They were beaten in their final conference game a year ago by Michigan, but Iowa's tie with Northwestern on the same afternoon prevented the Hawkeyes from grabbing a share of the title. Iowa previously had been beaten by Michigan. Ohio State's problem, other than the perennial tendency to lose one or more ranking games [Cornell and Michigan whipped the Buckeyes last year] is to replace Frank Zadworney, right half back. The other back field regulars, Jim Strausbaugh, left half; Capt. Jim Langhurst, full back, and Don Scott, quarter back, return. Scott is the best forward passer in early rating, and best kicker and the best all round back. Michigan's Tom Harmon, who punts and passes only occasionally, is Scott's only threat at this time.

Ohio's second problem is development of ends, for the Buckeyes have excellent tackles, at least two veteran guards in Nosker and Howard, and the return of Claude White to center probably means that Charley Maag will continue at tackle. Ohio State thus must be named first choice for the 1940 championship.

Needs Second Line Material.

In the two years Fritz Crisler has directed Michigan the primary difficulty has been lack of second line material. The defect developed into catastrophe last year when Forrest Evashevski, great blocking quarter back, could not play 60 minutes of every game. Overconfidence coupled with Illinois' best game of the year produced the Big Nine's major upset. This was followed by Michigan's crushing defeat by Minnesota, altho the Gophers lost four of eight games and tied another. Bob Zimmerman and Bob Westfall, who shared full back last year, and Harmon, insure back field strength. Then, too, Jack Meyer, who missed the 1939 race because of injury, backs up Evashevski in the all important quarter back post. Michigan's line is a question mark. Archie Kodros, a great center, will be missed.

Indiana's ranking with the big three is wishful thinking on the basis of 1939 performance. Indiana does have nearly all its 1939 men back. Indiana has some sophomore help, but what the Hoosiers couldn't do a year ago they may not be able to accomplish again this year. Injuries last year proved overwhelming. With some luck in this department, Indiana could be a threat all the way. Iowa, Northwestern, Ohio State, Wisconsin, and Purdue are its opponents.

Gophers Do Not Dominate.

Iowa probably will have a better team on paper than was the 1939 eleven, but it is questionable if any team can equal the spirit of the Iron Men, and Iowa also got splendid breaks to win such 1939 games as those with Notre Dame and Minnesota. Both will be gunning for revenge this fall and Iowa may be overconfident. End and half backs furnish problems for the coaches. Al Coupee, at quarter back, and Capt. Mike Enich, tackle, are likely stars. Iowa will have no Nile Kinnick, however, and his passes will be needed.

The once mighty Minnesota team no longer dominates the conference. The Gophers will have a first eleven which on one day might be the best in the Big Nine but any letdown also may be fatal on any day.

George Franck and Bruce Smith are experienced backs. Bill Johnson, at end; Bob Bjorklund, returned to center, and Kuuisisto, at guard, have proved ability. Development of sophomores will provide the key to Minnesota's success.

Northwestern must fill several vacant line positions and since line play, particularly at the ends, and the blocking of new men at full back and right half, held back the 1939 Wildcats, the odds are against Northwestern finishing in the first division. Bill De Correvont's appendicitis operation, and the loss of Fred Dahlkamp, regular tackle, injured in an automobile accident, have not improved the situation. Don Clawson, at full back, and Ollie Hahnenstein, left half, are the brightest rays, but the absence of John Haman, and a new group of ends only means long hours of work with spotty results.

Purdue Has Two Stars.

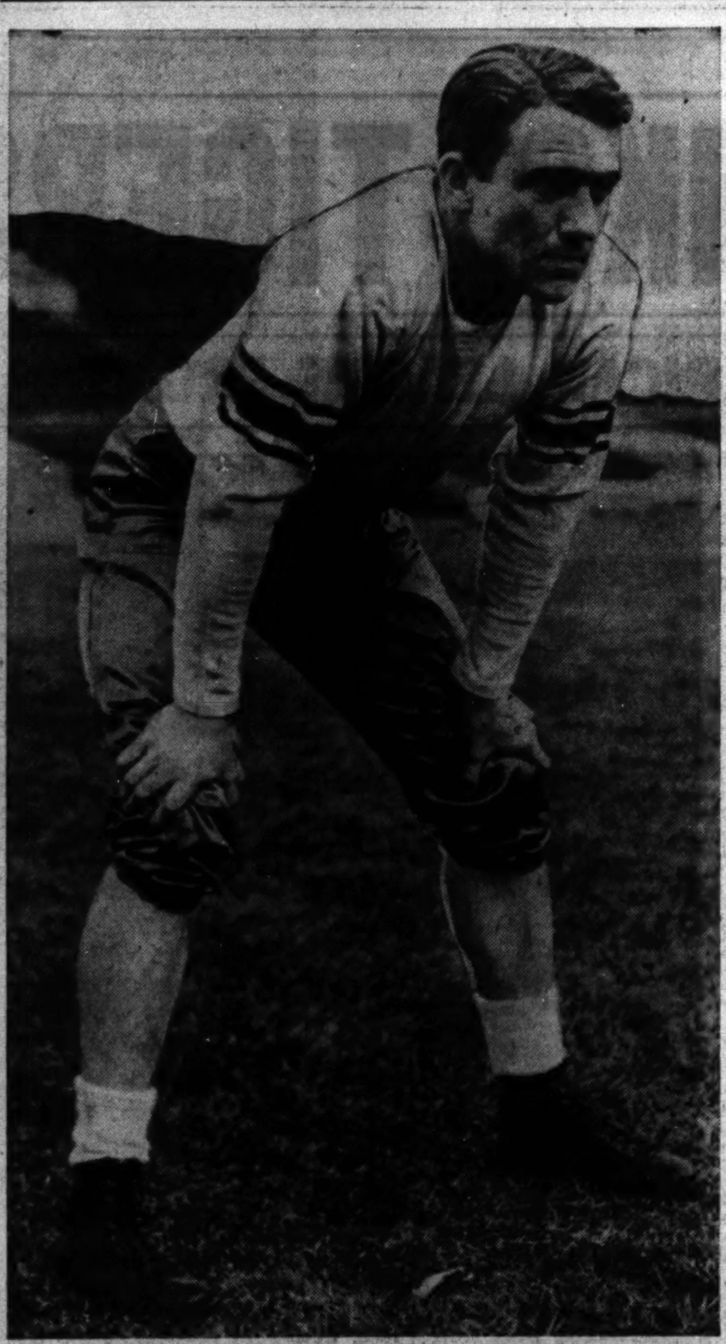
Purdue also must replace veterans altho the presence of Mike Bylene, in the back field, and Capt. Dave Rankin, at left end, give the Boilermakers at least two stars. Purdue lost 26 letter men, many of them regulars. Center and guard are probably the danger spots in the line.

Illinois probably expects about the same kind of a year as in 1939 with emphasis on defeating one or two major rivals. Mel Brewer and Jim Reeder will be missed in the line, and of recent years, the Illini seldom have had a quartet of good backs.

Wisconsin came within a game of the 1938 title by the genius of Harry Stuhldreher's coaching. Last year, despite all effort, one point, one touchdown, even one step frequently added up to another defeat. The Badgers need generalship on the field. George Paskvan might win a game by himself if given proper direction, for the big full back ranks with the best. Wisconsin is capable of making a fight of every game, but the Badgers need some luck.

Irish Headed for Big Year.

Notre Dame seems headed for a great year and without advance notice. True the Irish have done quite well in recent seasons, but with Bob Saggau and Milt Piepul at left half and full back respectively, with excellent material at tackle and guard, only the polishing of a center and a pair of ends, and work on a right half to take up where Lou Zontini left off, remains to be done.



Dick Richards, half back, is entrusted with the captaincy of the Northwestern university football team which starts practice in Evanston Tuesday, opening date for drills in the Western conference.

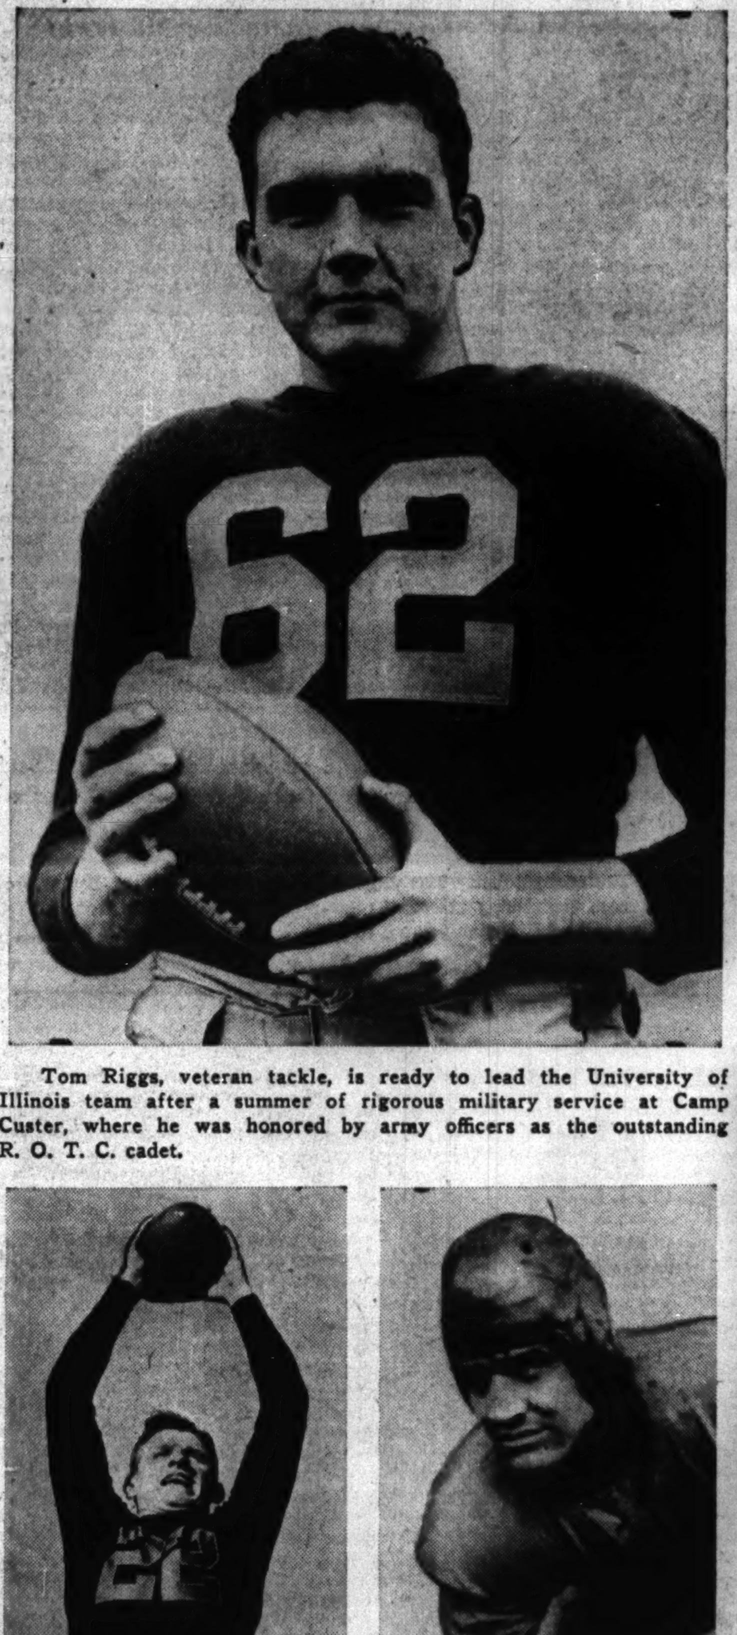
Forrest Evashevski, blocking quarter back, is captain of the 1940 Michigan squad. Injured in midseason of 1939, his loss was a blow to the Wolverines' title hopes. He's back in condition for his senior year.



Tom Riggs, veteran tackle, is ready to lead the University of Illinois team after a summer of rigorous military service at Camp Custer, where he was honored by army officers as the outstanding R. O. T. C. cadet.

Newark, N. J., Sept. 7 [Special].—Bill Osmanski, former Holy Cross full back, was named today to start for the Chicago Bears against the Newark Bears here tomorrow night when the Chicagoans meet their farm club in the fourth game on their six game preseason exhibition schedule.

Osmanski will replace Joe Maniaci in the lineup which started against the Philadelphia Eagles in an exhibition Thursday night. The Bears defeated the Eagles, 27 to 21.

Newark's lineup will include four men who trained with the Chicago Bears at Delafield, Wis. They are Radazzo, end; Raizik, tackle; Malesevich, guard, and Berardelli, tackle. Coach Gene Ronzani and and Assistant Coach Joe Zeller, both former Bears stars, also will be in the Newark lineup.

Big 9 Defers Action on Bid to Rose Bowl

clined to answer the question: "Did the faculty committee take a vote on the Rose bowl game?" Dr. Leib said that some of the faculty committee members had consulted their faculties. Others had not. Postponement was the result.

Effect a Compromise.

By postponing discussion, a compromise was effected. Those opposed to participation in the Rose bowl game succeeded in stopping a game on Jan. 1, 1941. Those in favor still have the scant satisfaction of knowing their cause is not without hope.

The faculty men who argued vehemently against making any exception to the present Western conference rule forbidding football games after the Saturday preceding Thanksgiving day were not swayed by Prof. Owens' presentation of the proposed interconference relationship.

Principal talking point for those in favor has been that the Western conference should lend assistance to the Pacific Coast conference in its efforts to conduct athletics on the same plane and under the same rules governing sports in the Big Nine. With a permanent Rose bowl arrangement the Pacific coast universities could drop competition with the "semi-pro" southern schools which recruit athletes by paying tuition, room, and board.

Opinion Evenly Divided.

The definite lineup of faculty members is not known, of course, but yesterday's opinion probably was evenly divided, or so nearly so that it was deemed inadvisable to make a decision at this time. Indiana, Purdue, Ohio State, and Iowa are presumed to have supported the Rose bowl game. Michigan is another possibility. Northwestern, Illinois, Minnesota, and Wisconsin are believed to be opposed to the Rose bowl game.

The University of Chicago, which abandoned football last December, still is a member of the Western conference, and its faculty committee member is eligible to vote on the Rose bowl game. It was intimated yesterday, however, that Chicago might abstain from voting on the question when it comes up for final consideration in December.

If a majority of the members of the faculty committee, after consulting their respective faculties, vote for participation in the Rose bowl game at the December meeting, the clause in the conference rules, which provides that 60 days must elapse before the proposal can be put in effect, eliminates all possibility of a game New Year's day in Pasadena.

MIDGET RACING NEARS CLOSE ON RIVERVIEW OVAL

Leading drivers from five states will offer strong opposition to Chicago contenders tonight in the midget auto races at Riverview speedway, Addison street near Western avenue, as they compete for season championship honors. Fifty-two cars are listed to face Starter Frank Brisko in eight events.

The program will be the next to the last of the outdoor season, which closes next Sunday night.

Competition for the Jay Horn trophy, emblematic of the title, enters the final stages with Wally Zale in first place in the point standing. Closely following are Ted Duncan, Ray Richards, and Bob Muhlke. A victory for any one of the trio in the 30 lap main event tonight would move him into top position.

CARDINALS FACE STEELERS TODAY IN FIRST GAME

New Coach, New Players Open in Pittsburgh.

BY GEORGE STRICKLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Pittsburgh, Pa., Sept. 7.—Thirty-five Chicago Cardinal football players arrived late today to open the National league championship race tomorrow against the Pittsburgh Steelers. They brought with them a new coach and a new system, but the same old prospects. The Cardinals do not expect to win the championship. In fact, they do not even expect to come close to the western division title. But they are going to start the race and promise to stick to the finish.

Twenty-two of the invaders are rookies, five of whom will be in the lineup tomorrow. No other team in the league will start out so many first year men, but then no other team in the league faces the problems confronting the hapless Cardinals. They must live down, and outlive, several years of mismanagement which reached a climax last year with wanton firing of just about every worthwhile player Owner Charles Bidwill had under contract.

It's Up To Conzelman.

This task of rebuilding has been entrusted to Jimmy Conzelman, who spent eleven years playing and coaching champions in the league before he took a highly successful whirl at college coaching. Conzelman has attacked the job in the right manner. He is rebuilding from the bottom and training his sights two years into the future.

The Cardinals are not going to win many games this season, if any, but if Conzelman does not run into more than the customary front office interference, by the time the Cardinals close their season against the Bears in Wrigley field in Chicago on Dec. 1, the men in the white pants should be a pretty well organized football team with definite promise in 1941.

Until Gaynell Tinsley is ready to take over a starting assignment, the Cardinals' ends will be John Shirk and Alton Coppage of Oklahoma, two rookies who have yet to get their first look at professional interference charging down upon them.

Notre Dame Men to Start.

Joe Kuharich, a former Notre Dame guard who is making a belated start in pro football, will make his National debut at one guard tomorrow and another Notre Dame product, Mario Tonelli, a full back, will team in the starting backfield with Rookie John Hall of Texas Christian at right half; Bert Johnson, a veteran full back, at quarter back, and Marshall Goldberg at left half.

Just what this alignment will do no one, least of all Conzelman, has any idea. The Cardinals have not been able to find outside opposition for scrimmage and start the game absolutely cold. Pittsburgh, on the other hand has a veteran organization that already has achieved one important victory, notwithstanding the fact that it was an exhibition. The Steelers beat the Chicago Bears, 10 to 9. The Steelers are said to be a rugged, rough outfit and with so many experienced men on their roster they are very apt to make it rather painful for the many youngsters Conzelman must send forth for their first test under fire.

OLIVER, SNEAD TIED AT 138 IN SCRANTON GOLF

Scranton, Pa., Sept. 7 (AP).—An erratic putter kicked away Sam Snead's supremacy in the $5,000 anthracite open golf tournament today, sending him into a half way deadlock for top honors with Ed Oliver of Hornell, N. Y., at 138. The Shawnee on Delaware golfer, medalist with a five under par 65 yesterday, ascended to 73 in today's 18 hole round, taking 19 putts on the outbound nine. Oliver fired a two below par 68 to add to yesterday's 70.

Felix Serafin, home pro at the Scranton Country club, was immediately back of the leaders with a 66—73—139. The Turnesa brothers, Mike of New York and Jim of Mamaroneck, N. Y., shared the 140 position with Lawson Little, the national open champion. Al Houghton of Washington, D. C., and Lew Worsham Jr., Bethesda, Md., deadlocked at 141. Henry Picard, Hershey, Pa., the defending champion, Sam Byrd, Philadelphia, and Byron Nelson, the P.G.A. title holder, had 142.

James Linen of Scranton and James Thompson of Cleveland, O., tied for low amateur honors with 153. The field of 126 was reduced to the best 75 pros and 15 amateurs for tomorrow's final 36 hole grind.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Bill Nicholson's fourth inning home run with the bases loaded, which gave the Cubs a 6 to 3 lead over the Cincinnati Reds, eventually proved inadequate for Chicago purposes in Wrigley Field yesterday. The Reds won, 7 to 6, on Ival Goodman's ninth inning homer.

The Cubs, in suffering their eleventh loss in 13 games played since Owner P. K. Wrigley announced he, at the time, "contemplated no appointment of a successor to Manager Gabby Hartnett," now can look forward to nothing better than a tie in the National league pennant race, if both they and the Reds finish a complete schedule.

They'll Have to Hustle.

If the Cubs win all their remaining 21 games and the Reds lose all their remaining 24, the standing will be:

Chicago, won 84; lost 70.

We hope you won't take this as a probability forecast. We are more inclined to believe the Cubs will have to hurry like everything to equal the ratio they had when they finished last in 1925, which was 68 won and 86 lost. They must win five of their remaining 21, which is a much stiffer pace than they have set since it became known that Hartnett had a chance for reappointment.

According to new rumors in Wrigley field, Cub officials again are reserving decision on Hartnett and the probable personnel of the 1941 Cubs.

The response to intimations that Gabby was to be retained has been far from the verve anticipated. While there has been no open rebellion, the blowing of 11 out of 13 by a team that should be relaxed and playing for 1941 contracts has proved startling. Veteran baseball men who have seen the Cubs recently frankly say they never before have seen such an outfit bearing the Wrigley banner.

Rookie Only Victor.

The only victory the Cubs have won in their last ten was the 7 to 1 success achieved by Rookie Vern Olsen in the second game of a double header in Pittsburgh last Sunday. Friday the Cubs blew one to the Cardinals after leading, 4 to 0, and yesterday they tossed off victory after leading 6 to 3 in the fourth.

Dizzy Dean, who made bitter speeches against Hartnett in Wichita and Topeka last spring, especially after he jumped the team in Topeka, will join up today, a day later than expected. Dean's present attitude on team politics is not known, but it is reasonably certain that this greatest of all clubhouse lawyers will not pour much oil on troubled waters. However, Mrs. Dean is going to make the trip and to good purpose, her judgment being much sounder than that of her pappy.

In yesterday's game the Cubs got off to a 1 to 0 lead in the first inning on Nicholson's double and a single by Zeke Bonura.

Gleeson Boots One.

The Reds went ahead 3 to 1 on one earned run off Charley Root and two unearned ones in the third. In this session, Lonnie Frey walked and moved up on Billy Myers' sacrifice and Paul Derringer's infield out. Mike McCormick and Bill Werber singled, then Jim Gleeson dropped Goodman's long fly, Weber and M. McCormick scoring.

Then came the Cubs' big fourth. Gleeson walked to get the rally under way and stopped at third on Bob Collins' double. Bob Mattick caromed a single off Derringer's shin, Gleeson scoring. Root bounced to Werber and Collins was out at the plate. Stan Hack filed to M. McCormick, then Bill Herman walked, loading the bases. It was at this juncture that Nicholson busted his No. 22 homer, a shot into Sheffield avenue, scoring Mattick, Root, and Herman. Hank Leiber doubled, but Bonura grounded out to Myers.

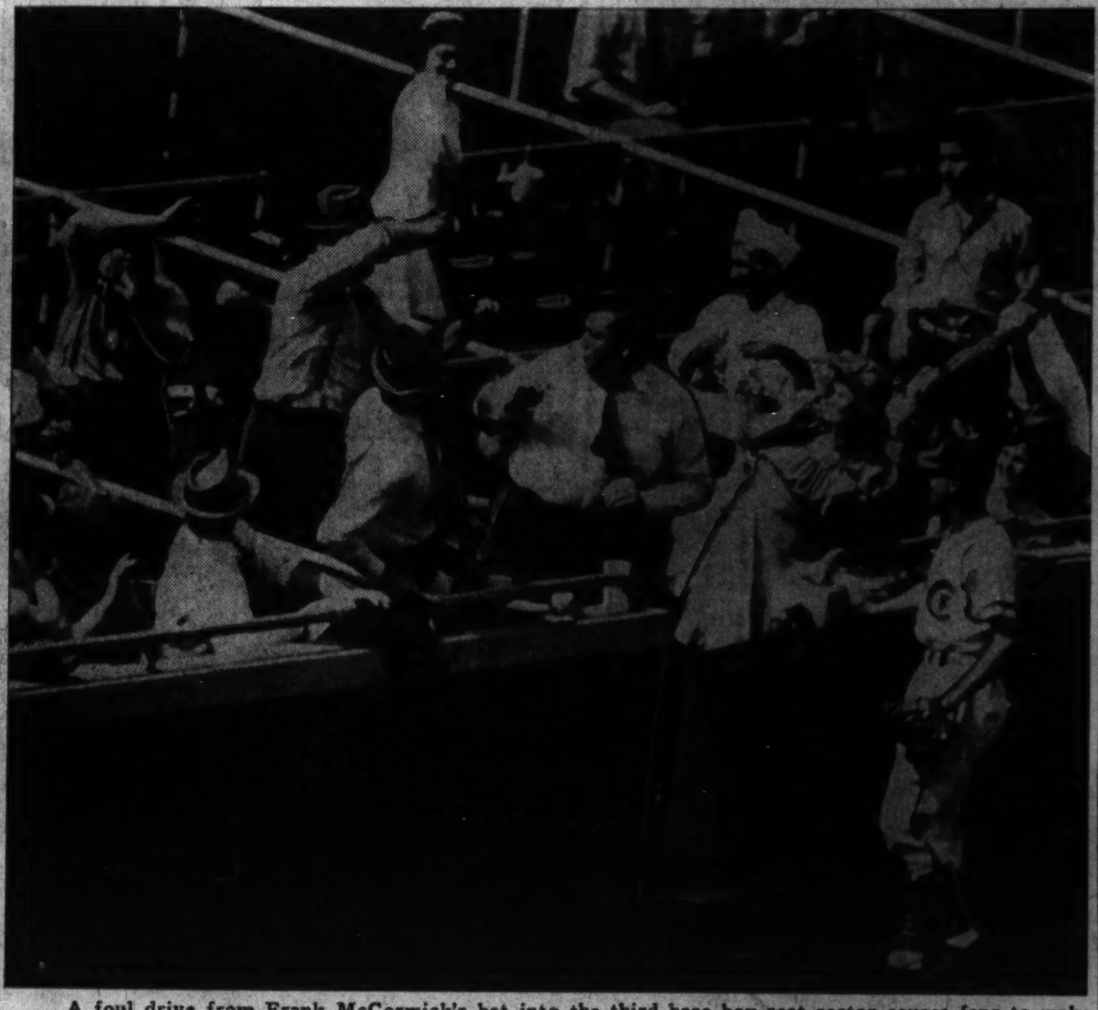
Gene Thompson went into pitch for the Reds at the start of the fifth and the Cubs never made another run. Thompson struck out six, twice as many whiffs as there were hits.

Reds Get Busy.

The Reds started the overtaking process with a run in the sixth, fabricated on the first of Ernie Lombardi's two doubles and a single by Myers. Three infield hits, two of them safe bunts, loaded the bases in the seventh and Werber and Mike McCormick got home with the tying runs before the side was retired.

LEADING REDS TO ANOTHER WORLD SERIES RENDEZVOUS

Much of the power of the National league champion Cincinnati Reds is concentrated in the bats of this trio, Catcher Ernie Lombardi (left), First Baseman Frank McCormick, and Outfielder Ival Goodman. A home run by Goodman won yesterday's game from the Cubs in the ninth, 7 to 6. They'll be aiming at the Wrigley field barriers again today.



A foul drive from Frank McCormick's bat into the third base box seat sector causes fans to make defensive gestures in third inning of yesterday's game. [TRIBUNE Photos.]

HOOSIERS WHIP CHICAGO, 14-1, IN FIREMEN'S GAME

The Indianapolis Firemen, coming from a state where fire wagon basketball is the major sport, proved that Hoosiers also can play baseball. This was demonstrated yesterday afternoon when the invaders defeated the Chicago Firemen, 14 to 1, in their charity game at Comiskey park.

A crowd of 33,000—18,000 of them sadly disappointed boys under 14 admitted free, helped swell the proceeds which go into the Firemen's Benevolent association that helps the widows and kiddies of firemen falling in the line of duty.

The Hoosiers pounded two Chicago hurlers, Ed Linke and Al Nusser, for 19 hits, five of them for extra bases.

to center and was nailed at second when a hit and run went wrong. Mack followed with a fly to Solters, Hemsley singled thru Kuhel's hands and Harder popped to Kennedy.

Appling Starts Big Fourth.

Appling touched off the juicy fourth with a single to center. Wright's twister escaped from Keltner's grasp for a single. Tresh slashed a single into center to send Appling home. Kennedy banged a single into left and Wright scored. Tresh arrived at third just as Heath's wide throw-in got out of Keltner's hands. Tresh kicked the ball into the Sox dugout and scored, while Kennedy was waved to third. Heath was charged with an error. Dietrich fouled out and Webb was put on first when Hemsley tipped his bat. Harder knocked down Kreevich's smash, but the throw to the plate was too late to keep Kennedy from scoring the fourth run. Eisenstat stopped the fun.

Heath whacked his 13th homer into the right field seats in the fourth, and the fifth started as if Dietrich was surely headed for disaster. Kennedy's bad throw put Hemsley on first and Eisenstat singled with none out. But the threat was cleaned up quickly. Boudreau sent a double play bounder to Webb and Campbell flied to Appling.

Dietrich Loses His Control.

Dietrich had one Indian accounted for in the seventh before tumbling into the jam that brought his dismissal. Mack singled to left and Hemsley walked. They got additional help on a wild pitch while Hale was batting for Eisenstat. Hale walked, filling the bases, and the gift proved Dietrich's finish. Brown stepped in just in time to see a two bagger sail into left off Boudreau's bat, Mack and Hemsley scoring. Brown then walked Campbell intentionally, fanned Chapman, and got Bell on a grounder to Webb.

The Sox came close to giving the Indians another rough session in the ninth. Webb and Kreevich led off with singles off Dobson and was bunted along by Kuhel. Solters was purposely passed and it proved a wise move. Appling tapped to Dobson for a double play by way of the plate.

LYONS VS. MILNAR

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Cleveland, O., Sept. 7.—Grandpa Ted Lyons will take his customary Sunday exercise tomorrow in the second game of the series with the Indians. Al Milnar will work for the would be world series entrants.

Roy Weatherly, the Indians' center fielder, played three innings and then surrendered because of a leg injury. He hurt his right hip in the series at Detroit.

When the Indians appeared on the field a large batch of cheers and boos poured from the grandstand. The jeers were for the rebel members who have lost caste with the fans because of their efforts to unseat Manager Oscar Vitt.

Bob Feller's shoulder is sore and the intention is to save him for the Yankees Tuesday, but when the Indians threatened in the seventh he began warming up. But the Tribe didn't succeed in tying the score so Joe Dobson, instead of Feller, was permitted to finish.

Indian Rebels Now Eat Own Bitter Fruit

ing with press and public, some quality of leadership.

"The Indians, I regret to say, have none of these qualities. They are branded from top to bottom, from front office to rawest rookie, with intrigue, false statements, and petty squabbles. The ludicrous attempts by Alva Bradley to hush up an anarchistic meeting of players in Detroit cost the Cleveland club caste with the paying public and with the press, whose duty it is to report facts and not to lie about incidents affecting the Indians as a ball club. . . . The Indians are disorganized, disgruntled, and uncertain whether Vitt or the clique dominated by Rollie Hemsley is running the team."

Tingles Bradley's Ears.

Another writer made the Bradley ears tingle with the following:

"No more amazing development has come out of the tangled affairs of the Indians than the effort of club officials and players to soft pedal or deny altogether the mutiny aspect of the meeting in Detroit. Without so much as the courtesy of a blush, the Tribal brass hats imply that at least three experienced baseball writers are either incompetent workmen or outright liars.

"The fact of the matter is that a certain number of the players have had a mutinous attitude toward Vitt for months. Club officials know it as well as reporters. Thursday night's announcement by a group of players offered the first opportunity to print the news without violating confidences. One of the players who gave out the story, when asked what would happen if their plans counter to the orders of the manager, replied: "In that case we'll give some orders ourselves."

"I invited the club officials to laugh that off as the language of a 'pep meeting.'"

Some Rebels Recant.

It never has been exactly clear as to just which Indians could be classed under the bolshevist banner. Hemsley and Hal Trosky are known to be leaders. Bob Feller was in on the original petition, but now is for peace. Mel Harder, Jeff Heath, and Ben Chapman are reported to have experienced a similar change.

Manager Oscar Vitt is merely the man in the middle, one hand tied by the wishy-washy attitude of the front office. But in the fall somebody will have to go. It may be Vitt or it may be Hemsley and Trosky.

ATHLETICS GET 16 HITS TO BEAT SENATORS, 8 TO 5

Washington, D. C., Sept. 7 (AP).—Johnny Babich's pitching and five Washington errors helped Philadelphia to an 8 to 5 victory over the Senators today.

The Athletics scored three runs in the first inning off Joe Haynes, added three more in the sixth off Rookie Lou Thuman and produced two more in the eighth off Rene Monteagudo. Score:

PIRATES SCORE 8 IN 8TH; BEAT CARDINALS, 14-9

Add 3 More in Ninth on 20 Hit Attack.

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 7 (AP).—Frankie Frisch's Pittsburgh Pirates were trailing by six runs this afternoon and the tail end of their batting order was leading off in the eighth inning. But then things started to happen—and kept on happening until the Pirates had overhauled the third place Cardinals and crushed them, 14 to 9, in a slugging feast that netted them 20 safe hits.

The Pirates drove in eight runs on seven hits during this free for all. Then, to put the game on ice, they scored three more in the ninth.

Vince DiMaggio hit a single and home run during the eighth inning rally, his homer coming with two men on and putting the Pirates ahead. Arky Vaughan also hit a home run for the Pirates in the eighth. Score:

Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 7 (AP).—Boston's Bees made it seven straight defeats for the Phillies today, taking a double header, 3 to 2 and 3 to 1. Max West hit a home run in the sixth inning to score two ahead of him to give the Bees their second victory.

The first game went 10 innings, the Bees winning with the aid of Bob Bragan's wild throw, which put Gene Moore on first. He was sacrificed to second and came home on Al Glossop's single. Scores:

VISCOUNTY WINS NARRAGANSETT'S $5,000 HANDICAP

Pawtucket, R. I., Sept 7 (AP).—Apparently beaten in the closing drive, Viscounty, of the Valdina Farm stable, came on again to win a nose decision over Mrs. W. R. Flemming's Loveday in the $5,000 added King Philip handicap today at Narragansett park. Viscounty ran the mile and a sixteenth in 1:44 2-5, fastest time of the meeting for the distance, and the victory was worth $4,450, boosting the earnings of the 4 year old son of The Porter to $29,065 in 18 starts this season.

Both Viscounty and Loveday came from far off the early pace to lock in their stirring stretch duel. The flying pair had a four and a half advantage at the finish over Conny Smythe's Sir Marlboro.

JACOMAR, KING COLE WIN.

New York, Sept. 7 [Special].—Jacomar and King Cole won the stakes at Aqueduct race track today. Driving on powerfully thru the stretch, Jacomar won For Mrs. E. Graham Lewis in time that may be accepted as a new stake record for the Bay Shore handicap despite numerous alterations in the course. Caught by the timer in 1:24 flat, the son of Jack High and Gay O' Mar was within four fifths of a second of No Sir's track record.

He won under 118 pounds with Jockey Ruperto Donoso in complete command. Pictor was second, a length ahead of Joseph E. Widener's Ror, which set the pace only to falter. Grossing $6,675 the Bay Shore saw $4,925 allotted to the winner.

Scores by Nine Lengths.

The Babylon handicap gross value was $7,675, of which $5,925 went to Ogden Phipps, owner of King Cole which won away off from a big field of 11 other juveniles. His margin was nine lengths as he finished the six furlongs in 1:11 2-5, time which is accepted as being equal to the track record.

The battle for second, back of King Cole, was close, with Joseph E. Widener's filly, Misty Isle, landing the place by a nose over Big Stakes.

SPENCER COALS, HOUSE OF DAVID RESUME SERIES

The Spencer Coals will meet the House of David nine in the third and fourth games of their semipro baseball series in Spencer field, 4200 North Central avenue, this afternoon. Each team has won one game.

Herb Chmiel and Slim De Lion will be the Coals' pitchers. The bearded nine will start Schroeder and Wyatt. The lineup includes John Tucker, manager and first baseman.

AMATEURS OPEN NATIONAL GOLF PLAY TOMORROW

Bud Ward Defends Title at Winged Foot.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Mamaroneck, N. Y., Sept. 7.—Marvin [Bud] Ward, as determined a young man as you will find on a fairway, will join 149 other gents of assorted ages and talents in the hunt for the National Amateur golf championship at the Winged Foot club Monday morning. Ward, who won the title last year at Chicago's North Shore Country club, will have a time of it if he repeats that triumph, for there are several lads who would admire to bring the trophy home as much as Bud would like to take it back to Spokane, Wash.

Monday's program will consist of 18 holes of stroke competition, to be followed by 18 more of the same on Tuesday. The match play warfare, a department in which Ward excels, will open Wednesday with two 18 hole bouts, and out of this double round undoubtedly will come a number of upsets which distinguish all 18 hole man to man combats. Two more 18 hole rounds on Thursday will reduce the field to the semifinalists, who will travel 36 holes on Friday, as will the finalists on Saturday.

Winged Foot's west course, the scene of the 1929 National Open wherein Bobby Jones defeated Al Espinosa in a playoff, is one of the best layouts to which the amateur ever has been sent. Its bunkers are deep, and its undulant putting surfaces are such that it is the type of course that will take a lot of knowing. To this end, Ward has been on the ground for more than a week.

This is not the same Ward who last year was all over North Shore during the amateur final against Art Doering, who was playing well nigh perfect golf, and still lost. Nor is he the same scrambler who won the Western Amateur at Minneapolis in July after visits to rough and sand all the way. This is a young fellow who dropped in to the P. G. A. tournament more than a week ago, en route to New York, and reported he is playing better golf than he has in years. As proof he submitted a victory in the Pacific Northwestern Open, and a playoff for the Washington Open, which he lost with a 70 to Emery Zimmerman's 69.

Amateur at Match Play.

But those, by the way, are medal play contests, and the amateur is won on match play ability. In the field this week will be a couple of lads who know Winged Foot well and play it well. One is Ray Billows, the former Wisconsin boy who is now registered from Poughkeepsie, N. Y., and who last year lost in title play to Ward. Another is Willie Turnesa of Elmsford, N. Y., winner of the 1938 championship. New Yorkers are entering as a dark horse a gent named Neil White, formerly of Southern California. White, who turned pro a number of years ago, was reinstated by the United States Golf association as an amateur, and in his first try as a simon-pure swinger, won the 1940 Southern Amateur crown.

Chief absentees from the tournament will be Charles Yates, onetime British, intercollegiate and Western champion, who failed in the sectional trials at Atlanta, and Jim Ferrier of Australia. The latter was ruled ineligible on the eve of the sectional rounds on the grounds that he had written a book of an instructional nature.

The Chicago district will be represented by 16 players, second largest from any one section in the field.

Wehrle Scores 71.

There was a brisk breeze today which helped make the practice shotmaking difficult for some of the lads, but among those who bettered par were Wilford Wehrle of Chicago; Harold H. Mandly Jr., Connecticut open and amateur titleholder; Ed Meister of Cleveland, and Skip Alexander of Duke University. All shot one-under-par 71's, the best scores returned so far.

Of the 10 former champions entered, eight have checked in. In addition to Ward, they are Chick Evans, who has shot 76 his last two times around; Francis Ouimet, Jess Sweetser, Willie Turnesa, Johnny Goodman, Johnny Fischer, and George Dunlap. Max Marston and Jesse Guilford haven't shown up yet.

Tom Sheehan of Detroit, Art Doering of Chicago, and Fred Haas of New Orleans, and Ward played in one of today's standout practice foursomes. But the only man who drew a gallery was Bing Crosby.

RIVER DOWNS RESULTS.

THE LOCKER ROOM

Round-of-the Week. Sam Snead's second 18 of 67, six under par, in P. G. A. championship match at Hershey.

Shots-of-the Week. Byron Nelson's iron shots on last three holes of P. G. A. final against Snead.

THE LOCKER ROOM today closes its doors for the 1940 season. . . . This new headquarters for interesting golf items opened on June 2. . . . Since then golfers from every corner of the district have contributed to its success, and for their coöperation the Locker Room hereby extends its sincere thanks. . . . The Locker Room feels that this inaugural season has proved it to be a better center for golf notes of universal interest than any compendium of week-end grosses, nets, and blind bogey events. . . . These naturally were restricted to the private clubs, a comparatively small number of the playing total of Chicago golfers. . . . This department has invited every golfer—professional, amateur, private club, park, or daily fee player—to have his say, and the response has been proof enough of the original idea.

The Locker Room is now an established feature of The Tribune sports pages. It will reopen on Sunday, June 1, 1941. . . . That date is more than a couple of full brassie shots away, but all Chicago district golfers are invited to make a mental note of it and to be prepared to enter with all winter and spring golf notes they may collect between now and then. . . . The Locker Room accords its final eagles of the season to Joe G. Davis, secretary of the Chicago District Golf association; to Merle Macbain of Tam o' Shanter, to Tommy Kouzmanoff of Arlington Heights for their interesting contributions, and to such clubs as South Shore, Ravisloe, Edgewater, Medinah, Navajo Fields, Elmhurst, Itasca, Midlothian, Bob o' Link, Park Ridge, Olympia Fields, and Evanston for their consistent attendance. . . . All Locker Room members are asked to step into the right hand aisle of today's closing session for a résumé of some of the highlights of the season.

One of the best attended pro-amateur tournaments of the year will be conducted by the Illinois P. G. A. at Techny Fields tomorrow, with Jock Anderson as host pro. . . . Jock was in charge of the golf program of the present duke of Windsor when the latter, as prince of Wales, visited Chile in 1925. . . . H. D. Fargo Jr., by defeating R. E. [Dick] Hanley for the Edgewater club championship, won his 12th crown in 16 years. . . . Starting in 1924 Hi won eight in a row, and in the next eight years won four more, and was in the finals six times. . . . Speaking of club championships, Nate Karasick scored two upsets to win the crown at Twin Orchard. . . . After putting out Gene Rappaport, the favorite and defending champion, in the semi-finals, Nate went on to beat Lou Kantor for the title, 8 and 7, with cards of 79 and 35.

Niesen's Friends Hunt Brassie He Threw in Creek.

Mrs. Laurence Jones defeated Mrs. H. R. Bowditch 1 up in 38 holes to win the women's championship at Park Ridge. . . . Friends of Matt Niesen at Tam o' Shanter have been dragging the creek near No. 4 tee in an effort to recover his favorite brassie. . . . Matt tossed it in the creek recently when a shot went awry. . . . Many Chicago friends of Henry Litchfield West heard with regret news of his death in Washington recently. . . . The veteran political reporter also covered numerous golf tournaments and was well known here. . . . He covered the 1922 open at Skokie when Gene Sarazen won his first championship. . . . Tom Powers of Calumet was a teammate of Lou Boudreau of Cleveland when both played on the Harvey High school nine. . . .

Over 1,000 are expected to attend the annual Club Relations day tournament at Medinah, Sept. 27. . . . Tam o' Shanter's equivalent of a four letter man is Burt Annis, who won his fourth major club trophy this year when he captured first place in the men's event in the club's swimming championships.

Special Twin Orchard Tourney Will Honor Eddie Gayer.

Twin Orchard members this afternoon will honor Eddie Gayer, their professional for 15 years, with a special tournament. . . . Feature of the program will be a match involving Gayer and Tommy Armour against John Revolta and Jim Foulis. . . . The Illinois P. G. A. will hold its annual tournament at the St. Charles Country club on Sept. 22 and 23. . . . The morning of Sept. 22 will be occupied with a pro-amateur event, and in the afternoon the first 18 holes of the pro tourney will be transacted. . . . The final 36 holes will be played on the 23d. . . . Tom Walsh of Westgate Valley points out that golf helps baseball players to hit. . . . Thursday afternoon, Skeeter Webb and Joe Kuhel of the White Sox, in company with Pete Appleton, played Westgate. . . . Skeeter shot a 79 and Kuhel an 81. They then hied themselves to Comiskey park, where each helped the Sox attack with two hits. . . .

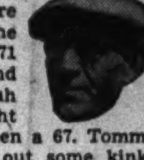
THE QUESTION.

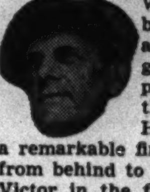
Who do you think will win the National Amateur golf championship. [Asked at the West District League team matches at the Brookwood Country club.]

THE ANSWERS.

Dave Adams, Medinah—Art Doering is my choice for the amateur this year. He's hitting the ball sharper and more accurately than he ever did. He had a 71 in a practice round over No. 3 at Medinah this week and it might just as well have been a 67. Tommy Armour has ironed out some kinks in his game which has given Doering much added confidence.



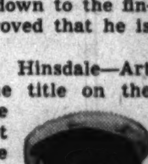
John M. Noble, Brookwood—I'll take the defending champion, Bud Ward. He's almost unbeatable at match play and his well balanced game will probably prove too much for the rest of the field. He proved that he is a remarkable finisher when he came from behind to beat our own George Victor in the finals of the Western Amateur this summer.



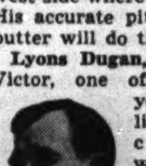
Charles E. Simmons, Oak Park—It's George Dawson's year to take the amateur. He's a veteran at match play and has been knocking at the door of this title for a number of years. George has a good solid game and is playing at his best right now. He's the boy to bring the title back to Chicago.

Fred W. Lietzow, Ridgemoor—Chicago's own George Victor is good enough to win, and I think he will. This youngster is coming fast and his brilliant showing in the Western Amateur was a tipoff that he is ready for the national championship. When he beat Jim Ferrier and gave Bud Ward a battle right down to the finish at St. Paul he proved that he is tops at match play.

H. R. Bresnahan, Hinsdale—Art Doering can win the title on the strength of the game he is playing right now. He is in fine form this summer and it wouldn't surprise me to see him bring the title back to the west side where he learned the game. His accurate pitch shots and deadly putter will do the trick.



Lyons Dugan, Brookwood—George Victor, one of Chicago's greatest young golfers, looks like the new amateur champion. I have watched this youngster for the past several years and I don't believe he has an equal as a match player when he is at his peak. And I think he will be at his best at the national this year.



More than 300 are expected to attend the annual golf tourney of the North Side association of the Catholic Order of Foresters at St. Andrew's today.

A full meeting of the board of directors of the C. D. G. A., the committee chairmen and vice chairmen will be held at the Oak Park Country club Tuesday. . . . The report of the Chicago Open committee will be made at this time. . . . The final golf tournament of the year of the Hughes council, Knights of Columbus, will be held next Sunday at Bon Air. . . . The first annual Calumet Open will be held at the Lake Hills club at St. Johns, Ind., tomorrow. Lloyd Mangrum and Ky Lafoon are among the Chicago professionals entered. . . . William Kerr defeated William Lain, 5 and 4, in 36 holes for the Beverly championship. It was their fourth meeting in the finals and Kerr's first success. . . . BOSTWICK FIELD POLOISTS BEAT WESTBURY, 8 TO 5

Champions Win in 2d Half After Trailing.

Westbury, N. Y., Sept. 7 [Special].—Bostwick Field galloped into the semi-final round of the national polo tournament today with an 8 to 5 victory over Westbury at the Meadow Brook club. Bostwick Field's triumph was expected, but the crowd was totally unprepared for the fight which Westbury, organized at the last minute, put up against the title defenders.

Westbury rolled into the lead in the second period, clung to it at half time and yielded only after six periods of hard polo.

Aknusti Faces Texans.

In the end, the better team and the better mounted combination had come thru and earned the right to meet Stewart Iglehart's Great Neck combination in the first semi-final next Tuesday afternoon. Tomorrow Ebby Gerry's Aknusti four rides against the Texas combination built around the ten goal Cecil Smith in the second and last of the first round encounters.

The opening period today demonstrated that the match was to be no runaway. Bostwick registered the only score on a thrust by Laddie Sanford while Westbury threatened three times. In the next period, Westbury swung to the attack. Buddy Combs backed a ball from midfield and Jay Secor, who played well up front, followed it up to score. Then Sanford turned a play at midfield to carry on up alone, but Westbury came back to the attack, with Hopping and Secor scoring, putting Westbury ahead at 3 to 2.

Bostwick Moves Ahead.

In the third period, Westbury stuck to it and left the field at half time still a goal ahead. Bostwick Field tied it as the period opened, with Pete Bostwick centering for Sanford. But Secor dug the ball out of a scrimmage and carried up and passed to Combs who scored.

After the rest period, Bostwick Field slowly forced its way into the lead. Sanford had a nice run for a goal and then, after Billy Post had hit up, Bostwick drove thru from an almost impossible angle that gave the team the lead it held until the close.

Her margin of victory was a length. Paul Kelley's Floataway, the 6 to 5 favorite, got home third, a little more than a length behind All Lizzie. Those who backed the winner collected $17, $9.20, and $4.80 across the board.

As an aftermath of this race, Jockey Lawrence Haskell was suspended for ten days for allowing All Lizzie to drift in toward the rail crossing ahead of several rivals during the stretch run.

ARON TO DEFEND RANK TOMORROW AS NO. 1 WELTER

Battles Steve Mamakos in Marigold Bout.

BY FRANK MASTRO.

Milt Aron will finish preparations today for the eighth defense of his No. 1 welterweight position in a 10 round bout against Steve Mamakos of Washington, D. C., in Marigold outdoor arena tomorrow. Aron was awarded this ranking by the National Boxing association after knocking out Fritzie Zivic last Dec. 27.

Aron, who was born in Chicago Jan. 3, 1917, won all except two starts since the Zivic achievement. In his last appearance he retained his standing by holding Mike Kaplan of Boston to a 10 round draw in Philadelphia on Aug. 12. Previously Milt lost a disputed decision to Cal Cagni, also in Philadelphia.

Before the subsequent session of the N. B. A. rating committee was held in June, however, Aron avenged this setback by stopping Cagni in the sixth round of a return contest. The Chicago slugger also added Frankie Cavanna and Saverio Turiello to his list of victims to be renamed Champion Henry Armstrong's foremost challenger.

N. B. A. Meets This Week.

In the event Mamakos scores an upset, Aron will not receive an opportunity to redeem himself this time, because the quarterly ratings of the N. B. A. will be released during the annual convention of the association in Milwaukee this week.

Mamakos, who is 22 years old, will be making his debut in Chicago. However, fans who have seen him perform, like his perpetual motion style. Ken Overlin, New York middleweight champion, believes Steve will win if Aron doesn't score a knockout. That is tantamount to saying Mamakos will be the victor, because the Washington fighter has not been knocked out in 39 encounters during a three year campaign.

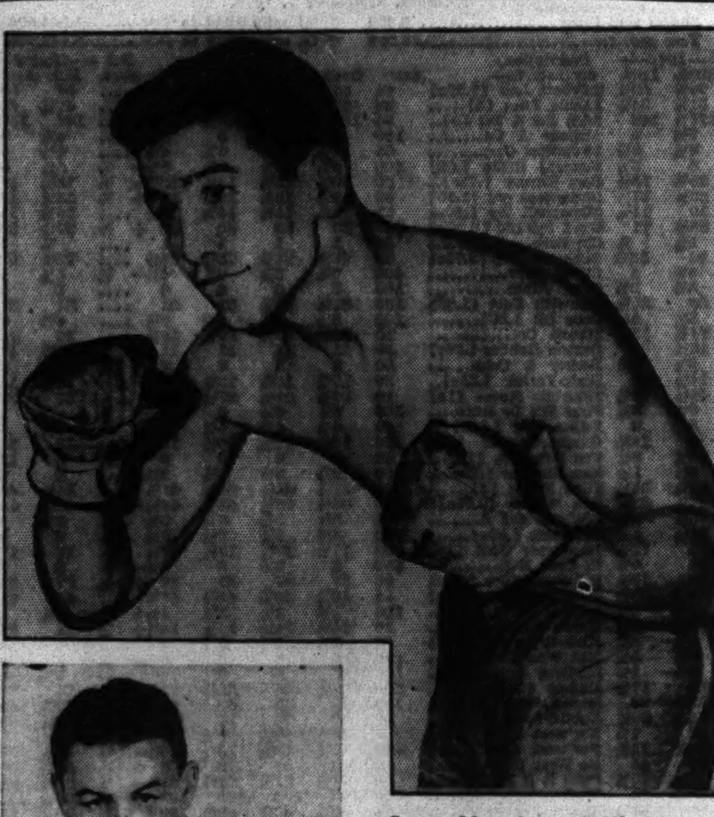
An Impressive Record.

Steve's most pretentious triumphs were registered over George Abrams, Andre Jessurun, Vincent Pimpinella, Ralph Zanelli, Sammy Luftspring, and Cal Cagni. He has no draw decisions in his record. Two of his six defeats were suffered at the hands of Holman Williams and Izzy Jannazzo.

Pete Lello, Gary lightweight, and Young Kid McCoy, Detroit lightweight, are opponents in a 10 round secondary feature. Lello will be risking a title chance against Lew Jenkins, New York's 135 pound title holder, in the handicap match against McCoy.

Two additional 10 round engagements bring together Billy Marquart, Winnipeg, Man., lightweight, and Nick Castiglione, and Jimmy Bivins, Cleveland middleweight, and Johnny Barbara.

Battle in Marigold Features



Steve Mamakos of Washington, D. C., making his first Chicago appearance, opposes Milt Aron, Chicago welterweight, in a 10 round bout in Marigold gardens tomorrow night. Mamakos has won 33 out of 39 bouts.

Ranchers and Onwentsia to Clash Today

Paul Butler and the 7-11 Ranch polo team, runner-up in the recent national intercircuit and 12 goal title tourneys in Cleveland, will oppose Bill Fergus and the Onwentsia club quartet this afternoon at 4 o'clock, on the Oak Brook stadium field in Hinsdale.

A highlight of the match will be the clash between Bobby Nichoalds of 7-11 Ranch, and Fergus, both of whom have sensational records in outdoor and indoor polo.

In addition to Fergus and Prentice Porter, veterans, Onwentsia will depend upon two collegians, Dave Wilhelm, captain of Yale university's polo team this year, and Bill Carney, sophomore star at Princeton university. Butler and Nichoalds will have two able teammates, Maj. Roy D. Keehn Jr., and Harry O. Owen Jr., of 7-11 Ranch. Before competing in the national meet at Cleveland, the ranchers won the central circuit title by beating Oak Brook, 17 to 8, and Healy Farm, 16 to 8. Today's lineups:

Onwentsia Club.		7-11 Ranch.
Carney	No. 1	Owen
Wilhelm	No. 2	Butler [C.]
Fergus [C.]	No. 3	Nichoalds

FAVORITE FALLS IN STEEPLECHASE, IS DESTROYED

Fair Hill, Md., Sept. 7 (AP).—Misfortune and tragedy stalked Emile Pfizer, veteran horseman, in his bid for a second consecutive victory in the $5,000 Foxcatcher National cup steeplechase today.

Cartermoor traveled the route in 6 minutes 6 3-5 second, one second off the record set by Farndale last year. He paid 2 to 1 to place, even money to show. Parma paid 8 to 5, 4 to 5, and Bois Chabot, 3 to 1.

Green Bay, Wis., Sept. 7 [Special]. —The Green Bay Packers scored twice in the first quarter and again in the fourth to whip the Kenosha Cardinals, 17 to 0, tonight. The game was played in City stadium in a heavy downpour that prevented the wide open football seen in the Packers' two previous contests and held the crowd to but a few hundred.

The first touchdown was made by Dick Evans on a pass from Hal Van Every. Both are newcomers to the Packers. Bob Adkins kicked a placement for the extra point.

The second touchdown came a few plays later. Joe Laws recovered a Kenosha fumble on the Cardinals' 24 yard line and on the next play Jimmy Lawrence stepped back and tossed a pass to Connie Mack Berry. Jankowski made it 14 to 0 on a placement. Kovacs Injects Bit of Comedy Into Net Meet

New York, Sept. 7 (AP).—A crowd of 12,000 was treated today to the spectacle of two of the nation's star young players sitting down on the Forest Hills stadium turf and refusing to continue play for some time.

One of them, Joe Hunt, a midshipman from Annapolis, was angry, while Frank Kovacs, the amiable eccentric from Oakland, Cal., was glad of it. Between them they managed to put on perhaps the most unusual show ever seen in big league tennis and to enliven an otherwise unexciting program of quarter-final matches in the national championships.

Hunt had won the first two sets, 6-4 and 6-1, while Kovacs clowned all over the place. Hunt became more incensed as the match proceeded, and the climax came in the third game of the third set. The gallery was laughing at Kovac's silly antics. Hunt demanded of the umpire, Le Van Richards, that the crowd stop giggling at his opponent. When Richards declined to speak sternly either to Kovacs or the crowd, Hunt sat right down on the base line and refused to accept service.

Referee Sits Down, Too.

Kovacs seemed to think this was funny, so he sat down, too. Dr. E. Ellsworth Davenport Jr., the tournament referee, walked out ominously from the marquee and sat down, himself, tho not on the grass. Then followed a crucial and electric five minutes while the principals went into a huddle. Eventually they resumed playing, and Hunt ran out the final set, 6-4.

"I wouldn't have cared," Hunt said later, "if he had stood on his head if the crowd wouldn't have laughed at him. I pleaded with the umpire to make them stop laughing before I sat down."

Hunt, now that he's past Kovacs, meets Bobby Riggs, the defending champion, tomorrow. Bobby, suffering from a cold and running a temperature, was unusually serious today as he swept aside young Ted Schroeder of Glendale, Cal., 6-1, 2-6, 6-3, 6-4. Schroeder was the first to win a set from Riggs in this tournament.

Miss Jacobs Wins.

The other men's semi-finalists, decided yesterday, were Don McNeill of Oklahoma City and Jack Kramer of Belvedere Gardens, Cal.

Helen Jacobs of Berkeley, Cal., four-time former women's champion, and Mary Hardwick of England, both came back after losing the opening sets of their quarter-final matches today to qualify for tomorrow's play. Miss Jacobs eliminated Virginia Wolfenden of San Francisco, 3-6, 6-4, 6-1, while Miss Hardwick, British Wightman cup star, beat Pauline Betz of Los Angeles, 5-7, 6-1, 6-2.

Miss Jacobs and Miss Hardwick clash in one semi-final tomorrow, with champion Alice Marble meeting Valerie Scott of England in the other.

MOTORS—TRAFFIC—HIGHWAYS

Inviting the Undertaker

VOICE OF THE TRAFFIC

A DANGEROUS OFFENSE.

Chicago, Aug. 31.—An automobile, south bound in Laramie avenue, crossed Madison street against the red light at 4:50 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The license number was 752-312 [issued to Joseph Petrucha, 2837 South Avers avenue].

This violation is becoming a common sight in Chicago traffic. It is a more dangerous offense than a simple case of driving faster than the speed limit. All policeman should help to curb these light jumpers.

SUPERHIGHWAY SUGGESTION.

It seems to me that we have right at our front door the nucleus of an elevated roadway right thru the loop that should be taken advantage of now so that, if practicable, arrangements may be made for its use when the time comes.

I refer to the elevated railroad structure, which it is planned to abandon when the new subway system comes into use.

All that would be necessary is to install new supports at the sidewalk line on three sides of the loop. Van Buren street already has the supports placed in this position, and fill in the space between the sidewalks with concrete.

Connections could be made with the Outer drive by means of a ramp over Michigan avenue at Van Buren street and with the proposed northwest highway from Lake street.

The Wabash avenue and Lake street sides of the elevated would be used as a one way street for traffic going in a northwest direction and the Wells street and Van Buren sides as a highway for traffic in a southeast direction, as well as for traffic stopping in the loop itself. With all the main loop stores and garages connected direct to the new highway it would prove a great boon for traffic that now suffers a great handicap on account of loop congestion.

Robert R. Hillard.

MOTOR COACH SPEEDS.

Chicago, Sept. 2.—The blitzkrieg has arrived in Chicago.

At about 9 o'clock one morning, on the Outer drive just south of Irving Park road, while riding in a friend's car, double-deck motor coach No. 137 zoomed by us while we were going at 40 miles an hour, the speed of most of the traffic, and, while our car speeded up to 45 miles an hour, the motor coach continued to draw away from us, weaving in and out of traffic, paying no attention to painted traffic lanes and, by the time we got to the south end of Lincoln park, was out of sight. It was only because of refugee motorists with private cars getting out of the way of this zooming tank that accidents did not occur.

I have heard of motorists recently being assessed $10 and costs for driving at speeds of around 40 miles an hour in Lincoln park and wonder why the Motor Coach company is granted the privilege of operating its coaches at over 45 miles an hour without interference.

Paul J. Huxmann.

GAS STATION SERVICE.

Belle Plaine, Ia., Sept. 1.—Recently I visited my brother in Maywood, Ill. One evening, when my niece and I were returning from a swim, our car spurted, chugged and jerked to a stop near North and Harlem avenues. We were in a real predicament until a service station attendant from this corner came to our rescue.

The man pushed our car to his station. There he worked on the machine every minute he could spare before finding the trouble. When we thanked him, he replied, "that's what we're here for, to help people." I want him to know that his kindness was remembered.

M'NARY OPPOSES DIVERTED USE OF GASOLINE TAXES

Senator Charles L. McNary of Oregon, Republican nominee for Vice President of the United States, is opposed to expenditures of gasoline tax collections for purposes foreign to streets and highways. An article on this subject bears his name, probably written before his nomination, in the current issue of The Atlantic Monthly.

The senator condemned the diversion of $160,000,000 a year of motorists' taxes to purposes unrelated to automobile traffic. Illinois motorists are paying interest and principle on $50,000,000 worth of poor relief bonds. Illinois motorists also paid millions to Chicago's board of education.

Need Revenue for Pavements.

McNary points out that the gasoline tax was enacted as a toll or tariff in payment for use of the streets and highways as measured by fuel consumption, and that all of this revenue is sorely needed.

"Officials of the public roads administration," the article continues, "have pointed out that the biggest job ahead of America today is to provide a system of highways adequate and safe, not only for the present thirty million motor vehicles, but for the fifty per cent increase in motor vehicle traffic anticipated in the next quarter of a century.

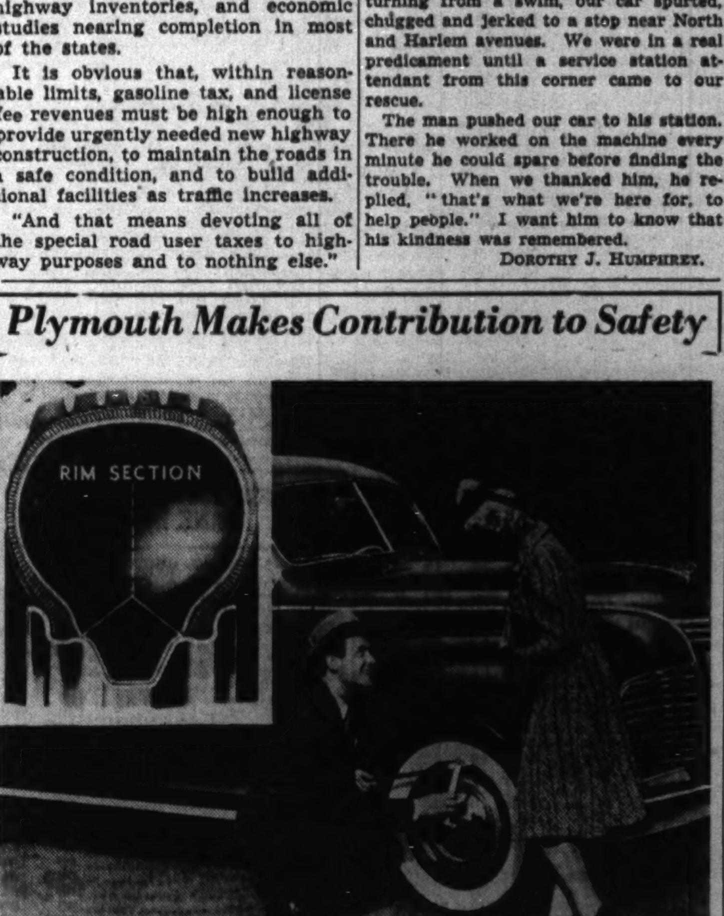
Maintenance Necessary.

The size of the task in money and miles has been fairly well determined by traffic counts, road use surveys, highway inventories, and economic studies nearing completion in most of the states.

It is obvious that, within reasonable limits, gasoline tax, and license fee revenues must be high enough to provide urgently needed new highway construction, to maintain the roads in a safe condition, and to build additional facilities as traffic increases.

"And that means devoting all of the special road user taxes to highway purposes and to nothing else."

Plymouth Makes Contribution to Safety



Among the features of the 1941 Plymouth is a new safety rim wheel which is said to reduce the hazard from blowouts or punctures. The new rim holds the bead of a flat tire firmly on the wheel, preventing the tire from being thrown. Inset is a cross section of the new safety rim wheel with tire. The young man bending down at the wheel illustrates the new 1941 tire changing equipment.

STATE TO CRACK DOWN ON STOP SIGN VIOLATORS

May Revoke License on Third Conviction.

BY HAL FOUST.

Secretary of State Hughes yesterday announced that he will invoke broad discretionary powers of the drivers' license laws to curb a wave of red light jumping that has infected Chicago traffic. Drivers convicted a third time in twelve months of disregarding a stop signal or sign will be examined or re-examined to determine their qualifications to retain their licenses.

Capt. David Flynn, head of the Chicago police traffic division, who is cooperating in this move, suggested that the law might be amended by the legislature convening in July so that the third such conviction within 12 months would automatically revoke a driver's license for a year. Under the present setup, an offender merely mails a $3 fine to the Cafeteria court.

Cheaters Are a Menace.

"The light cheaters," said Capt. Flynn, "are a menace responsible for almost all collisions at signal controled intersections. The collisions at these intersections due to inadvertence are few, altho it's possible, especially when there are red neon advertising signs nearby, for a driver to miss seeing a stop signal.

"The most vicious drivers are those who demonstrate by blowing their horns that they are intentionally running against the signal. The worst offender is the illmannered cheat who cuts to the left of waiting traffic and dashes across the intersection on the amber before the green. He is a pedestrian killer.

Punishment Too Light.

"This deliberate offender frequently escapes arrest. He looks to make sure there is no policeman on the corner before performing his reckless maneuver. When he overlooks a policeman and is caught, the punishment of a $3 fine is less than he deserves.

"No," the captain responded to a question, "we cannot charge those potential killers with reckless driving unless an accident results from their deadly maneuver. Their punishment is the same as that given to a driver who accidently runs the red.

"Three such violations in any 12 months can't be accidental. Three such violations are conclusive evidence of a viciousness or a physical handicap, defective vision, that should revoke a driver's license."

Law Permits Examinations.

Under the law as it now stands, revocation by the courts is authorized only for automobile manslaughter, for drunk driving, for felony with an auto, for perjury in obtaining a license, or for violating a restricted license. But the secretary of state, according to Mr. Hughes' interpretation, may call for an examination or reëxamination of a driver at any time that his qualifications are suspected.

"Any time any one violates a stop sign or a red light for the third time in one year," said Mr. Hughes, "I suspect that he is physically, mentally, or temperamentally unfit to operate a motor car. An examination should determine the fault and lead to its correction."

Convictions for speeding, reckless driving, or running a stop sign or signal light, under the present license law, are reported to the secretary by the courts, including the Chicago Cafeteria court. Mr. Hughes said that his filing system will permit a ready reference to the conviction records of each of the 2,900,000 licensed drivers in Illinois. He said that his order for an examination or reëxamination of three time violators of red lights or stop signs is retroactive.

D. U. Bathrick, general sales manager of the Pontiac motor division, says that the economical efficiency of the modern automobile is highlighted by the gasoline requirements of military airplanes. A cruising bomber uses 120 gallons of gasoline an hour while a pursuit plane burns up 100 gallons an hour. Bathrick says that a military plane thus consumes enough gasoline in an hour to keep the average driver of a Pontiac going a month.

RECORD TRAFFIC IN ORE FORESEEN FOR SEPTEMBER

10 Million Tons Likely, Say Lake Skippers.

Cleveland, O., Sept. 7 [Special].—The first 10,000,000-ton ore movement for September in the annals of the Great Lakes shipping industry may be recorded this month, vessel men reported today.

Expectation that an all-time monthly loading record would be established in August were shattered by continuous rain squalls and fog, but fleet operators look for more favorable weather this month.

Altho delayed repeatedly in one of the foggiest months in the memory of veteran skippers, the fleet carried 10,534,431 gross tons of ore down the lakes last month. It was the 16th month in shipping history in which the ore movement exceeded the 10,000,000-ton mark. The record was set in August, 1937, when vessels carried 10,811,381 tons.

Loading Docks Busy.

Ore loading docks at Duluth, Superior and Ashland worked at top speed, but those at Marquette and Two Harbors were handicapped by adverse weather conditions and fell below totals for previous months.

If shipments for this month establish a record, the movement during the first 15 days must be exceptionally heavy as the intermediate or fall, loading regulations become effective Sept. 15 and cargoes will be reduced.

A further decrease in bituminous coal shipments will speed up the running time of vessels in the ore trade, as they will make the return trip up the lakes light.

There has been a small increase in the grain movement from the Canadian head of the lakes, but stocks at Fort William and Port Arthur are approximately 68,000,000 bushels heavier than they were a year ago.

Elevators' Holdings Climb.

At the close of business on Aug. 30, the elevators held 78,815,106 bushels of wheat, 1,241,501 bushels of oats, 746,026 bushels of barley, 132,800 bushels of flaxseed, and 418,073 bushels of rye. A year ago at the corresponding period the totals were 11,932,583 bushels of wheat, 987,812 bushels of oats, 1,285,158 bushels of barley, 17,317 bushels of flaxseed, and 703,770 bushels of rye.

Freighters loaded 13,727,929 bushels of wheat at the two upper lake ports last month as against 21,478,127 bushels in the period last year. Receipts were 27,261,101 bushels for this season, against 13,005,067 bushels a year ago, which gives some idea of the listless condition of the grain trade.

Chicago Bank Stocks Rise and Fall in 1 Point Range

Stocks of principal Chicago banks were comparatively inactive last week in over the counter trading and showed mixed trends within a one point range. City National and Northern Trust shares were a point above the close of the week before, while Chicago Title and First National dipped a point each.

FINANCIAL STATEMENTS.

Balance sheets, income accounts, and statements of surplus are the means by which the management of a corporation states the financial condition and operating results of a business.

From these financial statements the investor can determine if an enterprise is solvent and if its operations are profitable. These reports are not the statistical expression of facts, but represent the judgment of the management and its accountants as applied to the facts.

This judgment will vary with different accounting methods used in appraising property, determining net sales, computing depreciation, or arriving at net income or loss.

The function of the accountant is to make a record of what happens to the investment and income of an enterprise and to interpret this record in the financial statement.

Accounting is not an exact science. It employs expert opinion and judgment based on principles and procedures developed by years of experience and on theories tested in practice. Using these principles, the accountant assembles his data and makes an approximation of the value of a business as accurately as possible.

In studying the financial statement of a business the investor should note any qualifying remarks that may be made by the auditor who examines and reviews the work of the company's accountant.

The auditor does not guarantee the truth of the company's report, but merely expresses his opinion as to whether the statement was presented in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles and reflects fairly the position of the business and the results of its operations.

The auditor does not check every recorded transaction, but follows an accepted procedure of testing and sampling to satisfy himself that the records may be accepted as reliable. Sometimes this testing reveals irregularities and fraud. Ordinarily the sampling is not detailed unless it is undertaken to detect fraud.

Fraud can be concealed occasionally from the auditor by the deception and conspiracy of company officials. The history of business enterprises, however, has demonstrated that these frauds are rare.

How much weight the investor can place on a financial statement will depend on the reliability of the management, the soundness and consistency of its accounting methods and the integrity of the auditor who reviews the statement.

2 ISSUES REACH YEAR'S PEAKS IN CHICAGO MARKET

Two issues touched new 1940 price peaks yesterday on the Chicago Stock exchange but eased back part way before the close. They were Sundstrand Machine Tool, which reached 30 but closed at 29⅝ for a ⅝ point gain, and Modine Manufacturing, which finished ⅝ point higher at 25⅝ after having sold at 26. The market was mostly higher. Transactions totaled 6,000 shares.

Volume for the week expanded to 112,000 shares, compared with 71,000 in the preceding week, but still was much less than the 397,000 share turnover of the corresponding 1939 week. Trading embraced 181 issues, of which 123 closed higher than on the preceding Saturday, with 28 lower and 30 unchanged.

COTTON

Increased hedging pressure in cotton disclosed a lack of aggressive support yesterday and prices declined to close near the bottom with losses up to 0.17 cent a pound.

Reports from England state that nothing is known there as to future freight allocations for American cotton. No import licenses are being issued at present for Brazilian or Peruvian cotton unless shipment was contracted before May 30. Activity of mills in the Manchester district has dropped to 85 per cent of normal and a further recession is expected unless export business revives.

Spot cotton closed .11 to .15 cent lower with New York 9.57 cents; New Orleans, 9.45 cents; Galveston, 9.11 cents, and Houston at 9.05 cents a pound. Prices follow:

FARMERS CHARGE AAA LOAN RATE DISCRIMINATION

Allege Juggling to Favor Those Co-operating.

Substantial price increases in live stock markets without parallel advances in live stock feed costs have strengthened the position of cattle and hog raisers and feeders. Prices during the last two weeks, in relation to production costs, have been the most favorable of the year.

However, farmers who have refused to enter the soil conservation program and consequently are not eligible to government corn loans complain that by manipulating the loans to suit the situation, the government has been able to reduce production costs of live stock for the "coöperators" at the expense of those not in the AAA program.

Many cattle and hog feeders recently in the market with stock said they regard this punishment for those who refuse to "go along" with the AAA.

How Corn Loan Works.

In brief, here is the way the corn loans have worked for most cooperators": During the fall and winter months they accepted a 57 cent loan from the government on their corn and had the crib sealed. They used the money to buy what corn they needed for feeding from farmers who were unable to get the loan, paying about 40 cents a bushel.

In other words, they obtained almost half a bushel as a "gift" for every bushel they sealed with the government by using the money to buy from those who had "free" corn. After a few months the free corn became scarce and rose in price, with the noncoöperators trying to make up some of the loss by asking high prices.

To combat this and keep the cooperators on top, the government is releasing two year old corn back to the farmers at 51 cents, taking the 6 cent loss per bushel.

The controversy is rising to a rather high pitch in some of the big live stock feeding sections.

Plan Full of "Unfairness."

"The corn loan is only one phase of a program that is full of unfairness," declared S. G. Mackie, veteran live stock raiser of Rock county, Wis., while on the Chicago market last week with some of the 350 hogs he raised this year. "Farmers would have been better off without any of it. The corn loan is an example of how the government is turning one group of people against another by favoritism."

C. C. Dannen of Marshall county, Iowa, who feeds out several carloads of cattle and hogs annually, brought in 22 head of cattle during the week and was paid $106 a head. The steers cost him $57.34 to produce. "We figured the value of the corn at 50 cents a bushel on the ledgers, but it didn't cost us that," he explained. "We sealed our corn and got a loan of 57 cents. With this we bought all the corn we needed from those not in the program, paying 40 to 42 cents.

Pays Back at 51 Cent Rate.

"Now we are paying back 51 cents to the government for two year old corn on which we had a loan of 57 cents. The government takes off the interest as well as the 6 cents on such corn provided the farmer will keep it for feed."

Corn fed steers and yearlings rose 25 cents to 50 cents during the week, to new 1940 peaks. Top loads brought $13.65. The six day steer average, at $11.35, was up 35 cents. Cattle prices were second highest for September since 1929.

Hogs experienced a setback late in the week, but the six day average, at $6.70, was off only 5 cents from the 1940 high of the week before. Some classes at the week's close showed reductions of 15 to 35 cents.

Price increases in the market for lambs were slight, amounting to 10 to 15 cents. Top loads closed at $9.50.

Practically all live stock received yesterday went direct to packers. A few lots of hogs sold steady, considering quality, at $7.10 and down. The trade used a nominal top quotation of $7.30. No cattle or sheep were sold.

DEFENSE BOARD AND TREASURY DELAY TAX BILL

Clash Over Control of Plants.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 7 [Special]. —Differences between the treasury and the national defense advisory commission over the amortization features of the excess profits tax bill became so acute today the senate finance committee suspended consideration of the measure until Monday, revising plans to report it to the senate at that time.

While the committee continued its liberalizing and simplifying of the bill, treasury officials renewed their insistence that it include provision for some form of government control over final peace time disposition of new defense plant facilities, the cost of which may be amortized out of tax free earnings under the amortization allowances.

Bar to Investment.

Such a stipulation was written into the bill by the house, but this week the defense commission, thru William S. Knudsen, Leon Henderson, and John D. Biggers, members, told the finance committee this would frighten private capital from investment in defense industries and seriously impede the whole rearmament effort.

This view was supported by letters sent to Senator Pat Harrison [D., Miss.], finance committee chairman, by Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson and James V. Forrestal, undersecretary of the navy. These officials agreed with Knudsen, Henderson and Biggers that the government's interest in new defense works, constructed by private industry, could better be safeguarded thru individual contracts than by statute.

The defense officials warned against any legislative act which tended to project government control over private industry beyond the period of the defense emergency.

Consideration Is Delayed.

The finance group apparently was ready this morning to start rewriting the amortization title to meet these objections when treasury spokesmen, headed by John L. Sullivan, assistant secretary, insisted that some manner of government control over final disposition of plants built by private capital for defense manufacture be expressed in the statute. Sullivan was so adamant that the committee decided to forego further consideration of the bill until Monday when it could again hear from members of the defense commission. Harrison said he hoped a compromise could be reached so that the tax bill might be taken up in the senate not later than Wednesday.

Under the house bill any corporation investing in new plant facilities for national defense would be given the privilege of deducting from its annual taxable income an amount equal to 20 per cent of the total cost. In other words, tax free earnings could be set aside at the annual rate of 20 per cent of the value of the new facility until its cost was fully liquidated in five years.

Cost to Government.

Effect of the section would not be that the government would pay for the new plant, but that it would forego all taxes, normal and excess profits, on the amount necessary to amortize its total cost. The cost to the government, therefore, would be the taxes on the amounts set aside for amortization.

The controverted section, written into the bill in the house at the instance of the treasury, would prevent any corporation from destroying, altering or otherwise disposing of these new plant facilities without consent from governmental authority even after the defense emergency is ended. The defense planners conceded it might be advisable in certain instances to prevent the destruction or alteration of new plants after the current defense need has passed, but they insisted this problem could be dealt with in contracts between the government and individual corporations without the necessity of an all embracing and rigidly restrictive statute.

Compromise Is Sought.

Suggestion was made in the committee that the treasury and defense commission might agree on some formula for publicity of contracts which would tend to serve the treasury's purpose, without the statutory requirements upon which it insisted. The belief was still prevalent that the "control" provisions would be deleted from the bill.

The finance committee decided today to exempt corporation earnings up to 8 per cent of invested capital from the proposed excess profits tax. Harrison said the change from the house bill was made in the interest of simplification. The house had voted to exempt profits up to 7 per cent on the first $500,000 of capital, and up to 5 per cent on additional capital.

Mint Has Dollar Surplus But Price Is Still 100 Cents

Denver, Colo., Sept. 7 (AP).—There's a surplus of silver dollars at the United States mint in Denver, but Superintendent Mark Skinner is holding out for the usual price of 100 cents apiece. Skinner said 42 million bright and shining dollars are stacked in the mint vaults awaiting banks to call for them.

Plant Control Clash Delays New Tax Bill

Washington, D. C., Sept. 7 (AP).—Opposing President Roosevelt's request for a 500 million dollar fund to promote "orderly marketing" of western hemisphere products, a bipartisan minority of the senate banking committee today called it "a grandiose plan to control the world price of commodities produced in North and South America."

The report was drafted under leadership of Senator Robert A. Taft [R., O.], who said that loans to Latin-American nations would be "futile, wasteful, and unwise" and would "seriously injure, and not assist, the producers of South America and the farmers of North America."

Approved by Slim Margin.

Legislation to carry out the President's proposal was approved by the banking committee, 8 to 6, and is scheduled to come up in the senate next week.

The house already has passed a measure increasing Export-Import bank funds by 500 millions, and authorizing the bank to make loans to governments of the western world, their central banks, or, with government backing, to private institutions for bettering market conditions and developing resources.

Joining with Taft in the minority report were Senators Lynn J. Frazier [R., N. D.], John G. Townsend Jr. [R., Del.], Alva B. Adams [D., Colo.], Clyde L. Herring [D., Ia.], Charles W. Tobey [R., N. H.], and John A. Danaher [R., Conn.].

Advocates of the program said it would provide a buffer against disrupting results of the European war upon trade of this hemisphere.

Forecasts Failure of Plan.

Senator Taft said that the "poorest way to make a man a good neighbor is to lend him money. It is far more likely to make him your enemy for life. The same result has come in the past from international loans and is bound to come in the future."

Dubious about defeating the program, Taft said the opposition might concentrate on an amendment to require that any loans be for the purpose of increasing exports of the United States, or for the development in other western hemisphere nations of products needed by this country.

Smith, Barney & Co. Heads Dow Chemical Offering

New York, Sept. 7 [Special].—Seven investment banking firms headed by Smith, Barney & Co. will underwrite the offering of $15,000,000 of debentures of the Dow Chemical company scheduled for next week, it was revealed in an amendment filed today with the Securities and Exchange commission. The financing will consist of $7,500,000 of 10 year 2¼ per cent debentures, due Sept. 1, 1950, and $7,500,000 of 1 to 10 year serial debentures.

Dollar Does More Work As Rise in Costs Is Halted

New York, Sept. 7 (AP).—The dollar did more work for the wage earner in July because a rising price curve for the cost of living which started in April was halted, the national industrial conference board said today. Based on 1923 as 100 cents, the purchasing value of the dollar in July was 115.9 cents, compared with 115.7 cents in June and 117.8 cents in July last year.

CONSIDER STRONGER CONTROL OF GASOLINE EXPORT, DUE TO 'LEAK'

Washington, D. C., Sept. 7 [Special].—The United States government is considering amendment of its regulations on the licensing of gasoline for export because of revelations that gasoline capable of being distilled into airplane fuel is being shipped to Japan, a treasury spokesman said today.

In placing an embargo July 26 on the export of gasoline of sufficient octane content to be used for aviation, and upon tetraethyl lead, the government left a loophole for gasoline capable of being redistilled into fuel usable in airplanes, this official said. The government became aware that gasoline capable of redistilling was being shipped to Japan, the official said, from a newspaper dispatch on Aug. 30 about 170,000 gallons being loaded on a Norwegian freighter in Houston, Texas.

IOWA INCREASES UTILITY VALUES TO GAIN TAXES

Des Moines, Ia., Sept. 7 (AP).—The Iowa Tax commission today paved the way for a sharp increase in public utility property taxes in this state next year by boosting utility valuations more than $46,000,000. Fred Nelson, chairman of the commission, said the companies have been given 10 days in which to file objections.

The new valuation figure placed on the electric power, gas, and pipeline systems was $128,672,765, an increase of 56 per cent over the $82,479,364 base on which the utilities paid their real estate levies this year. The commission boosted utility values about $15,000,000 in 1939.

Commission employés said the latest hike would mean an increase of about $1,500,000 in utility taxes payable next year.

HOLIDAY CAUSES WEEK'S DROP IN BANK CLEARINGS

Influenced by the Labor day holiday which shortened the business week to five days, the volume of checks cleared by Chicago banks declined last week to $262,700,000 from $279,300,000 in the preceding week. In the corresponding 1939 week the total was $281,600,000.

The figures were announced by the Chicago Clearing House association yesterday. The association's report follows:

	Clearings.	Balances.

STATE'S BIGGEST COAL COUNTY HAS STRUCK OIL, TOO

Centralia, Ill., Sept. 7 (AP).—Franklin county, the state's biggest coal producing area, gained its first major recognition in oil production this week when a wildcat test was successfully completed as a flowing oil well. The well is the Manley Oil Corporation's No. 1 C. F. Downen, two miles southeast of Thompsonville.

Three other wildcats were successfully completed: Pure Oil company's No. A-1 Anderson, in Wayne county; Connor, Arnold and Associates' No. 1 Swick, in Jasper county, and No. 1 R. G. Dagley, in White county.

Effingham county's hopes of becoming an oil producer hung on the successful completion of one of two moccasin township ventures.

Chicago Steel Mills Raise Rates After Holiday Lull

Reports from steel mills in the Chicago district yesterday indicated that production this week will rebound to 96.8 per cent of theoretical capacity from 80 per cent last week, when schedules were cut in the Labor day holiday lull. In the week before the holiday the mills were pouring out steel at the rate of 97.5 per cent of capacity.

Big Production Cost Increase 'Unavoidable'

As the wheels of industry whirl faster under a stream of war orders, which include a contract for a $17,600,000 machine gun plant announced yesterday, the National Industrial Conference board warned that a sharp rise in general production costs will be unavoidable.

The board polled 300 industrialists and 225 of the group said the production cost rise will be the result of the speeding up of national defense preparations. Most of the executives said the relatively small cost increases of the last year are unreliable indicators of what may be expected in the near future.

"As the rearmament program moves forward," the board commented, "it is expected to be accompanied by higher wage rates, particularly for skilled labor, increased material costs and, of course, a rising tax burden."

Savage Arms Given Contract.

The war department announcement of a $17,600,000 contract to the Savage Arms corporation of Utica, N. Y., for the equipping of a machine gun plant, was but one of many indications of expanding industrial activity.

The army announced another group of contract awards totaling $2,215,912, including a $161,250 order to the Thorrez and Maes Manufacturing company, Jackson, Mich., for ammunition components, and a $232,575 contract for a recruit reception center at Fort Sam Houston, Tex., which was given to C. L. Browning Jr., San Antonio, Tex.

A $700,000 contract for an 82,500 kilovolt-ampere generator at the Boulder Dam power plant was awarded to the General Electric company, Schenectady, N. Y. General Electric also received a $352,030 contract from the navy for generators and other electrical equipment.

Other navy orders included $157,014 of leather gloves from the Illinois Glove company of Champaign, Ill., and $14,668 of magnet wire from the Electric Autolite company, American wire division, Toledo, O.

40 Millions in Air Plants.

The Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce reported that since Sept. 8, 1939, the aviation industry has invested more than 40 million dollars in plant and equipment expansion solely to meet national defense needs. No figure was given on the amount invested to increase production of war planes for England.

According to the industrial department of the Chicago Association of Commerce, $37,754,000 in federal government orders have been placed in the Chicago area since June 1. The association said the area can take care of many times its present war industry commitments.

Directors of Gaylord Container corporation have authorized $5,000,000 of loans from banks for improvements and additions planned for the Bogalusa, La., plant.

Railway Buying Increases.

Railway Age reported that new locomotive orders by American railroads during August reached a three year peak, while freight car and passenger car purchases reached the highest level of the year.

Railroads placed orders for 30 steam and 35 Diesel-electric locomotives, the highest monthly total since April, 1937, according to the publication. Orders for 7,645 freight cars were the best since Novemebr, 1939, and purchases of 102 passenger cars was the largest since last December. In August, 1939, five locomotives and 315 freight cars were ordered, but no passenger cars.

More than 44,000 low income families will be occupying new homes in low rent public housing projects by the end of 1940, the United States Housing authority announced.

RAW MATERIALS PROVIDE CLEW TO TRADE GAINS

Reflect Rising Pitch of Industry.

BY LELAND FORRESTER.

Buoyancy in the raw material and speculative markets, where price movements and trading volume are highly sensitive to traders' momentary impressions of trends, provided a better clew to the state of industry last week than statistical indices, which were influenced by Labor day curtailments in some lines of production.

Manufacturers preparing for intensified work on national defense orders bought raw materials actively, particularly metals and textiles. Sales broadened in the securities exchanges, and British empire issues frequently took the leadership in the bond market as traders inclined to optimism regarding Britain's chances of beating back the Germans.

Grain and Cattle Improve.

Giving breadth to the rising tendency of markets, grain futures trading improved, and cattle prices capped one of the sharpest six week climbs in years by reaching a new 1940 peak—$13.65 a hundred pounds for best steers.

Retail trade was livelier than in the preceding week, sustaining a level that had carried one index of August department store sales to the highest level since 1931. Many chain store enterprises reported record sales. Wholesale markets also improved.

In spite of the Labor day lull, the automobile industry boosted production to 39,665 units, from 27,645 in the preceding week. Ward's Automotive Reports, Inc., predicted assembly lines will be running nearly at capacity toward the end of this month.

Steel Decline Minimized.

Steel mills made a better than seasonal showing by holding the holiday curtailment to 8.8 points. Operations were at a national average rate of 82.5 per cent of theoretical capacity, comparing with 91.3 per cent in the preceding week.

The volume of engineering construction contract awards increased for the week, and other indices which moved up were those for railroad freight loadings and electric power production. The freight and power figures were for the week ended Aug. 31. While freight volume was the largest for any week so far in 1940, the gain was less than usual on a seasonal basis. The gain in power output also was below expectations.

Declines were reported in volume figures for new offerings of securities and for bank clearings. Cotton textile manufacturers reduced mill operating schedules. Residential construction work held about steady.

Industrial Index Holds at Peak.

The Associated Press weekly index of industrial activity, adjusted for seasonal variations and based on 1929-'30 levels as 100, held unchanged at 109.8. The level maintained by this index in the last two weeks is the highest since January. The comparisons follow:

	This week.	Previous week.	Year ago.
*Steel mill activity	122.8	122.5	85.2
Cotton mfg. activity	133.9	135.0	121.4

New Buick of 1941 Line

New Buick's Refinements Are Disclosed

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

Details of the 1941 Buick automobile were made public yesterday by Harlow H. Curtice, president and general manager of the Buick division of the General Motors corporation. Among the most important changes are engine improvements, including compound carburetion, which increases power and driving flexibility, and new body styling for certain of the models.

Harlow H. Curtice.

Buick cars are available with engines developing 115, 125, and 165 horse power. The series 40 special models have 115 horse power engines, the supers 125 horse power, and the larger cars the top power.

Curtice described the new engines as of "unusually high compression ratios, making them available for the use of the new high octane fuels developed for the commercial market."

More Combustion Efficiency.

"The engines are of the 'fire ball' design, having dome shaped pistons and combustion chamber contour that compress the fuel into the shape of a flattened ball directly around the spark plug, providing maximum combustion efficiency without detonation or ping," he said.

"At the same time, compound carburetion, involving the use of two carburetors per engine with a resulting stepup in horse power yet with a marked improvement in fuel economy, has been developed by our engineers for the 1941 models."

With compound carburetion, the engine is said to operate under all normal conditions up to 70 miles an hour on one carburetor, the other carburetor cutting in when it is needed either for fast, smooth acceleration or greater top speed. Engine performance is said to be much improved, particularly in the lower speeds where adequate power is needed to eliminate the necessity of too frequent gear shifting.

New Carburetion Optional.

The compound carburetion is optional on the series 40 cars, but is standard equipment on the super and models above its price range. It is said that the 165 horse power engine in the 1941 models gives more miles per gallon at 50 miles an hour than was obtained from last year's 107 horse power engine.

New to the Buick line are new "serodynamic bodies" designed for the series 40 special and series 60 century cars which have completely streamlined tails. A new "sedanet" body, which is a modern version of the old two door sedan, is the most streamlined of all the Buick models. It is of the tear-drop design. Streamlining has also been applied to the most expensive models.

Concealed Running Boards.

Among the more interesting body features in the 1941 cars are concealed or inbuilt running boards on several of the lines, matched interior finishes, front and rear seat lights which light up when a door is opened, and a new instrument panel.

Improvements have been made in the front suspension to aid riding and ease in handling. New type steering gears have been developed. Coil springs are said to be new, with improved shock absorbers.

The front of the car has been much changed. The horizontal grille bars are heavier than in last year's model and fenders appear more massive. The hood is in one piece.

ACCORD BY TWO INSULL MIDLAND FIRMS REPORTED

Northern Indiana Unit to Be Refinanced.

Trustees of both Midland United company and Midland Utilities company yesterday were reported in agreement on a reorganization plan settling the bitterly contested claims running into millions of dollars which these former Insull utilities have had against each other since 1934.

The plan, which involves the refinancing of Northern Indiana Public Service company, will be recommended by both sides to the federal District court in Wilmington, Del., by Sept. 17, it is understood. Judge John P. Nields permitted postponement of hearings by Special Master Daniel O. Hastings until that date to permit negotiations among the interested groups. The plan is being considered at present by the Securities and Exchange commission.

Acquisitions Proposed.

The refinancing program of Northern Indiana, a subsidiary of Midland Utilities, includes the acquisition of the Gary Electric and Gas company and the Hobart Light and Water company. The deal is expected to involve about $35,000,000 in refunding and new money financing. Part of the stock to be issued, it is expected, may be used in lieu of cash in the settlement of the Midland contest.

The trustees' plan also embodies the compromise settlement of debts to the Peoples Gas Subsidiary corporation, the Commonwealth Subsidiary corporation, Public Service Company of Northern Illinois, Peoples Gas Light and Coke company annuity trust, and the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company.

Both Midland Utilities and Midland United entered bankruptcy proceedings in June, 1934, and the conflict has raged since that time, delaying reorganization. Other parts of the Insull system long since have been reorganized.

Served by Same Officers.

The claims arose as a result of dealings between the companies in 1930, 1931, and 1932 when one set of officers and directors served for both.

Attorneys for Midland Utilities have charged that it was raided by Midland United during that period. In its exceptions, however, Midland United declared that United "was from its inception the creature of Utilities" and that the directors managed the affairs of United for the benefit of Utilities.

Midland Utilities filed against Midland United a claim for $24,807,263 in direct indebtedness and $48,742,703 representing the value of certain securities. Midland United in turn filed exceptions and counterclaims of $24,943,173 against Midland Utilities.

Hearings Interrupted.

Hearings on the claims, which started in Chicago July 26, were interrupted for the private negotiations among the interested groups.

M. B. Kennedy and Max Swiren are the attorneys representing Hugh M. Morris, trustee of Midland United, and George L. Haight and Benjamin Goldstein represent Clarence A. Southerland and Jay Samuel Hartt, trustees for Midland Utilities.

Midland Utilities, formed in 1923 by Samuel Insull to integrate his various Indiana properties, is a holding company controling valuable operating properties. Midland United, ranking one step higher, was perched by Insull atop the Midland Utilities pyramid.

LONGER TRADING DAY IN STOCKS EXPECTED SOON

Vote Wednesday on Chicago Plan.

The Chicago Stock exchange is expected to begin operating on a longer trading day at the end of this month as another step in its campaign to increase volume.

Final approval of the plan to extend the trading hours to 3 p. m. on week days and 11:30 a. m. on Saturdays is expected at the board of governors' meeting Wednesday. The present operating day extends from 9 o'clock in the morning to 2 p. m. on week days and from 9 to 11 o'clock in the morning on Saturdays.

Many exchange members believe that the hours, synchronized by custom with those of the eastern exchanges, are inadequate for local conditions. All exchanges located east of Chicago operate on eastern time, one hour earlier than central.

Explain Their Proposal.

These members assert that the productive machinery of the stock exchange brokerage business is fully utilized for barely one-half of an effective business day in comparison with other businesses and professions and other divisions of the securities business.

To back their point, they explain that the first hour is not fully productive, because it is too early for the average customer, who is occupied with the planning and duties of his own business. Luncheon hours spread from 12 noon to 2 o'clock. The closing time is virtually at the peak of the business day, they assert. The additional hour, they believe, is one of the most desirable and productive in the day.

Office hours of most customers extend to 5 o'clock, and investment houses and over the counter brokers function until about 5 o'clock.

Time Makes Difference.

Trading conditions are even more unfavorable during the part of the year when daylight savings time is in effect, these members assert. The surrounding territory outside Chicago remains on standard time, making trading hours correspond to 8 o'clock to 1 on week days, and 8 to 10 o'clock on Saturdays. Brokerage offices in this area report a marked decrease in volume during the daylight savings span.

If the extension is adopted, the members do not expect a marked gain in volume immediately. They assert that adjustment will necessarily be slow. The fact that the primary market will be closed during that period will be a disadvantage, they explain, and the absence of its leadership will be [illegible]ed.

Both [illegible] to Win Trade.

Plans of both exchanges, however, recall the efforts of both to stem the dwindling tide of trade. The "Big Board" made effective Sept. 1 a rule forbidding members of the New York exchange to act in any other exchanges as specialists or odd lot dealers in any securities also listed in New York.

Countering this act, the Chicago exchange appointed 13 Chicago stock brokerage firms and 18 individuals to act as specialists and odd lot agents in those stocks when the eight firms, which were also members of the New York exchange, resigned from activities in those fields here.

BUYING IS TIMID AND STOCKS END MOSTLY LOWER

Traders Are Influenced by War's Uncertainties.

New York, Sept. 7 (AP).—The stock market was mostly lower today. Profit selling of the preceding session dried up appreciably, but buying was timid and highly selective.

Offerings never were heavy, but those who might have stepped up commitments substantially on the basis of brightening domestic business, apparently did little in view of the coming week-end and the indecisive Anglo-German air battles. Cloudiness of the national tax program and conscription measures, brokers said, also contributed to speculative hesitancy.

A few tire company stocks were in front from the start, but gains or losses of as much as a point were rare in any department. Numerous issues were unchanged and a wide assortment failed to sell.

Average Is Lower.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks ended 0.1 point lower, but on the week had a net advance of 1.3 points at 44.9, its third successive weekly upturn. Today's closing figure represented a big reaction from the year's low of 37 established last June 10. The 1940 top of 52.2 was posted Jan. 3.

Dealings slackened to 224,010 shares from 363,890 last Saturday. The week's volume, despite the Labor day recess, ran up to around 3,507,000 shares compared with 1,959,000 in the preceding week.

Rubber stocks were believed to have been benefitted by reports of large inquiries for new 1941 automobiles which are expected to keep motor factories humming in coming months. Motor shares, at the same time, seemingly ignored the favorable outlook.

Some Conditions Favorable.

Bolstering influences were seen in forecasts of a sharp rebound in steel mill operations next week from the holiday letdown and the Federal Reserve board survey showing a brisk upturn in department store sales.

Emerging with modest advances were United States Steel, Goodyear, United States Rubber, Dow Chemical, American Telephone, Western Union, Santa Fe, Sears Roebuck, and Chesapeake & Ohio.

Stock traders came back from their Labor day rest feeling better about the war, taxes and business. Quotations generally pointed upward Tuesday, and a rush of buyers Wednesday gave leaders their best lift since July 30. The upswing persisted Thursday with volume exceeding 1,247,000 shares, a peak since June 12. Profits were cashed Friday.

GRAINS FOLLOW NARROW COURSE IN LIGHT TRADE

Trading in grain futures on the Chicago Board of Trade was limited yesterday. Professional operators sold early, but found offerings light when they started to even up for over the week-end, and a rally from the low point followed.

Wheat futures closed ⅛ cent lower to ¼ cent higher. Corn finished ⅛ cent lower to ⅜ cent higher and oats gained ⅛ to ¼ cent. Reports that 70 per cent of the northwestern rye crop was going into the government loan had an effect on that grain. Futures finished ¼ to ⅜ cent higher. Soy beans advanced ⅞ to 1¼ cents.

Farmers pledged an average of 2,600,000 bushels of cash wheat daily for government loans in the last 10 days, the Commodity Credit corporation reported. Loans were made on 103 million bushels of cash wheat to Sept. 4, or 17 million bushels more than during the corresponding period last year. It was estimated that 10 million bushels of 1939 crop wheat had been resealed.

With Illinois farmers now delivering cash corn to the government in satisfaction of loans on the 1938 and 1939 crops, the question of finding storage room for the grain is disturbing Chicago elevator interests, it is said.

PRIMARY GRAIN MOVEMENT.

COPPER MARKET IS ACTIVE AND STRONG IN WEEK

Other Metals Advance; Sugar Gains.

Copper was prominent in the commodities markets last week with a price advance and the highest daily sale in the history of the industry. In the futures markets the main price trend was upward. Sugar, rubber, copper, and hides showed gains, but tin and wool tops had losses.

On Thursday a major producer announced a boost of ½ cent to 11½ cent a pound for refined copper and other producers followed the lead. Buyers hastened to cover their needs before the new price became general, with the result that sales soared to a record 113,106 tons, nearly double the turnover for all of August.

Cash zinc advanced 0.35 cent a pound to 6.85 cents, East St. Louis basis.

Zinc Stocks Decrease.

The heavy demand for zinc in recent months was shown by a 14,126 ton drop in estimated stocks of domestic slab zinc during August to a total of 44,670 tons. According to the American Zinc Institute, this is the lowest supply in nearly four years. In addition, shipments last month increased and production ran below demand.

In other cash metal markets lead held firm and tin was fairly steady. Lead futures advanced from 4.70 to 4.75 cents a pound. Tin futures declined 0.05 cent to 50.07 cents a pound in an extremely slow market.

Sugar futures were strengthened by a firm raw market and gained 0.09 cent a pound to close at 1.76 cents on the September contract. Rubber futures were mostly higher and September finished at 19.25 cents a pound for a gain of 0.13 cent.

Hides Meet Setback.

Hides futures, recently consistent gainers, suffered setbacks during the week but were able to finish 0.18 cent higher at 9.63 cents for the September contract. Wool tops futures, which during the preceding week had made strong advances, slowed up to lose ½ cent at 94.50 cents on the October contract.

Sales in Santos coffee futures picked up toward the end of the week and September closed 0.01 cent a pound higher at 5.25 cents. Cocoa and silk futures also made gains. Cottonseed oil futures closed lower to interrupt the steady climb of the preceding wek. Prices follow:

BRITAIN WEIGHS DRAINS OF WAR, LEARNS LITTLE

Future Costs Obscured by New Problems.

BY LARRY RUE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Sept. 7.—Launched into the second year of the most costly war in history, financial experts this week attempted to measure the drain on this country's resources of 12 months of hostilities and the effect on business, industry and wage earners. They found little to cheer them.

Altho the cardinal principle of the government economic policy is to expand the trade on which the country is largely dependent for foreign exchange to finance purchases abroad, British manufacturers, deprived of European markets, which normally absorbed about 30 per cent of the total exports from this country, are having a serious difficulty in maintaining overseas trade at levels even approaching prewar periods.

Many Still Without Jobs.

Despite the fact that 3 million men have been absorbed in the armed forces and the civil defense, the latest ministry of labor statistics show 827,266 men and women are still idle in Britain. There is much unemployment in the coal industry, as was disclosed in a house of commons debate this week. Nineteen thousand miners were estimated to be out of jobs in the Durham area alone.

After a year of war, retail prices, according to the official index, are up more than 20 per cent. Wages at the same time increased 7 per cent and, even taking account of the excessive overtime, total earnings have risen a maximum of only 12 per cent.

The war has caused a big drop in living standards generally and the public has been warned it will have to tighten its belt still further when the new purchase tax, graduated up to 33 per cent on a big range of luxuries and everyday articles, comes into force. As a result of the government's policy of cutting domestic consumption to the bone and the loss of export markets, the cotton, wool, clothing, and furnishings industries are again experiencing a hard time.

Many Facing Ruin.

Ruin faces thousands of small store owners, dealers, manufacturers, apartment owners, restaurants, hotels and amusement caterers in the coastal defense areas who have been deprived of an entire season's trade during one of the best summers, as far as weather is concerned, that Britain has experienced in years.

Behind all the economic, financial and social problems arising from the war stalks the bogey of inflation. Bitter attacks launched against railroad chiefs and the minister of transport at a public inquiry this week into a proposed further increase in fares and freight rates were significantly centered on the prospects of higher rates lending an impetus to the workers' demands for more pay to meet the soaring costs of living.

Percentage increases of various indices over the last year, which were published this week, indicate some measure of inflation already is under way. Indices show wholesale prices rose 37 per cent in the last 12 months, retail prices 20, bank deposits 10, bank cash 11, deposits at the Bank of England 14, paper money circulation 20, and wage rates 12.

War Finance Figures.

Meanwhile, treasury statistics reveal that between May 12 and Aug. 31 the British government has had to provide approximately £740,000,000 [about $2,960,000,000] to cover the gap between expenditures and revenues. The national expenditure during that period was listed at £1,034,805,575 [about $4,140,022,000], and revenue amounted to only £294,959,538 [about $1,179,838,152]. How far the gap has been bridged by the creation of new money, the inflow of automatic savings, the issue of treasury bills, and the sale of stocks to America is a problem still puzzling financial experts. The effects of 12 months warfare on Britain's financial structure still are not clear, and prospects are even more obscure. Britain is spending £9,000,000 to £10,000,000 daily [about $36,000,000 to $40,000,000] but no one believes this is the limit.

Among the factors clouding estimates of a prospective expenditure was Prime Minister Winston Churchill's statement to the house of commons that the government is considering a scheme for the insurance of property against destruction and his pledge that people with small incomes would be compensated up to 100 per cent for damage.

20 YEAR GROWTH MARKS PROGRESS OF MAIL BY AIR

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

New York, Sept. 7 (AP).—Just 20 years ago tomorrow the first transcontinental airway in the United States was established, and a whole new literature on American technical achievement has come in its train.

R. G. Page, first pilot of transcontinental air mail.

That first airway was a rail-plane affair. Pilots turned over their mail to the railroads at nightfall. More than three days and 10 hours were required to deliver mail pouches weighing a bare 400 pounds, sealed at Mineola, N. Y., to San Francisco.

Today's coast to coast flights require little more than 15 hours.

Only 19 years ago mail pilots, inaugurating night flying, groped their way across the continent to land by the light of bonfires.

Today they navigate by radio and land at big terminals in the glare of floodlights aggregating millions of candle power.

Born of World War Needs.

The saga of American aviation, born of world war needs and punctuated with achievements in higher speeds, larger planes, and the development of radio and weather facilities, can well be written in the development of air line service.

The first transcontinental trip was started by Pilot Randolph G. Page at Mineola on Sept. 8, 1920, at 6:41 a. m. He carried 16,000 letters weighing 400 pounds. Unable to get all the letters into the plane's interior, Page stuffed the surplus into a suit case and strapped it to the wing.

The first day-night flight took place in February, 1921, with pilots in relays covering the 2,629 miles from San Francisco to New York in 33 hours and 21 minutes at an average speed of 104 miles an hour.

Jack Knight, now employed by United Air Lines, flew the relay between North Platte, Neb., and Omaha, as scheduled, landing there with the aid of pre-arranged bonfires. But his relief pilot failed to appear and Knight went on to Iowa City thru a snowstorm. Failing to locate the bonfires and nearly out of fuel, Knight landed when a watchman, sensing his predicament, set out a red flare. He then continued to Chicago, where other pilots took over the task.

Airways Lighted in 1924.

The installation of airway lights to permit day-night transcontinental flying by 1924, the building of emergency landing fields, and the development of better planes marked the progress of aviation up to 1926.

In 1927 pilots still flew "contact," by watching the ground, and it took 32 hours coast to coast.

In 1929 two way radiotelephones were installed in transports.

By 1933 Boeing cantilever wing transports, relieved of the wires and struts common to earlier planes, had cut the coast to coast flying time to 19½ hours.

The 33 passenger machines now used by Transcontinental and Western Air, Inc., will be supplemented next year by 40 passenger transports.

BOOSTS IN CHAIN SYSTEMS' SALES RANGE TO 126.8%

Largest Upturn Shown by Bond Stores.

Gains ranging as high as 126.8 per cent in sales in August were reported yesterday by chain store organizations. Increases also were announced for longer periods, as compared with a year earlier.

The 126.8 per cent increase was reported by Bond Stores, Inc., men's clothing chain. The company's August sales were $1,966,241, compared with $867,014 in the 1939 month. Last month's figure included haberdashery sales of $211,988. No such sales were included in the August, 1939, report. The increase for last month without the haberdashery business was 102.3 per cent.

Volume for the first eight months of this year, including haberdashery sales, expanded 39.3 per cent, amounting to $17,341,819, against $12,417,967 a year ago. Haberdashery sales were $1,367,550, against none in the 1939 period.

DIXIE AIRLINES SERVICE PLAN RECOMMENDED

Washington, D. C., Sept. 7 (AP).—Examiners recommended to the Civil Aeronautics board today that it authorize Dixie Airlines, Inc. to establish a new air line between Pittsburgh, Pa., and Birmingham, Ala., with intermediate stops at Charleston, Wheeling, Bristol, Knoxville, and Chattanooga.

The examiners recommended denial of a rival application by Pennsylvania-Central Airlines for authority to establish service between Pittsburgh and Birmingham. They recommended that Delta Air corporation be permitted to establish service between Augusta and Savannah, Ga., and that Pennsylvania-Central be denied permission to establish service between Atlanta and Savannah.

Swiss, Canadian Money Rates Drop in New York

Weakness developed in Swiss and Canadian currencies in the New York market yesterday. In a downturn of 0.02 cent which dealers said resulted from a flow of funds out of Switzerland, the Swiss franc closed at 22.74 cents. The decline in the Canadian dollar was 1-16 cent and the final quotation was 87¾ cents in terms of the American dollar. The British pound was steady at $4.03¾ cents.

Decision on North Western Plan Expected This Week

Federal Judge John P. Barnes' decision on the fairness of the reorganization plan for the Chicago and North Western railroad will probably be issued this week, he indicated yesterday. After a hearing on petitions for allowances of fees, Judge Barnes said that all hearings on the plan and all hearings on fees for the period to April 30 this year are closed.

OIL BIG QUESTION AS SECOND YEAR OF WAR IS BEGUN

Outcome May Hinge on How Supplies Compare.

As the second year of the most highly mechanized war in history gets under way, the extent to which belligerent nations have laid the ground work for their oil supplies will become increasingly apparent.

Oil may be one of the principal factors in determining how long the war will last, according to many observers. Warring nations need a continuous supply of oil—fuel, lubricating, and gasoline—in quantities that dwarf even the heaviest peacetime consumption. Victory or defeat, it is said, can hinge on a nation's success in protecting a source from attack or in finding new sources when old ones are lost.

Britain Is Given Edge.

Of the countries at war, Great Britain is credited with being in the more favorable position from the standpoint of petroleum, even in the face of attacks on one of her major sources and interruption of Mediterranean shipping routes. Oil experts believe that currently the position of Italy and Germany relative to this vital supply is more critical than is generally recognized by the public.

Some have expressed the opinion that unless the axis powers can pierce the British blockade or capture new oil sources, the war may be limited to another year or less. Germany's principal supply comes from Rumania, and the German position would become immediately critical should anything happen to that source, oil men assert.

Conservative estimates place Germany's oil consumption during the first year of the war at 12,000,000 tons, and, it is believed, there are no indications that her needs will decrease to any extent in the coming months.

Germany's crude oil production amounts to about 800,000 tons, synthetic production, 2,000,000 tons, and benzol from coke and vegetables, 650,000 tons. In addition, 3,100,000 tons of storage oil were captured from Denmark, Norway, France, and Belgium.

It has been estimated that Russia can be counted upon by Germany for 1,000,000 tons of storage petroleum this year, altho shipment has been slow and Russia has little if any to spare above storage, because in 1939 consumption about equalled production. Rumania's annual production is approximately 6,400,000 tons, of which one-third has been used at home and 1,000,000 has gone to Germany. It is said that the latter figure undoubtedly will be increased sharply in view of Nazi domination of the country.

Authorities place Germany's stored oil at the beginning of the war at 14,000,000 tons at the most and estimate inventories of 7,000,000 tons at the beginning of the second year. Italy, it is believed, can add about 1,750,000 tons to the axis total from storage. Italy, cut off from her principal supply in Mexico, will be forced to depend almost solely upon storage petroleum unless African or near eastern sources can be found.

Needs Are Estimated.

The combined axis need is estimated to be 1,800,000 tons a month, with probably little more than half of this readily available from sources other than storage. On the basis of this deficit and estimated stores, a theoretical supply exhaustion in 8 to 11 months has been suggested.

The supply estimate may be revised upward because the axis, faced with diminishing oil supplies, will enforce even more rigid curtailment of nonmilitary consumption both at home and in occupied countries. Certain authorities believe, however, that this possible gain may easily be offset by enemy destruction of storage tanks and refineries.

In spite of her apparently more favorable position, Great Britain has suffered in the war's shuffling of the world oil map. She has lost Rumania and her important sources of Iran and Iraq are becoming more and more untenable.

Pipe Line Terminus Bombed.

Italy has been bombing the Irak pipe line terminus, and shipping from near east oil fields via the Suez canal and the Mediterranean has been interrupted. Great Britain's estimated daily oil consumption is 40,000 tons. The country lacks refineries and, it is believed, has not stored great quantities of petroleum because most of her terminals and storage tanks are in vulnerable channel ports.

Nevertheless, Great Britain appears to have at least reasonably favorable oil supplies for present needs and is believed to have enough stored to tide her over any supply lag that may result from finding new sources. The nation has 65 per cent of the world's tanker tonnage, and naval superiority over its enemies. Thus, unlike the axis, the British, at least theoretically can turn to untapped sources if the need arises and not suffer undue interruption from enemy attack at sea.

The western hemisphere is the British "ace in the hole" for oil. Besides the vast surplus supplies of the United States and Mexico, there is Venezuela and the new Columbian fields.

BIG PRIVATELY FINANCED FLATS RENT SPEEDILY

Occupancy Is Ahead of Necessary Quota.

Rental success of the largest privately owned and financed apartment project built in Chicago in the last 10 years was reported yesterday by officials of Chatham Park, Inc. This is the $3,443,000 development at Cottage Grove avenue and 83d street, eventually to have 554 living units.

C. Wallace Johnson, president of C. Wallace Johnson, Inc., managing agent of the property, said that 308 of the 428 completed apartments and duplex homes have been occupied or leased for Oct. 1. This is 72 per cent of the number of units to be available at that time.

"The owners informed us that under conditions of the $2,460,000 first mortgage obtained from Dovenmuehle, Inc., and insured by the FHA, it would be necessary for occupancy to reach 64.3 per cent by Oct. 1, and to stay at least that high until May 1, 1941," Johnson said.

Declared a Success.

"At that time occupancy will have to rise to 75.5 per cent, a figure at which the income will be sufficient to pay all operating expenses, taxes, and insurance, as well as interest and principal on the mortgage. When the occupancy figure rises above 75.5 per cent the owners should begin to receive a return on their equity investment.

"With 72 per cent occupancy already reached and the 75.5 per cent figure almost certain to be attained within a week, it may be stated without reservation that the rental program of Chatham Park is a complete success."

These figures, he said, are predicated on an average rental of $16 per room per month.

Cites Need to Cover Taxes.

"The setting of this figure was based on the fact that a considerable percentage of gross income from rentals will be needed to cover taxes. Unlike large scale projects which are being built with federal funds, Chatham Park, because it is privately owned and financed, has to carry a tax load equivalent to $8 per month per apartment."

Tenants come not only from the south side, but from other sections of Chicago, from suburbs and from other cities, Johnson said.

Forty-two flats are scheduled for completion by Nov. 1. The remaining 84 of the 554 total are to be ready during the Christmas holidays, according to George H. Dovenmuehle, vice president of Dovenmuehle, Inc.

Report 200 Per Cent Occupancy.

Two other big apartment projects financed thru Dovenmuehle, Inc., yesterday were reported to have reached 100 per cent occupancy. The $1,000,000 Granville Gardens apartments, at Granville and Hoyne, have all of their 196 suites occupied. Rentals average $15 per room per month.

The $700,000 Isabella Park apartments, on Isabella street, Evanston, east of the Northwestern university athletic field, are 100 per cent rented.

LOANS INCREASE AND RATES DROP, SURVEY SHOWS

Mortgages filed for record at the county recorder's office during the first half of 1940 increased both in number and consideration over the same period last year, according to a semiannual survey completed yesterday by the Chicago Mortgage Bankers association. There were 20,222 mortgages recorded the first six months of this year with a consideration of $159,361,200. This is an increase of 3,027 in number and $67,954,383 in value over the same period last year.

The largest percentage of loans of $3,000 and over were at 4½ per cent. There were 4,644 mortgages at that rate, or 44 per cent of 10,586 loans analyzed.

"This is the first time in many years that loans at 4½ per cent interest comprise the largest percentage, both in number and amount, of analyzed recordings in Cook county," said Ferd Kramer, president of the association.

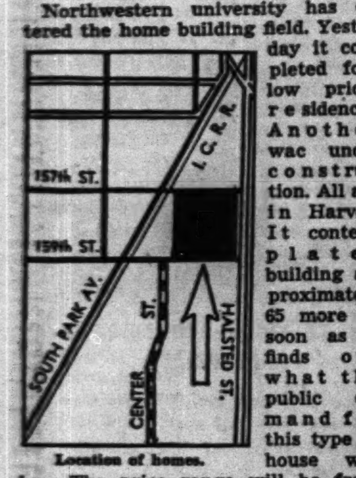
Northwestern University Will Build 70 Low Priced Residences in Harvey

USE LAND GIVEN BY F. C. AUSTIN 11 YEARS AGO

Four Homes Now Open for Inspection.

BY AL CHASE.
[Real Estate Editor.]

Northwestern university has entered the home building field. Yesterday it completed four low priced residences. Another wac under construction. All are in Harvey. It contemplates building approximately 65 more as soon as it finds out what the public demand for this type of house will be. The price range will be from $3,450 to $4,950. All are to be financed with private loans insured by the Federal Housing administration.



Location of homes.

According to George S. Dalgety, who is acting as general agent for the university in its home building project, the demand for residences was the reason for deciding to build.

Influenced by Home Demand.

The national defense industrial activities in Chicago's outlying manufacturing areas have resulted in a rapidly increasing demand for homes by workers, Dalgety said. Northwestern university decided that now was the time to dispose of 100 lots in Harvey given it by the late Frederick C. Austin in 1929.

The land consists of scattered lots in the 12 square blocks bounded on the north by 157th street, on the west by West avenue, by 159th street on the south, and by Woodbridge avenue on the east.

They have been standing vacant since they were given to the university. Recently the university paid off the back taxes, special assessments and other liens, and decided to build on them and dispose of them practically at cost.

According to Dalgety the original 100 lots are 25 by 125. These are too nall, he said, and they are being replatted into larger home sites with from 33 to 50 feet frontage. There will be about 70 lots resulting from the original 100.

The homes are being financed with 20 year loans with monthly payments ranging from $22.50 to $32.50. These payments include principal, interest, taxes, etc.

Walls of Solid Brick.

In order to show the public the type of home the university expects to build it has erected four one story, four room houses on Willard and Fisk avenues, between 157th and 159th streets. These will be open daily to the public for inspection, Dalgety said.

Two of these completed homes have solid brick walls, with full basement. These will sell for $4,950 each for house and lot. The other two will sell for $3,950 each. One is of brick and the other frame construction. The land is figured at the going prices for the neighborhood—from $12 to $18 per front foot.

Some of the remaining 65 homes to be built will have basements and furnaces. Others will have no basement and will be supplied heating equipment by the buyers, and placed in service rooms. All were designed by Charles Marckle, university architect. John C. Levenson, of Harvey, was the builder.

"Judging from the interest shown by manufacturers in the area and the scarcity of homes thruout the Calumet steel belt cities, Northwestern university will find it necessary to go ahead at once with the rest of its contemplated home building program," Dalgety said.

"The reaction of the public to the homes already completed will be our guide to action."

Austin Gives $3,000,000.

Austin, who gave the 100 lots to Northwestern university, came to Chicago in 1871. He organized the F. C. Austin Manufacturing company in 1897 and the Austin Drainage Excavating company in 1904. He retired in 1920. He died in 1931 at the age of 78.

Three years before his death Austin turned over to the university property valued at $3,000,000. This included the 100 Harvey lots and the F. C. Austin building at the southwest corner of Clark street and Jackson boulevard. The income was to be used for training of potential business executives.

Under the agreement he was to receive the income during his life, but placed his program in operation by selecting 10 Austin scholars in 1929 and 1930.

New Factory for Clearing District

John S. Cromelin designed this new plant to be built at 6665 West 65th street, in the Clearing Industrial district, for the American Stock Gear company.

Built by Northwestern University

These are two completed houses of 70 low priced four room homes to be built by Northwestern university in Harvey. The upper house is frame and is at 15823 Fisk avenue, Harvey. House and lot cost $3,950, financed with a $3,600 FHA insured 25 year mortgage, with $27.50 monthly payments. The lower house is at 15821 Willard avenue and is of brick. Cost is $4,950, with $4,500 FHA loan, and $32.50 monthly payments. John C. Levenson of Harvey is builder. Charles Marckle of the university's architectural staff designed them. These and two others are open daily, including evenings, for inspection.

Gear Company Expands; Will Build Factory

Increased use of the company's products by airplane and Diesel engine manufacturers has required expansion of the American Stock Gear company, now at 646 West Washington boulevard, officials announced yesterday. Negotiations were closed with the Clearing Industrial District, Inc., for a new plant to be built at 6665 West 65th street.

The company manufactures industrial gears of both standard and special types. Much of the new business has been in the latter division, particularly for airplanes, tractors, and Diesel engines. One department at the new plant will be used exclusively for airplane and Diesel engine gear production.

"The new plant has been designed to increase our production at least 50 per cent and will permit the addition of much new equipment" said Maurice A. White, of the gear company.

The Clearing district will begin construction at once from plans by John S. Cromelin. The plant will be leased to the gear company for 15 years with an option to buy. Occupancy is set for Jan. 1, 1941. It will be one story, with 30,000 square feet of floor space and 40,000 square feet of ground for future expansion. Officials said the present roster of 150 employés will be increased at the new plant.

Leases Superior Street Corner Space.

E. H. Scott Radio Laboratories, Inc., has leased for a term of years much of space on the fifth floor at 737 North Michigan avenue, at the northeast corner of Superior street. Four large studios have been opened as the company's downtown showrooms.

E. H. Scott.

A feature of the studios is a self-contained sending system which is used to demonstrate the reception of frequency modulation broadcasts on Scott radios.

Scott entered the radio field in 1923 with a long distance radio receiver which he took to New Zealand. Before going he arranged with station W-G-N to send a special program on Christmas eve, 1923. The program was received in the antipodes in what Scott said established the first record of long distance reception in radio.

Upon his return Scott found his experiment had started a demand for parts by radio enthusiasts who made their own sets. Early in 1924 he began to manufacture and sell radio parts, with the assistance of a boy of 16. A few hundred dollars constituted his capital.

Out of that beginning, in a small loft, Scott's business grew to its present size. He now employs 125.

COOK COUNTY'S NEW ZONING ORDINANCE NOW IN OPERATION

Cook county's new zoning ordinance governing improvements on the 321,542 acres outside the boundaries of incorporated towns is now in effect, Maj. George A. Quinlan, enforcing officer for the zoning bureau, announced yesterday.

"It is necessary for every one desiring to build on land outside of towns to get a permit for such improvements," said Harry K. Robinson, head of the Cook county zoning bureau.

"The property owner or his agent can bring in to our bureau in the Burnham building the legal description of the property, the value of the proposed improvements, and a description of the type of structure planned.

"Sewage and water supply systems must comply with state board of health regulations. Our field men at the bureau will coöperate with property owners in preparing applications for permits, even to the extent of drawing the necessary sketch of the proposed improvement.

"Fees start at $5 for permits covering homes under $5,000. The fee on larger homes is $10. Commercial permits are based on a sliding scale, increasing with the value of the improvement."

BUICK & GUILD PLANS 12 HOMES BUILT TO ORDER

Buick & Guild yesterday purchased twelve 35 foot lots on the south side of Farwell avenue, between Harlem avenue and Osceola avenue in the Edison Park district. Four, five, and six room homes are to be built to order. The firm also has opened up additional property in its Westwood development in Elmwood Park, consisting of 300 feet at the southeast corner of Barry and 77th avenues, and also the entire block of frontage on the east side of 78th court, between Barry and Wellington avenues.

HOMES COSTING $4,000 TO $5,000 MOST POPULAR

Residential Trend Shown by Tribune Survey.

Home building Chicagoans still favor dwellings costing between $4,000 and $5,000, the price bracket most popular last year. This was shown yesterday in a survey of home construction in Chicago and the metropolitan area made by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE planning department.

Of 1,706 permits for homes issued in Chicago during the first seven months of 1940, there were only five costing $15,000 or more. That is 0.3 per cent of the total. Two cost $25,000 each, and the others $23,500, $20,000, and $16,000.

In the bracket between $10,000 and $15,000 there were 36 homes, or 2.1 per cent of the total.

Following is a table showing the number of homes ranging up to $10,000:

$9,000 to $10,000	32	1.9
8,000 to 9,000	67	3.9
7,000 to 8,000	98	5.7
6,000 to 7,000	227	13.3
5,000 to 6,000	469	27.5
4,000 to 5,000	533	31.2
3,000 to 4,000	204	12.0
Under 3,000	35	2.1

Based on another table of actual costs of homes compiled by the planning department it was shown that 60.7 per cent of the new homes for which permits were taken out cost $5,000 or less.

New homes costing from $5,000 to $10,000 were 36.9 per cent of the total. The remainder, 2.4 per cent, consisted of residences costing $10,000 or more.

ENOUGH IN NINE YEARS TO HAVE PAID FOR A HOME OF YOUR OWN

WORTHLESS rent receipts — good only as waste paper at $1 or so, a ton — are all you have to show for the thousands you've paid out in rent. If you are now renting for $60 a month, a small down payment and these payments used instead for home ownership would give you in the next nine years, free and clear, a modern 5-room home of your own. Or by taking more time, after making a small down payment, you can pay for such a home with as little as $39.50 a month. Consider these great "buys" on these easy terms:

$50.00 per month (Principal and Interest)

$42.00 per month (Principal and Interest)

12,200 ENROLL IN SUBURBAN HIGHS

YOUNG AMERICA FOUND EAGER TO LEARN TO FLY

300 in Boys' Clubs Ground Schools.

Young America is taking to the air as rapidly as it can be trained. When classes in ground school instruction were announced recently by the Chicago Boys clubs, 850 persons applied within two days. The lists were closed because of limited facilities.

These classes were opened to all physically and mentally qualified young men from 18 to 26 years old, regardless of college education, under the direction of the Civil Aeronautics authority in coöperation with the Lions clubs in the Chicago area.

A rigid physical examination reduced the number to 300 who now are receiving instruction in the Lincoln branch club, 1725 Orchard street, and the Lawndale branch club, 2801 South Ridgeway avenue. About 15 in the group are girls.

Men from All Walks.

There are men from every walk of life, store clerks, mechanics, delivery men, postmen, milkmen, cab drivers, statisticians, laboratory workers, and even one instructor from the University of Chicago who hopes to see the universities introduce aviation as a full-fledged course.

Altho classes were announced for those who have not had the privilege of a college education, many former college students enrolled. W. Noel Hudson, program director for the Chicago Boys clubs, pointed out that those taking the course are older than the general membership of the clubs, but the younger boys are listening and planning for the future.

James A. Osberg, 27 year old civilian pilot who has been flying since he was 15, is director of the program. He began teaching in high school boys in his home town of Riverside and so many boys were interested they crowded around the windows of the schoolroom and listened from outside. Mr. Osberg says he will have 2,000 students this fall for the three month course if he can find housing for them.

Scope of Course.

The 72 hour ground school includes courses in history of aviation, civil air regulations, navigation, meteorology, parachutes, aircraft, and theory of flight, engines, instruments, and radio uses and forms. The ten highest students in the class will be awarded scholorships for up to 50 hours of flight instruction.

Should the local sponsoring Lions clubs, as in Lincoln and Lawndale, assume the costs for ten additional scholorships, the C. A. A. will match the gift with another ten scholarships, making a total of 30 free scholarships for flight instruction. Medical fees for entrance examination are refunded to scholarship winners.

There is no inattention during the classes held two evenings a week from 7 to 10 o'clock. Students come from miles around after their regular day's work and take notes thruout the lecture given by authorities approved by the C. A. A.

The boys listened so attentively to R. L. Davidson, dynamic meteorologist with United Air Lines, that they did not notice a photographer's bulb flash. They crowded forward into the aisles and up on the platform in order not to miss a word and to see clearly weather graphs he displayed and the diagrams he sketched on the blackboard.

Want to Be Flyers.

Two of the boys, Edward Hedrick, 7555 Rogers avenue, 19 years old, and Jack Hamrin, North Lake Village, 18, are couriers for TWA. They finished high school last February and both want to be flyers.

Stanley Matyja, 4018 Oakdale avenue, 22, a painter, wants to learn how to fly. A friend in the C. A. A. advised him to attend the school. A clerk, Albert Gaber, 1140 Barry avenue, 18, hopes to become an aviator and decided this was the best way to get started.

Flying is the coming thing, believes Arnold Leversen, 5317 Wellington avenue, 21, and he wants to get in on the ground floor. Right now he is working as a printer.

NORTH SIDERS TO BE JUDGES IN LAWN CONTEST

Three north siders have been selected as preliminary judges in the annual save the lawn contest. The contest is a city-wide beautification plan fostered by the park district in which lawns of homes, schools, and police and fire stations are to be judged for their general appearance.

North side judges are Mrs. Herman C. Lammers, 5222 Lakewood avenue; Mrs. William R. Gross, 4325 North Ashland avenue, and Mrs. W. B. Pratt, 2049 Jarvis avenue.

Final judges are Mrs. C. C. Rehbein, Mrs. O. V. Morgan, and Gager Vaughn. Winners will be awarded prizes of lawn mowers, garden hose, grass seed, and other garden and lawn equipment.

Police Accident Manual.

A 240 page textbook for police, "Accident Investigation Manual," has been released by the Northwestern University Traffic institute. Members of the institute staff took two years in preparing material for the book.

Nothing Like Hockey for Fall Days

These hockey enthusiasts may follow different vocations, but their avocation is the same. With about 45 other young women they comprise the North Shore Field Hockey association. Practices started yesterday on Skokie playfield in Winnetka, and from now until Thanksgiving any one may watch them play on Wednesday afternoons or Saturday and Sunday mornings. FIELD HOCKEY TESTS SKILL OF WOMEN PLAYERS

No. Shore Association Has 50 Members.

Along the north shore one may find at least 50 young women actively interested in playing field hockey. Some play for the competitive spirit of the game, others play to obtain first hand information on a sport which they teach, and many play just for the exercise.

These women are organized as the North Shore Field Hockey association. These officers offer a cross-section of the group. Miss Evelyn Wienecke of Glencoe, president, is in business with her father. She has played hockey for 10 years and continues because she enjoys the sport. The vice president, Miss Betty Healy, is an instructor of swimming and athletics at New Trier High school in Winnetka and has played for seven years.

The secretary, Miss Nancy Burley of Winnetka, holds the same position in the business world. Hockey helps to give her a trim figure. Mrs. Warner Washburn of Highland Park, treasurer, learned how to balance the budget by running a home efficiently. Among the other members are matrons, debutantes, business women, and housewives, all of them equally active and equally able with the hockey stick.

Season Practice Begins.

Practices for this season started yesterday on the Skokie play field in Winnetka and will continue until Thanksgiving week at 3:30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, 9 o'clock Saturday morning and 10:30 o'clock Sunday morning.

Within the association are three clubs which play interclub games. After five or six of these games, first and second teams are selected which play for the association in other cities, including Milwaukee, Rockford, Madison, St. Louis, and Chicago.

The teams next go to the midwest tournament where the members try out for the midwest team. Those who are successful have a chance to make the All-American team at the national tournament. Several north shore members have reached this final objective during the 15 years the association has been organized.

The midwest tournament will be held in Washington park, 56th street and South Park way, around Nov. 17, and the national tournament is scheduled to be held in Williamsburg, Va. Association games on Skokie play field are open to the public.

Junior Club Formed.

As the age limit bars high school girls, the association has formed the Junior Hockey club composed of girls from eight schools. Club members are coached by the seasoned players and may practice with them. Many association members come up thru the junior club.

Presidents of the three association clubs are Indian Hill, Mrs. Errett Graham of Highland Park; Lake Shore, Miss Helen Carr of Highland Park, and Skokie, Miss Phoebe Nelson of Chicago.

Committee chairmen include Miss Jane Adair, Chicago, selections; Miss Virginia Hardin, Lake Forest, games; Miss Nelson, umpires; Miss Lucy Jane Hedberg, Glencoe, coaching; Miss Julia Mason, Winnetka, school girls; Miss Josephine Otter, Glencoe, publicity; Miss Jane Bulger, Winnetka, entertainment, and Miss Marion Gourley, Winnetka, used equipment.

Evanston Cycle Tourists Will Ride at Lake Geneva

Members of the Evanston Cycle Touring club will journey to Williams Bay, Wis., by train this morning and this afternoon they will ride around Lake Geneva, a distance of 35 miles. The train will leave the North Western station in Chicago at 8:45 o'clock and pick up club members at local points to Des Plaines. The group will return by train this evening.

NEW BUILDINGS ARE READY FOR TERM AT N. U.

Scott Hall and Gym Cost $1,200,000.

BY JUANITA DALY.

Scott hall, a $750,000 student center and auditorium, and a second Patten gymnasium costing $450,000 will be the new buildings on Northwestern university's Evanston campus this fall. The naval R. O. T. C. will begin the term in quarters doubled in size after an $18,000 remodeling job.

The student center will be opened formally on Sept. 24. Altho the gymnasium will be ready for use late this month, it will not be dedicated until Nov. 1, before a homecoming football crowd.

Decorators are putting the finishing touches on Scott hall. It has been built and endowed with funds raised by popular subscription as a tribute to Dr. Walter Dill Scott, president emeritus of the university, and Mrs. Scott. Ground was broken last May 1. The building extends for a block along Sheridan road from University place to Emerson street.

Seats for 1,225.

The auditorium, which has 1,225 seats, the first floor and the basement are air conditioned, with soundproof ceilings in the basement. The latter houses a grill, five dining rooms, a four room suite of offices and the auditorium lounge. The grill will accommodate 100 persons and will be open all day and evening. Folding doors makes it possible to use all or any group of the dining rooms together.

On the first floor are a student lounge, 35 by 75 feet, and a suite of offices, lounges and meeting rooms for the women's organizations affiliated with the university. These groups gave $200,000 toward the construction of the building.

The student lounge is furnished in 18th century pieces, with white walls, a blue ceiling and blue and gray drapes. In the north wall is the Burdick fireplace, a gift of Mrs. Alfred S. Burdick of Highland Park in memory of her husband. The mantel is a basrelief in Indiana limestone of the Evanston campus as seen from the air, designed by James Gamble Rogers, architect, and modeled by Rene Chamballen.

In Women's Suite.

In the women's organization suite are two lounges, one in 18th century style and one in oriental. An exhibition corridor 130 feet long, lined on both sides with built in cases, holds the university guild's art collection. The guild's collection of oil paintings will be hung in the 18th century room along with a new oil portrait of Mrs. Scott.

Also in the suite is the associate alumnae library, paneled in Appalachian white oak, with a separate vault room for the archives. Facilities include a service pantry, check room and powder room.

On the second floor are offices of student publications and organizations, conference rooms, a music room and two lounges. The Clarion DeWitt Hardy lounge, for use of Hardy scholars in the school of speech, was given by Owen L. Coon. In the graduate lounge is a carved fireplace mantel taken from an Italian castle and presented by John C. Shaffer, a member of the University associates.

Room for Y. W. C. A.

The third floor includes a suite of tower offices for the Y. W. C. A., a room running the full length of the building for parties, and a small connecting lounge.

The Bertram Cahn auditorium, named for a trustee, is a semi-independent unit at the north end. The foyer is marble and the color scheme of lounge and auditorium is terra cotta and putty colors. The auditorium unit includes three dressing rooms, a rehearsal room under the stage, a movie projection booth, an organ, and a removable unit to put in front of the stage.

The two story gymnasium, 252 feet long and 136 feet wide, will house the physical education and intramural departments. The building is of modified Gothic design and constructed of Lannon stone to conform with other campus structures. Holabird and Root were the architects for the building, which is named for James A. Patten, donor of the old gymnasium which was razed to make way for the Technological institute.

75 Foot Swim Pool

Outdoor activities in the university's expanding intramural program will be held in the adjoining Roycemore field. A feature of the building is the 75 foot swimming pool, wide enough for six lanes, and equipped for high dive. It is illuminated by underwater lighting effects and has a capacity of 400 persons.

Opening off the lobby is the gymnasium, large enough for three basketball courts. Also on the first floor are an exercise room, two men's locker rooms, a room with 30 showers, and 11 offices. Two exercise rooms, 32 by 50 feet, take up the major portion of the secnod floor. These rooms will be used for wrestling, fencing and will be available for women's classes in dancing, archery, and volley ball. A posture room for corrective gymnastics, shower and locker quarters for the women complete the floor.

The basement will contain a rifle range for both men and women, a gun room for the naval R. O. T. C., and driving nets for golf practice.

Starting High School Days

High school isn't so bad after all, agree these freshmen, after their first four days of classes in the Libertyville Township school. Dorothy Duba of Libertyville (left) and Miriam Browning, Mundelein, are so interested they have brought their textbooks outside to look them over.

John Kruckman knows where to go to find the correct assignments for tomorrow's lessons, and Ann Marie Hanlon doesn't seem to mind giving them to him. Their homes are in Libertyville.

According to conventional rules, this trio of freshies is short one boy, but Clyde White is not complaining. Dorothy McClain (left) and Betty Church seem satisfied, too. Or maybe they are all just happy because school is out for the day. They all reside in Libertyville and started to high school last Tuesday.

FIGURES SHOW A GAIN OF 166 IN NORTH AREA

Changes Listed in School Faculties.

More than 12,200 north shore students are buckling down to their books as the fall semester opens in nine suburban high schools. Six schools held regular classes at least two days last week; the other three begin on full schedule tomorrow. Approximately 166 more students are registered in comparison with the figures of last June.

Warren Township High school in Gurnee opened the day after Labor day with full time classes. Waukegan High school and Niles Center High were under way on Wednesday, and Lake Forest, Libertyville Township and Zion-Benton High schools held regular classes on Thursday. New Trier Township, Highland Park, and Evanston Township High schools will conduct full period classes tomorrow.

D. W. Thompson, principal of Warren High, reported an increase of 9 students, bringing the fall enrollment to 315. Courses in trigonometry and college algebra have been added to the curriculum. These courses had been listed previously on the program, but there were not sufficient requests for them to organize classes.

Six New Teachers.

Six new teachers and their subjects are William Wene, physics, chemistry, and general science; John Olhsber, mathematics; Miss Carol Herwig, business training courses; Miss Ruth Littlejohn, clothing and world history; Miss Helen Hayes, home economics and cafeteria supervisor, and Mrs. Betty Ross Wyllie, art.

Lloyd Cunningham, Miss Catherine Jongsma, and Miss Jacqueline Battersby resigned, and Miss Blanche Thompson and Miss Doris Vater retired to be married. The building has been redecorated thruout. Semi-indirect lighting was installed in the main corridor, new linoleum laid in the home economics and dining rooms, the chemistry table tops were renewed, and new canvas partitions were hung in the girls' shower room.

Niles Center High has 750 students this year, against 600 last year. Ralph E. Cotanche, principal, attributes the increase to the new building and the fact that the community is growing rapidly. A final note to the modern features of the school is the black topped parking lot finished this summer.

Among the special courses in the curriculum are radio, journalism, printing, and photography classes, and electric and auto shop and foods classes for boys. The students edit and print their own newspaper.

Dean W. Flagg, assistant principal, has been given a new position as director of advisement and vocation. Three teachers have been replaced and three added to the faculty. Miss Helen Johanns is the new band assistant and also will teach commercial subjects; Miss Adelaide Berry and Miss Suzanne Ostergren, English; Miss Edith Bronson, English and Spanish; Miss Alice Stone, general science, and John Lienhard, mathematics. Miss Ethel Schoenbaum, Miss Esther Fledderjohn, and Miss Linda Bernhart resigned.

Decrease at Waukegan.

The only school to report a decrease in enrollment was Waukegan, but the figures were not complete at the time. Last year's figure was 2,650. Franklin E. Frey was made officially dean of boys, and H. B. Bauernfeind was given the title of director of guidance. John W. Thalman is principal.

New teachers are Ruth Patterson, shorthand and typing; Alberta Volle, home economics, and Valernell White, spelling, filing, and clerical practice. Four cadet teachers, former students who have earned teaching certificates but have had no teaching experience, include Walter J. Budrunas, athletics and history; Cory P. Casterton, mathematics and business training; Helen V. Dodd, biology, and Betty Pearsall, English. Miss Lucile Webb is the new cafeteria manager.

Miss Ida Sims, Miss Eleanor De Young and Miss Olive Livingston retired, and Glen Myers resigned to take a post in the state department of public instruction. Miss Emilie Hathorne is ill, but she may return later in the year.

At Lake Forest High.

Lake Forest started with the same registration as last year, approximately 390, according to Raymond Moore, principal. Harald Jensen is replacing Raymond Anderson in the chemistry department, Miss Alice Fields is taking over Miss Janet Dancey's work as librarian, and Miss Victoria Evans will teach English and public speaking instead of Miss June Waser, who has resigned to continue her studies.

Freshmen will become acquainted more easily with their new school life by using a 48 page handbook compiled for them by the seniors and juniors last spring under the direction of Theodore Kavins, head of the English department. The handbook committee was composed of Parker Wyman [chairman], Virginia Glasen, Martha Cromwell, Patricia Cromwell, Ruth Cohn, Janet Glover, Betty Jo Greene, Carolyn Heerens,

Voice of the North Side

Readers of the Metropolitan Section are invited to contribute to this column on matters of neighborhood interest. Readers should confine themselves to 200 or 300 words. Full names and addresses must be given. No manuscripts will be returned. Address Voice of the North Side, The Tribune.

NEED FOR PUBLICITY.

Some years ago in your paper you printed the names of the owners of cars which were observed being driven carelessly or recklessly, or whose drivers were discourteous to others. I don't know why it was stopped, but I think the custom ought to be revived.

For many drivers, I think, the fear of having themselves exposed as bad or discourteous drivers is greater than the fear of paying a small fine. And moreover, many of the discourtesies and common infractions, such as beating a red light, are ones which are not punished by law, but which are as influential in causing accidents as speeding.

I don't suppose northwest side drivers are worse than any others, but I could sit on any corner along Northwest highway and take down the numbers of innumerable "mosquitoes of the road." Can't you revive some system of having your men report the numbers of cars which they see repeatedly violating some law of common safety and print the owner's name? If the owner is not driving, he will be more careful whom he lets use his car.

MRS. T. F.

BASKETS FOR TRASH.

Ex-Baltimore, writing in last Sunday's Voice, suggests householders cover their garbage cans to keep out rats. He's right; good garbage cans will do much to keep down the spreading of insects and rodents. The city ought to put hampers and wire baskets on every corner for paper and other refuse. The present "Help Keep the City Clean" boxes with their heavy covers are ignored by Chicagoans. Baskets would be much better. Perhaps with more containers we citizens would try harder to keep our city clean.

NEW RESIDENT.

CONDUCT SCHOOL FOR EPISCOPAL WORKERS TODAY

The 13th annual religious education conference which opened yesterday for 300 church and school workers of the city and suburban Episcopal churches at St. Paul-by-the-Lake church, 1606 Estes avenue, will end this afternoon.

At 11 o'clock there will be a prayer service. The Rt. Rev. Edwin J. Randall, suffragan bishop of the Chicago diocese, will preach the sermon.

The Rev. John B. Hubbard of Park Ridge will lead the afternoon discussion. His topic will be "The Church and the Home."

Kenilworth Outing.

Kenilworth will hold a field day outing for business men Friday, Sept. 20, at the Illinois Golf club of Glencoe. Wilbert Chapman and Douglas Crooks are in charge of reservations.

Must Know About Weather

Shade May Be Natural or in Mottled Colors.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

Never was there a time when the walls of our rooms received more attention. They seem one of the home's most favored spots.

Now a beautiful new material, which in its original states is one of the world's oldest materials, has made its appearance in the home building field. It is a highly functional and handsome wall surfacing; genuine rawhide, as paneling for the walls of a living room or study, a den, dining room, or bedroom.

In the natural shade this rawhide has the appearance of fine parchment. It is not tanned like leather, but its hide is left in the natural state, with the original markings of nature. It also is available in a number of lovely colors, and because the coloring process does not create one uniform shade the effect is varied like intricate patterning of marble, onyx, or agate.

Thickness Reduced.

A modern process has made this rawhide flexible and reduced its thickness, and yet its hard, shell-like surface and individual markings have been retained. No two rawhides are ever identical.

For years rawhide has been used to cover smart luggage. Now we find it can add distinction and smartness to our rooms. In its varied and attractive coloring which range from parchment to black, from pale tans to deep browns, from ivory and cream to pastel grays, it is now a striking wall paneling.

In a model home shown recently this rawhide was used on a stunning, circular fireplace wall. In a private office in Chicago it appears in brown agate form as a wall surfacing, and also as a covering for the desk, the chairs, the cabinets, and even the window sills. There are shades and colors of this rawhide paneling to give life and zest to the most modern of rooms. Again in other deeper tones it can blend with the atmosphere of a man's study or library, a family game room or hallway, living room, or bedroom.

Not for Plaster.

This rawhide is not recommended for application directly on plaster, but can be applied in panel form to plywood or metals.

The plywood should be at least three-eighths of an inch thick, cut to the proper size and pattern, and then covered with the rawhide. Light colored plywood should be used. [If the plywood has any dark spots or knots it should be painted first, as this rawhide is more or less transparent.]

After the rawhide covered panels have been firmly fastened to the walls they can be sprayed with a lacquer which is either dull or glossy, depending on the finish desired. Or wax may be used to create an individual finish. Such treatments preserve the natural beauty of the paneling and helps to keep it from absorbing any moisture from the house atmosphere.

Easy to Keep Clean.

Not hard, either, to keep this paneling clean, since a light rubbing with a cloth slightly dampened in a mild soap suds solution will do the work.

In case you are building a new home or planning on changing the face of some room in the house you own, this new poneling for your walls—and also for your table tops, your cabinets, and many other of your room appointments—offers a treatment of richness and distinction. A treatment moreover which is as suited to a house carried out in ultramodern spirit as to one which follows faithfully along traditional or even ultra-conservative lines.

Tho the roots of this rawhide are buried deep in antiquity, its present form is very forward looking indeed.

Something New in Game Rooms

Something new, indeed. A game room in a basement with its walls paneled in rawhide. This rawhide, now available in many handsome colors as well as natural, which has the appearance of fine parchment, is both a highly functional and beautiful wall surfacing.

COUPLE REMARRIED AFTER 50 YRS.; HAVE SAME ATTENDANTS

Theodore F. Kartheiser.

Mrs. Kartheiser.

When the Kartheisers celebrated their golden wedding anniversary, Aug. 26, they were remarried at mass in St. Timothy's church, Washtenaw and Devon avenues. Both Mrs. Palmer, who resides at 4917 North Mozart street, and Mr. Weydert, of Aurora, again attended the couple as bridesmaid and best man.

Seventy-three guests attended an anniversary reception at the Belmont hotel following the ceremony. The Kartheisers reside at 6701 North Campbell avenue. They have two daughters, Mrs. Marie Zimmerman and Mrs. Margaret Feldmann; two sons, John and Herman, and 19 grandchildren.

A Tenderfoot Learns to Ride

BY HAROLD SMITH.

Like many another riding instructor, Elmer J. Holdorf, from whom I am learning some of the fine points of riding form, isn't enthusiastic about teaching new riders to post the trot. He does it, of course, but only with reluctance.

Posting the trot means merely taking only one bump while the horse is giving two. This is accomplished by rising in the saddle at one beat of the trot and sitting at the next beat. [The trot is a one-two gait, as against a one-two-three rhythm for the canter.]

My instructor believes that the posting of the trot should come rather late in a rider's experience, say six months or more after he has taken up the sport, and only after he has developed a sure, balanced seat. Meanwhile, the rider ought to sit the trot always, he insists.

Merely an Evasion.

"Too many men and women learn at the outset to post presentably and then conclude they are finished riders with little more to learn," Holdorf complained.

"That's dead wrong. Posting for the novice rider is merely an evasion of the bounces he should take in order to learn balance more quickly.

"Sitting the trot gracefully is one of the infallible marks of a good rider. I've seen too many riders stop trying to sit the trot right simply because they had learned to post."

In rising properly to the trot, I learned, the lower legs remain practically still, the body and upper legs being lifted with the knee joints as the hinges. The weight is borne partly by the feet in the stirrups and partly by the knees and inner thighs bearing against the saddle flaps.

My instructions were to let my torso incline a bit forward during the trot, but to observe the oft-repeated admonition to keep my back hollow, my shoulders square, and my chin in.

In falling back on the second beat the seat does not return completely to the saddle, I found. Rather it settles onto the inner line of the thighs and the fore part of the buttocks, rising immediately at the start of the next cycle.

The rise is essentially a gentle forward lunge of the midsection, in which the feet and head scarcely move out of a vertical plane. Properly executed, it requires little effort.

I found I had to pay particular attention to my feet and hands when I began to learn posting. It's highly important to keep the knees in and the heels down [an instruction impossible to overemphasize in any department of horseback riding], and to avoid transmitting the rather vigorous body movement of the post to the horse's mouth thru the reins.

It is permissible to count aloud at first as an aid in getting the rhythm of the post, my teacher assured me. Watching the horse's shoulders I counted "one" as the right foot struck the ground, rising as I counted, and "two" as the left foot landed and I descended to the saddle.

Don't Forget the Horse.

At this point Holdorf gave me a horse saving instruction. He told me to vary my posting occasionally, rising as the left front foot lands and falling at the right footfall. Switching is easily accomplished by sitting to two beats of the trot instead of one.

This switching is necessary because on his fall the rider's weight descends on the same pair of the horse's feet at the same time—one front foot and the opposite hind foot. The change in the post brings this impact down as the other diagonal pair hits the ground. Thus the rider avoids "wearing out" one side of his horse only.

Correct posting also demands careful checking of stirrup strap length, too, I discovered.

If the stirrups are short the body rises too high, which is both awkward and tiring. If they are too long the feet do not assume their rightful share of supporting body weight on the rise.

Nobleman to Teach French in No. Side Girls' School

When the University School For Girls, 1106 Lake Shore drive, opens for the fall term, Tuesday, Sept. 17, the students will have a real member of nobility as one of their teachers. He is Count Stephan Ostrowski, former member of the Polish consulate in Chicago. He received his master's degree at the University of Paris and after the invasion of Poland he became an instructor for a short time at Monticello college, Godfrey, Ill. Count Ostrowski will teach in the French department of the University school.

OLYMPICS BARS LOWERED; GIRLS WILL TAKE PART

Have Place in Games Next Saturday.

Girls will take part in the Northtown Junior Olympics for the first time since the event was started 11 years ago. Sponsored by the Lincoln branch of the Chicago Boys' clubs, 1725 Orchard street, the games will be held next Saturday in St. Michael's field, Hudson and North avenues.

The restriction on girls carried out the tradition of the early Olympic games when women were not even allowed as spectators. However, one mother of a young athlete caused that rule to be abolished, as it has been for the Junior Olympics.

Trained by Mother.

History states that, disguised as a man in the audience, this mother screamed in delight when she saw her son, Pisidorus, come thru to victory. She was seized by the astounded men and by law would have been thrown from a neighboring cliff to her death, but when it was learned that she trained her son after his father's death, she was forgiven and awarded special honors.

Thereafter, women and girls were welcomed to the stadium and not long afterward the historians recorded that Belisiche, a woman from Macedonia, won a chariot race with a pair of colts.

Today's girls are enrolled for both athletic events and the pageant. There will be a rope skipping race and perhaps a few Grecian dances. Instead of the heavy shotput, they will toss bean bags at a target. In a novelty event, they will walk to a goal, take a doll hat from a bushel basket, properly put on the hat, adorned with a 9 inch feather, and walk back to the starting line.

Among Girl Entrants.

Among the girl entrants are Gene Gallagher, 11 years old, 2120 Cleveland avenue; Corrine Hilton, 9, 625 Willow street; Betty Gilardi, 13, 1134 Webster avenue; Lorraine Hilbin, 12, 2150 Clifton avenue; Dorothy Fitzgerald, 13, 1705 Sheffield avenue; Lorraine Muff, 11, 1714 Bissel street; Wilma Butcher, 11, 2019 Sheffield avenue; Catherine Peebley, 10, 1719 Fremont street; Norma Dulleck, 7, 1851 Burling street; Betty Beirl, 12, 1842 Howe street; Helen Donnawell, 12, 1719 Burling street; Mary Roerich, 14, 1651 Burling street; Doris Walsh, 9, 906 Webster avenue, and Mary Ann Yunkers, 9, 2222 Fremont street.

About 3,000 boys and girls are expected to take part in the preliminaries in swimming and softball which will be held this week in the boys' club and the Larrabee Y. M. C. A.

Opens with Assembly.

The Olympics will open Saturday with a general assembly at St. Michael's of all the contestants, uniformed units of R. O. T. C. from neighboring high schools and two drum and bugle corps. The pageant group in Greek costumes and St. Michael's Boys' band will lead the parade around the block.

Side by side will march 11 year old Jimmy Mercouris, of Greek ancestry, representing Phaedimus, the first boy in history to win an Olympic championship, and Tony Carmichael, 12 years old, representing the typical modern American boy.

When the parade reaches the field, the Emperor, performed by Peter Reingruber, will be escorted to his throne. Colors will be posted with ceremony and distinguished guests, including boys representing Plato, Socrates, and Aristotle, will be introduced. Austin Dunkin, chairman of the games, will be master of ceremonies.

All Day Program.

Games and contests will continue thruout the day according to schedule, intermingled with symbolic games and ceremonies as conducted by the ancient Greeks. Jack Swart, radio guild instructor at the club, will give a running commentary of events. Harold Brown, photographer and publicity director, will take movies which later will be shown at boys' clubs thruout the country.

At the close of the day, hundreds of medals, emblem sweaters, and grand trophies will be awarded. Six boys who have a record for good sportsmanship on the field and in their daily lives will receive special honors and the highest will be named the All American boy.

Re-enacting Ancient Greek Rite

For the first time in 11 years girls will have a share in the annual Northtown Junior Olympics, sponsored by the Lincoln branch of the Chicago Boys' clubs, 1725 Orchard street, to be held Saturday in St. Michael's field, Hudson and North avenues. In a rehearsal for the Greek pageant, which will depict the original Olympics, Jimmy Mercouris, 11 years old, 1954 Fremont street, receives the wild olive wreath of victory. Mary Ann Yunkers, 2222 Fremont street, 9 year old Olympic queen, bestows the wreath while George Zavala (left) and Dick Karcel look on. Eleven year old George of 2154 North Halsted street, is a marathon runner, and Dick, 1901 Mohawk street, 10 years old, hurls the javelin.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, Sept. 9.

Leaves soon will be falling and the energetic gardener will save them for composting or to allow them to decay to form desirable material for combining with soil for house plants, for mulching, or for other purposes. If the leaves are dry, wet them down to hasten decomposition.

If straw, leaves, cornstalks, or similar material is composted with a nitrogen bearing material, such as sulphate of ammonia or cyanamid and ground limestone and sprinkled with water, it will break down the material in a few months and result in a rich brown substance that has the appearance of rotted manure. By adding available phosphate and potash it will contain the essential elements for a complete fertilizer. Various brands are offered by firms to hasten the decay of the compost.

Tuesday, Sept. 10.

Do not feed roses late in fall or a soft growth will result which is quite likely to freeze back during winter. The new lawn can be made around the middle of this month. Do not delay this important work until spring. It is a good time to dig perennial weeds that are in the lawn. Remember that a heavy stand of blue grass will keep weeds down to a minimum. Make a fine seedbed by carefully spading up bare places and raking up all lumps before sowing. The seed will never germinate properly if the soil is merely scratched, and if it is packed hard. Use about four pounds of seed per 100 square feet for new lawns and two pounds per 100 square feet on old lawns that need repair.

Wednesday, Sept. 11.

Order bulbs for fall planting. If there are ant colonies on the lawn or garden control can be effected by the use of carbon bisulphide. Insert an iron rod four to six inch intervals and pour in each a tablespoonful of the carbon bisulphide; cover with a wet burlap or blanket. The fumes will enter every tunnel or runway and kill the ants. Use care in handling the carbon bisulphide because it is poisonous and inflammable. Be careful not to spill it on the grass.

Plant narcissus bulbs this month, as early as possible. Divide old clumps of peonies so they will be well established before severe weather. They do best in medium heavy, rich soil. Do not plant more than two to three inches deep. The best time to plant is between Sept. 15 and mid-October.

Seeding pansies should be transplanted now to give good growth before cold weather. They may be planted where they are to flower next spring if protected. Lay in material for winter mulching.

Thursday, Sept. 12.

Most perennials can be transplanted in fall, except the autumn blooming varieties. The entire perennial border can be remade if desired. Enrich the soil and dig deeply to accommodate the roots. Use tulips and other spring flowering bulbs in colonies in the foreground and the blooming season will be lengthened.

Friday, Sept. 13.

Applications of liquid manure to the budding chrysanthemums will give larger blooms. Disbudding also will give fine flowers.

Continue spraying roses and plants affected with rust or mildew. Dusting with sulphur will serve as a control, but a regular system must be continued to be effective. If a branch of the lilac or dogwood suddenly wilts examine the stems for borers and dig them out, if found.

Saturday, Sept. 14.

Rhubarb and asparagus can be planted. Cultivation of roses should be discontinued now to enable the plants to thoroly ripen before winter. Sow hardy annuals now for earlier flowering next season. Plants which self-seed in the garden can all be planted.

2,000 ON RELIEF FORM ARMY TO CUT CITY'S WEEDS

Two thousand persons receiving direct relief were put to work cutting and pulling weeds in vacant lots and city parkways during the first eight months of this year. Some 1,850 acres—77,853,949 square feet—were cleared under the direction of the bureau of streets.

"It was the first time in the history of the city that reliefers have done this type of work," Oscar E. Hewitt, commissioner of public works, said. "They worked for the relief they obtained. Many said that they preferred working to sitting at home in idleness. They liked the idea of repaying the public for the relief which the taxes supplied."

In a checkup of the first eight months this year the public works commissioner has tabulated in square feet the number of weeds cut. The tabulation has been compiled by wards.

The doors of the William Booth training college, school for Salvation Army cadets, will open Wednesday to the largest class in a decade. More than 90 students will attend the college this year, following which they face five more years of intensive study in various subjects.

All of the cadets have graduated from high school, and have successfully passed six years of a correspondence course. Four definite subjects are studied each day during the college term.

Considerable time is devoted to field training, first aid, homiletics, early church history, and family case work. The college is located at 700 Brompton avenue.

Recent transfers affecting Chicago posts of the Salvation army were Adjutant and Mrs. Eris Anderson from the Evanston corps to Minneapolis. SUBURBAN HIGH SCHOOLS ENROLL 12,200 PUPILS

Changes Made in North Shore Faculties.

Zion-Benton's enrollment probably will go slightly over the 500 mark. Another room was finished for the band, the walks were laid, and the grounds were graded and terraced to be ready for landscaping.

W. L. Davies, principal, reported three additions to the faculty: Miss Margaret Dady for social studies, Miss Fay Nease for mathematics and English, Chester Bagg for vocal music. Benjamin Wathen is replacing William Nelson in the commerce department, and Miss Elizabeth Furr's position in the English department will be filled shortly.

No Gain at Libertyville.

The same faculty will instruct the 540 students at Libertyville High, according to Henry E. Underbrink, principal. The enrollment figure has not varied from last June either.

New Trier's enrollment of 2,700 is an increase of 50 over last year. Matthew P. Gaffney, principal, announced that classes will start tomorrow on the regular schedule. O. A. Oaks, from the industrial arts department, an exchange teacher last year to Hawaii, is back, and W. W. Smith has returned to Hawaii.

New instructors include Joe Giallombardo, physical education; Miss Adelaide Green, commerce; Miss Ann Keith, dramatics, and Miss Jean Small, an intern in the French department. Mrs. Edith Dell, Miss Polly Feeney, and Mrs. Margel Hildebrand retired.

Has New Principal.

A. E. Wolters, former dean of boys at Highland Park High, is the new principal, replacing Miss Minnie Buzard, who resigned. This year's enrollment is 1,320, an increase of 45 over last June. The chemistry laboratory has been modernized and three new buses were purchased.

In addition to the new principal, there have been nine replacements on the faculty, and Lloyd Cunningham will teach chemistry while Benjamin Ball is on a year's leave of absence. George Craig Stewart is taking on some of Mr. Wolter's former duties as dean.

New teachers include Charles S. Stunkel, mathematics; Miss Alice D. Anderson, Italian and French; Miss Lorraine Frick, English and social studies; Walter Hargesheimer, physical education; Roland Ortmayer, part time in the physical education department; Leslie Libakken, social studies; Walter Aschenbrenner, music department; Mrs. A. M. Allison, Latin, and Miss Gladys Cairncross, home economics.

Those who resigned were Theodore Carpenter, Miss Harriet Cowles, Mrs. Violet Kruger, Miss Dorothy Barton, Tharon Parsons, Frank Young, Robert Gibson, William Fisher, and Mrs. Helen Manning.

Four New Evanston Teachers.

Francis Bacon, principal of Evanston Township High school, expects approximately the same enrollment as last year, 3,200 students. The building has received its regular summer cleaning, but no changes have been made in its facilities. Four new teachers have joined the faculty, Miss Rose McGlennon, librarian; Miss Jean Fair, social studies, and Miss Joanna Sousley and John Patterson, physical education department. Joseph Brye, Charles Dahner and James McDonough resigned.

Heads Guild

Mrs. A. J. Hayes, 1055 Granville avenue, president of St. Gertrude's school guild, will preside at the opening meeting of the guild tomorrow in the school hall, Granville and Glenwood avenues. Judge Frank M. Padden will speak.

EXPERTS X-RAY DANGER CORNERS NOS. 9, 10, AND 11

Urge Drivers to Obey the Traffic Laws.

"Public enemy" corners Nos. 9, 10, and 11 on the north side were named last week by the traffic department of the Chicago Motor club. They are Broadway-Clifton-Leland, Addison street and Sheffield avenue, and Ashland avenue and Irving Park road.

From a pedestrian viewpoint the most complicated corner of the three is Broadway-Clifton-Leland, three crowded intersecting streets made doubly dangerous by elevated supports jutting upwards in the traffic stream. The corner is only a block away from "public enemy' corner No. 7, Broadway-Lawrence-Racine, the heart of the busy Uptown shopping center.

Crowds Divert Drivers.

Fifty per cent of the accidents from January, 1939, thru May, 1940, were pedestrian casualties, a survey made by motor club engineers shows. Thirty per cent of the total were rear-end collisions, engineers found. The reason is that drivers have their attention diverted by the great numbers of pedestrians dodging in and out among the elevated supports. Hundreds of times a day drivers are forced to stop so suddenly to avoid striking a pedestrian that their cars often are hit from the rear by other automobiles.

As a solution, engineers recommended rigid pedestrian control and strict enforcement of traffic ordinances.

Cubs park at Addison street and Sheffield avenue, No. 10 danger corner, has very little to do with the high accident rate at this intersection, the engineers say. They found in the 18 month period that 71 per cent of the accidents occurred after dark.

Alcohol Gets Blame.

The chief accident factor is high speed. The engineers theorized that since most of the collisions occurred after 11 o'clock in the evening alcohol is a contributing factor. They urged the enforcement of all traffic laws as a way of cutting down the accident toll.

At Ashland avenue and Irving Park road, No. 11, the traffic flow is heavier than at any other intersection in the city with the exception of some corners in the parks and on the Outer drive. Engineers say the accompanying collision diagram shows that accidents are more evenly apportioned here than at any other corner, indicating that no outstanding hazard exists other than congestion.

Mostly Car Collisions.

Altho Lake View High school is at this corner, pedestrian accidents are in a minority. Rear-end collisions account for 39 per cent of the total in the 18 month period. A typical example, engineers say, is the motorist who, approaching the intersection on an amber light, hesitates, then suddenly applies his brakes and is struck from the rear. Lighting was not found to be a factor because only 38 per cent of the mishaps occurred after dark.

Caution on the part of drivers and reduction of speed are the solutions to cutting accidents here, the engineers assert.

[In an early issue of the Metropolitan Section the north side's "public enemy" corners Nos. 12, 13, and 14 will be analyzed.]

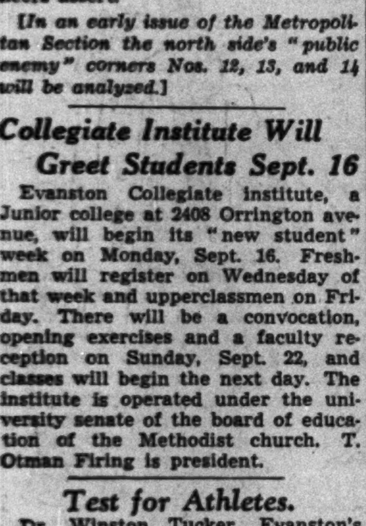
Collegiate Institute Will Greet Students Sept. 16

Evanston Collegiate institute, a Junior college at 2408 Orrington avenue, will begin its "new student" week on Monday, Sept. 16. Freshmen will register on Wednesday of that week and upperclassmen on Friday. There will be a convocation, opening exercises and a faculty reception on Sunday, Sept. 22, and classes will begin the next day. The institute is operated under the university senate of the board of education of the Methodist church. T. Otman Firing is president.

Test for Athletes.

Dr. Winston Tucker, Evanston's commissioner, will examine those students at Evanston High school who expect to engage in fall athletics, it is announced by the school's athletic department.

Pedestrian Hazard



Scurrying pedestrians under the elevated structure figure in most of the accidents at Broadway-Clifton-Leland, danger corner No. 9 on the north side's list of most dangerous intersections. Box score from January, 1939 thru May, 1940: Accidents, 20; injuries, 13; pedestrian mishaps, 10; two car accidents, 8; car-truck accidents, 1; miscellaneous, 1.

August Bride

Miss Marion Louise Denham, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick T. Denham, 3 Banks street, was married Aug. 10 to David Wells, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry L. Wells of Evanston. The wedding took place at the Fourth Presbyterian church and the reception was held in the Drake.

BUILDS A CASTLE TO WHILE AWAY HIS LONG NIGHTS

Hotel Clerk Wears Out Four Knives.

BY DAVID ANDERSON.

The slowest thing in the world for a night clerk in a small hotel is time. It shuffles along like a turtle with no place to go and all night to get there.

John F. Johnson.

Before midnight, if you're a night clerk, you have things to do, usually. You have the phones to answer. The guests call and want you "to be sure to ring at 7:15, I was late for work this morning"; or, "please ask Henry to bring up some extra towels"; or, "send up some more sparkling water and a couple of hamburgers, well-done"; or, "tell that party downstairs not to make so much noise, we can't sleep" or, "leave a message for the janitor to fix the window."

Time Crawls On.

So it goes until midnight. But from then on time plods across the red-carpeted lobby and comes to a standstill at the hotel desk. It doesn't move. It stands there silent and waiting as the weary hands on the clock tick off two, then three, then four and five o'clock in slow motion.

That's how it seems to a night clerk after he's read the midnight papers, the latest G-Man pulp and all of last week's picture magazines. That's how it is, if you're a night clerk and if you don't have a hobby.

And that's how it was for John F. Johnson, night clerk at the Alden Inn hotel, 4526 Sheridan road, before he built his castle. He calls it the Agate Castle and it is a miniature of a 16th century Bavarian country manor. The castle stands about three feet high and is equipped with furniture carved out of solid walnut. Everything is made to scale and everything in the castle is in authentic 16th century design.

Studded With Agates.

He made it out of orange boxes, tarpaper, concrete, glass and stone. It weighs more than 150 pounds and the outside is studded with 1,100 agates which Johnson brought back from a trip to the Dakotas.

He built the castle as a defense against slow time at night. It took three years. Figuring up the working hours, Johnson says, "Altogether it took 3,500 hours before I was satisfied with it." His only tools were pocket knives.

One side of the white and brown castle is cut away like a doll house to show the interior. Each room is furnished exactly to the specifications which Johnson dug out of architectural histories. Candelabra [which he fashioned from a floor lamp decoration] hang from the tiny hewn beams. In the dining hall are heavy walnut tables and benches, velvet hangings and miniature copies of great works of art.

Wears Out Knives.

"I used only a knife," Johnson says. "The whole thing except for the concrete and glass is hand carved. I wore out my hands and four knives in the process."

He is 38 years old and has been in the hotel business for 15 years. He was 16 when he joined the army in the world war. When the war was over he enlisted in the navy. He claims to be one of the youngest American Legion members in the city.

"I got a great kick out of making my castle," he says. "I love to create things. But wounldn't do it again for $5,000, even tho it does fill in the time."

Are you selling all the people right in your own neighborhood who might trade with you?

For more than 12 years, large and small businesses located in many neighborhoods and suburbs of Chicago have proved conclusively that there is no better way to build sales and profits than by running a consistent schedule of low-cost advertising in the Sunday Tribune Metropolitan sections.

During 1939, a total of 745 neighborhood enterprises used this advertising plan to get a greater share of the patronage of the families who can best trade with them.

One or more of these five sections — North, Northwest, West, Southwest, and South — are edited for and read exclusively by the families in your trading area.

300 More Cadets Will Be in Uniform.

With the beginning of the school term more than 9,800 students are expected to take part in R. O. T. C. activities in Chicago high schools. In answer to the increasing demand for training more of the city's youths, the war department has authorized an increase of 300 uniformed cadets in the city's enrollment.

Col. William F. Morrison, head of the Chicago public school units, expects 7,800 uniformed cadets in the public school training corps for this school year.

Because of the need for funds in the training of men for the regular army, the war department has been unable to answer the request of many schools for the installation of units. Consequently the number of schools offering training will remain as last year—27 public high schools and one Catholic school.

Must Buy Uniforms.

The Catholic school is St. Mel's at 1 North Kildare avenue. About 800 students are expected to take part in the work. Of this number, 250 are freshmen, who will, as in the public schools, be forced to either go without or buy their own uniforms. The government furnishes uniforms only for upper classmen.

The allotted 7,800 public school cadets will be augmented by freshmen in the various schools who wish to take the training but are not allowed to have uniforms. Approximately 1,200 boys are expected to volunteer for freshmen work.

There have been no changes in the officer staffs for the coming year, and no new military instructors have been assigned. However, Col. Morrison said the war department had authorized the appointment of five new instructors, and that applications for the posts were being received.

Instructions Are Same.

No changes are expected in drill instruction, as the new army drill manual was adopted last year by the Chicago units. The present drill system conforms to the latest type authorized by the war department for all infantry organizations.

During the summer many improvements have been made in the schools that will facilitate training of the students.

At Lane, Staff Sergeant Gillman R. Carle was promoted to technical sergeant, and at Steinmetz, Staff Sergeant Carl Christofferson received the same promotion At Sullivan, Sergt. Anthony Gristhus was promoted to staff sergeant.

NORTH SIDE FLYER STARTS FINAL WORK FOR AIR COMMISSION

Raymond D. Sampson, 4844 North Paulina street, was among 225 pilots to be transferred last week from Randolph field to Kelly field, Tex., for the last lap of the air corps training course. Young Sampson and the other flying students have already completed 20 weeks of intensive flight training.

Raymond D. Sampson.

After his final period of training at Kelly field Sampson will be graduated to the rank of second lieutenant in the Air Corps reserve. He has been credited with 135 hours of flying time.

At Kelly field the cadets are given advanced training in pursuit, bombardment, attack and observation for the army air corps. Sampson was among nine Illinois cadets to be transferred from Randolph to Kelly field.

Legion Trowel Post 160 Due to Hold Installation

DISCUSS DRAFT OF INDUSTRY ON W-G-N TODAY

"Should the government be able to conscript industry in the interests of national defense?" This question and others on the relationship of government and defense industries will be discussed on the Northwestern university reviewing stand from 10:15 to 10:30 a. m. today over W-G-N and the Mutual network.

Frank H. Gane, professor of economics and finance, and Paul L. Morrison, professor of finance, both of Northwestern university, will be speakers. Both Dr. Gane and Dr. Morrison, who is also partner in a firm of investment counselors, are specialists on the relation of government to business.

Dr. Gane and Dr. Morrison will analyze their subject in the light of recent developments as well as in terms of the best long-run approach to the coördination of industries in the interests of defense. Should government have control over industry? Who should have the power? are among the questions Dr. Gane and Dr. Morrison will consider.

The analysis will be the fifth in the reviewing stand's series on America's major problems. Because of the permanent reference value of the series, copies of the talks are being offered to listeners.

'YOUR TREAT' AIRS SEARS TENOR AND KOGEN ENSEMBLE

"Your Treat," featuring Charles Sears, romantic young tenor, and Harry Kogen's stringed ensemble, will be presented from 10 to 10:15 a. m., Tuesdays, Thursdays, and Saturdays over W-G-N.

Sears has been soloist in network shows since 1932. Co-star Kogen is a noted violinist and composer as well as leader of the stringed ensemble, Kogen has conducted everything from jazz to opera in his many radio engagements.

NORMAN TO AIR QUIZ OF WOMEN ONLY ON W-G-N

Don Norman's street show, featuring interviews with women only, will be broadcast from 2 to 2:15 p. m., daily except Saturday and Sunday, over W-G-N starting tomorrow. Norman will operate from a microphone in front of the McVicker's theater on Madison street. He formerly worked in the lobby of the Oriental.

Originator of "Man on the Street" interviews in Chicago, Norman has broadcast his show for five years. He pops highly personal questions at the ladies and receives frank and willing answers. Names of those interviewed are not announced on the air.

MAUREEN O'HARA, LUCILLE BALL 'IN CHICAGO TONIGHT'

Thursday W-G-N Show to Feature Film Stars.

Two of Hollywood's most glamorous stars, Lucille Ball and Maureen O'Hara, will be starred on the W-G-N Mutual "In Chicago Tonight" program next Thursday evening from 7:30 to 8 o'clock. They will be presented in the W-G-N audience studio in a special dramatic program titled "On Stage, Please," written by W-G-N's noted producer-director, William A. Bacher, and a Hollywood author, Ashmead Scott.

Miss Ball and Miss O'Hara are coming to Chicago especially to take part in this presentation of "In Chicago Tonight." In passing thru Chicago en route east for a personal appearance tour, the Hollywood stars were offered the radio engagement. They will interrupt their tour at Buffalo to return to Chicago for this production of the nationally known W-G-N program.

Miss O'Hara is known as one of the most photogenic stars in Hollywood. Recently she was selected as the year's most promising actress as a result of her fine work in the above mentioned pictures. Maureen came to American movies from her native Dublin via the Abbey players and the legitimate stage.

Blonde Lucille Ball has a long list of movie successes to her credit. Her work in "Dance, Girl, Dance" has been hailed by movie critics in previews as outstanding. In this picture Miss Ball, like Miss O'Hara, clearly demonstrates her ability to handle rôles in musical shows as well as in the dramatic picture field.

In "Dance, Girl, Dance," Miss Ball and Miss O'Hara stage one of the screen classic fistic battles. The two girls portray chorus girls who finally decide the best way to settle their difficulties is by the manly art of fisticuffs.

The movie stars will be supported by an all-star cast of Chicago radio actors and actresses in Mr. Bacher's presentation of "On Stage, Please." Miss O'Hara and Miss Ball will arrive on Thursday morning and will be rushed into rehearsals for the evening's performance.

WILLIAMS GETS RECORD HOOKUP FOR NEWSCASTS

Wythe Williams, Mutual news analyst and noted foreign correspondent, will go on the air over Mutual on Tuesday in a program which will afford him the largest commercial hookup of stations ever made available to a newscaster. He will be heard twice-weekly on Tuesdays and Thursdays over W-G-N from 7 to 7:15 p. m., with a repeat broadcast from 9:30 to 9:45 p. m.

Williams will go on the air from 93 stations. The program represents the most inclusive contract ever signed by the Mutual Broadcasting System, and also represents the most extensive broadcast of a twice-weekly commercial program ever heard.

Williams, author of a newspaper column, "As the Clock Strikes," has rocketed to national prominence by the accuracy of his amazing newsbeats since he went on the air lanes less than eight months ago.

Williams is a veteran of 26 years spent abroad representing English and American newspapers. As correspondent for the New York Times, he witnessed many of the biggest battles of the world war. After the war, he roamed the continent from Istanbul to London writing for newspapers and magazines and making contacts which have proved so valuable to him today. He returned to this country in 1936 and wrote a book, "Dusk of Empire."

Born in Meadville, Pa., in 1881, Williams was educated at Ohio Wesleyan, and received his newspaper ABC's on Minneapolis, Milwaukee, and Chicago papers. In 1910, while on the staff of the old New York World, he went to Europe on a vacation. He arrived in London the same day Edward VII. died, and was drafted into service as a correspondent immediately.

In New Role

Josephine Gilbert is an addition to NBC's Kitty Keane program, taking the role of Miss Branch. Josephine came to Chicago from Detroit, where she starred in several air dramas.

OPEN PAGEANT OF MELODY WITH D'ALBERT WORK

The W-G-N Concert orchestra will open Henry Weber's "Pageant of Melody," from 9:15 to 10 p. m. Wednesday with a presentation of the overture from Eugen D'Albert's "Der Improvisator." With Kathryn Witwer, soprano, and Attilio Baggiore, tenor, as featured artists, the program will be broadcast over W-G-N and the Mutual network.

The W-G-N chorus will sing Georg Handel's largo and will join Miss Witwer and Baggiore in presenting themes from Kalman—"Love's Own Sweet Song," "To Its Waiting Nest," and "Play Gypsies, Dance Gypsies"—for the finale number.

"Dance of the Bouffons," by Nicolai Rimsky-Korsakov, and Felix Mendelssohn's Scherzo will be played by the Concert orchestra.

Patti Clayton, Massey in Solo Spots.

The Friday Night Show, a new program directed by Harold Stokes, with Patti Clayton and Curt Massey as featured vocalists, will be broadcast from 7 to 7:30 p. m. over W-G-N and the Mutual network, starting next Friday. The W-G-N dance orchestra, under Stokes' baton, and the octet will be presented regularly on the weekly show.

Miss Clayton, youthful W-G-N singing discovery, will make her début as regular soloist with a presentation of "Fools Rush In." She will join Massey and the octet in singing "We Could Make Such Beautiful Music" as the evening finale.

"Sierra Sue" will be presented by Massey as his solo. A romantic baritone, Massey's singing style is sweet and smooth. In contrast, he is adept in swinging out hot music on the violin. Massey will combine his vocal and violin talents in a special adaptation of "Honeysuckle Rose."

Miss Clayton, who is 20 years old, began singing on W-G-N in January, 1938, when she appeared as one of the "Four Shades of Blue" on another Stokes program. At present she sings with the "Three Graces," and also appears in solo presentations with Pianist Harold Turner.

Massey, a drawling Texan, had his first vocal experience singing chuck wagon ballads with members of his father's ranch crew. He now owns a ranch near Roswell, N. M. Capitalizing on his open space background, Massey has sung with a singing group known as the "Westerners" for eight years.

The Friday Night Show will replace Wings for America, W-G-N-Mutual's summer drama featuring Elissa Landi and Phillips Holmes, which closed a ten week run last Friday. The new program will be an audience show, as was Wings for America.

OPERA FESTIVAL TODAY TO OFFER 'MANON' RECORDS

"Manon" will be the opera broadcast on the Opera Festival program from 5 to 7 p. m. today over station WAAF. The program is a preview, via recordings, of the Chicago Opera company's coming season, which opens at the Civic Opera house Nov. 2 with a 30th anniversary presentation of "Aida."

Cardelli has announced next Saturday as the deadline for radio listeners' votes on their favorite opera. The opera receiving the most votes will be presented on the Opera Festival program Sept. 22. Yesterday the "Marriage of Figaro" was in first place, with "Aida" second and "La Boheme" and "The Magic Flute" tied for third.

ALL-MALE VOCAL PROGRAM CARDED BY NORTHERNERS

An all-male vocal program will be featured by the Northerners from 9:30 to 10 p. m. Tuesday over W-G-N. Ralph Nylund, tenor, will be soloist, Robert Kessler and Earle Wilkie will sing a duet, and the remainder of the numbers will be presented by the male octet.

Villoldo's "El Choclo," sung by the octet, will open the program. Nylund will present "Serenade" from Romberg's "Student Prince" as his solo. Kessler and Wilkie will sing "Solenne in Quest Ora," by Verdi, as their duet.

The octet also will sing "The Ride of the Cossacks," by Rachmaninoff, "Rock and Roll," by Whiting, "I'll Never Smile Again," and a medley of songs from Chopin including "Polonaise," "Fantasie Impromptu," and "Nocturne."

REVIVE AVONDALE HIGHWAY PLANS

13 ATTEND FIRST CHURCH RITES; ROSTER NOW 800

Messiah Lutheran Is to Celebrate.

The Messiah Evangelical Lutheran church, Melvina and Patterson avenues, will celebrate its 15th anniversary with a week long program beginning next Sunday. The Rev. Theodore L. Blanken, organizer and first pastor of the church, will be the main speaker at the opening of the celebration.

The Rev. Theodore Blanken.

In the summer of 1924, the Northern Illinois district of the Missouri Synod canvassed the territory in the vicinity of the present church building and found warrant for the establishment of a mission. The first services were conducted by the Rev. Mr. Blanken an Oct. 26, 1924. Nine adults and four children attended.

Adopt a Constitution.

On Feb. 8, 1925, a constitution was adopted. The present chapel and school were dedicated on Aug. 29, 1926. When the church was opened it was almost inaccessible due to the muddy streets but thru the efforts of the Ladies Aid, the street was paved.

The Rev. Franklin Geise.

By 1936, the congregation had grown to such extent that it was necessary to conduct three services each Sunday to accommodate the 600 communicant members.

Pastor Blanken became ill in December, 1936, and during his illness Candidate Franklin C. Giese, a graduate of Concordia seminary, St. Louis, was engaged to serve the congregation. He was ordained in the same month at the Ebenezer Lutheran church in Milwaukee and assumed the pastorial duties at Messiah. In April, 1937, he officially accepted the post of pastor.

South Wing Added.

In the fall of 1937, the south wing was added increasing the seating capacity to 350 but this did not suffice and it again became necessary to hold the three services each Sunday.

The Messiah Christian day school was opened in September 1926 and now has an enrollment of 120 pupils. The faculty includes J. M. Roth, Harold Wukasch, and R. T. Stahlecker.

The Woman's club, organized in 1925, is now headed by Mrs. A. M. Niles, and the Men's club has Fred Koehler as president. The first youth organization at the church was also started in 1925 and is now a member of the Northern Illinois district of the International Walther league. One service each year is given to the "Unite the Youth" program and the young people are in full charge of the program on that day.

There are three choirs, junior, treble, and senior mixed. The Messiah Girls trio, Dorothy Bartels, June Rennhack, and Lois Schauer, won first place in the International Walther league talent quest recently.

Program for Week.

During the anniversary week the program will be: Sunday, the Rev. Mr. Blanken will speak at 9 o'clock in the morning and the Rev. William Lochner, pastor of the Nazareth church in Milwaukee, will speak at the 10 and 11 o'clock services; Monday evening will be Christian education night. Displays of the work done by the Christian day school and the Sunday school will be shown and the Rev. Thomas Coates, secretary of the International Walther league will speak.

Tuesday night will be Ladies Aid and Men's club night; a motion picture on the work of the missions will be shown. Wednesday will be young people's night and the evening will be dedicated to members of the Junior and Senior Walther league societies and to all the other young people in the congregation.

Music night will be held on Thursday by the singing organizations of the congregation; there will be choral selections by the various choirs, a number by the special massed chorus, and instrumental music.

The anniversary dinner will be held at St. John's church auditorium, Montrose and Lavergne avenues. The speaker for the evening will be the Rev. Mr. Blanken, and the toastmaster will be the Rev. Mr. Giese. Saturday will married couples' night.

Sunday, the last day of the celebration, Dr. John Theodore Mueller of Concordia seminary, St. Louis, will speak at the 10 o'clock English service.

G. O. P. Women to Meet.

Boys Club Gets 400 Members in 5 Months

The Humboldt Park Boys' club was born on May 1 and there were about 100 in the charter group. Now at the beginning of the fifth month of its existence, the membership has passed the 400 mark and Meyer Visotzky, the director, has discovered that the opening of the schools already has increased the roster, for club members have told their classmates of the organization and many recruits have joined.

The club is sponsored by the Young Men's Jewish council and is the youngest of the four clubs which the council sponsors. The club, for lack of better quarters, occupies a basement store at 3230 West Division street, but the director and the sponsors hope in the near future to find better club rooms.

Has Only Essentials.

The club room is fitted out with only the essentials but has been usable, as the boys have been able to spend most of their time outdoors. The boys are from 9 to 17 years of age.

The limited facilities include one ping pong table which is so popular that boys sign up three hours ahead of time in order to play for 15 minutes, and as many as 100 boys play in a single day.

A junior pool table, chess games, checkers, and books fill the time when the boys must remain indoors. There is a horse shoe pit back of the building which the boys dug themselves. Marshall Falk is the champion horseshoe pitcher. Baseball, miniature golf [the champion is Kenneth Levisk] and shuffleboard, which is led by champion Jerry Sideman, all fill the athletic schedule.

Add Touch Football.

Morris Leibik and Isadore Salario who supervise the games are now introducing their charges, who represent all races and creeds, to touch football. There will be a tournament which will be open to all of the boys in the Humboldt park neighborhood.

A dairy sells milk to the boys for less than they would have to pay at a store.

The club is governed by the boys thru a council which they have elected. Present council members are Arthur Gartzman, Maurice Sliznick, Laurence Goldstein, Donald Jens, Joseph Weiss, Marshall Falk, and Irwin Arkin. The president of the council is Manuel Dresnet.

EXPAND BETTER SPEECH CLASSES IN DES PLAINES

The fifth year of speech adjustment study initiated by E. R. Selleck, superintendent of the Des Plaines schools, and the school nurse, Miss Louise Menard, is under way in the suburb, with three new part time teachers to help in the work.

Des Plaines schools were among the first to begin this work. Miss Menard called Mr. Selleck's attention to the fact that in one class there were six children who had speech defects. Mrs. Pulaski Gaines of the Children's Memorial hospital was contacted and during the first year she worked with the children several hours a week.

Thru Mrs. Gaines' work more cases were discovered. For the last three years teachers who are working on their masters' degrees at Northwestern university have taught part time at the Des Plaines schools.

These special teachers not only work with the children who have speech defects individually, but they also have classes for all the children in speech work.

Junior high school children have special auditorium work in speech and dramatics. The aim is to be as democratic as possible, and the program is so arranged that all of the children have an equal opportunity to appear on the stage. As Supt. Selleck points out, the purpose of the speech work is not to entertain the public but to give each child an opportunity to take part in a program.

New teachers in the Des Plaines grammar schools are: Miss Joanne Walker Mercer, home economics; Miss Ivahugh Pickens, English; Miss Janice Edna Doherty, English; Miss Mary Collins, second grade; Miss Grace Wagner, speech work; Miss Dorothy Light, speech work; Miss Margaret Payne, speech work. Mrs. Edna Elfrink, principal of North Division school, is taking a year's leave of absence, and Wilbur Sulzbach is taking her place.

ASSEMBLE DATA ON HISTORY OF LOGAN SQUARE

Several folders of historical data on Logan Square have already been assembled in the Logan Square branch of the public library, where Miss Marion Roberts, assistant librarian, is in charge of a collection of material on the development of the community. More such material is sought, Miss Roberts said.

Most of the material has been given by old residents of the neighborhood, who have letters, photographs, and other matter, dating in some cases as much as 50 years back. Miss Roberts and Miss Helene La Berge have interviewed many old-time residents and included the results of these interviews in the collection.

The next step in the program, as suggested by Carl B. Roden, head librarian of the Chicago public library, is to mail form letters to all of those who are known to have connections leading back to the early days of the community and asking for whatever material they can spare, or at least an interview.

MOTOR COUNCIL TO STUDY MEANS FOR FINANCING

Thru Route Urged to Save Lives.

Renewal of the struggle for an elevated highway along Avondale avenue from the loop to Lawrence avenue will mark the first fall meeting of the Northwest Area council of the Chicago Motor club tomorrow noon.

This has been the primary aim of the council since its inception four years ago, but it was dealt a serious blow last spring when the Supreme court decided that state motor fuel tax funds could not be used for the project, which motor club engineers estimate would cost in the neighborhood of $28,000,000.

Financing Is Problem.

John H. Kerr, chairman of the council, and Frank Tomczak, super highway committee chairman, revived the project and some form of action will probably be drawn up at tomorrow's meeting in the Irving Park Y. M. C. A. The most important question confronting the group will be a new means of financing the 11-mile project.

Charles M. Hayes, president of the Chicago Motor club, has pointed out that the motoring public of the entire state would benefit by the construction of Chicago super-highways.

"In connection with the Avondale route," Hayes said, "our engineers have calculated that placing this traffic on elevated highways, isolated from pedestrians and cross traffic, would prevent 27 traffic deaths and 900 injuries a year.

Would Save 32 Minutes.

"Individual motorists using the whole length of the proposed highway," he continued, "would save 32 minutes in traveling time to the loop. Those whose homes are near the route and closer to the loop would save proportionally. Our survey shows that 78,000 cars would use this route daily."

He added, as an indication of the wide endorsement given to the plan, that many communities which would not be directly served by the route have gone on record in afvor of it, among them Park Ridge, Barrington, Wheeling, and Libertyville.

All present officers of the council have been recommended by the nominating committee for reëlection tomorrow. They are besides Mr. Kerr, who represents the Norwood Park Citizen's association: Bernard S. Molay, Portage Park Chamber of Commerce, vice-chairman; and Vincent C. Rozycki, Northwest Civic association, secretary.

Members of the executive committee named for reëlection are Frank Tomczak, Harry G. Weimer, newspaper publisher, and Police Magistrate Oscar K. Stahle of Park Ridge.

Study Viaduct Changes.

The council includes in its active membership representatives from two score civic organizations, aldermen from northwest side wards, northwest suburban officials, the Illinois Commerce commission, and the state highway department.

A second large scale job which will probably receive considerable attention during the year is the revision of the present viaduct of the Chicago and North Western railroad over the intersection of Western avenue and Logan boulevard. The problem of parking on Milwaukee avenue will also be discussed, and reports will be presented on pedestrian protection at the crossing of Elston, Diversey, and Western avenues; street lights for Foster avenue; and improving the intersection of Wrightwood and Kostner avenues.

The major projects recommended by the council on the northwest side and now under construction are the Central avenue bridge over the railroad tracks between Grand and North avenues, and the Mannheim road bridge over railroad yards in Franklin Park.

MOTHERS CO-OPERATE TO SUPPORT ELMWOOD PARK KINDERGARTEN

Because of the village of Elmwood Park has failed to establish a public kindergarten in connection with its school system, a unique sort of school has developed there which will enter its fourth year tomorrow.

The mothers have started a school of their own for their children. The organization is officially called the Kindergarten Mothers. It rents a room in the Westwood Community Methodist church for $20 a month, and charges $3 a month tuition for each of the 40 or 50 children who attend the kindergarten.

Miss Valentina Adaskevich is employed to conduct the kindergarten in the morning, and offers classes in education in the afternoon. The kindergarten classes consist largely of organized games, reading, and piano playing.

Mrs. Charles W. Davey, president of the mothers, said that last year there were 50 applications and only 40 were able to be taken, and that if applications tomorrow surpassed this figure, it might be necessary to employ an assistant to Miss Adaskevich. A meeting of the mothers will be held in the village hall Friday evening.

Voice of the Northwest Side

Some years ago in your paper you printed the names of the owners of cars which were observed being driven carelessly or recklessly, or whose drivers were discourteous to others. I don't know why it was stopped, but I think the custom ought to be revived.

For many drivers, I think, the fear of having themselves exposed as bad or discourteous drivers is greater than the fear of paying a small fine. And moreover, many of the discourtesies and common infractions, such as beating a red light, are ones which are not punished by law, but which are as influential in causing accidents as speeding.

I don't suppose northwest side drivers are worse than any others, but I could sit on any corner along Northwest highway and take down the numbers of innumerable "mosquitoes of the road." Can't you revive some system of having your men report the numbers of cars which they see repeatedly violating some law of common safety and print the owner's name? If the owner is not driving, he will be more careful whom he lets use his car.

MRS. T. F.

WHY SO MANY CLUBS?

I noticed in last week's Metropolitan section a letter from "A Centralist" asking why local improvement clubs didn't unite instead of trying to rival each other, tho they all are seeking pretty much the same things.

I agree with him, but would like to suggest one reason why they don't unite. It is politics. In my district I know of three men's clubs. Two of them are divided along political lines, the third is a group bearing a racial distinction.

One of the political clubs is merely a stooge for some of our representatives in the present administration. It ballyhoos them and tries to give credit for everything to them, as well as votes. The other, realizing the same needs for the community, is even more anxious to block the efforts of the opposing club. Haven't we enough trouble with politics in the city without having them obstruct our local betterment clubs?

ANOTHER CENTRALIST.

FOUR NEW WARDS JOIN 100% RANKS IN DRIVE ON RATS

5,065 Buildings Supplied with Garbage Cans.

By the end of this month every building in Chicago will be supplied with a garbage can and at that time the city will launch its long awaited blitzkrieg against an army of 500,000 rats. So says Oscar E. Hewitt, commissioner of public works, the big city Pied Piper who is working to rid Chicago of rats in the modern manner.

By the end of the month, when the city will have armed itself 100 per cent with garbage cans, starvation is expected to decimate the rat army.

18 Perfect Wards.

The latest report on Mr. Hewitt's desk shows that the number of wards now rated as 100 per cent in being supplied with garbage cans—a garbage can for each building—has jumped in one week from 14 to 18. Six other wards rate 99 per cent. The lowest ward, the 26th, is 75.7.

Last week 5,065 buildings were reported to have been supplied with cans. In several wards aldermen, superintendents and citizens have given money so that the cans may be supplied free to the poor. Many manufacturing firms and gasoline stations have donated barrels and empty oil drums as garbage receptacles.

Northwest Side Report.

The latest report of the northwest side wards, the superintendents, and most recent percentages, is as follows:

30th ward—William Kelly; gain from 98.2 to 98.8 per cent; 84 buildings still without cans.

31st ward—Robert Tomaso; gain from 99.7 to 99.8 per cent; 11 buildings still without cans.

Other Ward Standings.

35th ward—Walter Bialczak; gain from 99.4 to 99.8 per cent; 11 buildings still without cans.

36th ward — Harry Eckland; gain from 99.4 to 99.9 per cent; four buildings still without cans.

Pearse, 3315 North Harding avenue, arts; Samuel Aronson, 3205 Cortland street, arts; John A. Jenicek, 5705 North Miltimore avenue, arts; Ralph Roske, 5235 Berteau avenue, arts; Philip A. Schloss, 5310 Carmen avenue, arts; Jane Clare Fitzgerald, 5832 North Kilbourne avenue, arts; Caryll Kousnetz, 5749 North Spaulding avenue, arts.

Something New in Game Rooms

Something new, indeed. A game room in a basement with its walls paneled in rawhide. This rawhide, now available in many handsome colors as well as natural, which has the appearance of fine parchment, is both a highly functional and beautiful wall surfacing.

This Week in the Garden

Leaves soon will be falling and the energetic gardener will save them for composting or to allow them to decay to form desirable material for combining with soil for house plants, for mulching, or for other purposes. If the leaves are dry, wet them down to hasten decomposition.

If straw, leaves, cornstalks, or similar material is composted with a nitrogen bearing material, such as sulphate of ammonia or cyanamid and ground limestone and sprinkled with water, it will break down the material in a few months and result in a rich brown substance that has the appearance of rotted manure. By adding available phosphate and potash it will contain the essential elements for a complete fertilizer. Various brands are offered by firms to hasten the decay of the compost.

Many trees make little growth because of a lack of food in the soil. This may be supplied early in spring, during summer, or when dormant. Bore holes with a crowbar or auger 12 to 18 inches deep and 2 inches in diameter at intervals around the outermost circle of branch drip. Mix a good tree food with soil, half and half, and fill each hole and water in. To estimate the amount for a tree allow one pound to each inch of circumference of the trunk measured four feet from the ground.

Tuesday, Sept. 10.

Do not feed roses late in fall or a soft growth will result which is quite likely to freeze back during winter. The new lawn can be made around the middle of this month. Do not delay this important work until spring. It is a good time to dig perennial weeds that are in the lawn. Remember that a heavy stand of blue grass will keep weeds down to a minimum. Make a fine seedbed by carefully spading up bare places and raking up all lumps before sowing. The seed will never germinate properly if the soil is merely scratched, and if it is packed hard. Use about four pounds of seed per 100 square feet for new lawns and two pounds per 100 square feet on old lawns that need repair.

Wednesday, Sept. 11.

Order bulbs for fall planting. If there are ant colonies on the lawn or garden control can be effected by the use of carbon bisulphide. Insert an iron rod four to six inch intervals and pour in each a tablespoonful of the carbon bisulphide; cover with a wet burlap or blanket. The fumes will enter every tunnel or runway and kill the ants. Use care in handling the carbon bisulphide because it is poisonous and inflammable. Be careful not to spill it on the grass.

Plant narcissus bulbs this month, as early as possible. Divide old clumps of peonies so they will be well established before severe weather. They do best in medium heavy, rich soil. Do not plant more than two to three inches deep. The best time to plant is between Sept. 15 and mid-October. Hardy phlox should be transplanted by this time to give bloom next year, but clumps in good condition need dividing only once in about three years.

Seeding pansies should be transplanted now to give good growth before cold weather. They may be planted where they are to flower next spring if protected. Lay in material for winter mulching.

Thursday, Sept. 12.

Most perennials can be transplanted in fall, except the autumn blooming varieties. The entire perennial border can be remade if desired. Enrich the soil and dig deeply to accommodate the roots. Use tulips and other spring flowering bulbs in colonies in the foreground and the blooming season will be lengthened. Even a few lilies add much to the garden and they may be had in several kinds. The delicate, pink flowering Hall's amaryllis [lycorus squamigera] can be transplanted at this time. It is hardy with protection.

Friday, Sept. 13.

Applications of liquid manure to the budding chrysanthemums will give larger blooms. Disbudding also will give fine flowers.

Continue spraying roses and plants affected with rust or mildew. Dusting with sulphur will serve as a control, but a regular system must be continued to be effective. If a branch of the lilac or dogwood suddenly wilts examine the stems for borers and dig them out, if found. Hardy ferns can be transplanted in spring or fall, but the roots should not be allowed to dry out.

Saturday, Sept. 14.

Rhubarb and asparagus can be planted. Cultivation of roses should be discontinued now to enable the plants to thoroly ripen before winter. Sow hardy annuals now for earlier flowering next season. Plants which self-seed in the garden can all be planted.

Be sure to examine all plants that are to be brought indoors for winter growing. Some may need repotting, which may be done immediately. Do not overpot; give good soil; see that the drainage is perfect; place in a shady, protected place for a few days; water once thoroly and as needed thereafter.

Shade May Be Natural or in Mottled Colors.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

Never was there a time when the walls of our rooms received more attention. They seem one of the home's most favored spots.

Now a beautiful new material, which in its original states is one of the world's oldest materials, has made its appearance in the home building field. It is a highly functional and handsome wall surfacing; genuine rawhide, as paneling for the walls of a living room or study, a den, dining room, or bedroom.

In the natural shade this rawhide has the appearance of fine parchment. It is not tanned like leather, but its hide is left in the natural state, with the original markings of nature. It also is available in a number of lovely colors, and because the coloring process does not create one uniform shade the effect is varied like intricate patterning of marble, onyx, or agate.

Thickness Reduced.

A modern process has made this rawhide flexible and reduced its thickness, and yet its hard, shell-like surface and individual markings have been retained. No two rawhides are ever identical.

For years rawhide has been used to cover smart luggage. Now we find it can add distinction and smartness to our rooms. In its varied and attractive coloring which range from parchment to black, from pale tans to deep browns, from ivory and cream to pastel grays, it is now a striking wall paneling.

In a model home shown recently this rawhide was used on a stunning, circular fireplace wall. In a private office in Chicago it appears in brown agate form as a wall surfacing, and also as a covering for the desk, the chairs, the cabinets, and even the window sills. There are shades and colors of this rawhide paneling to give life and zest to the most modern of rooms. Again in other deeper tones it can blend with the atmosphere of a man's study or library, a family game room or hallway, living room, or bedroom.

Not for Plaster.

This rawhide is not recommended for application directly on plaster, but can be applied in panel form to plywood or metals.

The plywood should be at least three-eighths of an inch thick, cut to the proper size and pattern, and then covered with the rawhide. Light colored plywood should be used. [If the plywood has any dark spots or knots it should be painted first, as this rawhide is more or less transparent.] Special adhesives are available for application on plywood so the rawhide will adhere well.

After the rawhide covered panels have been firmly fastened to the walls they can be sprayed with a lacquer which is either dull or glossy, depending on the finish desired. Or wax may be used to create an individual finish. Such treatments preserve the natural beauty of the paneling and helps to keep it from absorbing any moisture from the house atmosphere.

Easy to Keep Clean.

Not hard, either, to keep this paneling clean, since a light rubbing with a cloth slightly dampened in a mild soap suds solution will do the work.

In case you are building a new home or planning on changing the face of some room in the house you own, this new poneling for your walls—and also for your table tops, your cabinets, and many other of your room appointments—offers a treatment of richness and distinction. A treatment moreover which is as suited to a house carried out in ultra-modern spirit as to one which follows faithfully along traditional or even ultra-conservative lines.

Tho the roots of this rawhide are buried deep in antiquity, its present form is very forward looking indeed.

Fulfilling Class Prophecy

Alaine Brandes, a graduate of Foreman High school in June, 1939, is now busily occupied fulfilling the class prophecy that she was the "girl most likely to succeed." She has already appeared in the pictures, "Boys from Syracuse," "Turnabout," and "A Night at Earl Carroll's." Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Brandes, formerly of 5717 Roscoe street, now reside in Hollywood with their daughter.

MANY STUDENTS ARE RATED LOW IN STUDY HABITS

Survey Made of Those in Maine High.

A recent survey of study habits at Maine Township High school revealed that one-quarter of the 715 students included in the survey had poor study habits, and that as a rule the poorer students preferred to study in the school room, where help could be obtained from the teacher, and the superior students favored studying alone outside of school hours.

The survey was begun last spring by Dr. William Brink, professor of education at Northwestern university. Of the 715 students questioned, 270 were freshmen, 123 sophomores, 121 juniors, and 210 seniors.

Before answering the ten page questionnaire on "study habits and procedures," the students were assured that their replies would be strictly confidential and would have no bearing on their future class grades. Using these precautions, Dr. Brink feels he obtained a fairly accurate composite.

Many Have Jobs.

Thirty per cent of the C and D students have after-school jobs, the survey revealed, while only one per cent of the A students are thus employed.

The average amount of time spent each day on studies outside of school hours nearly doubled between the freshman and senior years, the number of minutes being as follows: freshmen, 31; sophomores, 50; juniors, 53, and seniors, 55.

Similarly, the amount of time spent in the library each week rose from an average of one hour for freshmen to an average of two hours for seniors. Only about 20 per cent of the students questioned made written outlines of the material read in connection with course work.

Like Other Surveys.

The results of the survey correspond closely with the medians found in other large suburban high schools, Dr. Brink said. In commenting on the fact that 25 per cent of the students at Maine use ineffectual study habits, he said that Maine had a much better chance to overcome this handicap because of the use of the one hour supervised study plan.

Dr. Brink recommended that this year more individual attention be given to C and D groups, in particular during their study periods, and that a study be made with reference to making the library a more integral part of classroom life.

A Tenderfoot Learns to Ride

BY HAROLD SMITH.

Like many another riding instructor, Elmer J. Holdorf, from whom I am learning some of the fine points of riding form, isn't enthusiastic about teaching new riders to post the trot. He does it, of course, but only with reluctance.

Posting the trot means merely taking only one bump while the horse is giving two. This is accomplished by rising in the saddle at one beat of the trot and sitting at the next beat. [The trot is a one-two gait, as against a one-two-three rhythm for the canter.]

My instructor believes that the posting of the trot should come rather late in a rider's experience, say six months or more after he has taken up the sport, and only after he has developed a sure, balanced seat. Meanwhile, the rider ought to sit the trot always, he insists.

Merely an Evasion.

"Too many men and women learn at the outset to post presentably and then conclude they are finished riders with little more to learn," Holdorf complained.

"That's dead wrong. Posting for the novice rider is merely an evasion of the bounces he should take in order to learn balance more quickly.

"Sitting the trot gracefully is one of the infallible marks of a good rider. I've seen too many riders stop trying to sit the trot right simply because they had learned to post."

In rising properly to the trot, I learned, the lower legs remain practically still, the body and upper legs being lifted with the knee joints as the hinges. The weight is borne partly by the feet in the stirrups and partly by the knees and inner thighs bearing against the saddle flaps.

My instructions were to let my torso incline a bit forward during the trot, but to observe the oft-repeated admonition to keep my back hollow, my shoulders square, and my chin in.

In falling back on the second beat the seat does not return completely to the saddle, I found. Rather it settles onto the inner line of the thighs and the fore part of the buttocks, rising immediately at the start of the next cycle.

The rise is essentially a gentle forward lunge of the midsection, in which the feet and head scarcely move out of a vertical plane. Properly executed, it requires little effort.

I found I had to pay particular attention to my feet and hands when I began to learn posting. It's highly important to keep the knees in and the heels down [an instruction impossible to overemphasize in any department of horseback riding], and to avoid transmitting the rather vigorous body movement of the post to the horse's mouth thru the reins.

It is permissible to count aloud at first as an aid in getting the rhythm of the post, my teacher assured me. Watching the horse's shoulders I counted "one" as the right foot struck the ground, rising as I counted, and "two" as the left foot landed and I descended to the saddle.

Don't Forget the Horse.

At this point Holdorf gave me a horse saving instruction. He told me to vary my posting occasionally, rising as the left front foot lands and falling at the right footfall. Switching is easily accomplished by sitting to two beats of the trot instead of one.

This switching is necessary because on his fall the rider's weight descends on the same pair of the horse's feet at the same time—one front foot and the opposite hind foot. The change in the post brings this impact down as the other diagonal pair hits the ground. Thus the rider avoids "wearing out" one side of his horse only.

Correct posting also demands careful checking of stirrup strap length, too, I discovered.

If the stirrups are short the body rises too high, which is both awkward and tiring. If they are too long the feet do not assume their rightful share of supporting body weight on the rise.

N. PARK COLLEGE READY TO OPEN ITS 50TH YEAR

Two Buildings Added to the Equipment.

The 50th year of North Park college, Kedzie and Foster avenues, which begins a week from tomorrow, will be marked by the opening of two buildings. One of them, a $30,000 science laboratory, is remodeled from an old building, and will be opened ceremoniously in about a month. It will be named Wilson hall, in memory of Prof. C. J. Wilson, teacher of science at the college from its beginning 50 years ago to his death in 1933.

The other is a $15,000 men's dormitory, housing an infirmary and cafeteria as well as 110 men students. No name has been chosen yet, but it will be ready for occupancy by the opening of classes Sept. 23.

Registration will begin next Monday in the day and evening branches of the college. Registrar Walter J. Moberg said it was likely that last year's enrollment of 1,949 in all branches of the college would be surpassed.

Deanship Still Vacant.

President Algoth Ohlson said no successor had yet been named to fill the vacancy as dean of the junior college caused by the recent death of A. Samuel Wallgren. He did announce, however, the appointment of Hedin Bronner, hitherto an instructor at the University of Chicago, to the faculty of the English department.

Only two new courses will be offered this year in the junior college and the academy, the day branches of the school. One, in social speech and personality development, will be given by Miss Lorraine Lundberg.

The other embodies a new technique for oral expression and is called "verse speaking choir." Its theory is that by speaking together simultaneously the members of a group will master oral rhythm.

Course on Marriage.

In the evening school, directed by Harvey E. Anderson, there will be four new courses, including one on marriage and parenthood conducted by Mrs. Viola Van Zee. Mrs. Van Zee is completing work for a doctor's degree in sociology and has also been teaching at the Garrett Biblical institute.

A new evening course on home furnishings and interior decorating will be conducted by Miss Laura Bruce of the art department, who will call in experts to lecture in their special fields from time to time.

Oscar Olson will give a course in choir conducting, and the new member of the faculty, Mr. Bronner, will give a course in elementary Norwegian. Enrollment in the evening school last year was 489, composed largely of adults. Classes meet from 7 to 8:40 o'clock one evening each week.

Approximately 100 members of the faculty will hold a preliminary meeting this Saturday, and they will give a reception for new students on Thursday and Friday evenings, Sept. 19 and 20.

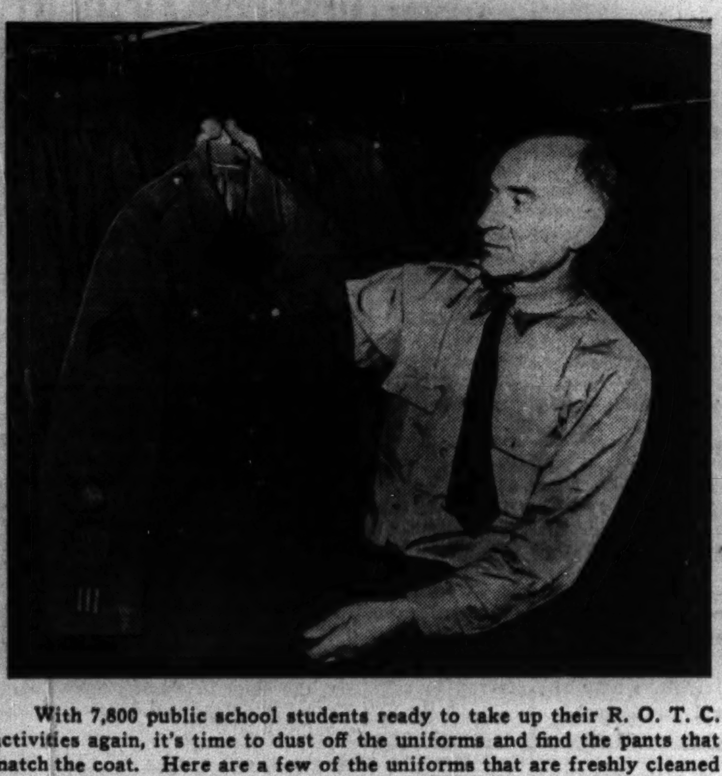
Ready to Uniform Cadets



With 7,800 public school students ready to take up their R. O. T. C. activities again, it's time to dust off the uniforms and find the pants that match the coat. Here are a few of the uniforms that are freshly cleaned and pressed and all ready to be filled out with a military chest. Master Sergeant Harry Ain is one of the men who has the big responsibility of seeing that Chicago R. O. T. C. cadets are well turned out.

Church Book Reviews.

The autumn book reviews sponsored by the women of the Wilmette Methodist church will begin on Friday morning, Sept. 20 and continue for five consecutive weeks. Mrs. Thomas C. McConnell and Mrs. H. M. Rose are co-chairmen of the project.

300 More Cadets Will Be in Uniform.

With the beginning of the school term more than 9,800 students are expected to take part in R. O. T. C. activities in Chicago high schools. In answer to the increasing demand for training more of the city's youths, the war department has authorized an increase of 300 uniformed cadets in the city's enrollment.

Col. William F. Morrison, head of the Chicago public school units, expects 7,800 uniformed cadets in the public school training corps for this school year.

Because of the need for funds in the training of men for the regular army, the war department has been unable to answer the request of many schools for the installation of units. Consequently the number of schools offering training will remain as last year—27 public high schools and one Catholic school.

Must Buy Uniforms.

The Catholic school is St. Mel's at 1 North Kildare avenue. About 800 students are expected to take part in the work. Of this number, 250 are freshmen, who will, as in the public schools, be forced to either go without or buy their own uniforms. The government furnishes uniforms only for upper classmen.

The allotted 7,800 public school cadets will be augmented by freshmen in the various schools who wish to take the training but are not allowed to have uniforms. Approximately 1,200 boys are expected to volunteer for freshmen work.

There have been no changes in the officer staffs for the coming year, and no new military instructors have been assigned. However, Col. Morrison said the war department had authorized the appointment of five new instructors, and that applications for the posts were being received.

Instructions Are Same.

No changes are expected in drill instruction, as the new army drill manual was adopted last year by the Chicago units. The present drill system conforms to the latest type authorized by the war department for all infantry organizations.

During the summer many improvements have been made in the schools that will facilitate training of the students.

At Lane, Staff Sergeant Gillman R. Carle was promoted to technical sergeant, and at Steinmetz, Staff Sergeant Carl Christofferson received the same promotion. At Sullivan, Sergt. Anthony Gristhus was promoted to staff sergeant.

Summer Bride

Miss Antoinette Desimone, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Desimone, 638 North Monticello avenue, recently became the bride of Anthony Indovina, son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Indovina, 2358 Wentworth avenue. The ceremony took place at Holy Name cathedral and a reception was held at the Congress hotel.

MARION CLAIRE, WEBER REJOINING SYMPHONIC HOUR

End Vacation; On W-G-N at 9 Tonight.

Marion Claire, soprano soloist, and Henry Weber, conductor of the W-G-N Symphony orchestra, will return to the Chicago Tribune Symphonic hour tonight. The hour will be broadcast from 9 to 10 o'clock over W-G-N, the Mutual network, and that of the Canadian Broadcasting corporation.

The speaker of the evening, as in weeks past, will be Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE TRIBUNE.

Miss Claire and Mr. Weber—Mr. and Mrs. Weber in private life—have been vacationing for the last fortnight in Glacier National park. Miss Claire will mark her return with three solos. She will sing "The Sky Lover" and "Hat Dich die Liebe Berührt" [Has Love Touched You], by Joseph Marx, and "Balatella," by Ruggiero Leoncavallo.

Victor Herbert's "Angelus" will be presented by Miss Claire and the chorus.

The Symphony orchestra, under the baton of Mr. Weber, will open the hour of fine music with a presentation of the introduction and wedding march from "Coq d'Or," by Nicolai Rimsky-Korsakoff. "The Bee," by Franz Schubert, and Sergei Rachmaninoff's "Serenade" also will be on the program.

For the evening finale, the orchestra will play the introduction to the third act, the dance of the apprentices, and the mastersinger's procession from Richard Wagner's powerful opera, "Die Meistersinger" [the Mastersingers].

The Symphonic Hour is under the direction of William A. Bacher, chief of programs and production at W-G-N. Musical commentary for the program is written by Cecil Smith of the music and drama department of THE TRIBUNE.

During the absence of Miss Claire and Mr. Weber, several noted Metropolitan Opera stars appeared as guest artists on the Symphonic Hour. Maurice de Abravanel, Metropolitan conductor, and Jarmila Novotna, noted Czech soprano, were guests two weeks ago. Last week, Wilfred Pelletier, also Metropolitan conductor, and the distinguished mezzo-soprano, Rose Bampton, were presented.

WILLIAMS GETS RECORD HOOKUP FOR NEWSCASTS

Wythe Williams, Mutual news analyst and noted foreign correspondent, will go on the air over Mutual on Tuesday in a program which will afford him the largest commercial hookup of stations ever made available to a newscaster. He will be heard twice-weekly on Tuesdays and Thursdays over W-G-N from 7 to 7:15 p. m., with a repeat broadcast from 9:30 to 9:45 p. m.

Williams will go on the air from 93 stations. The program represents the most inclusive contract ever signed by the Mutual Broadcasting System, and also represents the most extensive broadcast of a twice-weekly commercial program ever heard.

Williams, author of a newspaper column, "As the Clock Strikes," has rocketed to national prominence by the accuracy of his amazing newsbeats since he went on the air lanes less than eight months ago.

Williams is a veteran of 26 years spent abroad representing English and American newspapers. As correspondent for the New York Times, he witnessed many of the biggest battles of the world war. After the war, he roamed the continent from Istanbul to London writing for newspapers and magazines and making contacts which have proved so valuable to him today. He returned to this country in 1936 and wrote a book, "Dusk of Empire," in which he predicted the outbreak of the present war.

Born in Meadville, Pa., in 1881, Williams was educated at Ohio Wesleyan, and received his newspaper ABC's on Minneapolis, Milwaukee, and Chicago papers. In 1910, while on the staff of the old New York World, he went to Europe on a vacation. He arrived in London the same day Edward VII. died, and was drafted into service as a correspondent immediately.

SAVAGE SIGNED FOR NEW YEAR AS 'RADIO'S VOICE'

Guy Savage has renewed his contract for his informal interview program, "Radio's Voice," for 52 weeks, beginning Oct. 1. Savage's program is aired daily except Sunday from 11:45 to 12 noon over W-G-N. The show will move to 3 p. m. after baseball season.

On the air with "Radio's Voice" since last September, Savage works his interview show from a special microphone set up in the lobby of the Chicago theater. Passers-by are selected at random for the informal chats. The program is completely ad lib. and Savage makes a special point of talking with his interviewees on topics of their own selection.

Savage has been in radio for 15 years. While still in high school he joined the staff of a Texas station as "The Whispering Tenor." Excelling in sports in college, Savage gravitated naturally toward sports announcing. In Texas he covered football, professional baseball, and special sporting events. It was sports announcing that brought Savage to W-G-N. His first assignment was a White Sox game.

Savage has had experience with interview shows for eight years. He worked on the original "Vox Pop" show with Parks Johnson in Houston in 1932. He has done interview shows continuously since that time.

MAUREEN O'HARA, LUCILLE BALL 'IN CHICAGO TONIGHT'

Thursday W-G-N Show to Feature Film Stars.

Two of Hollywood's most glamorous stars, Lucille Ball and Maureen O'Hara, will be starred on the W-G-N Mutual "In Chicago Tonight" program next Thursday evening from 7:30 to 8 o'clock. They will be presented in the W-G-N audience studio in a special dramatic program titled "On Stage, Please," written by W-G-N's noted producer-director, William A. Bacher, and a Hollywood author, Ashmead Scott.

Miss Ball and Miss O'Hara are coming to Chicago especially to take part in this presentation of "In Chicago Tonight." In passing thru Chicago en route east for a personal appearance tour, the Hollywood stars were offered the radio engagement. They will interrupt their tour at Buffalo to return to Chicago for this production of the nationally known W-G-N program.

Miss O'Hara is known as one of the most photogenic stars in Hollywood. Recently she was selected as the year's most promising actress as a result of her fine work in the above mentioned pictures. Maureen came to American movies from her native Dublin via the Abbey players and the legitimate stage.

Blonde Lucille Ball has a long list of movie successes to her credit. Her work in "Dance, Girl, Dance" has been hailed by movie critics in previews as outstanding. In this picture Miss Ball, like Miss O'Hara, clearly demonstrates her ability to handle rôles in musical shows as well as in the dramatic picture field.

In "Dance, Girl, Dance," Miss Ball and Miss O'Hara stage one of the screen classic fistic battles. The two girls portray chorus girls who finally decide the best way to settle their diffculties is by the manly art of fisticuffs.

The movie stars will be supported by an all-star cast of Chicago radio actors and actresses in Mr. Bacher's presentation of "On Stage, Please." Miss O'Hara and Miss Ball will arrive on Thursday morning and will be rushed into rehearsals for the evening's performance.

OPERA FESTIVAL TODAY TO OFFER 'MANON' RECORDS

"Manon" will be the opera broadcast on the Opera Festival program from 5 to 7 p. m. today over station WAAF. The program is a preview, via recordings, of the Chicago Opera company's coming season, which opens at the Civic Opera house Nov. 2 with a 30th anniversary presentation of "Aïda."

Cardelli has announced next Saturday as the deadline for radio listeners' votes on their favorite opera. The opera receiving the most votes will be presented on the Opera Festival program Sept. 22. Yesterday the "Marriage of Figaro" was in first place, with "Aïda" second and "La Boheme" and "The Magic Flute" tied for third.

Patti Clayton, Massey in Solo Spots.

The Friday Night Show, a new program directed by Harold Stokes, with Patti Clayton and Curt Massey as featured vocalists, will be broadcast from 7 to 7:30 p. m. over W-G-N and the Mutual network, starting next Friday. The W-G-N dance orchestra, under Stokes' baton, and the octet will be presented regularly on the weekly show.

Miss Clayton, youthful W-G-N singing discovery, will make her début as regular soloist with a presentation of "Fools Rush In." She will join Massey and the octet in singing "We Could Make Such Beautiful Music" as the evening finale.

"Sierra Sue" will be presented by Massey as his solo. A romantic baritone, Massey's singing style is sweet and smooth. In contrast, he is adept in swinging out hot music on the violin. Massey will combine his vocal and violin talents in a special adaptation of "Honeysuckle Rose."

Miss Clayton, who is 20 years old, began singing on W-G-N in January, 1938, when she appeared as one of the "Four Shades of Blue" on another Stokes program. At present she sings with the "Three Graces," and also appears in solo presentations with Pianist Harold Turner.

Massey, a drawling Texan, had his first vocal experience singing chuck wagon ballads with members of his father's ranch crew. He now owns a ranch near Roswell, N. M. Capitalizing on his open space background, Massey has sung with a singing group known as the "Westerners" for eight years.

The Friday Night Show will replace Wings for America, W-G-N-Mutual's summer drama featuring Elissa Landi and Phillips Holmes, which closed a ten week run last Friday. The new program will be an audience show, as was Wings for America.

OPEN PAGEANT OF MELODY WITH D'ALBERT WORK

The W-G-N Concert orchestra will open Henry Weber's "Pageant of Melody," from 9:15 to 10 p. m. Wednesday with a presentation of the overture from Eugen D'Albert's "Der Improvisator." With Kathryn Witwer, soprano, and Attilio Baggiore, tenor, as featured artists, the program will be broadcast over W-G-N and the Mutual network.

For her solo, Miss Witwer will sing "Non Ho Parole," by Sibelius. Attilio Baggiore will present "The Prize Song" from Richard Wagner's "Die Meistersinger."

The W-G-N chorus will sing Georg Handel's largo and will join Miss Witwer and Baggiore in presenting themes from Kalman—"Love's Own Sweet Song," "To Its Waiting Nest," and "Play Gypsies, Dance Gypsies"—for the finale number.

"Dance of the Bouffons," by Nicolai Rimsky-Korsakov, and Felix Mendelssohn's Scherzo will be played by the Concert orchestra.

Eddie Oliver Band Makes W-G-N Debut Saturday

Eddie Oliver and his orchestra will make their Chicago debut in the newly decorated Continental room of the Stevens hotel next Saturday evening. He will also be heard for the first time on W-G-N and the Mutual network. Oliver played several successful seasons at the Les Ambassadeurs in Paris, the Grosvenor House in London and the Carlton restaurant in Amsterdam, Holland. In this country he has appeared at night spots from east to west.

NEW LINDLAHR HEALTH SERIES OPENS TUESDAY

Victor H. Lindlahr, nationally known nutritionist and health commentator, will present his "Journal of Living" from 8:30 to 9 a. m. over W-G-N, starting Tuesday. The program will be broadcast on Tuesdays, Thursdays, and Saturdays.

In exponent of the balanced diet, Lindlahr is editor of the Journal of Living and president of the National Nutrition society. He discusses problems of diet and exercise and devotes part of each broadcast to answering health questions sent in by listeners.

BERWYN ASKS 5 CENT PHONES TO CITY

BARBER LABORS INTO OVERTIME HELPING ALIENS

Joe Helps Them on Way to Citizenship.

Joe Husek.

Joe Husek is a barber who lives at 1540 West 18th street. He says he is busier than he's ever been in his life. Maybe he'll even look for an assistant. But is isn't barbering that keeps Joe Husek's nose to the grindstone. He says business is very bad.

The cause is the law requiring the registration of aliens. For many years Joe Husek's hobby has been helping foreign people adjust themselves to their new home. Today they are flocking to him with green blanks in their hands. "Some of them are so scared," says Joe, "I've gotta help. They mumble 'What will they do with us!'"

They come to Joe because he has probably had more to do with converting aliens into United States citizens than any other man on the west side. In two years he taught 97 aliens what a democracy is. "I'm glad to do this free," says Joe, "because I know what a thrill it is to become a citizen."

51 Under Instruction.

There are 51 more aliens now under instruction in Joe's school. Twenty-four are Italians, 12 are Czechs, four Slovaks, four Poles, two Serbs, two Croatians, one Moravian, one Canadian, and one Hungarian. Plans are being made for a reunion of all the alumni of Mr. Husek's naturalization school to be held late in October. Mr. Husek is anxious to locate every one of his graduate-citizens.

It was this woman's organization that made the naturalization school possible. Led by Mrs. Emma F. Martini, president, a committee of women three years ago invited Mr. Husek to become instructor of a naturalization school to be opened in their headquarters at 2253 West 24th street. At that time there were 78 noncitizens out of the club's membership of 400. Today every member is a citizen. The women provide rooms for the school, heat, and light.

Open to Everyone.

From the beginning the school was ope nto any one who wanted to learn the elements of a democratic government so they could pass their citizenship examinations. Aliens who put off taking out their papers and some who didn't do it because they intended to "go back" some day, are now pouring in on Mr. Husek. They want help in filling out the registration blanks now required by law.

"The hardest job for the alien," says Mr. Husek, "is to remember on what boat and on what day and year he arrived in the United States. Some have been here for more than a quarter century. Some came when they were babies in arms and always believed they were citizens. Now when they must provide proof of citizenship they find there isn't any."

Mr. Husek's text books are pamphlets on the principals of democracy released by the government. They are called "Lessons in Citizenship for Naturalization" and were written by Charles P. Schwartz, a member of the Chicago bar.

Qualified for Job.

The woman's organization chose Mr. Husek as instructor because of his interest in civic matters. He is executive secretary of the executive committee of the Taxpayers Associations of Illinois which includes seven organizations. Since 1932 he has led a fight in behalf of the men and women who lost their life's savings in defaulted real estate bonds. He organized the United Bond Holders' association.

Mr. Husek was born in Bohemia. When he was 21 years old he faced three years of compulsory military training in the Austrian army with a pay of four cents a day. To escape this he fled the country and came to America. He became a citizen as early as the law allowed and says: "If I can help aliens become citizens, I feel, I can in some measure repay my adopted country for what it means to me."

Mr. Husek is on the job of making citizens every Monday evening from 8 to 10 o'clock. Every day he is on hand to help aliens fill out their registration blanks.

Officers of the Woman's forum planning the reunion are, in addition to Mrs. Martini, Mrs. Mamie Lombardi, Mrs. Lena Nottoli, vice presidents; Mrs. Lillian Pecchia, treasurer; Mrs. Emily Amadei and Miss Lydia Sarussi, secretaries; Mrs. Rose Nelli, sergeant at arms. Trustees are Mrs. Mary Verdon, Mrs. Lizzie Gentile, Miss Lorraine Bertolotti, and Mrs. Lena Zanardo.

Red Cross Sale.

The production unit of the Glen Ellyn chapter of the Red Cross will hold a white elephant sale Sept. 17 at its headquarters in the Glen Ellyn State bank building.

Melrose Park Girls in Costume Fantasy of Nations

Wearing costumes of the countries of their ancestors, Melrose Park girls will form a group called "The Pageant of Nations" as a feature of the suburb's jubilee festival the night of Sept. 17. In the picture above Miss Heatherbell MacPherson dances the Highland Fling for Miss Ruby Whaley (Ireland). At the upper right are Miss Alice Loos (Hungary) and Miss Betty Swanson (Sweden), while at the right below, Miss Dorothy Portes as Columbia receives homage from (left to right) Miss Esther La Bounty (France), Miss Marjorie Weiss (Germany), and Miss Marjorie Bruno (Italy). OUR TOWN

THE prize for the contest won recently by Robert J. Kraul of Berwyn is a job in New York City. As the only Illinois winner of a contest called the Walter Mack Job awards for American youth, Kraul will join the staff of a soft drink company.

Kraul is a 1940 graduate of the commerce school of De Paul university. He was entered as a candidate in the contest by the De Paul dean, the Rev. C. J. O'Malley, and competed with applicants from 254 universities and 45 states. The committee which made the selections was headed by Dr. Edward V. Stanford, president of the Association of American Colleges.

Charles Stotz, 212 North Latrobe avenue, a new staff member of the Austin Y. M. C. A., was a charter member of the association's branch at the age of 10 years. He has become young men's secretary and will assist H. C. Tagenstein, program director. Stotz was president of the Austin Senior Hi-Y at the age of 17, a member of the board of directors of the University of Illinois Y. M. C. A. at 22 years.

During the summer Stotz was waterfront director of the Teton Valley ranch which is operated by Wendell Wilson, athletic director of the University of Illinois.

THE committee on scholarships at the school of law, Catholic University of America, Washington, D. C., last week awarded a scholarship to Emmett P. Langan, 3710 Lexington street. Mr. Langan is a graduate of St. Mel High school and of St. Mary's college, Winona, Minn. For two consecutive years he held the extemporaneous speaking championship of the Minnesota State College conference.

Mrs. Allie Turvene Jack celebrated her 88th birthday recently in the home of her daughter, Mrs. William F. Wagner, 425 South Wisconsin avenue, Oak Park. Mrs. Jack was born in 1852. When she was 20 years old she came to Chicago and met John Turvene at Moody's tabernacle. She was married in 1875. Mrs. Jack resides with her son, Herbert R. Turvene of Elmhurst. She has seven great-grandchildren and five grandsons and granddaughters.

Mrs. James M. Glynn and her daughter, Miss Madeline Glynn, 4826 Jackson boulevard, have passed the summer in New York City doing training in speech. They will continue their studies during the time Miss Glynn is on leave from her duties as dramatic and radio director of Austin High school, 231 North Pine avenue.

THE new director of music at the Cuyler Avenue Methodist church, Oak Park, is Paul Vernon, violinist, conductor and director of the Austin Academy of Fine Arts. He succeeds Amy Leslie Toskey, who resigned after eight years at Cuyler church because of ill health. Mr. Vernon has also been director of music at the Austin Congregational church for 15 years.

Next Sunday the choir will give its first musical under Mr. Vernon's direction as a part of the 10:45 o'clock worship service. The senior choir's first rehearsal is at 8 o'clock Thursday evening. The junior choir will meet Friday afternoon after school and the intermediate choir will meet the same day after the junior rehearsal. Mrs. Marjorie Flack Bates is continuing as organist.

Thomas A. Matthews, of River Forest, will make two speeches at the Illinois Municipal league convention at Rock Island, Ill., during the first week in October. His topics will be "Recent Decisions of Our Supreme Court," dealing with decisions handed down the last year affecting cities and villages, and "The Elimination of Dangerous Buildings." The convention, being held from Oct. 2 to 4, will be attended by representatives from more than 500 cities and villages.

ISABELLA GROUP PLANS TO GIVE CHARITY PARTY

Committees have been appointed by Juana Hennepin council No. 7 of the Ladies of Isabella for the charity card party which will be held Wednesday evening, Sept. 18, in the Midwest Athletic club, 6 North Hamlin avenue. Proceeds will be used for Christmas cheer work.

Miss Mary Hasty, chairman, will be assisted by Mrs. Katherine Cadotte, Mrs. Mary Mahoney, Mrs. Marie Rich, Mrs. Louise Schmidt, Mrs. Adelaide Schramm, Mrs. Mary Smith, Mrs. Estelle Vogelsang, Mrs. Adele O'Grady, Mrs. Catherine Lally, Mrs. Evangeline Stockman, and Mrs. Mamie Andrews.

Others are Miss Helen P. Carroll, Miss Mae Fauchon, Miss Lulu Ford, Miss Rose Gallagher, Miss Elsie Hasty, Miss Ella Marie Andrews, Miss Hannah Henneberry, Miss Katherine McCall, Miss Loretta Hasty, Miss Veronica Andrews, Miss Katherine Meyers, and Miss Margaret Weber.

PLANT EXCHANGE TO BE FEATURE OF SUBURB FAIR

An exchange of plants has been announced as an added feature of Riverside's 1940 Town Fair to be held Saturday in the remodeled town hall. Gardeners in the suburb have been invited to bring any sort of plant they consider out of the ordinary which may be traded for specimens submitted by their neighbors.

It is announced that Orpheus M. Schantz, naturalist, who resides in the suburb, will exhibit a collection of leaves from trees to be found in Riverside. Arrangements have been made for a marionette show to be presented as a benefit for the American Red Cross. Details of the performances are being worked out by Miss Nathalie Bevans, William Southwood Jr., and Mrs. Ethel Matson of the Riverside Library staff.

The fair will be combined with an "open house" at the town and village hall.

Sam's in a Jam About His 10 Human Heads

BY MILDRED WILDS.

Sam Bornstein has 10 shrunken human heads from eastern Ecuador. He has a 200 year old turtle from the South seas, a carved ostrich egg from Africa, and a fetish stick from Zululand. Sam has almost been chewed up by a lion and eaten by a shark. He frequently has dined with cannibals.

But Sam says he's never been as nervous in his life as he is right now in Chicago. At home at 1529 South Trumbull avenue he says he can't sleep nights.

Museum in J. P. I.

For seven years his objects have had an honored place in 16 cases in a room at the Jewish People's institute, 3500 Douglas boulevard. Three months ago he received a letter from Dr. Philip Seman, institute director, telling him to pack up and move. Dr. Seman told him he needed the space.

Sam is a tailor and sews a certain seam every day for hundreds of men's suits. He's been doing this most of his life. For 15 years every time he had enough money he took a trip to some place that most people don't think of when they plan a summer vacation.

He's been to Timbuctoo, Rhodesia, the South seas and Siam, and he created a natural history museum for the thousands of people who don't want to meet up with lions or live in a Zulu hut.

Gourd with Jawbones.

By fast talking and good bartering he got a Curcurbita species of gourd wrought into a drinking vessel and decorated with 10 human jawbones. He got it at Fournbau, French Cameroun, West Africa. He has lyre birds and the hummingbird from Australia and seven birds of paradise from New Zealand.

"If I move," says Sam, with a lifetime of disappointment in his voice, "it will cost me $500 to buy materials and hire a taxidermist to pack it.

PETITION SEEKS EQUALITY WITH CICERO'S RATE

Commission to Hear Case Wednesday.

Berwyn is going to plead its case for a 5 cent telephone toll between that city and Chicago before the Illinois Commerce commission on Wednesday. The petition, which asks the same service enjoyed by residents of the neighboring town of Cicero, recently was filed by Joseph E. Serhant, Berwyn's city attorney.

The petition points out that the Illinois Bell Telephone company has a rate of 10 cents per call for its subscribers from Berwyn to Chicago, while a like service is rendered to Cicero subscribers at a charge of 5 cents per call in the Lawndale and Crawford district, as well as from Chicago to Cicero. The contention is made that there is no particular distinction between the area covered by Cicero or Berwyn for purposes of establishing telephone rates.

Points to Close Association.

The petition contends that economic, business and social life of Berwyn is closely associated and a continuous part of the city of Chicago and the town of Cicero. Growth of Berwyn, it is declared, has made it a component and contiguous part of Chicago and for this reason eliminates any distinction or classification which now exists for the purpose of establishing charges by the telephone company, particularly in reference to the making of toll charges.

Charge of 10 cents per call from Berwyn to Chicago and from Chicago to Berwyn is termed "unreasonable and arbitrary." No reason, it is declared exists for the present rate classification.

The petition further contends that the present growth and development caused by means of modern transportation and other accomplishments of modern life have changed conditions that previously existed and that justified the original fixation of the 10 cent toll rate maintained for a period of 15 to 20 years.

Questions Suburban Status.

"When the toll charge was instituted," reads the petition, "Berwyn was, in all respects, a suburban area, but conditions have changed which warrant the modification and reduction or even the total removal of the toll rate which is not founded on any subsisting or practical purpose, and the arbitrary basis due to territorial boundry lines is no longer a just and fair means of making a present day distinction."

It is further pointed out that the trend of population to the western areas of Chicago and its suburbs has been of such nature that the orignal settlers in what is known as the Lawndale and Crawford district have, in the main, moved to the communities of Cicero and Berwyn. This western migration, it is explained, does not apply to the further westward communities.

Population of Berwyn in 1920, when the rate was first installed, was 14,000, and the 1940 census shows the population to be 48,474. The petition cites these figures to show that revenue which the telephone company now derives from Berwyn subscribers has been greatly enhanced due to the increased population and use of the telephone system.

On Economy Program.

There are said to be 10,000 telephones in use in Berwyn, representing, on the basis of actual dwellings, 46 per cent of the homes.

"It is grossly unfair in view of these facts and figures," reads the petition, "that these subscribers be burdened with the present charges fixed by archaic means which the community has long since outgrown."

A resolution recently passed by the Berwyn city council authorizing the city attorney to take necessary action before the Illinois Commerce commission is a part of the economy program instituted for the suburb by Mayor Anton Janura.

Fratorikins Will Present 'Golden Boy' Next Sunday

The Fratorikins, a social and athletic organization on the west side, will present Clifford Odet's play, "Golden Boy," next Sunday evening in the Chicago Woman's club, 72 East 11th street. Murray Fenton is the director. The Fratorikins organization was founded in April by Joseph Pachter. Officers are Hal Wortman, president; Mr. Pachter, vice president; Bess Pachter, secretary, and Adeline Kaplan, treasurer.

Notre Dame Church Guard of Honor to Play Cards

Four thousand members of the Guard of Honor of Notre Dame church, 1342 Flournoy street, will hold a card party in the parish hall Saturday afternoon for the benefit of the Fathers of the Blessed Sacrament. Heads of the arrangements committee are Elizabeth M. Connery, president, and Lillie Bellman, secretary.

Garfield Park B'nai B'rith Aids to Hear Book Review

Garfield Park B'nai B'rith auxiliary will meet at 8 o'clock Tuesday evening in the Washington Boulevard Community center, 25 North Karlov avenue. Florence Bourke Ellis will give a book review.

Villagers to Vie for Blue Ribbons at Riverside Town Fair

"Heigh-ho, come to the fair." Again that is the theme in Riverside, where the second annual town fair will be held Saturday in combination with open house at the remodeled town and village hall. Mrs. J. W. Dvorak, 195 Southcote road, labels canned goods for the preserves and bakery goods department display of which she is chairman. Josephine Hultgren, 355 Selbourne road, gathers produce from the garden with her father, Claes L. Hultgren, for the vegetable exhibit that will rival flower arrangements at the show. Orpheus M. Schantz, 306 Shenstone road, explains his leaf collection to his granddaughters, Joan (left) and Sally. Mounted are six species of oak leaves to be found in the suburb.

LOVER OF FLOWERS.

A trend in several west suburbs seems to be the garden exhibits reminiscent of the county fair that has been a tradition in American communities. I am among the suburbanites who enjoy working in a flower garden and in a small vegetable patch. My vase of helianthus and gaillardias won a third prize white ribbon at Brookfield day and I was very proud of it. I noticed that a good deal of interest was taken in the flower display, altho there were many other events.

That there is interest in these home grown products is indicated by plans to make the Riverside town fair more pretentious than the first show a year ago. Not all of us are able to play golf for recreation, but few of us are deprived of an opportunity to find recreation among growing things during the summer months. If the home yard is too small, ofttimes there is a vacant lot near by that may be utilized, and surely no one can object to a well kept flower garden in preference to rank weeds.

I am of the opinion that as the years go by this recognition of home grown garden products will foster new interest and result in added beautification of neighborhoods. A. F. A.

PLEA FOR TOLERANCE.

Last week a little boy of Polish descent on our street hit my boy who has an Italian name over the head. The reason my boy was hit was because my father came from Italy. The Polish boy doesn't like any one of Italian descent because, he told my son, they make wars. I am proud to live in a neutral country. I don't blame the little Polish boy because he refused to be a neutral citizen of a neutral country. Stress these days is being put on Great Britain's democracy which this country seems to want to save instead of America's democracy. I like our brand best even with the warmongers at work. MRS. J. P.

GARBAGE DUMP BREEDS RATS.

It seems to me in this campaign against rats that some of our town fathers would look to that dump next to Harrison park. I live on 18th street and all summer long I am ill from the smell of the garbage brought there from 10 wards. In the winter time the rats are so brazen that I wouldn't dare keep a toe out from under the bed covers. It isn't funny to have a garbage dump on your street. It is a tragedy that the city of Chicago should be ashamed of.

NEIGHBOR TO THE RATS.

DAMAGED MANHOLE COVER.

Will some one please put a stop to the noise on Lamon avenue between West End avenue and Maypole avenue. When a car drives over a damaged manhole cover it makes an awful noise. The manhole cover has been this way for nearly six weeks. It is terribly annoying as well as dangerous. MRS. W. H. H.

CHURCH STONE TO BE LAID IN SUBURB TODAY

Holy Trinity, Westmont to Cost $28,500.

Cornerstone laying ceremonies will be held this afternoon for the new structure of Holy Trinity church being erected at Richmond street and South Cass avenue, Westmont. The Rev. Daniel J. Stokes is the pastor.

The building, of early American architecture, has a reinforced concrete foundation and will be of three shades of brick. The tower will be a distinguishing feature and the appointments will be of colonial style. The altars are said to be the first of the kind in America.

Cost of the building will be $28,500 and of the furnishings, $4,500. The main auditorium will have a seating capacity of 350, and the basement, to be utilized for parish activities, will accommodate 450.

Dedication Set for June.

Excavation for the new building, designed to meet the needs of the fast growing parish, was started a month ago. Dedication is planned for next June when Archbishop Stritch will officiate.

The parish was organized in April, 1938, by the Rev. Ligouri Logsdon, who passed away a year later. Father Stokes, who became pastor in August, 1939, had, during the previous 18 years, held appointments in Chicago, including seven years as administrator of Our Lady of Victory parish on the northwest side.

When Father Stokes came to the parish, two Sunday morning services were being held in the chapel that was a mission of the Downers Grove parish. Now, five services are held each Sunday with an attendance of 450 adults and 100 children.

Aiding in Ceremonies.

Group leaders active at today's cornerstone laying ceremonies will include Andrew Glajsek, president of the Holy Name society; Mrs. Vera Formanek, president of the Catholic Women's club; Bernard Stronberg, leader of the Boy Scouts, and Miss Ruth Thompson, president of the Catholic Girls' guild.

Under the chairmanship of Mrs. Norman Gibbons, the Trinity Boosters club will hold a card party on Oct. 4 at Siena High school in Chicago as a church benefit.

Isabella Daughters Circle Holds Card Party Sept. 30

Mrs. Mayme McGloon, past regent of circle No. 502, Daughters of Isabella, is chairman for the circle's card party which will be held Monday evening, Sept. 30, in La Follette Park auditorium, Laramie avenue and Hirsch street.

WIDENED NORTH AVE. CALLS FOR A CELEBRATION

Parade, Speeches Will Mark Opening.

A four day celebration will begin Wednesday on the occasion of the opening of North avenue between Laramie and Narragansett avenues, where it has been widened to make a roadway 76 feet wide. The celebration will be sponsored by the Greater North Avenue Business Men's association, and will be accompanied on Wednesday by a parade staged by the Chicago Motor club.

The highlight of the business men's celebration will be Wednesday night, when at the conclusion of a decorative parade Mayor Kelly and President James Howe of the village of Oak Park will speak from a platform at North and Laramie avenues. William P. Schilke, president of the business men's association, will be master of ceremonies.

Others to Speak.

Other speakers will be Ald. Walter J. Orlikoski [35th], Ald. Richard M. Walsh [36th], and Ald. Roger J. Kiley [37th].

Earlier that day the motor club, with the coöperation of the chambers of commerce of Sycamore and St. Charles, Ill., will sponsor a cavalcade leaving North and Cicero avenues, traversing the newly constructed part of the road, and proceeding 56 miles to Sycamore, where it will meet a similar group which will have arrived from Savanna, Ill., on the Mississippi river.

Completes Route 64.

This ceremony will mark the completion of an important improvement in state route 64, which, in Chicago, is North avenue.

The street will remain decorated thru Thursday, Friday, and Saturday, but on those days there will be no further activities except street dancing in the evening.

Construction on the North avenue project, which provides for two lanes of traffic and one lane of parking on each side of the street car tracks, was started last April.

Among those who have assisted Mr. Schilke in planning the celebration are Harry Stern, E. A. Heidemann, Albert Keeney, and Paul Mattson, all members of the business men's association.

ELECTRIC CLUB GARDENERS SHOW FLOWERS TODAY

The annual fall show of the flower and garden section of the Western Electric Hawthorne club will be held all day today in the horticultural hall at the Garfield Park conservatory. Prize blooms of 14,000 telephone makers will be on display.

In addition, to give every amateur flower and garden enthusiast in the Chicago area an opportunity to display the prize products of gardens, there will be a special guest class in which any amateur gardener may enter blooms, vegetables, fruits, canned goods, or novelties.

Telephone makers will compete in 8 other classes and 44 sub classes. Everything from cabbages to cacti will be on display with emphasis placed on gladioli and dahlias. Perennials, flowering shrubs, biennials, annuals, flower arrangements, specialties and novelties, fruits and vegetables, and home canned goods are other main classifications. E. C. Freed is chairman of the Hawthorne Flower and Garden club.

OPENS LOW BID FOR THE PAVING OF DIVISION ST.

A low bid of $81,942.90 for the paving of Division street from Pulaski road to a point 875 feet east of Cicero avenue was opened last week by Oscar E. Hewitt, Commissioner of Public Works. Fourteen other bids ranged up to $96,000. Commissioner Hewitt said that the bids were approximately 15 per cent lower than those on similar work last year. The low bidder was the Standard Paving company. Work will begin after one of the bids has been accepted.

A Tenderfoot Learns to Ride

BY HAROLD SMITH.

Like many another riding instructor, Elmer J. Holdorf, from whom I am learning some of the fine points of riding form, isn't enthusiastic about teaching new riders to post the trot. He does it, of course, but only with reluctance.

Posting the trot means merely taking only one bump while the horse is giving two. This is accomplished by rising in the saddle at one beat of the trot and sitting at the next beat. [The trot is a one-two gait, as against a one-two-three rhythm for the canter.]

My instructor believes that the posting of the trot should come rather late in a rider's experience, say six months or more after he has taken up the sport, and only after he has developed a sure, balanced seat. Meanwhile, the rider ought to sit the trot always, he insists.

Merely an Evasion.

"Too many men and women learn at the outset to post presentably and then conclude they are finished riders with little more to learn," Holdorf complained.

"That's dead wrong. Posting for the novice rider is merely an evasion of the bounces he should take in order to learn balance more quickly.

"Sitting the trot gracefully is one of the infallible marks of a good rider. I've seen too many riders stop trying to sit the trot right simply because they had learned to post."

In rising properly to the trot, I learned, the lower legs remain practically still, the body and upper legs being lifted with the knee joints as the hinges. The weight is borne partly by the feet in the stirrups and partly by the knees and inner thighs bearing against the saddle flaps.

My instructions were to let my torso incline a bit forward during the trot, but to observe the oft-repeated admonition to keep my back hollow, my shoulders square, and my chin in.

In falling back on the second beat the seat does not return completely to the saddle, I found. Rather it settles onto the inner line of the thighs and the fore part of the buttocks, rising immediately at the start of the next cycle.

The rise is essentially a gentle forward lunge of the midsection, in which the feet and head scarcely move out of a vertical plane. Properly executed, it requires little effort.

I found I had to pay particular attention to my feet and hands when I began to learn posting. It's highly important to keep the knees in and the heels down [an instruction impossible to overemphasize in any department of horseback riding], and to avoid transmitting the rather vigorous body movement of the post to the horse's mouth thru the reins.

It is permissible to count aloud at first as an aid in getting the rhythm of the post, my teacher assured me. Watching the horse's shoulders I counted "one" as the right foot struck the ground, rising as I counted, and "two" as the left foot landed and I descended to the saddle.

Don't Forget the Horse.

At this point Holdorf gave me a horse saving instruction. He told me to vary my posting occasionally, rising as the left front foot lands and falling at the right footfall. Switching is easily accomplished by sitting to two beats of the trot instead of one.

This switching is necessary because on his fall the rider's weight descends on the same pair of the horse's feet at the same time—one front foot and the opposite hind foot. The change in the post brings this impact down as the other diagonal pair hits the ground. Thus the rider avoids "wearing out" one side of his horse only.

Correct posting also demands careful checking of stirrup strap length, too, I discovered.

If the stirrups are short the body rises too high, which is both awkward and tiring. If they are too long the feet do not assume their rightful share of supporting body weight on the rise.

AUSTIN ACADEMY IS DUE FOR GAIN IN ENROLLMENT

Classes Get Under Way Tomorrow Morning.

An increase of 10 per cent enrollment is expected at the Austin Academy of Fne Arts, 631 North Central avenue, when the school opens for classes tomorrow morning. In its seven years of existence the academy has become a music center for the west side and suburbs.

Paul Vernon.

The school occupies the home built in the late '60s by Seth Warner, a manufacturer. Warner was the second leader of the Choral union, one of Chicago's first organized singing groups.

The old homestead, converted into an academy, is used by the Austin Choral club, the Oriana a cappella choir, and the Austin Symphony orchestra as a rehearsal place. The school's director, Paul Vernon, also conducts these three community organizations.

Academy Is Redecorated.

In readiness for its next season, the academy has been redecorated. The bricks have been painted red and the woodwork white. A newly decorated art room will house the enlarged department, which has a new instructor, Nathan E. Gainer.

Mr. Gainer is a commercial artist who has done art work in Chicago for 20 years. He is a member of the board of directors for the Austin, Oak Park, and River Forest Art league. He will head the art department and introduce new courses in graphic art.

A dancing course has been added for the first year and will be under the direction of Miss Vivien Watkins. It will include ballet, acrobatic, tap, and Spanish dancing.

New Flute Instructor.

Joseph Dykest is the new instructor in the flute department. A native of Czecho-Slovakia, he has had his early training in Prague, where he played the first flute in the National opera. He has also played the flute in the Chicago Civic orchestra.

The academy will open a series of teas for the public on Oct. 1. Faculty members will play during each Tuesday evening program. Theodora Sturkow Ryder will give her lecture recitals on Sunday afternoons to permit more persons from the west area to attend.

Mme. Sturkow Ryder dedicates each lecture to some musical form, such as the sonata, etude, and prelude. After her talk on its historical background she plays for an hour to illustrate that form.

Will Increase Orchestra.

The Austin Symphony orchestra, a civic activity instituted by Mr. Vernon last year, will begin its second season Oct. 2. Tryouts for admittance and seating will be made the last week in September at the academy. Mr. Vernon says more than 15 persons will be added to the orchestra, and any one who can play is invited to tryouts. A series of three public concerts will be presented and a movement is under way to develop a civic music association to support the activities of the orchestra.

There will also be an innovation in children's recitals. A student will play a program made up of selections from one composer.

GARDEN CLUB WOMEN WILL BE JUDGES IN 'SAVE LAWN' CONTEST

A committee of west side garden club women will be judges in the preliminary lawn contest of the "Save the Lawn" campaign of the Chicago park district.

Mrs. F. C. Lambert.

Mrs. Frank C. Lambert, 5445 Iowa street, past chairman of the Garden club division of the Austin North End Woman's club, chairman, will be assisted by Mrs. Frederick Wilmot, Oak Park, chairman of the Rose Garden club; Mrs. Edward Mockler, 5903 West End avenue, chairman of the Iris club of the Austin North End Woman's club, and Mrs. Walter J. Scott, 4921 West Huron street, secretary of the Midwest Horticulture club.

Lawns surrounding homes, apartment houses, schools, and fire and police stations are entered in the contest. Awards will be lawn mowers, sprayers, seed, fertilizer, garden tools, and other supplies. Paul Schulze, president of the Municipal Art league, is general chairman of the citizens' committee coöperating with the park district in the campaign.

Record Beach Crowds.

COLLEGE STAFF IN WHEATON HAS 7 NEW MEMBERS

1,100 Students Expected for Fall Semester.

Seven new professors have been added to the teaching staff at Wheaton college where an enrollment of 1,100 students is indicated for the week beginning Sept. 16. Matriculation will exceed that of a year ago by about 10 per cent, according to figures, filling the vacancies made by the graduation of the largest senior class in the history of the college last June.

Dr. Paul G. Culley has been chosen as acting dean of men for the coming year. Dr. Culley did his undergraduate work and received his master's degree from Cornell university, and earned his medical degree at Johns Hopkins medical school. For the last 12 years he has been a medical missionary in New Guinea and the Philippines, and was one of the missionaries instrumental in discovering a secluded "twentieth century stone age race" on the island of New Guinea.

Native of Holland.

Outstanding among the new professors is Dr. Carol Jan Smit, who will join the teaching staff in economics. Dr. Smit is a native of the Netherlands and was educated at the University of Amsterdam, where he received his doctor's degree in 1921. He also spent several years doing post graduate work at the London School of Economics and served as an assistant professor of economics at Brown university from 1932 to 1935.

For the last five years Dr. Smit has been engaged by the Rockefeller foundation and the Carnegie Endowment fund on a study of the international gold standard. He is preparing a report of the study for publication. Dr. Smit is a member of the Royal Economics Society of London, the National Bureau of Research in New York, and the Academy of Political Science of New York.

Dr. Samuel Richy Kamm has been elected as assistant professor of political science and sociology. He holds the master of arts degree from the University of Michigan, and the doctor of philosophy degree from the University of Pennsylvania. He comes to Wheaton from Haddon Heights, N. J., where he has taught social science in the high school.

New Coach Named.

Harvey Chrouser of the class of 1934, who has been head coach at Sterling college for five years, has been appointed coach and instructor in physical education. He has done graduate work at Princeton university and the University of Washington. Delbert Nelson, a graduate of the class of 1936, formerly a teacher and coach on the Wheaton College academy will assist in football and assume the position of head basketball coach.

Lois Nixon, who graduated in 1939, comes from Sterling college as instructor in the women's physical education department.

In the conservatory of music, Mrs. Ruby Aldrich Free, a graduate of Kansas State college, will be an instructor in public school music. Besides having had several years experience as music supervisor at the training school of the Kansas State college, she has been a music supervisor in the public schools of Kansas.

Wheaton college will officially welcome the incoming freshmen Saturday. A three and one-half day schedule has been designed to familiarize new students with the campus and its organizations and to orient them in preparation for their classes on Sept. 20.

DAD HEARS SONS TALK; RESULT IS CLUB SIONILLI

Boys Play Games and Give to Charity.

Harold Greene.

This week Club Sionilli will begin its fall program at its headquarters in the American Boys commonwealth, 3415 West 13th place. Then every night the boys will meet in the club rooms to get their club paper written and printed, to play checkers, ping-pong, debate and have dramatics.

It was three years ago that Harold Greene heard his sons talking. "Aw heck," they said, "we ain't got nothin' to do. Let's have a club."

Just Wanted a Club.

Mr. Greene listened some more to a bad attempt at organizing. Then he walked in with some advice. "What are you going to do when you have a club?" he said. There was no answer. They just wanted a club.

Club Sionilli has one of the best objectives that Mr. Greene could find. Members are banded to promote good sportsmanship and for three years the club has been improving under the volunteer leadership of a Dad "who listened in."

The American Boys commonwealth, maintained by the Young Men's Jewish council, gave the boys who believed in fair play a club room for meetings. The club never has accepted a boy just because he was a good athlete. "He had to know how to play the game, too," says David Sherman, president.

The Sionillis got the champs, anyway. In 1939 they won the basketball championship at the American Boys commonwealth where 30 teams competed. The year before they were the volley ball champs and in 1937 were runners-up.

Win Kentucky Derby.

The Sionillis also won the highest honor of the commonwealth, the best score in the Kentucky derby. The derby is a tournament in all the sports at the commonwealth and the winning club is the one with the highest collective score.

Mr. Greene is the only volunteer club leader at the commonwealth and he has spent every night for three years with his boys. He says, "We elect new officers every six months and we don't believe in a third term."

Installation of officers is held at a loop restaurant to lend importance to the occasion. A parent's night is held, with corsages for the ladies and souvenirs for the men. The boys have become successful actors, too. They wrote their own play, "American Justice," and produced it at the commonwealth. The boys were asked to enter it in a competition last year sponsored by the Lawson P.-T. A. They did and won first place.

Give for Charity.

Annually contributions come out of their treasury for the Red Cross, Community Chest fund and Tuberculosis fund. David Sherman, president, and two officers, Morris Kaplan, secretary, and Albert Zook, treasurer, have appointed committees for the next club year. They are:

Social, Isaac Finfer, Robert Bicego, and Hymen Tadelman; athletic, Mitchell Root, Harold Oraman, and Irving Mazer; membership, Arthur Greeve, Frank Serra, and Isaac Finfer; sick, Lenard Greene, Harold Padolsky, and Harry Levin; newspaper, Isaac Finfer, editor, and David Sherman, assistant; trustees, Harry Bailis, Gedaliah Katz, and Edwin Fenger.

Each year the club presents some man who has contributed to the welfare of boys with an honorary membership. Father Flanagan of Boys Town is an honorary member of the Sionillis. Last year the award went to two local men, Frank Heindreich, director of the Lawson playground, and Nathan Levine, athletic director of the Boys' commonwealth.

MAYWOOD STAGE GROUP PREPARES TO OPEN SEASON

Preparing for their 15th season, the Maywood Players will hold their first meeting of the fall tomorrow night in the Lincoln school. Rehearsals will start within a month for the opening play to be given in October.

Recently, the play reading committee, of which Helen Clute York is chairman, decided that higher royalties would be paid for plays than in the past so that residents of the community might enjoy modern, popular productions.

Charles Rhodes, vice president of the group, said inquiries from those interested in dramatics would be welcomed before the season should get under way. Other officers of the organization are Mrs. Mildred Wakeman, president; Mrs. Helen MacPhail, recording secretary; Mrs. Esther Baker, corresponding secretary and Mrs. Isabel Hammond, business manager.

Oak Park Bride

Mrs. R. E. Hynes was Miss Evelyne Noone before she became the bride of the son of Mr. and Mrs. P. R. Hynes, 534 South Taylor avenue, Oak Park. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Noone, 641 South Lombard avenue, Oak Park. The wedding took place in the Ascension church, Van Buren and East avenue, and breakfast was served afterwards at the Oak Park Arms.

300 More Cadets Will Be in Uniform.

With the beginning of the school term more than 9,800 students are expected to take part in R. O. T. C. activities in Chicago high schools. In answer to the increasing demand for training more of the city's youths, the war department has authorized an increase of 300 uniformed cadets in the city's enrollment.

Col. William F. Morrison, head of the Chicago public school units, expects 7,800 uniformed cadets in the public school training corps for this school year.

Because of the need for funds in the training of men for the regular army, the war department has been unable to answer the request of many schools for the installation of units. Consequently the number of schools offering training will remain as last year—27 public high schools and one Catholic school.

Must Buy Uniforms.

The Catholic school is St. Mel's at 1 North Kildare avenue. About 800 students are expected to take part in the work. Of this number, 250 are freshmen, who will, as in the public schools, be forced to either go without or buy their own uniforms. The government furnishes uniforms only for upper classmen.

The allotted 7,800 public school cadets will be augmented by freshmen in the various schools who wish to take the training but are not allowed to have uniforms. Approximately 1,200 boys are expected to volunteer for freshmen work.

There have been no changes in the officer staffs for the coming year, and no new military instructors have been assigned. However, Col. Morrison said the war department had authorized the appointment of five new instructors, and that applications for the posts were being received.

Instructions Are Same.

No changes are expected in drill instruction, as the new army drill manual was adopted last year by the Chicago units. The present drill system conforms to the latest type authorized by the war department for all infantry organizations.

During the summer many improvements have been made in the schools that will facilitate training of the students.

The new allotment for uniformed cadets in west side high schools is Austin, 395; Crane, 440; Harrison, 200, and Marshall, 125.

FOUR NEW WARDS JOIN 100% RANKS IN DRIVE ON RATS

5,065 Buildings Supplied with Garbage Cans.

By the end of this month every building in Chicago will be supplied with a garbage can and at that time the city will launch its long awaited blitzkrieg against an army of 500,000 rats. So says Oscar E. Hewitt, commissioner of public works, the big city Pied Piper who is working to rid Chicago of rats in the modern manner.

By the end of the month, when the city will have armed itself 100 per cent with garbage cans, starvation is expected to decimate the rat army.

18 Perfect Wards.

The latest report on Mr. Hewitt's desk shows that the number of wards now rated as 100 per cent in being supplied with garbage cans—a garbage can for each building—has jumped in one week from 14 to 18. Six other wards rate 99 per cent. The lowest ward, the 26th, is 75.7.

Last week 5,065 buildings were reported to have been supplied with cans. In several wards aldermen, superintendents and citizens have given money so that the cans may be supplied free to the poor. Many manufacturing firms and gasoline stations have donated barrels and empty oil drums as garbage receptacles.

West Side Record.

OLD BLOODY 20TH TRIES HOME CURE FOR ERRING BOYS

Young Men Join to Help Their Neighborhood.

The near west side is fast losing its reputation. The "bloody 20th" is being white-washed and it's an inside job. A gang of young fellows, who say they haven't any halos saved from their boyhood to boast about, are changing their neighborhood from a place of dirty back yards and bad boys to a united community.

Louis Lonigro.

The transformation started several years ago when 18 boys from the area of Halsted, Taylor, and Cabrini streets met in one of their homes. They talked about the reputation of their community, and asked why boys who gave an address as South Halsted were turned down on that alone by every employer.

They talked about the vocabulary of the youngsters who had patched pants and mussed hair and didn't mean to get into mischief. They discovered that the juvenile delinquency rate was seventh highest in the city and they decided to organize to take the stigma off their home addresses.

Find Remedy in Work.

Today, at 1035 West Polk street, are the offices of the West Side Community committee, Chicago's proud example of what can be done by its former "dead-end kids." Here 65 young men are taking every measure to fight the natural results of poverty.

Louis Lonigro, young automobile salesman, dedicates all his spare time to his job as president of the committee. His services are all voluntary, and he says, "I won't ever move away until I see this thing thru. The city is going to be proud of our community and the changes will come because the people themselves want it."

Today these three young men conduct and pay the rent for two neighborhood centers at 1327 West Fillmore and 1012 South Carpenter streets. Mothers, fathers and children meet to sew, attend handiwork classes or just sit and talk. The committee raises money by subscription from interested business men in the neighborhod and by giving parties or dances.

They spend $50 a month hiring boys to polish door knobs, run errands, and act as recreation leaders in the parks. The boys earn from 25c to $1 a week and find it more fun than picking pockets of drunks.

Last year the scholarship committee chairman, Paul D'Arco, also the truant officer for the community, interested Edward J. Sparling, president of the Central Y. M. C. A. college, in making some kind of scholarship available.

$3,500 Camp Fund.

Last year, at a dance held in cooperation with Our Lady of Pompeii church, the young men started to raise money for a camp for the mothers, fathers, and city-bred children in the area. To date, approximately $3,500 has been raised by the committee. By next year they hope to have spent it for a site, about thirty or forty miles from the community, where families can go for vacations and know that they own it, that they are not being called underprivileged or being given charity by some other community's residents. Mr. Lonigro is chairman of the camp committee.

Every boy and every home is being touched by the plans of the committee which works in the area bounded by Harrison street on the north, Roosevelt road on the south, Canal street on the east; and Ashland avenue on the west. Anthony Sorrentino is business manager for the committee.

The personal friends of the boys in the area are the two truant officers, Paul D'Arco and Sam Serpe, both local men. After they are thru with their routine at 4 o'clock they go to the officers of the West Side Community committee, of which they are members. There they sit in readiness to answer calls to umpire games on the lots, give advice on school problems, help with school work, or help find a pair of needed shoes.

Leaders in Committee.

Mostly, when a boy plays truant now, he looks up one of these men and explains why. Last Christmas the two officers interested a local man in buying 25 coats for the children as gifts from a benevolent Santa Claus.

Other leaders in the committee of 65 are Benato Alghini, treasurer; James Sirchio, recording secretary; Peter R. Scalise, corresponding secretary; Hal Moore, vice president; the Rev. Remigio Pigato, controler. The advisory committee is composed of Henry W. King, Carroll H. Sudler Jr., and Gordon Lang.

The young men who are changing the reputation of their community represent all jobs, vocations, and professions. Some are laborers in factories, some are clerks, some are young attorneys. They have one thing in common—they were born and reared in the "bloody 20th" and they don't want their young brothers, sons or neighbors to get into trouble. Nor do they think they have to all move out in the country to be good citizens.

Museum Goes Begging

Sam Bornstein, 1529 South Trumbull avenue, Jewish explorer is shown here holding a hand wrought sword believed to be a relic from King Solomon's time. Bornstein, who has traveled all over the world and collected curios, has been asked to vacate the room given over to his museum seven years ago by the Jewish People's institute,

Talk on Tuberculosis.

Dr. J. Sanford Kruglick, assistant medical director of the Tuberculosis Institute of Chicago and Cook County, will address the school board and faculty members of St. John's school in Forest Park Tuesday night.

Must Move a Museum of 31,213 Objects.

I'm a working man. I can't move it all in that short time."

Sam says when he explained, the institute gave him two more months. Now he has until the middle of December to pack his weaver bird's nest, the shape of a boot and decorated by the weaver bird with a pattern of shells. He has only weeks in which to store his shrunken heads and 2,200 eggs, some of which are as tiny as a bee. "And then," mourns the explorer, "my 15 years of travel to bring these things for the west side people to see will all be wasted."

Sam Shows Letters.

Sam has the sympathy of Clifford C. Gregg, director of the Field museum, who wrote: "I believe it is to the interest of the general public to have more small museums rather than fewer. The museum movement is growing rapidly in this country."

Howard K. Gloyd, director of the Chicago Academy of Science, wrote him: "I am very glad to have had an opportunity recently to see your interesting museum at 3500 Douglas boulevard. The amount of material displayed and the variety of fields covered surprised me."

Bornstein has given every evening of his time free to the institute for the last seven years. From 6:30 to 10:30 o'clock he shows an average of 100 visitors around the 16 cases, telling his experiences in the far corners of the world. On July 9 there were 133 persons who visited the room. The explorer has also written four books, one of which was reviewed as far away as Buenos Aires, Argentina.

Also Needs Time.

Besides the $500 needed to move his collection, Bornstein says he needs time. "Maybe I could get out in a year," he says, "but I can't by December. If I don't move they say they will put my things in the basement."

"But a specialist has to handle these rare things," says Sam. "What would happen to my lyre bird and the old oriental wine bottle from Syria that they told me the Jews used for their Passover celebration? What would happen to the eggs and my fragile bird plumage?"

Sam Bornstein says he doesn't know what to do. He says he's sure that the more than one-half million who have seen his museum have liked it. He thinks it's a shame to store it in a warehouse even if he did have the money to buy packing cases and pay a mover.

Shade May Be Natural or in Mottled Colors.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

Never was there a time when the walls of our rooms received more attention. They seem one of the home's most favored spots.

Now a beautiful new material, which in its original states is one of the world's oldest materials, has made its appearance in the home building field. It is a highly functional and handsome wall surfacing; genuine rawhide, as paneling for the walls of a living room or study, a den, dining room, or bedroom.

In the natural shade this rawhide has the appearance of fine parchment. It is not tanned like leather, but its hide is left in the natural state, with the original markings of nature. It also is available in a number of lovely colors, and because the coloring process does not create one uniform shade the effect is varied like intricate patterning of marble, onyx, or agate.

Thickness Reduced.

A modern process has made this rawhide flexible and reduced its thickness, and yet its hard, shell-like surface and individual markings have been retained. No two rawhides are ever identical.

For years rawhide has been used to cover smart luggage. Now we find it can add distinction and smartness to our rooms. In its varied and attractive coloring which range from parchment to black, from pale tans to deep browns, from ivory and cream to pastel grays, it is now a striking wall paneling.

In a model home shown recently this rawhide was used on a stunning, circular fireplace wall. In a private office in Chicago it appears in brown agate form as a wall surfacing, and also as a covering for the desk, the chairs, the cabinets, and even the window sills. There are shades and colors of this rawhide paneling to give life and zest to the most modern of rooms. Again in other deeper tones it can blend with the atmosphere of a man's study or library, a family game room or hallway, living room, or bedroom.

Not for Plaster.

This rawhide is not recommended for application directly on plaster, but can be applied in panel form to plywood or metals.

The plywood should be at least three-eighths of an inch thick, cut to the proper size and pattern, and then covered with the rawhide. Light colored plywood should be used. [If the plywood has any dark spots or knots it should be painted first, as this rawhide is more or less transparent.]

After the rawhide covered panels have been firmly fastened to the walls they can be sprayed with a lacquer which is either dull or glossy, depending on the finish desired. Or wax may be used to create an individual finish. Such treatments preserve the natural beauty of the paneling and helps to keep it from absorbing any moisture from the house atmosphere.

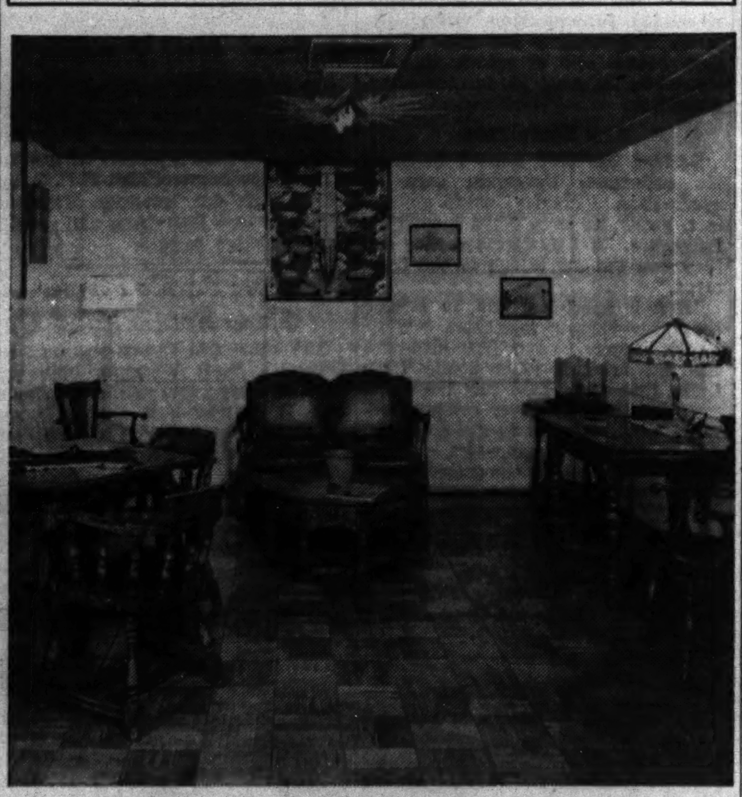
Easy to Keep Clean.

Not hard, either, to keep this paneling clean, since a light rubbing with a cloth slightly dampened in a mild soap suds solution will do the work.

In case you are building a new home or planning on changing the face of some room in the house you own, this new poneling for your walls—and also for your table tops, your cabinets, and many other of your room appointments—offers a treatment of richness and distinction. A treatment moreover which is as suited to a house carried out in ultramodern spirit as to one which follows faithfully along traditional or even ultra-conservative lines.

Tho the roots of this rawhide are buried deep in antiquity, its present form is very forward looking indeed.

Something New in Game Rooms



Something new, indeed. A game room in a basement with its walls paneled in rawhide. This rawhide, now available in many handsome colors as well as natural, which has the appearance of fine parchment, is both a highly functional and beautiful wall surfacing.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, Sept. 9.

Leaves soon will be falling and the energetic gardener will save them for composting or to allow them to decay to form desirable material for combining with soil for house plants, for mulching, or for other purposes. If the leaves are dry, wet them down to hasten decomposition.

If straw, leaves, cornstalks, or similar material is composted with a nitrogen bearing material, such as sulphate of ammonia or cyanamid and ground limestone and sprinkled with water, it will break down the material in a few months and result in a rich brown substance that has the appearance of rotted manure. By adding available phosphate and potash it will contain the essential elements for a complete fertilizer. Various brands are offered by firms to hasten the decay of the compost.

Many trees make little growth because of a lack of food in the soil. This may be supplied early in spring, during summer, or when dormant. Bore holes with a crowbar or auger 12 to 18 inches deep and 2 inches in diameter at intervals around the outermost circle of branch drip. Mix a good tree food with soil, half and half, and fill each hole and water in. To estimate the amount for a tree allow one pound to each inch of circumference of the trunk measured four feet from the ground.

Tuesday, Sept. 10.

Do not feed roses late in fall or a soft growth will result which is quite likely to freeze back during winter. The new lawn can be made around the middle of this month. Do not delay this important work until spring. It is a good time to dig perennial weeds that are in the lawn. Remember that a heavy stand of blue grass will keep weeds down to a minimum. Make a fine seedbed by carefully spading up bare places and raking up all lumps before sowing. The seed will never germinate properly if the soil is merely scratched, and if it is packed hard. Use about four pounds of seed per 100 square feet for new lawns and two pounds per 100 square feet on old lawns that need repair.

Wednesday, Sept. 11.

Order bulbs for fall planting. If there are ant colonies on the lawn or garden control can be effected by the use of carbon bisulphide. Insert an iron rod four to six inch intervals and pour in each a tablespoonful of the carbon bisulphide; cover with a wet burlap or blanket. The fumes will enter every tunnel or runway and kill the ants. Use care in handling the carbon bisulphide because it is poisonous and inflammable. Be careful not to spill it on the grass.

Plant narcissus bulbs this month, as early as possible. Divide old clumps of peonies so they will be well established before severe weather. They do best in medium heavy, rich soil. Do not plant more than two to three inches deep. The best time to plant is between Sept. 15 and mid-October. Hardy phlox should be transplanted by this time to give bloom next year, but clumps in good condition need dividing only once in about three years.

Seeding pansies should be transplanted now to give good growth before cold weather. They may be planted where they are to flower next spring if protected. Lay in material for winter mulching.

Thursday, Sept. 12.

Most perennials can be transplanted in fall, except the autumn blooming varieties. The entire perennial border can be remade if desired. Enrich the soil and dig deeply to accommodate the roots. Use tulips and other spring flowering bulbs in colonies in the foreground and the blooming season will be lengthened. Even a few lilies add much to the garden and they may be had in several kinds. The delicate, pink flowering Hall's amaryllis [lycorus squamigera] can be transplanted at this time. It is hardy with protection.

Friday, Sept. 13.

Applications of liquid manure to the budding chrysanthemums will give larger blooms. Disbudding also will give fine flowers.

Continue spraying roses and plants affected with rust or mildew. Dusting with sulphur will serve as a control, but a regular system must be continued to be effective. If a branch of the lilac or dogwood suddenly wilts examine the stems for borers and dig them out, if found. Hardy ferns can be transplanted in spring or fall, but the roots should not be allowed to dry out.

Saturday, Sept. 14.

Rhubarb and asparagus can be planted. Cultivation of roses should be discontinued now to enable the plants to thoroly ripen before winter. Sow hardy annuals now for earlier flowering next season. Plants which self-seed in the garden can all be planted.

Be sure to examine all plants that are to be brought indoors for winter growing. Some may need repotting, which may be done immediately. Do not overpot; give good soil; see that the drainage is perfect; place in a shady, protected place for a few days; water once thoroly and as needed thereafter.

Prepared in coöperation with Garfield park conservatory.

MARION CLAIRE, WEBER REJOINING SYMPHONIC HOUR

End Vacation; On W-G-N at 9 Tonight.

Marion Claire, soprano soloist, and Henry Weber, conductor of the W-G-N Symphony orchestra, will return to the Chicago Tribune Symphonic hour tonight. The hour will be broadcast from 9 to 10 o'clock over W-G-N, the Mutual network, and that of the Canadian Broadcasting corporation.

During the absence of Miss Claire and Mr. Weber, several noted Metropolitan Opera stars appeared as guest artists on the Symphonic Hour. Last week, Wilfred Pelletier, also Metropolitan conductor, and the distinguished mezzo-soprano, Rose Bampton, were presented.

MAUREEN O'HARA, LUCILLE BALL 'IN CHICAGO TONIGHT'

Thursday W-G-N Show to Feature Film Stars.

Two of Hollywood's most glamorous stars, Lucille Ball and Maureen O'Hara, will be starred on the W-G-N Mutual "In Chicago Tonight" program next Thursday evening from 7:30 to 8 o'clock. They will be presented in the W-G-N audience studio in a special dramatic program titled "On Stage, Please," written by W-G-N's noted producer-director, William A. Bacher, and a Hollywood author, Ashmead Scott.

Miss Ball and Miss O'Hara are coming to Chicago especially to take part in this presentation of "In Chicago Tonight." In passing thru Chicago en route east for a personal appearance tour, the Hollywood stars were offered the radio engagement. They will interrupt their tour at Buffalo to return to Chicago for this production of the nationally known W-G-N program.

Miss O'Hara is known as one of the most photogenic stars in Hollywood. Recently she was selected as the year's most promising actress as a result of her fine work in the above mentioned pictures. Maureen came to American movies from her native Dublin via the Abbey players and the legitimate stage.

Blonde Lucille Ball has a long list of movie successes to her credit. Her work in "Dance, Girl, Dance" has been hailed by movie critics in previews as outstanding. In this picture Miss Ball, like Miss O'Hara, clearly demonstrates her ability to handle rôles in musical shows as well as in the dramatic picture field.

In "Dance, Girl, Dance," Miss Ball and Miss O'Hara stage one of the screen classic fistic battles. The two girls portray chorus girls who finally decide the best way to settle their diffculties is by the manly art of fisticuffs.

The movie stars will be supported by an all-star cast of Chicago radio actors and actresses in Mr. Bacher's presentation of "On Stage, Please." Miss O'Hara and Miss Ball will arrive on Thursday morning and will be rushed into rehearsals for the evening's performance.

WILLIAMS GETS RECORD HOOKUP FOR NEWSCASTS

Wythe Williams, Mutual news analyst and noted foreign correspondent, will go on the air over Mutual on Tuesday in a program which will afford him the largest commercial hookup of stations ever made available to a newscaster. He will be heard twice-weekly on Tuesdays and Thursdays over W-G-N from 7 to 7:15 p. m., with a repeat broadcast from 9:30 to 9:45 p. m.

Williams will go on the air from 93 stations. The program represents the most inclusive contract ever signed by the Mutual Broadcasting System, and also represents the most extensive broadcast of a twice-weekly commercial program ever heard.

Williams, author of a newspaper column, "As the Clock Strikes," has rocketed to national prominence by the accuracy of his amazing news-beats since he went on the air lanes less than eight months ago.

Williams is a veteran of 26 years spent abroad representing English and American newspapers. As correspondent for the New York Times, he witnessed many of the biggest battles of the world war. After the war, he roamed the continent from Istanbul to London writing for newspapers and magazines and making contacts which have proved so valuable to him today. He returned to this country in 1936 and wrote a book, "Dusk of Empire."

Born in Meadville, Pa., in 1881, Williams was educated at Ohio Wesleyan, and received his newspaper ABC's on Minneapolis, Milwaukee, and Chicago papers. In 1910, while on the staff of the old New York World, he went to Europe on a vacation. He arrived in London the same day Edward VII. died, and was drafted into service as a correspondent immediately.

"Should the government be able to conscript industry in the interests of national defense?" This question and others on the relationship of government and defense industries will be discussed on the Northwestern university reviewing stand from 10:15 to 10:30 a. m. today over W-G-N and the Mutual network.

Frank H. Gane, professor of economics and finance, and Paul L. Morrison, professor of finance, both of Northwestern university, will be speakers. Both Dr. Gane and Dr. Morrison, who is also partner in a firm of investment counselors, are specialists on the relation of government to business.

Dr. Gane and Dr. Morrison will analyze their subject in the light of recent developments as well as in terms of the best long-run approach to the coördination of industries in the interests of defense. Should government have control over industry? Who should have the power? are among the questions Dr. Gane and Dr. Morrison will consider.

The analysis will be the fifth in the reviewing stand's series on America's major problems. Because of the permanent reference value of the series, copies of the talks are being offered to listeners.

Bob Hope and Gang Open New Air Series Sept. 24

Bob Hope, with the mad professor, Jerry Colonna, and the glamor girls, Brenda and Cobina [Blanche Stewart and Elvia Allman] aided by Skinnay Ennis and his orchestra and Bill Goodwin, will return to the NBC-Red network, Tuesday, Sept. 24, over 64 stations.

Plans Wedding

The engagement of Miss Beverly Silverman to Samuel H. Mages was announced recently by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William C. Silverman, 145 South Central avenue. Miss Silverman, a graduate of De Paul university, has planned a December wedding. Mr. Mages is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry H. Mages, 214 South Hamlin avenue, and is a graduate of Kent college of law.

'YOUR TREAT' AIRS SEARS TENOR AND KOGEN ENSEMBLE

"Your Treat," featuring Charles Sears, romantic young tenor, and Harry Kogen's stringed ensemble, will be presented from 10 to 10:15 a. m., Tuesdays, Thursdays, and Saturdays over W-G-N.

Sears has been soloist in network shows since 1932. Co-star Kogen is a noted violinist and composer as well as leader of the stringed ensemble. Kogen has conducted everything from jazz to opera in his many radio engagements.

CBS Concert to Range from Haydn to Wagner

A balanced program of famous masterpieces from the classic period of Handel and Haydn to the close of Wagner's life has been prepared by Howard Barlow for his Columbia Broadcasting Symphony concert, on station WIND and the Columbia Broadcasting system from 2 to 3:30 p. m. today. William Fineshriber is intermission commentator.

NORMAN TO AIR QUIZ OF WOMEN ONLY ON W-G-N

Don Norman's street show, featuring interviews with women only, will be broadcast from 2 to 2:15 p. m., daily except Saturday and Sunday, over W-G-N starting tomorrow. Norman will operate from a microphone in front of the McVicker's theater on Madison street. He formerly worked in the lobby of the Oriental.

Originator of "Man on the Street" interviews in Chicago, Norman has broadcast his show for five years. He pops highly personal questions at the ladies and receives frank and willing answers. Names of those interviewed are not announced on the air.

Myrna Loy, Powell, Ameche on Radio Theater Premiere

William Powell and Myrna Loy, with Don Ameche as co-star, will open the Radio theater's new season on the Columbia Broadcasting system and WBBM at 8 p. m. tomorrow. "Manhattan Melodrama" is the play chosen by Producer Cecil B. De Mille for the première. Powell and Miss Loy will play rôles they filled in the film version.

PRESENT NEW W-G-N MUSICAL FRIDAY EVENING

The Friday Night Show, a new program directed by Harold Stokes, with Patti Clayton and Curt Massey as featured vocalists, will be broadcast from 7 to 7:30 p. m. over W-G-N and the Mutual network, starting next Friday. The W-G-N dance orchestra, under Stokes' baton, and the octet will be presented regularly on the weekly show.

Miss Clayton, youthful W-G-N singing discovery, will make her début as regular soloist with a presentation of "Fools Rush In." She will join Massey and the octet in singing "We Could Make Such Beautiful Music" as the evening finale.

"Sierra Sue" will be presented by Massey as his solo. A romantic baritone, Massey's singing style is sweet and smooth. In contrast, he is adept in swinging out hot music on the violin. Massey will combine his vocal and violin talents in a special adaptation of "Honeysuckle Rose."

Miss Clayton, who is 20 years old, began singing on W-G-N in January, 1938, when she appeared as one of the "Four Shades of Blue" on another Stokes program. At present she sings with the "Three Graces," and also appears in solo presentations with Pianist Harold Turner.

Massey, a drawling Texan, had his first vocal experience singing chuck wagon ballads with members of his father's ranch crew. He now owns a ranch near Roswell, N. M. Capitalizing on his open space background, Massey has sung with a singing group known as the "Westerners" for eight years.

The Friday Night Show will replace Wings for America, W-G-N-Mutual's summer drama featuring Elissa Landi and Phillips Holmes, which closed a ten week run last Friday. The new program will be an audience show, as was Wings for America.

Football Forecast.

OPEN PAGEANT OF MELODY WITH D'ALBERT WORK

The W-G-N Concert orchestra will open Henry Weber's "Pageant of Melody," from 9:15 to 10 p. m. Wednesday with a presentation of the overture from Eugen D'Albert's "Der Improvisator." With Kathryn Witwer, soprano, and Attilio Baggiore, tenor, as featured artists, the program will be broadcast over W-G-N and the Mutual network.

The W-G-N chorus will sing Georg Handel's largo and will join Miss Witwer and Baggiore in presenting themes from Kalman—"Love's Own Sweet Song," "To Its Waiting Nest," and "Play Gypsies, Dance Gypsies"—for the finale number.

"Dance of the Bouffons," by Nicolai Rimsky-Korsakov, and Felix Mendelssohn's Scherzo will be played by the Concert orchestra.

Eddie Oliver and his orchestra will make their Chicago debut in the newly decorated Continental room of the Stevens hotel next Saturday evening. He will also be heard for the first time on W-G-N and the Mutual network. Oliver played several successful seasons at the Les Ambassadeurs in Paris, the Grosvenor House in London and the Carlton restaurant in Amsterdam, Holland. In this country he has appeared at night spots from east to west.

OPEN $200,000 CHURCH NEXT SUNDAY

ST. BRENDAN'S PARISH TO HAVE GOLDEN JUBILEE

Observance to Start on Sept. 16.

It was 50 years ago, when the O'Neills, Stewarts, Lubys, Hunts, Shanahans, Ryans, Walshes, and a dozen other families were well enough established in West Englewood that Archbishop Patrick A. Feehan decided they needed a church of their own. St. Bernard's parish was already established in Englewood, and the folks from West Englewood, then called Englewood on the Hill, had to come to mass via the 69th street horse car line unless they had their own transportation.

The Rev. Bernard T. Brady.

The Rev. Bernard P. Murray was pastor at St. Bernard's. The archbishop instructed him to establish a mission west of Racine avenue, then Center avenune. And it is the success of this mission and its growth into the independent parish of St. Brendan's that parishioners will observe in a week of special masses beginning a week from tomorrow and at a special jubilee service on Sept. 22.

Plan Special Masses.

The Rev. Bernard T. Brady, present pastor at St. Brendan's, announces that masses will be repeated at 9 o'clock each morning, Sept. 16 thru Sept. 20. The first day will be the children's jubilee celebration; Tuesday, Sept. 17, will be a mass for all nuns who have taught in St. Brendan's school; Wednesday, Sept. 18, will be a mass for the benefactors of St. Brendan's; Thursday for the dead of the parish, and Friday for the deceased priests, assistants, and pastors of St. Brendan's.

A jubilee dance will take place in the Palmer House on the evening of Friday, Sept. 20. Bishop James A. Griffin, D. D., of Springfield, former assistant at St. Brendan's, will celebrate the solemn high pontifical mass at noon on Sept. 22 in the formal jubilee observance. Archbishop Samuel A. Stritch, D. D., will preach the jubilee sermon.

Father Murray established the original mission church at the southeast corner of 67th and Bishop streets. The building, an old frame structure which had housed a First Baptist church at Englewood and Stewart avenues, was moved to the new site. One of the original parishioners, Mrs. Anna Stewart of 6628 Carpenter street, and several other women rolled up their sleeves and scrubbed the structure. They put the place in shape for the first mass which, history shows, very few attended.

Crowd at Dedication.

Dedication services were better, however. Archbishop Feehan conducted the ceremonies on May 12, 1890, and the church was crowded to the doors. Confirmation of a class of 80 from St. Bernard's followed the dedication, high mass, and archbishop's address. The new church was named St. Brendan after St. Brendan of Clonfert, who was also known as St. Brendan the Navigator because of his reputed voyage to the western continent in the sixth century.

The first little structure had a seating capacity of 300 and cost $7,000. The year after its dedication the first resident pastor, the Rev. Michael T. Macken, was appointed. John Riordan, son of John and Mary Riordan, was the first child baptized by Father Macken. And he read the first marriage ceremony at his new charge for Mary E. West and Frank Devine on Nov. 9, 1891.

Frank J. Ryan, who represented Englewood district in the state legislature for many years and was state senator from the 11th district when he died in 1926, was one of the first ushers in the church. The other was Frank K. Gerty. Mr. Ryan's widow and four of his children still reside at the old address, 6828 Bishop street. Mr. Gerty, also deceased, was the father of Dr. Francis J. Gerty, now medical director of Cook county psychopathic hospital.

Five in First Class.

Houses in the West Englewood prairie of half century ago were scarcely more numerous than four to a block. Consequently the first class of St. Brendan first communicants was small—just five children. They were Emma Marinier, Josephine Hackett, Elizabeth Kinsella, Kate McDonald, and William McDonald. Emma Marinier, now Mrs. George F. Stokes, still resides in the parish at 6831 Aberdeen street.

Construction of a new church home at 67th street and Racine avenue began in 1900 and first services were conducted there early in 1901. The old church was torn down to make way for a two story frame school which was opened on Aug. 24, 1901, by a group of Dominican Sisters from Sinsinawa, Wis. Within three years the enrolment passed the 700 mark.

Paging all Englewood babies—of 1890. The Englewood Golden Jubilee committee, preparing for the formal celebration of 50 years of annexation to Chicago Nov. 10 to 16, is looking for the "pioneer" babies to include them in jubilee plans. They'll be guests at the jubilee banquet and ride in a special float in the jubilee parade.

Annexation year "infants" are being sought by checking the Englewood 1890 directory, scanning 1890 church records, and by broadcasting appeals. The annexation babies are to report in person, by letter, or telephone to the golden jubilee headquarters, Y. M. C. A. building, 6545 South Union avenue.

Seek Oldest Pioneer.

Mrs. Viola Neeson, representing the Englewood Historical committee, and Miss Minnie S. Clark, branch librarian at the Hiram Kelly branch library, are looking into Englewood Historical society records for pioneer babies. Mrs. William Johnson, president of the Englewood Woman's club, is directing the baby hunt in that organization.

Another jubilee quest being carried on now is for the oldest living pioneer. Daniel S. Wentworth, 6724 South Union avenue, chairman of the old settlers' committee, is conducting this search. His assistants include Theodore F. Ehler, former judge of the Municipal court, 917 West 63d street; Charles L. Thayer, pioneer Englewood realtor, 700 West 69th street; Dr. E. C. Morton, who brought many of the annexation year babies into the world, 6801 South Union avenue, and L. H. Lanyon, 415 West 63d street, an undertaker. The oldest pioneer will be honored with the annexation infants.

School Essay Contest.

The golden anniversary plans are not centered on the November dates. Besides the 1890 baby quest and old settler hunt, they include contests for this month and next. Englewood public and parochial high school students will compete thruout September in an essay contest, "Englewood—Past and Present." The educational committee, headed by John Bartky, president of Chicago Teachers' college, is in charge of this activity. Prizes will be awarded for the best compositions.

Next month will feature the jubilee queen contest. Eligible contestants are young unmarried women living in the area bounded by Garfield boulevard [55th street] on the north, 95th street on the south, State street on the east, and Kedzie avenue on the west. The girls will be judged for beauty, personality, and poise, and the winner will lead the jubilee parade on the evening of Nov. 13.

October will be a month for more baby competition, also. But these will be the honest to goodness variety babies, not the 1890 boys and girls. Youngsters will be judged on a basis of health. Mothers must register entrants at jubilee headquarters.

Special Church Services.

The formal golden jubilee observance will begin on Sunday, Nov. 10, with services in all Englewood churches. The ceremonies the next day will be devoted to Armistice anniversary activities. The Englewood Medical and Dental societies will be in charge on Nov. 12. The anniversary parade will be the feature of the evening of Nov. 13, and the next day will be a business celebration of the program.

A community banquet is planned for Nov. 15 evening in Hamilton park fieldhouse. On Saturday, Nov. 16, the final date of the celebration, all parks and playgrounds will have special entertainment features.

Executive committee members and the committees they represent, are: Fred C. Rathje, finance; James F. McFarland, church participation; Joseph Halwax, ex-service groups; John Bartky, schools; Mrs. William Johnson, women's clubs; O. Sheldon VanZant, service groups; William H. McDonnell, public officials; James H. Lackey, parks and playgrounds; L. C. Smith, business men's participation; Mrs. Harry F. Partridge, P.-T. A. activities; David Donnan, fraternal organizations.

More on Committees.

School Will Interrupt Their Archery

FOUR NEW WARDS JOIN 100% RANKS IN DRIVE ON RATS

5,065 More Buildings Have Garbage Cans.

By the end of this month every building in Chicago will be supplied with a garbage can and at that time the city will launch its long awaited blitzkrieg against an army of 500,000 rats. So says Oscar E. Hewitt, commissioner of public works, the big city Pied Piper who is working to rid Chicago of rats in the modern manner.

By the end of the month, when the city will have armed itself 100 per cent with garbage cans, starvation is expected to decimate the rat army.

18 Perfect Wards.

The latest report on Mr. Hewitt's desk shows that the number of wards now rated as 100 per cent in being supplied with garbage cans—a garbage can for each building—has jumped in one week from 14 to 18. Six other wards rate 99 per cent. The lowest ward, the 26th, is 75.7.

Last week 5,065 buildings were reported to have been supplied with cans. In several wards aldermen, superintendents and citizens have given money so that the cans may be supplied free to the poor. Many manufacturing firms and gasoline stations have donated barrels and empty oil drums as garbage receptacles.

Southwest Side Report.

9th ward—Edwin Watson; gain from 90 to 93.8 per cent; 2,208 buildings still without cans.

11th ward—James J. Mitchell; change from 81.7 to 82.8 per cent; 1,429 buildings still lacking cans.

13th ward—Thomas Carney; gain from 70.4 to 82.5 per cent; 2,317 buildings lacking cans.

15th ward—Frank Micek; change from 86.3 to 88.2 per cent; 1,203 buildings lacking cans.

16th ward—Edward Petlak; change from 97 to 97.5 per cent; 243 buildings without cans.

17th ward—Rudolph Woerner; change from 77.4 to 78.5 per cent; 1,565 buildings still without cans.

19th ward—Michael O'Malley; change from 89.4 to 90.4 per cent; 1,254 buildings without cans.

Girls, Pool, and Water Lilies

Girls, pool, and water lilies equal this picture in Gage park, 55th street and Western avenue, where the lilies are now blooming. The girls are Eileen Czach, 5439 South California avenue (left), and Patricia Scanlon, 5637 South Artesian avenue. Water lilies in the Chicago park district's aquatic gardens bloom in shades verging from white to cream, sulphur yellow, and bronze; from flesh pink to deep rose and red, lavendar to purple, and sky blue to hyacinth. They range up to a foot in diameter. The hardy flowers open in the daytime; the tropical blossoms open at night. The small hardy blooms keep to the surface of the water while the tropical flowers rise several inches above it. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

McGuan spent most of the last years handling prisoners at the South Chicago branch of the Municipal court. He is married and has six children. At present he is taking a well earned rest in Wisconsin fishing, and has made no plans beyond that.

ST. ROSE OF LIMA PARISH TO HOLD DEDICATION RITE

Archbishop Stritch to Preside.

Business and labor leaders from back of the yards will coöperate with churchmen and parishioners next Sunday in colorful dedication ceremonies for St. Rose of Lima Catholic church, convent, and school at 48th and Justine streets.

The $200,000 structure, of reinforced concrete and brick walls, has four floors, including the ground, or semibasement space, which is an auditorium with a 40 by 20 foot stage at one end. The first floor is the church, seating 850, the second floor the school, and the third is the home for the Sisters of Mercy, who teach in the school. The Rev. W. I. Ward is pastor of St. Rose's.

Archbishop to Preside.

Next Sunday's celebration will include a procession, led by 150 priests and 25 monsignori, from Father Ward's residence at 48th street and Ashland avenue to the new building, which is one block east on 48th street. Representatives of the church sodalities will be in the procession along with Boy Scouts and other members of parish groups.

Archbishop Stritch will preside at the dedication of the church and blessing of the school, and will give the sermon. The dedicatory mass will be celebrated at noon.

Because the church will not accommodate the numbers expected, a loud speaker system will carry the service outside the building.

Parish Founded in 1882.

St. Rose of Lima parish was founded in 1882. The first pastor was the Rev. Thomas F. Galligan. He was followed in 1883 by the Rev. Dennis Hayes, who served until 1917, and was succeeded by the Rev. Peter O'Dwyer, who served until 1931. The Rev. Francis O. McCarthy was next, and the present pastor, Father Ward, came in 1934. His assistants are Father James J. Rowley and Father Joseph A. Kelly.

St. Rose church and school have been in separate buildings. The old church faces Ashland avenue at the northeast corner of 48th street. The old school is on the southeast corner of 48th street and Marshfield avenue.

Simple Decoration in Church.

The new building is of no distinct architectural style. According to parish leaders, it has been constructed as "an honest expression of function adapted to modern materials."

The church section of the structure is classically simple in line and decoration. A walnut wainscoting, decorated by a wood inlay border, outlines the altar section. This decoration was executed by a member of the parish. Fluorescent lamps above the altar provide illumination.

Floors of the building are of asphalt tile, except in the convent quarters, where they are of wood and block end inlays.

All furniture in the eight classrooms of the school floor is new. The nuns' quarters are newly furnished, also. Each room is provided with a lavatory. Deck porches are on either side of the convent floor.

A chapel is being finished on the floor, also. When complete, it will have walnut paneled walls.

Others are Tony Benes, James Schergen, Ray Schroff, Arthur Svarc, Virgil Nash, William Pream, Joseph Vladika, George Dudas, Andrew Roback, Walter Nawrot, James Klaub, Joseph Haas, Chester Barth, George Retzloff, Thomas Hurley, Stanley Wlosek, Patrick Corcoran, Harold Wagner, Arthur Harmon Jr., Joseph Karceski, Harold Segers, Joseph McGarry, Thomas Raher, John Owl, Michael Swartz, Martin Ward, Jack Dolan.

PARKED JALOPY A PERIL.

In these hypocritical days of "Safety for the People" it seems apparent that political favoritism is the real goal of our friends and I am compelled to ask the following question:

Why, under the recent expenditures for safety, are the following conditions permitted to continue to exist?

On a steep hill on 87th street just east of Western avenue thru Ryan woods there is a small log cabin, a hot dog and soft drink concession stand, halfway down the hill. This fellow parks his jalopy half way down the hill with the car half way in the east bound traffic pavement. The car in question is not worth $100 but has caused damage much in excess of this amount. It can also kill some one and may be the cause of crippling many.

We Chicagoans are assessed thousands of dollars to promote safety. With this condition condoned by the committeemen of the 18th and 19th wards and the politicians in the area we wonder just why they spend thousands of our tax dollars to erect "No Parking at Any Time" signs every hundred feet on both sides of the hill and then permit the old jalopy to still park there. It is 100 feet from costly parking areas provided with our tax money.

Most of us tax paying home owners who used to be called the backbone of Chicago, and got milked accordingly, are just about fed up with this sort of treatment. I know that as a result of this letter the police will conduct an investigation and stop the jalopy from parking on the hill. But why is this letter necessary? Political favoritism is the only answer. W. F. B.

PROTESTS PARKING AT CORNER.

We live in the Auburn park district. There is a very dangerous crossing at 78th street and Halsted. Cars park so that a person has to walk behind them and get out in the street before they can see cars coming. Every time you cross the street there you are in danger of being killed.

There have been many accidents there. Sometimes cars are parked double. We should have a stop and go light there. Also at 77th street. These are school crossings and hundreds of children pass this business section.

Why are cars allowed up to the walk and allowed to park double? M. N.

2,000 ON RELIEF FORM ARMY TO CUT CITY WEEDS

1,850 Acres Cleared of Noxious Growths.

Two thousand persons receiving direct relief were put to work cutting and pulling weeds in vacant lots and city parkways during the first eight months of this year. Some 1,850 acres —77,853,949 square feet—were cleared under the direction of the bureau of streets.

"It was the first time in the history of the city that reliefers have done this type of work," Oscar E. Hewitt, commissioner of public works, said. "They worked for the relief they obtained. Many said that they preferred working to sitting at home in idleness. They liked the idea of repaying the public for the relief which the taxes supplied."

Mayor Launches Drive.

At the beginning of the year Mayor Kelly launched a campaign for the eradication of noxious weeds. The purpose of the drive was five-fold: [1] to aid hay fever victims; [2] to provide work for persons on relief; 3] to reduce motor accidents at intersections where high weeds on corner lots obscured vision; [4] to clear lots for playground sites, and [5] to aid in beautifying the city.

Commissioner Hewitt said the pollen count in Chicago has been lessened considerably at a result of the work. More weeds have been cut and pulled this year than ever before, he declared.

In a checkup of the first eight months this year the public works commissioner has tabulated in square feet the number of weeds cut. The tabulation has been compiled by wards.

He and Miss Johnson are holding historical records in which they expect to find notices of the births of annexation year babies. 9,800 STUDENTS TO TAKE PART IN R. O. T. C. DUTIES

300 More Cadets Will Be in Uniform.

With the beginning of the school term more than 9,800 students are expected to take part in R. O. T. C. activities in Chicago high schools. In answer to the increasing demand for training more of the city's youths, the war department has authorized an increase of 300 uniformed cadets in the city's enrollment.

Col. William F. Morrison, head of the Chicago public school units, expects 7,800 uniformed cadets in the public school training corps for this school year.

Because of the need for funds in the training of men for the regular army, the war department has been unable to answer the request of many schools for the installation of units. Consequently the number of schools offering training will remain as last year—27 public high schools and one Catholic school.

Must Buy Uniforms.

The Catholic school is St. Mel's at 1 North Kildare avenue. About 800 students are expected to take part in the work. Of this number, 250 are freshmen, who will, as in the public schools, be forced to either go without or buy their own uniforms. The government furnishes uniforms only for upper classmen.

The allotted 7,800 public school cadets will be augmented by freshmen in the various schools who wish to take the training but are not allowed to have uniforms. Approximately 1,200 boys are expected to volunteer for freshmen work.

There have been no changes in the officer staffs for the coming year, and no new military instructors have been assigned. However, Col. Morrison said the war department had authorized the appointment of five new instructors, and that applications for the posts were being received.

Instructions Are Same.

No changes are expected in drill instruction, as the new army drill manual was adopted last year by the Chicago units. The present drill system conforms to the latest type authorized by the war department for all infantry organizations.

During the summer many improvements have been made in the schools that will facilitate training of the students.

Calumet, 225 cadets; Du Sable, 280; Englewood, 235; Fenger, 355; Harper, 160; Kelly, 160; Lindblom, 360; Morgan Park, 245; Tilden, 425 cadets.

At Fenger High school, Sergt. William P. Robinson has been promoted to staff sergeant, and at Calumet High, Sergt. Stanley J. Tutlis received the same promotion. At Tilden Staff Sergeant Michael J. Moore was promoted to technical sergeant.

Ready to Uniform Cadets

With 7,800 public school students ready to take up their R. O. T. C. activities again, it's time to dust off the uniforms and find the pants that match the coat. Here are a few of the uniforms that are freshly cleaned and pressed and all ready to be filled out with a military chest. Master Sergeant Harry Ain is one of the men who has the big responsibility of seeing that Chicago R. O. T. C. cadets are well turned out.

and by 1910 children were turned away for lack of room.

The new church required 15 years for completion. It was dedicated in 1915. Father Macken's death occurred on Jan. 28, 1916, a quarter of a century after he'd taken over the little mission church with its first confirmation class of five youngsters.

Convent Is Rebuilt.

The Rev. Patrick J. Scanlon succeeded Father Macken, and the following year he led the parish in supporting the construction of a new convent adjoining the church on Marquette road. The next project was the building of the school on Elizabeth street south of the convent. This was opened in 1924.

Father Scanlon died on Feb. 6, 1937, and the next month Cardinal Mundelein chose the Rev. Bernard T. Brady to assume duties at St. Brendan's. He came from a charge in Wilmette. His assistant, Father John C. Keenan, came with him. Father Keenan is in charge of the jubilee dancing party at the Palmer House.

Two Sessions Planned on Program Today.

The annual meeting of the Association for the Study of Negro Life and History will close tomorrow evening at Du Sable High school with a talk by Dr. Carter G. Woodson, founder of the organization. The meetings, which began last Friday, marked the 25th anniversary of the group.

The association was started by Dr. Woodson with the idea of publishing a magazine devoted to the study of the Negro. After a long financial struggle, during which time Dr. Woodson supported the organization almost alone, the group has emerged into one of the foremost exponents of cultural development and historical research among the colored race.

Today's program begins with a writer's breakfast at the International House of the University of Chicago. Dr. M. O. Bousfield will preside over the meeting at which Dr. George Simpson of Pennsylvania State college, and Dr. Melville Hersovits of Northwestern university will be among the speakers.

Mrs. Stewart Jamieson, 6359 Stewart avenue, is house and room chairman of the Englewood Woman's club this year. Mrs. Jamieson will manage all details in operating the clubhouse, a task which doesn't always bring its chairman into the limelight because a good house and room committee head works behind the scenes.

In suburban Blue Island Mrs. John Kent is membership chairman of the Blue Island Woman's club. This year she has 200 names on her roll, and she has a stack of signed applications on file. Mrs. Kent has served as 3d district garden chairman and was honored by the Chicago park board by having a chrysanthemum named for her.

Shade May Be Natural or in Mottled Colors.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

Never was there a time when the walls of our rooms received more attention. They seem one of the home's most favored spots.

Now a beautiful new material, which in its original states is one of the world's oldest materials, has made its appearance in the home building field. It is a highly functional and handsome wall surfacing; genuine rawhide, as paneling for the walls of a living room or study, a den, dining room, or bedroom.

In the natural shade this rawhide has the appearance of fine parchment. It is not tanned like leather, but its hide is left in the natural state, with the original markings of nature. It also is available in a number of lovely colors, and because the coloring process does not create one uniform shade the effect is varied like intricate patterning of marble, onyx, or agate.

Thickness Reduced.

A modern process has made this rawhide flexible and reduced its thickness, and yet its hard, shell-like surface and individual markings have been retained. No two rawhides are ever identical.

For years rawhide has been used to cover smart luggage. Now we find it can add distinction and smartness to our rooms. In its varied and attractive coloring which range from parchment to black, from pale tans to deep browns, from ivory and cream to pastel grays, it is now a striking wall paneling.

In a model home shown recently this rawhide was used on a stunning, circular fireplace wall. In a private office in Chicago it appears in brown agate form as a wall surfacing, and also as a covering for the desk, the chairs, the cabinets, and even the window sills. There are shades and colors of this rawhide paneling to give life and zest to the most modern of rooms. Again in other deeper tones it can blend with the atmosphere of a man's study or library, a family game room or hallway, living room, or bedroom.

Not for Plaster.

This rawhide is not recommended for application directly on plaster, but can be applied in panel form to plywood or metals.

The plywood should be at least three-eighths of an inch thick, cut to the proper size and pattern, and then covered with the rawhide. Light colored plywood should be used. [If the plywood has any dark spots or knots it should be painted first, as this rawhide is more or less transparent.] Special adhesives are available for application on plywood so the rawhide will adhere well.

After the rawhide covered panels have been firmly fastened to the walls they can be sprayed with a lacquer which is either dull or glossy, depending on the finish desired. Or wax may be used to create an individual finish. Such treatments preserve the natural beauty of the paneling and helps to keep it from absorbing any moisture from the house atmosphere.

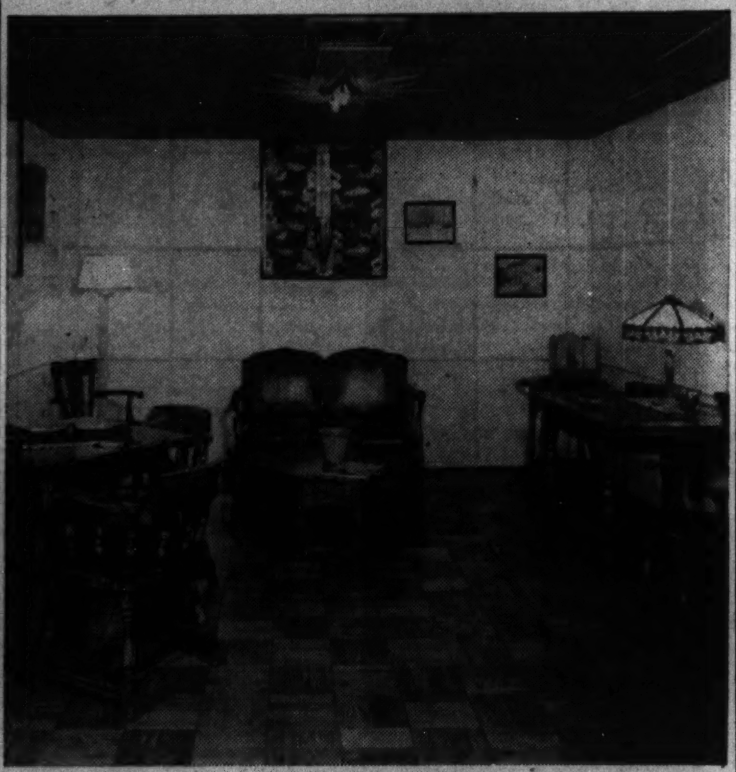
Easy to Keep Clean.

Not hard, either, to keep this paneling clean, since a light rubbing with a cloth slightly dampened in a mild soap suds solution will do the work.

In case you are building a new home or planning on changing the face of some room in the house you own, this new paneling for your walls—and also for your table tops, your cabinets, and many other of your room appointments—offers a treatment of richness and distinction. A treatment moreover which is as suited to a house carried out in ultra-modern spirit as to one which follows faithfully along traditional or even ultra-conservative lines.

Tho the roots of this rawhide are buried deep in antiquity, its present form is very forward looking indeed.

Something New in Game Rooms



Something new, indeed. A game room in a basement with its walls paneled in rawhide. This rawhide, now available in many handsome colors as well as natural, which has the appearance of fine parchment, is both a highly functional and beautiful wall surfacing.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, Sept. 9.

Leaves soon will be falling and the energetic gardener will save them for composting or to allow them to decay to form desirable material for combining with soil for house plants, for mulching, or for other purposes. If the leaves are dry, wet them down to hasten decomposition.

If straw, leaves, cornstalks, or similar material is composted with a nitrogen bearing material, such as sulphate of ammonia or cyanamid and ground limestone and sprinkled with water, it will break down the material in a few months and result in a rich brown substance that has the appearance of rotted manure. By adding available phosphate and potash it will contain the essential elements for a complete fertilizer. Various brands are offered by firms to hasten the decay of the compost.

Many trees make little growth because of a lack of food in the soil. This may be supplied early in spring, during summer, or when dormant. Bore holes with a crowbar or auger 12 to 18 inches deep and 2 inches in diameter at intervals around the outermost circle of branch drip. Mix a good tree food with soil, half and half, and fill each hole and water in. To estimate the amount for a tree allow one pound to each inch of circumference of the trunk measured four feet from the ground.

Tuesday, Sept. 10.

Do not feed roses late in fall or a soft growth will result which is quite likely to freeze back during winter. The new lawn can be made around the middle of this month. Do not delay this important work until spring. It is a good time to dig perennial weeds that are in the lawn. Remember that a heavy stand of blue grass will keep weeds down to a minimum. Make a fine seedbed by carefully spading up bare places and raking up all lumps before sowing. The seed will never germinate properly if the soil is merely scratched, and if it is packed hard. Use about four pounds of seed per 100 square feet for new lawns and two pounds per 100 square feet on old lawns that need repair.

Wednesday, Sept. 11.

Order bulbs for fall planting. If there are ant colonies on the lawn or garden control can be effected by the use of carbon bisulphide. Insert an iron rod four to six inch intervals and pour in each a tablespoonful of the carbon bisulphide; cover with a wet burlap or blanket. The fumes will enter every tunnel or runway and kill the ants. Use care in handling the carbon bisulphide because it is poisonous and inflammable. Be careful not to spill it on the grass.

Plant narcissus bulbs this month, as early as possible. Divide old clumps of peonies so they will be well established before severe weather. They do best in medium heavy, rich soil, Do not plant more than two to three inches deep. The best time to plant is between Sept. 15 and mid-October. Hardy phlox should be transplanted by this time to give bloom next year, but clumps in good condition need dividing only once in about three years.

Seeding pansies should be transplanted now to give good growth before cold weather. They may be planted where they are to flower next spring if protected. Lay in material for winter mulching.

Thursday, Sept. 12.

Most perennials can be transplanted in fall, except the autumn blooming varieties. The entire perennial border can be remade if desired. Enrich the soil and dig deeply to accommodate the roots. Use tulips and other spring flowering bulbs in colonies in the foreground and the blooming season will be lengthened. Even a few lilies add much to the garden and they may be had in several kinds. The delicate, pink flowering Hall's amaryllis [lycorus squamigera] can be transplanted at this time. It is hardy with protection. Set the bulbs about four inches deep. Why not sow a packet of radishes in the coldframe? They will develop before winter.

Friday, Sept. 13.

Applications of liquid manure to the budding chrysanthemums will give larger blooms. Disbudding also will give fine flowers.

Continue spraying roses and plants affected with rust or mildew. Dusting with sulphur will serve as a control, but a regular system must be continued to be effective. If a branch of the lilac or dogwood suddenly wilts examine the stems for borers and dig them out, if found. Hardy ferns can be transplanted in spring or fall, but the roots should not be allowed to dry out.

There are many shady places between buildings that could be beautiful by fern plantings. Consult the nurseryman for supply. Do not transplant hardy chrysanthemums or other fall flowering perennials in fall, for they will not have time to become established before severe weather.

Saturday, Sept. 14.

Rhubarb and asparagus can be planted. Cultivation of roses should be discontinued now to enable the plants to thoroly ripen before winter. Sow hardy annuals now for earlier flowering next season. Plants which self-seed in the garden can all be planted.

Be sure to examine all plants that are to be brought indoors for winter growing. Some may need repotting, which may be done immediately. Do not overpot; give good soil; see that the drainage is perfect; place in a shady, protected place for a few days; water once thoroly and as needed thereafter.

Prepared in coöperation with Garfield park conservatory.

FARM LAND O. K. TO LOOK AT, BUT CITY GRIPS HIM

Retired Cop Will Not 'Go Back Home.'

Last Sunday Michael F. Rascher, 8220 South Loomis boulevard, was 63 years old. It was more than just another birthday, because he was a Chicago policeman, and under the compulsory retirement provision for men on the force, a 63d birthday is quitting time. So Policeman Michael Rascher of the South Chicago station is now Michael Rascher, retired.

Rascher was born in Beecher, Ill. His father was German, but his mother was Irish, making him, in descent, one-half what American tradition decrees a policeman should be. Especially a Chicago policeman. He liked the farming country where he was born well enough, but he thought he'd like the city better. He still likes to take a ride into the country and look at the farms, but he's glad to get back to town in the evening.

First Drove a Team.

When he was 20 years old Rascher first came to Chicago. He found a place to live on the southwest side, and he's resided in that section ever since. He drove a team for a couple of years. Then he became a motorman on the street cars. Horse cars were still in use. In fact, after midnight the horse cars were about the only transportation left for city folk.

He filed an application for the police force in 1904. He took an examination, and he was put on with a shift of 500 who were thrown into the campaign against a homicide wave. Altogether, 1,000 rookies were added to the force of 5,000.

Rascher went to work on March 19, 1906. Chicago's population was under the 2 milliond mark. Chicago police hadn't a single motorcycle. There were no mounted men. The only assistance they had for getting about was the fleet of horse drawn paddy wagons. But, Rascher recalls, the murder wave did end.

Walked Endless Miles.

He went to Englewood station first, and he stayed there 15 years. He thinks he could have gone around the world if he could have laid the miles he walked end to end.

Rascher went to 48th street and Wabash avenue, where he was stationed for two and one-half years. He was on his way home at 1 o'clock one morning in March of 1922 when he saw two burglars in a house at 5538 Winchester avenue, next door to where he was living at the time.

Rascher routed the thieves, shot and killed the one who fired at him. The other escaped by plunging thru a glass door. Rascher won honorable mention in THE TRIBUNE for that deed, but, he says, "I missed the $100 award. Another fellow edged me out shooting right into the muzzle of a bandit's gun."

Rascher went to the South Chicago station at 89th street and Exchange avenue 17 years ago. He was lockup keeper there for the last 14.

Bride a Home Town Girl.

He and his wife, a girl from the old home town, celebrated their 40th wedding anniversary last June. They have four children. The oldest is Michael, a receiving clerk for the Chicago Transit company at the stockyards.

The second son is Father Ralph Rascher, a Dominican priest now stationed in Louisville, Ky. There are two daughters, Rose Rascher Gross, a teacher at Cornell school, and Miss Marie Rascher, a secretary.

Rascher recalls that Ogden and Sherman parks were cabbage fields when he first came to Chicago. Horses were trained in the vacant plots west of Ashland avenue. He and his wife were on the edge of prairie when they lived at 55th and Winchester. They were in open territory when they built their present home on Loomis boulevard 14 years ago. Now that is all built up. Says Rascher, "I've watched Chicago come up from the weeds!"

MOKENA FOLKS PLAN TO HOLD A HOMECOMING

Those who live in Mokena and many who used to live there will take part in the third annual homecoming, sponsored by the Mokena Civic association, beginning Friday and continuing thru next Sunday.

Besides the 1940 Mokenans, Old Chief Moke, for whom, tradition says, Mokena was named 100 years ago, will attend as a totem pole. A loud speaker will "voice" his wooden head, and electric bulbs will provide him with flashing eyes. All announcements will be broadcast via Chief Moke.

Parades, band concerts, open air dancing, farm exhibits, an antique show, amateur acts, and home handiwork displays will be among the features of the three day festival. Women will attend a cooking school on Saturday. A festival parade will climax events Sunday afternoon. Stokes Nebeker is general chairman of the homecoming.

Guider, 1431 West 78th street, will start their second season with a week's open house beginning tomorrow in their new studio, 8929 South Racine avenue. Bride at Home

Mrs. Wendell Barclay was Miss Jean Hatfield, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. Wilbur Hatfield, 16631 South Seeley avenue, until her marriage to the son of Mrs. Mary Barclay of Macomb, Ill. The young couple are now at home at 1930 West 105th street. The bride took her bachelor's degree at the University of Michigan, and her master's at Northwestern university. Her husband is an alumnus of the University of Illinois.

A FARM WOMAN FINDS HAPPINESS IN A VACANT LOT

Says Weed Patches Offer a Challenge.

A garden is a place where friendship grows. It blooms in the deep richness of midnight purple gladioli, the dainty tints of the asters. And for the more practical minded, there's friendship in green corn and tomatoes, raspberries and rhubarb.

Good health and beauty grow in a garden, too, says Mrs. M. L. Jones of 10443 Hale avenue. And Mrs. Jones speaks authoritatively. She has a garden.

Flowers Replace Trash.

Her garden is different from the usual kind, however, because Mrs. Jones lives in an apartment and has no back yard nor front yard in which to plant her seeds. Her garden is in a vacant lot, a spot where she has, in five years, substituted beauty for tin cans, and trash, and thistles!

She explains: "I'm a country woman. I lived on a farm in Iowa until my husband died five years ago. Then I came here to live with my sister, Miss Elin Larson. She knew I'd have to have a garden, so she started looking about the neighborhood. We tried several places, and finally we were given permission to use that lot between 10565 and 10603 down the street here. Well, I went to work. This year I've finally conquered the thistles, I think. But it's been a job!"

Builds "Friendship Fence."

Mrs. Jones is particularly proud of her hollyhock fence. She calls it a "friendship" fence. She says that after the flowers and vegetables were planted folks gradually stopped using the lot for a dumping ground. She didn't say anything—just worked away at her garden.

"I don't think my garden is outstanding in any way. There are certainly a lot of prettier gardens in the neighborhood. I just think that it's unusual because I borrowed a vacant lot. I should think more folks could do that here in Chicago."

People who live in apartments need to garden, and the vacant lots need to be gardened. So why don't apartment dwellers borrow gardens and beautify the city? Mrs. Jones wonders.

A Tenderfoot Learns to Ride

BY HAROLD SMITH.

Like many another riding instructor, Elmer J. Holdorf, from whom I am learning some of the fine points of riding form, isn't enthusiastic about teaching new riders to post the trot. He does it, of course, but only with reluctance.

Posting the trot means merely taking only one bump while the horse is giving two. This is accomplished by rising in the saddle at one beat of the trot and sitting at the next beat. [The trot is a one-two gait, as against a one-two-three rhythm for the canter.]

My instructor believes that the posting of the trot should come rather late in a rider's experience, say six months or more after he has taken up the sport, and only after he has developed a sure, balanced seat. Meanwhile, the rider ought to sit the trot always, he insists.

Merely an Evasion.

"Too many men and women learn at the outset to post presentably and then conclude they are finished riders with little more to learn," Holdorf complained.

"That's dead wrong. Posting for the novice rider is merely an evasion of the bounces he should take in order to learn balance more quickly.

"Sitting the trot gracefully is one of the infallible marks of a good rider. I've seen too many riders stop trying to sit the trot right simply because they had learned to post."

In rising properly to the trot, I learned, the lower legs remain practically still, the body and upper legs being lifted with the knee joints as the hinges. The weight is borne partly by the feet in the stirrups and partly by the knees and inner thighs bearing against the saddle flaps.

My instructions were to let my torso incline a bit forward during the trot, but to observe the oft-repeated admonition to keep my back hollow, my shoulders square, and my chin in.

In falling back on the second beat the seat does not return completely to the saddle, I found. Rather it settles onto the inner line of the thighs and the fore part of the buttocks, rising immediately at the start of the next cycle.

The rise is essentially a gentle forward lunge of the midsection, in which the feet and head scarcely move out of a vertical plane. Properly executed, it requires little effort.

I found I had to pay particular attention to my feet and hands when I began to learn posting. It's highly important to keep the knees in and the heels down [an instruction impossible to overemphasize in any department of horseback riding], and to avoid transmitting the rather vigorous body movement of the post to the horse's mouth thru the reins.

It is permissible to count aloud at first as an aid in getting the rhythm of the post, my teacher assured me. Watching the horse's shoulders I counted "one" as the right foot struck the ground, rising as I counted, and "two" as the left foot landed and I descended to the saddle.

Don't Forget the Horse.

At this point Holdorf gave me a horse saving instruction. He told me to vary my posting occasionally, rising as the left front foot lands and falling at the right footfall. Switching is easily accomplished by sitting to two beats of the trot instead of one.

This switching is necessary because on his fall the rider's weight descends on the same pair of the horse's feet at the same time—one front foot and the opposite hind foot. The change in the post brings this impact down as the other diagonal pair hits the ground. Thus the rider avoids "wearing out" one side of his horse only.

Correct posting also demands careful checking of stirrup strap length, too, I discovered.

If the stirrups are short the body rises too high, which is both awkward and tiring. If they are too long the feet do not assume their rightful share of supporting body weight on the rise.

1 DEAD, 20 HURT IS TOLL AT NO. 3 DANGER CORNER

3 Way Crossing Hazard for Cars, Walkers.

[This is the fourth of a series of articles about the most dangerous street intersections on the south side.]

One fatality and 20 injuries in 88 accidents during the last 18 months at the intersections of 71st street, Cottage Grove and South Chicago avenues have made the corner the third most dangerous to pedestrians and motorists on the south and southwest side.

These figures were revealed in a survey of the 20 high accident corners in the area by the safety and traffic division of the Chicago Motor club.

During the period from January, 1939, to August, 1940, the total of 88 accidents that occurred on the corner involved 50 automobile collisions, 20 auto-truck collisions, and involving pedestrians. Four other accidents were minor.

Open Space a Hazard.

"The principal cause of accident at this intersection is the amount of open area caused by the merging of the three streets," George Barton, head of the club safety department, explained. "This is particularly hazardous for persons on foot, who can't possibly reach any opposite curb in the 20 second interval allotted them by the timing signals.

"On some of the longer distances which they choose to walk, they do well to get halfway across. Painted cross walks for pedestrians and stop marks for cars have worn away."

Mr. Barton pointed out that another thing which put pedestrians at a disadvantage is the fact they don't know when it is safe to start across the street, since three-way traffic, with its resulting turns, forces them to contend with traffic wherever they cross.

The bus terminal on 71st street east of Cottage Grove also contributes to pedestrian accidents. Persons scurry across streets from street cars and sidewalks to catch these vehicles, Mr. Barton said.

Hazard for Drivers.

At the intersection, motorists are subject to much the same hazards as pedestrians, so far as open space, lack of time caused by signal arrangement and general confusion is concerned.

One outstanding accident trap is created by the heavy volume of traffic moving south on Cottage Grove and turning southeast on South Chicago. Motorists attempting to accomplish this turn are frequently caught in the middle of the street by a change in lights which hurls street cars and autos at them from two directions. Their being stalled there also forces other cars to swerve around them and out in the way of other traffic.

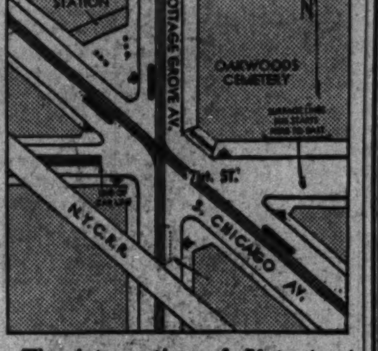
Confusion at Cemetery.

The Oak Woods cemetery entrance at the northwest corner of the intersection causes further confusion. Both trucks and cars come out of the cemetery from morning until night, and turning in all directions.

The fence along the south side of the cemetery acts as a vision obstruction and is given as a contributing cause to the five pedestrian injuries and one death which have occurred there the last 18 months. This condition is aggravated by the fact that motorists are usually coming west on 71st street at a comparatively high rate of speed since no streets intersect to the north for several blocks.

The motor club offers three possible ways of reducing accidents at the intersection to a minnimum: [1] more adequate pedestrian control, including repainting of crosswalks and re-timing signals: [2] filling in "dead space" by channelization; [3] longer signals for motorists.

3d in Danger List



The intersection of 71st street and Cottage Grove and South Chicago avenues ranks third in the list of dangerous corners on the south and southwest sides prepared by the Chicago Motor club. In the last 18 months there have been 88 accidents at the corners, involving one fatality and 20 injuries. Fourteen of the accidents involved pedestrians. The large amount of open space and poorly timed signals are blamed as the cause for many of the accidents.

BARBER LABORS OVERTIME AIDING PUZZLED ALIENS

Joe Helps Them on Way to Citizenship.

Joe Husek.

Joe Husek is a barber who lives at 1540 West 18th street. He says he is busier than he's ever been in his life. Maybe he'll even look for an assistant. But is isn't barbering that keeps Joe Husek's nose to the grindstone. He says business is very bad.

The cause is the law requiring the registration of aliens. For many years Joe Husek's hobby has been helping foreign people adjust themselves to their new home. Today they are flocking to him with green blanks in their hands. "Some of them are so scared," says Joe, "I've gotta help. They mumble 'What will they do with us!'"

They come to Joe because he has probably had more to do with converting aliens into United States citizens than any other man on the west side. In two years he taught 97 aliens what a democracy is. "I'm glad to do this free," says Joe, "because I know what a thrill it is to become a citizen."

51 Under Instruction.

There are 51 more aliens now under instruction in Joe's school. Twenty-four are Italians, 12 are Czechs, four Slovaks, four Poles, two Serbs, two Croatians, one Moravian, one Canadian, and one Hungarian. Plans are being made for a reunion of all the alumni of Mr. Husek's naturalization school to be held late in October. Mr. Husek is anxious to locate every one of his graduate-citizens.

It was this woman's organization that made the naturalization school possible. Led by Mrs. Emma F. Martini, president, a committee of women three years ago invited Mr. Husek to become instructor of a naturalization school to be opened in their headquarters at 2253 West 24th street. At that time there were 78 noncitizens out of the club's membership of 400. Today every member is a citizen.

The women provide rooms for the school, heat, and light.

Open to Everyone.

From the beginning the school was ope nto any one who wanted to learn the elements of a democratic government so they could pass their citizenship examinations. Aliens who put off taking out their papers and some who didn't do it because they intended to "go back" some day, are now pouring in on Mr. Husek. They want help in filling out the registration blanks now required by law.

"The hardest job for the alien," says Mr. Husek, "is to remember on what boat and on what day and year he arrived in the United States. Some have been here for more than a quarter century. Some came when they were babies in arms and always believed they were citizens. Now when they must provide proof of citizenship they find there isn't any."

Mr. Husek's text books are pamphlets on the principals of democracy released by the government. They are called "Lessons in Citizenship for Naturalization" and were written by Charles P. Schwartz, a member of the Chicago bar.

Qualified for Job.

The woman's organization chose Mr. Husek as instructor because of his interest in civic matters. He is executive secretary of the executive committee of the Taxpayers Associations of Illinois which includes seven organizations. Since 1932 he has led a fight in behalf of the men and women who lost their life's savings in defaulted real estate bonds. He organized the United Bond Holders' association.

Mr. Husek was born in Bohemia. When he was 21 years old he faced three years of compulsory military training in the Austrian army with a pay of four cents a day. To escape this he fled the country and came to America. He became a citizen as early as the law allowed and says: "If I can help aliens become citizens, I feel, I can in some measure repay my adopted country for what it means to me."

Hotel Clerk Wears Out Four Knives.

BY DAVID ANDERSON.

The slowest thing in the world for a night clerk in a small hotel is time. It shuffles along like a turtle with no place to go and all night to get there.

John F. Johnson.

Before midnight, if you're a night clerk, you have things to do, usually. You have the phones to answer. The guests call and want you "to be sure to ring at 7:15, I was late for work this morning"; or, "please ask Henry to bring up some extra towels"; or, "send up some more sparkling water and a couple of hamburgers, well-done"; or, "tell that party downstairs not to make so much noise, we can't sleep" or, "leave a message for the janitor to fix the window."

Time Crawls On.

So it goes until midnight. But from then on time plods across the red-carpeted lobby and comes to a standstill at the hotel desk. It doesn't move. It stands there silent and waiting as the weary hands on the clock tick off two, then three, then four and five o'clock in slow motion.

That's how it seems to a night clerk after he's read the midnight papers, the latest G-Man pulp and all of last week's picture magazines. That's how it is, if you're a night clerk and if you don't have a hobby.

And that's how it was for John F. Johnson, night clerk at the Alden Inn hotel, 4526 Sheridan road, before he built his castle. He calls it the Agate Castle and it is a miniature of a 16th century Bavarian country manor.. The castle stands about three feet high and is equipped with furniture carved out of solid walnut. Everything is made to scale and everything in the castle is in authentic 16th century design.

Studded With Agates.

He made it out of orange boxes, tarpaper, concrete, glass and stone. It weighs more than 150 pounds and the outside is studded with 1,100 agates which Johnson brought back from a trip to the Dakotas.

He built the castle as a defense against slow time at night. It took three years. Figuring up the working hours, Johnson says, "Altogether it took 3,500 hours before I was satisfied with it." His only tools were pocket knives.

One side of the white and brown castle is cut away like a doll house to show the interior. Each room is furnished exactly to the specifications which Johnson dug out of architectural histories. Candelabra [which he fashioned from a floor lamp decoration] hang from the tiny hewn beams. In the dining hall are heavy walnut tables and benches, velvet hangings and miniature copies of great works of art.

Wears Out Knives.

"I used only a knife," Johnson says. "The whole thing except for the concrete and glass is hand carved. I wore out my hands and four knives in the process."

He is 38 years old and has been in the hotel business for 15 years. He was 16 when he joined the army in the world war. When the war was over he enlisted in the navy. He claims to be one of the youngest American Legion members in the city.

"I got a great kick out of making my castle," he says. "I love to create things. But wounldn't do it again for $5,000, even tho it does fill in the time."

STICKNEY LOOKS AHEAD TO START OF HIGH SCHOOL

Pupils Again to Attend Argo-Summit.

Stickney has a high school district, No. 220, approved in a special township election last June 23. High school board members, chosen at another special election on July 13, are explaining to inquirers these days that altho there is a high school district, there isn't a high school; at least, not this fall. The board, headed by Marion F. Conway, has had to start from scratch to build up a community high school. Directors have been making surveys and plans thruout the summer. Their material contribution toward the school problem for the fall term is a school bus.

A bus route is being mapped, and board members are working toward seeing that every high school student in south Stickney township attends the high school he did last year. That is Argo-Summit. Previously, students went to school as best they could. The grade school board of district 111 assisted as much as it could by lending a bus. This practice is not authorized in the new permit, however. Leaders in the high school district work and Herbert R. Maid, Stickney township supervior, feel that a settled transportation may result in a higher percentage of high school attendance.

Sees 50 in School.

Maid estimates that a community high school in Stickney would have 50 students at the beginning. He predicts that it would grow rapidly thru real estate development and out of the township students seeking to avoid the crowding in large nearby high schools. He says he has had many inquiries about tuition already.

The new high school building, Maid says, would be located centrally. A favored spot is the vicinity of 79th street and State road. Further building operations cannot go on, according to Maid, until the board members have decided what kind of plant is necessary and then, on the basis of those plans, ask an election on a bond issue.

A year old grade school, the Tobin, built at 85th street and Narragansett avenue, is already crowded, Maid says in explaining the need for school plants in the township. There are six rooms in the school now and construction of a two room addition is to begin within two weeks.

5 Million Valuation.

The Stickney high school, when built, would serve the community between 65th and 87th streets and Cicero and Harlem avenues. Before the high school district was established, South Stickney was a nonhigh school district with a $5,000,000 property valuation. High school taxes paid by residents of the area were used thruout the county.

Are you selling all the people right in your own neighborhood who might trade with you?

For more than 12 years, large and small businesses located in many neighborhoods and suburbs of Chicago have proved conclusively that there is no better way to build sales and profits than by running a consistent schedule of low-cost advertising in the Sunday Tribune Metropolitan sections.

During 1939, a total of 745 neighborhood enterprises used this advertising plan to get a greater share of the patronage of the families who can best trade with them.

One or more of these five sections — North, Northwest, West, Southwest, and South — are edited for and read exclusively by the families in your trading area.

NEW BUILDINGS ARE READY FOR TERM AT N. U.

Scott Hall, Patten Gym Cost $1,200,000.

BY JUANITA DALY.

Scott hall, a $750,000 student center and auditorium, and a second Patten gymnasium costing $450,000 will be the new buildings on Northwestern university's Evanston campus this fall. The naval R. O. T. C. will begin the term in quarters doubled in size after an $18,000 remodeling job.

The student center will be opened formally on Sept. 24. Altho the gymnasium will be ready for use late this month, it will not be dedicated until Nov. 1, before a homecoming football crowd.

Decorators are putting the finishing touches on Scott hall. It has been built and endowed with funds raised by popular subscription as a tribute to Dr. Walter Dill Scott, president emeritus of the university, and Mrs. Scott. Ground was broken last May 1. The building extends for a block along Sheridan road from University place to Emerson street.

Seats for 1,225.

The auditorium, which has 1,225 seats, the first floor and the basement are air conditioned, with soundproof ceilings in the basement. The latter houses a grill, five dining rooms, a four room suite of offices and the auditorium lounge. The grill will accommodate 100 persons and will be open all day and evening. Folding doors makes it possible to use all or any group of the dining rooms together.

On the first floor are a student lounge, 35 by 75 feet, and a suite of offices, lounges and meeting rooms for the women's organizations affiliated with the university. These groups gave $200,000 toward the construction of the building.

In Women's Suite.

In the women's organization suite are two lounges, one in 18th century style and one in oriental. An exhibition corridor 130 feet long, lined on both sides with built in cases, holds the university guild's art collection. The guild's collection of oil paintings will be hung in the 18th century room along with a new oil portrait of Mrs. Scott.

Also in the suite is the associate alumnae library, paneled in Appalachian white oak, with a separate vault room for the archives. Facilities include a service pantry, check room and powder room.

On the second floor are offices of student publications and organizations, conference rooms, a music room and two lounges. The Clarion DeWitt Hardy lounge, for use of Hardy scholars in the school of speech, was given by Owen L. Coon. In the graduate lounge is a carved fireplace mantel taken from an Italian castle and presented by John C. Shaffer, a member of the University associates.

Room for Y. W. C. A.

The third floor includes a suite of tower offices for the Y. W. C. A., a room running the full length of the building for parties, and a small connecting lounge.

The Bertram Cahn auditorium, named for a trustee, is a semi-independent unit at the north end. The foyer is marble and the color scheme of lounge and auditorium is terra cotta and putty colors. The auditorium unit includes three dressing rooms, a rehearsal room under the stage, a movie projection booth, an organ, and a removable unit to put in front of the stage.

The two story gymnasium, 252 feet long and 136 feet wide, will house the physical education and intramural departments. The building is of modified Gothic design and constructed of Lannon stone to conform with other campus structures. Holabird and Root were the architects for the building, which is named for James A. Patten, donor of the old gymnasium which was razed to make way for the Technological institute.

Outdoor activities in the university's expanding intramural program will be held in the adjoining Roycemore field. A feature of the building is the 75 foot swimming pool, wide enough for six lanes, and equipped for high dive. It is illuminated by underwater lighting effects and has a capacity of 400 persons.

Opening off the lobby is the gymnasium, large enough for three basketball courts. Also on the first floor are an exercise room, two men's locker rooms, a room with 30 showers, and 11 offices. Two exercise rooms, 32 by 50 feet, take up the major portion of the secnod floor. These rooms will be used for wrestling, fencing and will be available for women's classes in dancing, archery, and volley ball. A posture room for corrective gymnastics, shower and locker quarters for the women complete the floor.

The basement will contain a rifle range for both men and women, a gun room for the naval R. O. T. C., and driving nets for golf practice.

ELECTRIC CLUB GARDENERS SHOW FLOWERS TODAY

The annual fall show of the flower and garden section of the Western Electric Hawthorne club will be held all day today in the horticultural hall at the Garfield Park conservatory. Prize blooms of 14,000 telephone makers will be on display.

In addition, to give every amateur flower and garden enthusiast in the Chicago area an opportunity to display the prize products of gardens, there will be a special guest class in which any amateur gardener may enter blooms, vegetables, fruits, canned goods, or novelties.

Must Move a Museum of 31,213 Objects.

BY MILDRED WILDS.

Sam Bornstein has 10 shrunken human heads from eastern Ecuador. He has a 200 year old turtle from the South seas, a carved ostrich egg from Africa, and a fetish stick from Zululand. Sam has almost been chewed up by a lion and eaten by a shark. He frequently has dined with cannibals.

But Sam says he's never been as nervous in his life as he is right now in Chicago. At home at 1529 South Trumbull avenue he says he can't sleep nights.

Museum in J. P. I.

For seven years his objects have had an honored place in 16 cases in a room at the Jewish People's institute, 3500 Douglas boulevard. Three months ago he received a letter from Dr. Philip Seman, institute director, telling him to pack up and move. Dr. Seman told him he needed the space.

Sam is a tailor and sews a certain seam every day for hundreds of men's suits. He's been doing this most of his life. For 15 years every time he had enough money he took a trip to some place that most people don't think of when they plan a summer vacation.

He's been to Timbuctoo, Rhodesia, the South seas and Siam, and he created a natural history museum for the thousands of people who don't want to meet up with lions or live in a Zulu hut.

Museum Goes Begging

Sam Bornstein, 1529 South Trumbull avenue, Jewish explorer is shown here holding a hand wrought sword believed to be a relic from King Solomon's time. Bornstein, who has traveled all over the world and collected curios, has been asked to vacate the room given over to his museum seven years ago by the Jewish People's institute,

Gourd with Jawbones.

By fast talking and good bartering he got a Curcurbita species of gourd wrought into a drinking vessel and decorated with 10 human jawbones. He got it at Fournbau, French Cameroun, West Africa. He has lyre birds and the hummingbird from Australia and seven birds of paradise from New Zealand.

"If I move," says Sam, with a lifetime of disappointment in his voice, "it will cost me $500 to buy materials and hire a taxidermist to pack it. I'm a working man. I can't move it all in that short time."

Sam says when he explained, the institute gave him two more months. Now he has until the middle of December to pack his weaver bird's nest, the shape of a boot and decorated by the weaver bird with a pattern of shells. He has only weeks in which to store his shrunken heads and 2,200 eggs, some of which are as tiny as a bee. "And then," mourns the explorer, "my 15 years of travel to bring these things for the west side people to see will all be wasted."

Sam Shows Letters.

Sam has the sympathy of Clifford C. Gregg, director of the Field museum, who wrote: "I believe it is to the interest of the general public to have more small museums rather than fewer. The museum movement is growing rapidly in this country."

Howard K. Gloyd, director of the Chicago Academy of Science, wrote him: "I am very glad to have had an opportunity recently to see your interesting museum at 3500 Douglas boulevard. The amount of material displayed and the variety of fields covered surprised me."

Bornstein has given every evening of his time free to the institute for the last seven years. From 6:30 to 10:30 o'clock he shows an average of 100 visitors around the 16 cases, telling his experiences in the far corners of the world. On July 9 there were 133 persons who visited the room. The explorer has also written four books, one of which was reviewed as far away as Buenos Aires, Argentina.

Also Needs Time.

Besides the $500 needed to move his collection, Bornstein says he needs time. "Maybe I could get out in a year," he says, "but I can't by December. If I don't move they say they will put my things in the basement."

"But a specialist has to handle these rare things," says Sam. "What would happen to my lyre bird and the old oriental wine bottle from Syria that they told me the Jews used for their Passover celebration? What would happen to the eggs and my fragile bird plumage?"

Sam Bornstein says he doesn't know what to do. He says he's sure that the more than one-half million who have seen his museum have liked it. He thinks it's a shame to store it in a warehouse even if he did have the money to buy packing cases and pay a mover.

CONDUCT SCHOOL FOR EPISCOPAL WORKERS TODAY

MARION CLAIRE, WEBER REJOINING SYMPHONIC HOUR

End Vacation; On W-G-N at 9 Tonight.

Marion Claire, soprano soloist, and Henry Weber, conductor of the W-G-N Symphony orchestra, will return to the Chicago Tribune Symphonic hour tonight. The hour will be broadcast from 9 to 10 o'clock over W-G-N, the Mutual network, and that of the Canadian Broadcasting corporation.

The speaker of the evening, as in weeks past, will be Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE TRIBUNE.

Miss Claire and Mr. Weber—Mr. and Mrs. Weber in private life—have been vacationing for the last fortnight in Glacier National park. Miss Claire will mark her return with three solos. She will sing "The Shy Lover and "Hat Dich die Liebe Berührt" [Has Love Touched You], by Joseph Marx, and "Balatella," by Ruggiero Leoncavallo.

Victor Herbert's "Angelus" will be presented by Miss Claire and the chorus.

The Symphony orchestra, under the baton of Mr. Weber, will open the hour of fine music with a presentation of the introduction and wedding march from "Coq d'Or," by Nicolai Rimsky-Korsakoff. "The Bee," by Franz Schubert, and Sergei Rachmaninoff's "Serenade" also will be on the program.

For the evening finale, the orchestra will play the introduction to the third act, the dance of the apprentices, and the mastersinger's procession from Richard Wagner's powerful opera, "Die Meistersinger" [the Mastersingers].

The Symphonic Hour is under the direction of William A. Bacher, chief of programs and production at W-G-N. Musical commentary for the program is written by Cecil Smith of the music and drama department of THE TRIBUNE.

During the absence of Miss Claire and Mr. Weber, several noted Metropolitan Opera stars appeared as guest artists on the Symphonic Hour. Maurice de Abravanel, Metropolitan conductor, and Jarmila Novotna, noted Czech soprano, were guests two weeks ago. Last week, Wilfred Pelletier, also Metropolitan conductor, and the distinguished mezzo-soprano, Rose Bampton, were presented.

OPEN PAGEANT OF MELODY WITH D'ALBERT WORK

The W-G-N Concert orchestra will open Henry Weber's "Pageant of Melody," from 9:15 to 10 p. m. Wednesday with a presentation of the overture from Eugen D'Albert's "Der Improvisator." With Kathryn Witwer, soprano, and Attilio Baggiore, tenor, as featured artists, the program will be broadcast over W-G-N and the Mutual network.

The W-G-N chorus will sing Georg Handel's largo and will join Miss Witwer and Baggiore in presenting themes from Kalman—"Love's Own Sweet Song," "To Its Waiting Nest," and "Play Gypsies, Dance Gypsies"—for the finale number.

"Dance of the Bouffons," by Nicolai Rimsky-Korsakov, and Felix Mendelssohn's Scherzo will be played by the Concert orchestra.

Football Forecast.

Hollywood Stars on W-G-N Show

Patti Clayton, Massey in Solo Spots.

The Friday Night Show, a new program directed by Harold Stokes, with Patti Clayton and Curt Massey as featured vocalists, will be broadcast from 7 to 7:30 p. m. over W-G-N and the Mutual network, starting next Friday. The W-G-N dance orchestra, under Stokes' baton, and the octet will be presented regularly on the weekly show.

Well remembered American ballads, as well as the latest popular numbers, will be highlighted. Unusual instrumental and vocal arrangements will be a feature.

Miss Clayton, youthful W-G-N singing discovery, will make her début as regular soloist with a presentation of "Fools Rush In." She will join Massey and the octet in singing "We Could Make Such Beautiful Music" as the evening finale.

"Sierra Sue" will be presented by Massey as his solo. A romantic baritone, Massey's singing style is sweet and smooth. In contrast, he is adept in swinging out hot music on the violin. Massey will combine his vocal and violin talents in a special adaptation of "Honeysuckle Rose."

The octet will sing "There's a Great Day Comin' Manana," and "Steamboat Bill." Rounding out the musical variety program will be "The Breeze and I," and "Spring Tonic—or—Pavanne," played by the orchestra.

Miss Clayton, who is 20 years old, began singing on W-G-N in January, 1938, when she appeared as one of the "Four Shades of Blue" on another Stokes program. At present she sings with the "Three Graces," and also appears in solo presentations with Pianist Harold Turner.

Massey, a drawling Texan, had his first vocal experience singing chuck wagon ballads with members of his father's ranch crew. He now owns a ranch near Roswell, N. M. Capitalizing on his open space background, Massey has sung with a singing group known as the "Westerners" for eight years.

The Friday Night Show will replace Wings for America, W-G-N-Mutual's summer drama featuring Elissa Landi and Phillips Holmes, which closed a ten week run last Friday. The new program will be an audience show, as was Wings for America.

Gov. Alfred Landon's acceptance speech in 1936 got a rating of 28.5.

Thursday W-G-N Show to Feature Film Stars.

Two of Hollywood's most glamorous stars, Lucille Ball and Maureen O'Hara, will be starred on the W-G-N Mutual "In Chicago Tonight" program next Thursday evening from 7:30 to 8 o'clock. They will be presented in the W-G-N audience studio in a special dramatic program titled "On Stage, Please," written by W-G-N's noted producer-director, William A. Bacher, and a Hollywood author, Ashmead Scott.

Miss Ball and Miss O'Hara are coming to Chicago especially to take part in this presentation of "In Chicago Tonight." In passing thru Chicago en route east for a personal appearance tour, the Hollywood stars were offered the radio engagement. They will interrupt their tour at Buffalo to return to Chicago for this production of the nationally known W-G-N program.

Miss O'Hara is known as one of the most photogenic stars in Hollywood. Recently she was selected as the year's most promising actress as a result of her fine work in the above mentioned pictures. Maureen came to American movies from her native Dublin via the Abbey players and the legitimate stage.

Blonde Lucille Ball has a long list of movie successes to her credit. Her work in "Dance, Girl, Dance" has been hailed by movie critics in previews as outstanding. In this picture Miss Ball, like Miss O'Hara, clearly demonstrates her ability to handle rôles in musical shows as well as in the dramatic picture field.

In "Dance, Girl, Dance," Miss Ball and Miss O'Hara stage one of the screen classic fistic battles. The two girls portray chorus girls who finally decide the best way to settle their difficulties is by the manly art of fisticuffs.

The movie stars will be supported by an all-star cast of Chicago radio actors and actresses in Mr. Bacher's presentation of "On Stage, Please." Miss O'Hara and Miss Ball will arrive on Thursday morning and will be rushed into rehearsals for the evening's performance.

'YOUR TREAT' AIRS SEARS TENOR AND KOGEN ENSEMBLE

"Your Treat," featuring Charles Sears, romantic young tenor, and Harry Kogen's stringed ensemble, will be presented from 10 to 10:15 a. m., Tuesdays, Thursdays, and Saturdays over W-G-N. Sponsored by the Armour company, "Your Treat" is scheduled for 13 weeks.

Sears has been soloist in network shows since 1932. Co-star Kogen is a noted violinist and composer as well as leader of the stringed ensemble. Kogen has conducted everything from jazz to opera in his many radio engagements.

JANET FAIRBANK, ELLINGTON WILL TRY 'MUSIC I. Q.'

A vocalist, an organist, an authority on recordings and the leader of a famed dance band are the widely varied music personalities who will assume the rôle of experts on "Your Music I. Q." from 8:30 to 9 p. m. tomorrow over W-G-N. The musical quiz is presented by the Chicago Symphony orchestra. The experts will be Janet Fairbank, soprano; Harry Monroe, recording specialist; Paul Hume, organist of the First Presbyterian church, La Grange, and Duke Ellington, widely known orchestra leader.

Eddie Oliver and his orchestra will make their Chicago debut in the newly decorated Continental room of the Stevens hotel next Saturday evening. He will also be heard for the first time on W-G-N and the Mutual network. Oliver played several successful seasons at the Les Ambassadeurs in Paris, the Grosvenor House in London and the Carlton restaurant in Amsterdam, Holland. In this country he has appeared at night spots from east to west.

Myrna Loy, Powell, Ameche on Radio Theater Premiere

William Powell and Myrna Loy, with Don Ameche as co-star, will open the Radio theater's new season on the Columbia Broadcasting system and WBBM at 8 p. m. tomorrow. "Manhattan Melodrama" is the play chosen by Producer Cecil B. De Mille for the première. Powell and Miss Loy will play rôles they filled in the film version.

AMERICAN FOOD FOR EUROPE IS AIR TOPIC TODAY

With famine forecast for most of war-torn Europe, three experts on the University of Chicago round table will discuss the question: "Should America Feed Europe?" at 1:30 p. m. today over WMAQ. Sonia Tamara, associate foreign editor of the New York Herald-Tribune will consider the problem with two University of Chicago professors, Louis Wirth, sociologist, and Neil H. Jacoby, economist. The round table trio will discuss not only the question of whether the United States should attempt to alleviate European food shortages, but American ability to do so, and methods of compensation for such assistance.

LAKE COUNTY RALLIES FOR TOLERANCE

ST. BRENDAN'S PARISH TO HAVE GOLDEN JUBILEE

Observance to Start on Sept. 16.

It was 50 years ago, when the O'Neills, Stewarts, Lubys, Hunts, Shanahans, Ryans, Walshes, and a dozen other families were well enough established in West Englewood that Archbishop Patrick A. Feehan decided they needed a church of their own. St. Bernard's parish was already established in Englewood, and the folks from West Englewood, then called Englewood on the Hill, had to come to mass via the 69th street horse car line unless they had their own transportation.

The Rev. Bernard T. Brady.

The Rev. Bernard P. Murray was pastor at St. Bernard's. The archbishop instructed him to establish a mission west of Racine avenue, then Center avenue. And it is the success of this mission and its growth into the independent parish of St. Brendan's that parishioners will observe in a week of special masses beginning a week from tomorrow and at a special jubilee service on Sept. 22.

Plan Special Masses.

The Rev. Bernard T. Brady, present pastor at St. Brendan's, announces that masses will be repeated at 9 o'clock each morning, Sept. 16 thru Sept. 20. The first day will be the children's jubilee celebration; Tuesday, Sept. 17, will be a mass for all nuns who have taught in St. Brendan's school; Wednesday, Sept. 18, will be a mass for the benefactors of St. Brendan's; Thursday for the dead of the parish, and Friday for the deceased priests, assistants, and pastors of St. Brendan's.

A jubilee dance will take place in the Palmer House on the evening of Friday, Sept. 20. Bishop James A. Griffin, D. D., of Springfield, former assistant at St. Brendan's, will celebrate the solemn high pontifical mass at noon on Sept. 22 in the formal jubilee observance. Archbishop Samuel A. Stritch, D. D., will preach the jubilee sermon.

Father Murray established the original mission church at the southeast corner of 67th and Bishop streets. The building, an old frame structure which had housed a First Baptist church at Englewood and Stewart avenues, was moved to the new site. One of the original parishioners, Mrs. Anna Stewart of 6628 Carpenter street, and several other women rolled up their sleeves and scrubbed the structure. They put the place in shape for the first mass which, history shows, very few attended.

Crowd at Dedication.

Dedication services were better, however. Archbishop Feehan conducted the ceremonies on May 12, 1890, and the church was crowded to the doors. Confirmation of a class of 80 from St. Bernard's followed the dedication, high mass, and archbishop's address. The new church was named St. Brendan after St. Brendan of Clonfert, who was also known as St. Brendan the Navigator because of his reputed voyage to the western continent in the sixth century.

The first little structure had a seating capacity of 300 and cost $7,000. The year after its dedication the first resident pastor, the Rev. Michael T. Macken, was appointed. John Riordan, son of John and Mary Riordan, was the first child baptized by Father Macken. And he read the first marriage ceremony at his new charge for Mary E. West and Frank Devine on Nov. 9, 1891.

Frank J. Ryan, who represented Englewood district in the state legislature for many years and was state senator from the 11th district when he died in 1926, was one of the first ushers in the church. The other was Frank K. Gerty. Mr. Ryan's widow and four of his children still reside at the old address, 6828 Bishop street. Mr. Gerty, also deceased, was the father of Dr. Francis J. Gerty, now medical director of Cook county psychopathic hospital.

Five in First Class.

Houses in the West Englewood prairie of half century ago were scarcely more numerous than four to a block. Consequently the first class of St. Brendan first communicants was small—just five children. They were Emma Marinier, Josephine Hackett, Elizabeth Kinsella, Kate McDonald, and William McDonald. Emma Marinier, now Mrs. George F. Stokes, still resides in the parish at 6831 Aberdeen street.

Construction of a new church home at 67th street and Racine avenue began in 1900 and first services were conducted there early in 1901. The old church was torn down to make way for a two story frame school which was opened on Aug. 24, 1901, by a group of Dominican Sisters from Sinsinawa, Wis. Within three years the enrolment passed the 700 mark.

Paging all Englewood babies—of 1890. The Englewood Golden Jubilee committee, preparing for the formal celebration of 50 years of annexation to Chicago Nov. 10 to 16, is looking for the "pioneer" babies to include them in jubilee plans. They'll be guests at the jubilee banquet and ride in a special float in the jubilee parade.

Annexation year "infants" are being sought by checking the Englewood 1890 directory, scanning 1890 church records, and by broadcasting appeals. The annexation babies are to report in person, by letter, or telephone to the golden jubilee headquarters, Y. M. C. A. building, 6545 South Union avenue.

Seek Oldest Pioneer.

Mrs. Viola Neeson, representing the Englewood Historical committee, and Miss Minnie S. Clark, branch librarian at the Hiram Kelly branch library, are looking into Englewood Historical society records for pioneer babies. Mrs. William Johnson, president of the Englewood Woman's club, is directing the baby hunt in that organization.

Another jubilee quest being carried on now is for the oldest living pioneer. Daniel S. Wentworth, 6724 South Union avenue, chairman of the old settlers' committee, is conducting this search. His assistants include Theodore F. Ehler, former judge of the Municipal court, 917 West 63d street; Charles L. Thayer, pioneer Englewood realtor, 700 West 69th street; Dr. E. C. Morton, who brought many of the annexation year babies into the world, 6801 South Union avenue, and L. H. Lanyon, 415 West 63d street, an undertaker. The oldest pioneer will be honored with the annexation infants.

School Essay Contest.

The golden anniversary plans are not centered on the November dates. Besides the 1890 baby quest and old settler hunt, they include contests for this month and next. Englewood public and parochial high school students will compete thruout September in an essay contest, "Englewood—Past and Present." The educational committee, headed by John Bartky, president of Chicago Teachers' college, is in charge of this activity. Prizes will be awarded for the best compositions.

Next month will feature the jubilee queen contest. Eligible contestants are young unmarried women living in the area bounded by Garfield boulevard [55th street] on the north, 95th street on the south, State street on the east, and Kedzie avenue on the west. The girls will be judged for beauty, personality, and poise, and the winner will lead the jubilee parade on the evening of Nov. 13.

October will be a month for more baby competition, also. But these will be the honest to goodness variety babies, not the 1890 boys and girls. Youngsters will be judged on a basis of health. Mothers must register entrants at jubilee headquarters.

Special Church Services.

The formal golden jubilee observance will begin on Sunday, Nov. 10, with services in all Englewood churches. The ceremonies the next day will be devoted to Armistice anniversary activities. The Englewood Medical and Dental societies will be in charge on Nov. 12. The anniversary parade will be the feature of the evening of Nov. 13, and the next day will be a business celebration of the program.

A community banquet is planned for Nov. 15 evening in Hamilton park fieldhouse. On Saturday, Nov. 16, the final date of the celebration, all parks and playgrounds will have special entertainment features.

Executive committee members and the committees they represent, are: Fred C. Rathje, finance; James F. McFarland, church participation; Joseph Halwax, ex-service groups; John Bartky, schools; Mrs. William Johnson, women's clubs; O. Sheldon VanZant, service groups; William H. Both girls attend the Starrett school, 4515 Drexel boulevard, and Georgette is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Van de Walle, 936 East 52d street. The two girls take part in many of the school activities and are among the most popular members of their class.

Two Sessions Planned on Program Today.

The annual meeting of the Association for the Study of Negro Life and History will close tomorrow evening at Du Sable High school with a talk by Dr. Carter G. Woodson, founder of the organization. The meetings, which began last Friday, marked the 25th anniversary of the group.

The association was started by Dr. Woodson with the idea of publishing a magazine devoted to the study of the Negro. After a long financial struggle, during which time Dr. Woodson supported the organization almost alone, the group has emerged into one of the foremost exponents of cultural development and historical research among the colored race.

Has Two Publications.

This undertaking was the first systematic attempt to treat the records of the colored race scientifically and to publish the findings. At present the organization published two magazines, researches in Negro history, directs club and school study, and promotes the home study of the Negro by mail. It has the support of the leaders of white as well as colored peoples.

Today's program begins with a writer's breakfast at the International House of the University of Chicago. Dr. M. O. Bousfield will preside over the meeting at which Dr. George Simpson of Pennsylvania State college, and Dr. Melville Hersovits of Northwestern university will be among the speakers.

Mass Meeting in Afternoon.

In the afternoon the organization will hold a massmeeting at the Metropolitan community center, 4100 South Park way. Bishop R. A. Carter of the Colored Methodist Episcopal church will preside, and Prof. Harvey Wish of De Paul university will talk on "European Influences Upon the American Slavery Régime." Other speakers will also be heard.

Tomorrow morning there will be a business session at St. Mark's church, 5001 South Wabash avenue, for members only, and in the afternoon the achievements of the association will be reviewed in a series of talks.

Clarke College Club Will Give Tea for Freshmen

The Chicago Clarke college club will give a tea next Saturday afternoon at the Woman's University club in the Fine Arts building. YOUNG ROVERS GIVE IDEA FOR A BOYS' CLUB

Three South Siders Mold Citizens.

The ball game in the middle of the street halted when a car drew up and parked right over the pitcher's box. A man leaned his head out of the window; "Hey, kids, come here." The young ball players moved up to the car, a ragged and tough looking bunch.

"Look, fellows," the man in the car said, "why don't you keep off the streets? Find some place else where it is safe to play." The boys slowly shook their heads. "We ain't got any other place, mister." The man smiled. "Oh, yes, you have; go on up to my place. Go to 4043 Drexel boulevard, the Cook County Boys' club."

The man who said that was Lucas Fewer, a business man in the Oakland-Kenwood community, and he has been saying just that to every group of boys he can find, for he has, out of his own pocket, started a boys' club that promises to keep the youngsters off the streets and place them in a club house of their own where they will have every opportunity to have plenty of fun and get started toward developing into good American citizens.

Started Five Years Ago.

More than five years ago, Lucas Fewer, who lives at 1139 East 44th street, started a soft ball team with some boys he found wandering about the streets with nothing to do and no place to play. He has never regretted his act, for the boys who passed thru his team during the five years were taught clean sportsmanship and an honest way of living that kept them free of the trouble so many of their friends fell into.

The ball team gave Fewer an idea. Why couldn't he do for a hundred, or even two hundred, what he was doing for a few. He began to look around his community more closely. He saw hundreds of boys who were roaming around at loose ends, getting into trouble, destroying property, and causing the adults in the neighborhood a lot of anxiety. He saw an urgent need to take these boys in hand and give them guidance.

Have the Same Idea.

He found a father and son who had the same idea. They were Daniel Barrett Sr., a policeman, and his son Dan Jr., both of whom were active in boys' club work and scout activities, and both of whom recognized the need of the community for a place for its boys.

After many talks, they formulated their plan for a club. It was to be an organization that would provide complete athletic, recreational, and educational opportunities, and it would have to be without any tax supported facilities. They wanted to be able to have complete charge of it.

The answer to their need for a club house was found in an old, three story building at 4043 Drexel boulevard that had once served as a college of optometry. Fewer knew the building well, for he had done work on it through his boiler and welding business.

Has a Gala Opening.

A few days ago the club had its gala opening. Ping pong tables, pool tables, punching bags, wrestling mats, basketball, and everything necessary to make a boy happy had been installed. All of the equipment was bought after much shopping, for the men had to supply the money themselves. Dozens of watermelons were purchased, pie and ice cream stacked in readiness, and the doors were opened.

That evening more than 150 boys trooped in. Today there are between 350 and 400 boys registered in the club, which has been incorporated under state laws.

"The club is still in the process of formation," Mr. Fewer said, "but we hope in a little while to have everything running smoothly. Now we are selecting the leaders among the boys so that we can set up some form of government.

Will Rule Themselves.

"The boys will rule themselves, making their own laws and punishing offenders. An old vault in the building will make an ideal jail for the unruly where they may be sentenced to ten or fifteen minutes' imprisonment. The lads will all have a chance to be president, and will all take part in keeping the club clean."

Hundreds of mothers and fathers are bringing their children to the club every day now. There is no age limit for members, and they range now from 5 to 25 years old. It is the hope of Mr. Fewer and the Barretts that the work they are doing will result in making the community a better place to live in, and will train the boys in good citizenship.

More than 200 people attended an open house reception held recently at the home of Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Mortell, 3427 West 61st place, to help the couple celebrate their golden wedding anniversary. Four daughters were present, Mrs. Donald Cravener Sr., Mrs. R. C. Antonites, Mrs. W. W. Huber, and Marie Mortell. A son, Frank, was unable to attend the party. Mr. Mortell was born in Chicago in 1865, and met his wife here while she was visiting friends. They have lived at their present address for 32 years.

Mr. and Mrs. Abraham Shapira, 5327 Dorchester avenue, celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary recently at the home of their daughter, Mrs. Jacob Block. Two sons and another daughter who helped in the party were Dr. Charles A. Shapira, Mrs. Daniel Crohn, and Dr. Theodore M. Shapira.

JUST a few years past the 50 mark, Mr. and Mrs. Millard F. Patterson of Zanesfield, O., formerly of Roseland, became great grandparents the other day when a son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Peter Van Mourik, 10625 South La Salle street. The baby's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur DeYoung, 323 West 115th street, are under 40 years old. The grandmother is only 36. The new arrival weighed 7¼ pounds and was born on his mother's birthday. Mrs. Van Mourik is the former Betty DeYoung.

AFTER 29 years serving the city as a policeman, Thomas McGuan, 7931 Chappel avenue, reached the retirement age the other day, and with a sigh of happiness and sadness put down his gun and star for a fishing pole and creel. McGuan spent most of the last years handling prisoners at the South Chicago branch of the Municipal court. He is married and has six children. At present he is taking a well earned rest in Wisconsin fishing, and has made no plans beyond that.

RACIAL AMITY INSPIRES MEET AT CROWN POINT

Many Groups Unite in Event Today.

Lake County Brotherhood day, a celebration that grew from the hope of an 80 year old farmer that man might forget racial and religious intolerance, will attract more than 3,000 people today to the county fair grounds at Crown Point, Ind.

Two years ago John Dorman, a farmer of Hobart, attended the county fair and was dismayed to find it had degenerated from a proud showing of the people's handicraft and produce to a carnival at which side shows and amusement were the major features. No longer was it a day when neighbors and strangers presented the results of their labors and joined together in celebration of community life and spirit.

Seeks a Correction.

John Dorman felt that people were missing the true purpose of the outing and instead of just bemoaning the fact he set about correcting it. He organized the fellowship day, where "the spirit is the result of the racial and religious harmony in this midwestern melting pot. Where men come together in proof of the success of democracy."

The Brotherhood day calls together many of the county religious and civic organizations for a day of worship and appreciation for the government by which they are ruled and the country in which they live.

The day is dedicated to the spreading of "brotherhood spirit" thru a mutual faith and an international tolerance. Out of the suggestion of Mr. Dorman to various Lake county organizations the Brotherhood day was first celebrated last year, and civic and religious leaders spoke before a crowd of more than 3,000 farmers and business men and women of all races and religious creeds.

Mill Band to Play.

The success of the program was so evident Lake county leaders have planned to make the celebration an annual one, and are hoping that eventually it will become state-wide.

The program for the day's events includes a band concert by the orchestra of the Carnegie Illinois Steel company, speeches by prominent religious leaders, and music and community singing. The chairman of the day is the Rev. Monroe G. Schuster of the Central Christian Church of Gary. He will be assisted by Arthur Weiss of the general committee.

Mr. Dorman, who is honorary chairman of the brotherhood, will be present. The principal speaker will be Rabbi Louis Binstock of Temple Sholom in Chicago, who will talk on "Who Is the Real American?" Other speakers will be the Rev. Leo Hildebrandt of Griffith, the Rev. Lewis McGee of the Gary Chapel of the Dunes, and Rabbi Julius Siegel of Gary.

Voice of the South Side

Readers of the Metropolitan Section are invited to contribute to this column on matters of neighborhood interest. Readers should confine themselves to 200 or 300 words. Full names and addresses must be given. No manuscripts will be returned. Address Voice of the South Side, The Tribune.

NOISY GROG SHOPS.

I agree with Taxpayer's article in the Metropolitan section under the heading, "An Appeal for Policemen," as I live in the vicinity of 63d street and Stony Island avenue where the taverns and drunks are plentiful and the disturbance keeps me awake most of the night. They are allowed to remain open until early dawn and never a word from the police to curb the noise or eliminate these pests. I think it high time decent people be permitted to live and travel in peace. MRS. G. M.

LIKES GARBAGE CAN DRIVE.

I think the publication of the lists of the wards and the number of garbage cans they have is an excellent idea. A lot of people in my neighborhood are sloppy and careless with garbage. However the public is being educated in the right direction, and a little pressure is being brought to bear on the ward superintendents all of which should result in a cleaner and healthier community.

JOHN C.

PARKED JALOPY A PERIL.

In these hypocritical days of "Safety for the People" it seems apparent that political favoritism is the real goal of our friends and I am compelled to ask the following question:

Why, under the recent expenditures for safety, are the following conditions permitted to continue to exist?

On a steep hill on 87th street just east of Western avenue thru Ryan woods there is a small log cabin, a hot dog and soft drink concession stand, halfway down the hill. This fellow parks his jalopy half way down the hill with the car half way in the east bound traffic pavement. The car in question is not worth $100 but has caused damage much in excess of this amount. It can also kill some one and may be the cause of crippling many.

We Chicagoans are assessed thousands of dollars to promote safety. With this condition condoned by the committeemen of the 18th and 19th wards and the politicians in the area we wonder just why they spend thousands of our tax dollars to erect "No Parking at Any Time" signs every hundred feet on both sides of the hill and then permit the old jalopy to still park there. It is 100 feet from costly parking areas provided with our tax money.

Most of us tax paying home owners who used to be called the backbone of Chicago, and got milked accordingly, are just about fed up with this sort of treatment. I know that as a result of this letter the police will conduct an investigation and stop the jalopy from parking on the hill. But why is this letter necessary? Political favoritism is the only answer.

5,065 Buildings Supplied with Garbage Cans.

By the end of this month every building in Chicago will be supplied with a garbage can and at that time the city will launch its long awaited blitzkrieg against an army of 500,000 rats. So says Oscar E. Hewitt, commissioner of public works, the big city Pied Piper who is working to rid Chicago of rats in the modern manner.

By the end of the month, when the city will have armed itself 100 per cent with garbage cans, starvation is expected to decimate the rat army.

18 Perfect Wards.

The latest report on Mr. Hewitt's desk shows that the number of wards now rated as 100 per cent in being supplied with garbage cans—a garbage can for each building—has jumped in one week from 14 to 18. Six other wards rate 99 per cent. The lowest ward, the 26th, is 75.7.

Last week 5,065 buildings were reported to have been supplied with cans. In several wards aldermen, superintendents and citizens have given money so that the cans may be supplied free to the poor. Many manufacturing firms and gasoline stations have donated barrels and empty oil drums as garbage receptacles.

South Side Report.

The latest report of the south side wards, the superintendent, and the new percentages is as follows:

1st ward—Thomas F. McGrath; gain from 73.7 to 84.7 per cent; 311 buildings still without cans.

2d ward—Morris Laphen; gain from 72.1 to 73.5 per cent; 1,706 buildings still without cans.

6th ward—M. J. O'Connell; gain from 99.8 to 99.9 per cent; 6 buildings still without cans.

7th ward—Joseph McAuley; gain from 99.6 to 100 per cent. All buildings now supplied with cans.

Hunt for Babies in Books

Believe it or not, there are babies in these books, according to Miss Eleanor Johnson, 5840 South Morgan street, and K. Ray Ballantine, 723 West 66th street. Ballantine is general chairman of the Englewood celebration of 50 years of annexation to Chicago. He and Miss Johnson are holding historical records in which they expect to find notices of the births of annexation year babies. Jubilee workers are seeking all 1890 Englewood infants to take part in the formal anniversary celebration Nov. 10 to Nov. 16, inclusive. (Story on page 1.)

LITTLE CRIPPLES FIND A FRIEND IN GIRL OF 14

Makes Komic Books for the Bedridden.

Louise Crutcher, 4840 Evans avenue, wants the crippled children of Chicago to know that she is ready and eager to serve them. Louise, a 14 year old Du Sable High school sophomore, is amassing a library which she thinks will be of interest to bedridden or handicapped boys and girls. The library is made up entirely of Komic books, that is, collections of comic strip tales.

"One day I was talking to a girl who'd come out of a 'home'," she says, "and she told me how terrible it was when you had to lie in bed with no visitors, sometimes no one to talk to, and nothing to read. I knew all the kids liked to read Komic books, so I thought it would be a good idea to suply them with such reading as well as I could."

Books for Homes.

Since then Louise has been distributing her books to the Federated Home for Children, 5622 Michigan avenue; the Martha Washington Home for Dependent Crippled Children, 4422 Michigan avenue, and a number of individuals. She is anxious to make contact with additional borrowers.

In the bookcases and on tables of her home are heaps of varicolored books dealing with the adventures of Popeye, Superman, the Bat-Man, Little Annie Rooney, the King of the Royal Mounted, Dr. Strange, and others. Altogether, she has 297 Komic books and 50 Big Little books [which relate a single story].

Joe Louis a Help.

"One hundred seventy-five of the books were donated by Joe Louis," she says. "As you might imagine, they are fight comics. I also get some contributions of old books from children in the neighborhood. Some of these I tape and staple, or put new backs on, so that they can be loaned out."

Louise, who believes that there should be such libraries all over the city, lends her books for two week periods and delivers them herself. She uses a system of borrowers' cars similar to those issued by the public libraries. Both white and colored children are eligible for her library —"because we're both people." Her personal ambition is to be an obstetrician and pediatrician.

300 More Cadets Will Be in Uniform.

With the beginning of the school term more than 9,800 students are expected to take part in R. O. T. C. activities in Chicago high schools. In answer to the increasing demand for training more of the city's youths, the war department has authorized an increase of 300 uniformed cadets in the city's enrollment.

Col. William F. Morrison, head of the Chicago public school units, expects 7,800 uniformed cadets in the public school training corps for this school year.

Because of the need for funds in the training of men for the regular army, the war department has been unable to answer the request of many schools for the installation of units. Consequently the number of schools offering training will remain as last year—27 public high schools and one Catholic school.

Must Buy Uniforms.

The Catholic school is St. Mel's at 1 North Kildare avenue. About 800 students are expected to take part in the work. Of this number, 250 are freshmen, who will, as in the public schools, be forced to either go without or buy their own uniforms. The government furnishes uniforms only for upper classmen.

The allotted 7,800 public school cadets will be augmented by freshmen in the various schools who wish to take the training but are not allowed to have uniforms. Approximately 1,200 boys are expected to volunteer for freshmen work.

There have been no changes in the officer staffs for the coming year, and no new military instructors have been assigned. However, Col. Morrison said the war department had authorized the appointment of five new instructors, and that applications for the posts were being received.

Instructions Are Same.

No changes are expected in drill instruction, as the new army drill manual was adopted last year by the Chicago units. The present drill system conforms to the latest type authorized by the war department for all infantry organizations.

During the summer many improvements have been made in the schools that will facilitate training of the students.

On South Side.

Bowen, 250 cadets; Calumet, 225; Du Sable, 280; Englewood, 235; Fenger, 355; Hirsch, 225; Hyde Park, 300; Tilden, 425 cadets.

At Fenger High school, Sergt. William P. Robinson has been promoted to staff sergfeant, and at Calumet High, Sergt. Stanley J. Tutlis received the same promotion. At Tilden High, Staff Sergt. Michael J. Moore was promoted to technical sergeant.

Church Group to Hear Talk on 'Why Men Are Great'

"Why Men Are Great" is the subject of the address Dr. Paul Johnson of the Church Extension Board of the Presbyterian church will give before members of the Young People's society of the Morgan Park Presbyterian church next Sunday evening.

Ready to Uniform Cadets

With 7,800 public school students ready to take up their R. O. T. C. activities again, it's time to dust off the uniforms and find the pants that match the coat. Here are a few of the uniforms that are freshly cleaned and pressed and all ready to be filled out with a military chest. Master Sergeant Harry Ain is one of the men who has the big responsibility of seeing that Chicago R. O. T. C. cadets are well turned out. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

and by 1910 children were turned away for lack of room.

The new church required 15 years for completion. It was dedicated in 1915. Father Macken's death occurred on Jan. 28, 1916, a quarter of a century after he'd taken over the little mission church with its first confirmation class of five youngsters.

Convent Is Rebuilt.

The Rev. Patrick J. Scanlon succeeded Father Macken, and the following year he led the parish in supporting the construction of a new convent adjoining the church on Marquette road. The next project was the building of the school on Elizabeth street south of the convent. This was opened in 1924.

Father Scanlon died on Feb. 6, 1937, and the next month Cardinal Mundelein chose the Rev. Bernard T. Brady to assume duties at St. Brendan's. He came from a charge in Wilmette. His assistant, Father John C. Keenan, came with him. Father Keenan is in charge of the jubilee dancing party at the Palmer House.

A GARBAGE CAN TO EACH FAMILY IS DRIVE SLOGAN

Shade May Be Natural or in Mottled Colors.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

Never was there a time when the walls of our rooms received more attention. They seem one of the home's most favored spots.

Now a beautiful new material, which in its original states is one of the world's oldest materials, has made its appearance in the home building field. It is a highly functional and handsome wall surfacing; genuine rawhide, as paneling for the walls of a living room or study, a den, dining room, or bedroom.

In the natural shade this rawhide has the appearance of fine parchment. It is not tanned like leather, but its hide is left in the natural state, with the original markings of nature. It also is available in a number of lovely colors, and because the coloring process does not create one uniform shade the effect is varied like intricate patterning of marble, onyx, or agate.

Thickness Reduced.

A modern process has made this rawhide flexible and reduced its thickness, and yet its hard, shell-like surface and individual markings have been retained. No two rawhides are ever identical.

For years rawhide has been used to cover smart luggage. Now we find it can add distinction and smartness to our rooms. In its varied and attractive coloring which range from parchment to black, from pale tans to deep browns, from ivory and cream to pastel grays, it is now a striking wall paneling.

In a model home shown recently this rawhide was used on a stunning, circular fireplace wall. In a private office in Chicago it appears in brown agate form as a wall surfacing, and also as a covering for the desk, the chairs, the cabinets, and even the window sills. There are shades and colors of this rawhide paneling to give life and zest to the most modern of rooms. Again in other deeper tones it can blend with the atmosphere of a man's study or library, a family game room or hallway, living room, or bedroom.

Not for Plaster.

This rawhide is not recommended for application directly on plaster, but can be applied in panel form to plywood or metals.

The plywood should be at least three-eighths of an inch thick, cut to the proper size and pattern, and then covered with the rawhide. Light colored plywood should be used. [If the plywood has any dark spots or knots it should be painted first, as this rawhide is more or less transparent.] Special adhesives are available for application on plywood so the rawhide will adhere well.

After the rawhide covered panels have been firmly fastened to the walls they can be sprayed with a lacquer which is either dull or glossy, depending on the finish desired. Or wax may be used to create an individual finish. Such treatments preserve the natural beauty of the paneling and helps to keep it from absorbing any moisture from the house atmosphere.

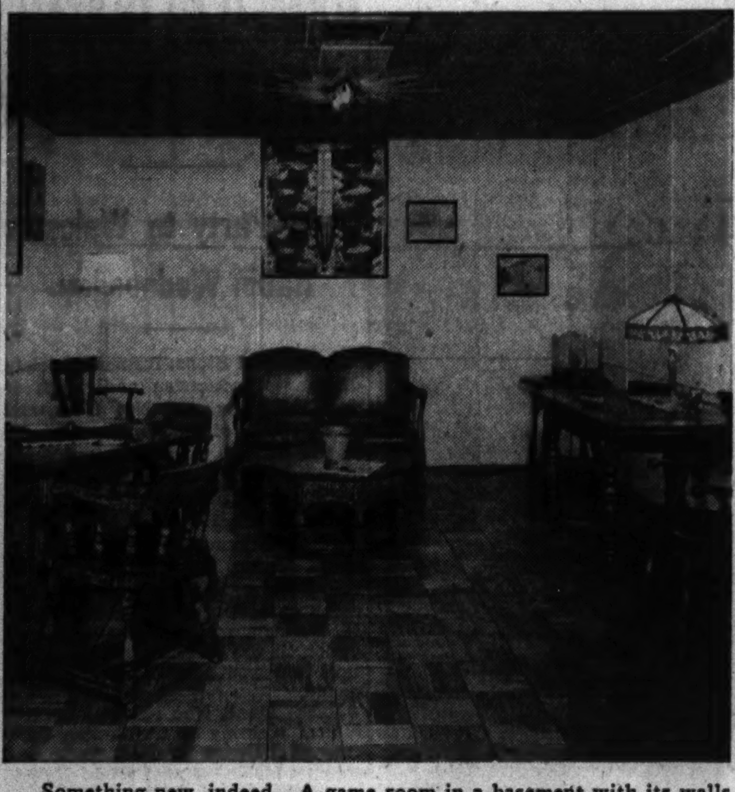
Easy to Keep Clean.

Not hard, either, to keep this paneling clean, since a light rubbing with a cloth slightly dampened in a mild soap suds solution will do the work.

In case you are building a new home or planning on changing the face of some room in the house you own, this new poneling for your walls—and also for your table tops, your cabinets, and many other of your room appointments—offers a treatment of richness and distinction. A treatment moreover which is as suited to a house carried out in ultra-modern spirit as to one which follows faithfully along traditional or even ultra-conservative lines.

Tho the roots of this rawhide are buried deep in antiquity, its present form is very forward looking indeed.

Something New in Game Rooms



Something new, indeed. A game room in a basement with its walls paneled in rawhide. This rawhide, now available in many handsome colors as well as natural, which has the appearance of fine parchment, is both a highly functional and beautiful wall surfacing.

1 DEAD, 20 HURT IS TOLL AT NO. 3 DANGER CORNER

3 Way Crossing Hazard for Cars, Walkers.

[This is the fourth of a series of articles about the most dangerous street intersections on the south side.]

One fatality and 20 injuries in 88 accidents during the last 18 months at the intersections of 71st street, Cottage Grove and South Chicago avenues have made the corner the third most dangerous to pedestrians and motorists on the south and southwest side.

These figures were revealed in a survey of the 20 high accident corners in the area by the safety and traffic division of the Chicago Motor club.

During the period from January, 1939, to August, 1940, the total of 88 accidents that occurred on the corner involved 50 automobile collisions, 20 auto-truck collisions, and involving pedestrians. Four other accidents were minor.

Open Space a Hazard.

"The principal cause of accident at this intersection is the amount of open area caused by the merging of the three streets," George Barton, head of the club safety department, explained. "This is particularly hazardous for persons on foot, who can't possibly reach any opposite curb in the 20 second interval allotted them by the timing signals.

Mr. Barton pointed out that another thing which put pedestrians at a disadvantage is the fact they don't know when it is safe to start across the street, since three-way traffic, with its resulting turns, forces them to contend with traffic wherever they cross.

The bus terminal on 71st street east of Cottage Grove also contributes to pedestrian accidents. Persons scurry across streets from street cars and sidewalks to catch these vehicles, Mr. Barton said.

Hazard for Drivers.

At the intersection, motorists are subject to much the same hazards as pedestrians, so far as open space, lack of time caused by signal arrangement and general confusion is concerned.

One outstanding accident trap is created by the heavy volume of traffic moving south on Cottage Grove and turning southeast on South Chicago. Motorists attempting to accomplish this turn are frequently caught in the middle of the street by a change in lights which hurls street cars and autos at them from two directions. Their being stalled there also forces other cars to swerve around them and out in the way of other traffic.

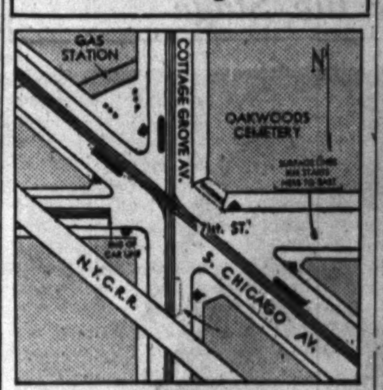
Confusion at Cemetery.

The Oak Woods cemetery entrance at the northwest corner of the intersection causes further confusion. Both trucks and cars come out of the cemetery from morning until night, and turning in all directions.

The fence along the south side of the cemetery acts as a vision obstruction and is given as a contributing cause to the five pedestrian injuries and one death which have occurred there the last 18 months. This condition is aggravated by the fact that motorists are usually coming west on 71st street at a comparatively high rate of speed since no streets intersect to the north for several blocks.

The motor club offers three possible ways of reducing accidents at the intersection to a minnimum: [1] more adequate pedestrian control, including repainting of crosswalks and re-timing signals: [2] filling in "dead space" by channelization; [3] longer signals for motorists.

3d in Danger List



The intersection of 71st street and Cottage Grove and South Chicago avenues ranks third in the list of dangerous corners on the south and southwest sides prepared by the Chicago Motor club. In the last 18 months there have been 88 accidents at the corners, involving one fatality and 20 injuries. Fourteen of the accidents involved pedestrians. The large amount of open space and poorly timed signals are blamed as the cause for many of the accidents.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, Sept. 9.

Leaves soon will be falling and the energetic gardener will save them for composting or to allow them to decay to form desirable material for combining with soil for house plants, for mulching, or for other purposes. If the leaves are dry, wet them down to hasten decomposition.

If straw, leaves, cornstalks, or similar material is composted with a nitrogen bearing material, such as sulphate of ammonia or cyanamid and ground limestone and sprinkled with water, it will break down the material in a few months and result in a rich brown substance that has the appearance of rotted manure. By adding available phosphate and potash it will contain the essential elements for a complete fertilizer. Various brands are offered by firms to hasten the decay of the compost.

Many trees make little growth because of a lack of food in the soil. This may be supplied early in spring, during summer, or when dormant. Bore holes with a crowbar or auger 12 to 18 inches deep and 2 inches in diameter at intervals around the outermost circle of branch drip. Mix a good tree food with soil, half and half, and fill each hole and water in. To estimate the amount for a tree allow one pound to each inch of circumference of the trunk measured four feet from the ground.

Tuesday, Sept. 10.

Do not feed roses late in fall or a soft growth will result which is quite likely to freeze back during winter. The new lawn can be made around the middle of this month. Do not delay this important work until spring. It is a good time to dig perennial weeds that are in the lawn. Remember that a heavy stand of blue grass will keep weeds down to a minimum. Make a fine seedbed by carefully spading up bare places and raking up all lumps before sowing. The seed will never germinate properly if the soil is merely scratched, and if it is packed hard. Use about four pounds of seed per 100 square feet for new lawns and two pounds per 100 square feet on old lawns that need repair.

Wednesday, Sept. 11.

Order bulbs for fall planting. If there are ant colonies on the lawn or garden control can be effected by the use of carbon bisulphide. Insert an iron rod four to six inch intervals and pour in each a tablespoonful of the carbon bisulphide; cover with a wet burlap or blanket. The fumes will enter every tunnel or runway and kill the ants. Use care in handling the carbon bisulphide because it is poisonous and inflammable. Be careful not to spill it on the grass.

Plant narcissus bulbs this month, as early as possible. Divide old clumps of peonies so they will be well established before severe weather. They do best in medium heavy, rich soil. Do not plant more than two to three inches deep. The best time to plant is between Sept. 15 and mid-October. Hardy phlox should be transplanted by this time to give bloom next year, but clumps in good condition need dividing only once in about three years.

Seeding pansies should be transplanted now to give good growth before cold weather. They may be planted where they are to flower next spring if protected. Lay in material for winter mulching.

Thursday, Sept. 12.

Most perennials can be transplanted in fall, except the autumn blooming varieties. The entire perennial border can be remade if desired. Enrich the soil and dig deeply to accommodate the roots. Use tulips and other spring flowering bulbs in colonies in the foreground and the blooming season will be lengthened. Even a few lilies add much to the garden and they may be had in several kinds. The delicate, pink flowering Hall's amaryllis [lycorus squamigera] can be transplanted at this time. It is hardy with protection. Set the bulbs about four inches deep. Why not sow a packet of radishes in the coldframe? They will develop before winter.

Friday, Sept. 13.

Applications of liquid manure to the budding chrysanthemums will give larger blooms. Disbudding also will give fine flowers.

Continue spraying roses and plants affected with rust or mildew. Dusting with sulphur will serve as a control, but a regular system must be continued to be effective. If a branch of the lilac or dogwood suddenly wilts examine the stems for borers and dig them out, if found. Hardy ferns can be transplanted in spring or fall, but the roots should not be allowed to dry out.

There are many shady places between buildings that could be beautiful by fern plantings. Consult the nurseryman for supply. Do not transplant hardy chrysanthemums or other fall flowering perennials in fall, for they will not have time to become established before severe weather.

Saturday, Sept. 14.

Rhubarb and asparagus can be planted. Cultivation of roses should be discontinued now to enable the plants to thoroly ripen before winter. Sow hardy annuals now for earlier flowering next season. Plants which self-seed in the garden can all be planted.

Be sure to examine all plants that are to be brought indoors for winter growing. Some may need repotting, which may be done immediately. Do not overpot; give good soil; see that the drainage is perfect; place in a shady, protected place for a few days; water once thoroly and as needed thereafter.

2,000 ON RELIEF FORM ARMY TO CUT CITY WEEDS

1,850 Acres Cleared of Noxious Growths.

Two thousand persons receiving direct relief were put to work cutting and pulling weeds in vacant lots and city parkways during the first eight months of this year. Some 1,850 acres—77,853,949 square feet—were cleared under the direction of the bureau of streets.

"It was the first time in the history of the city that reliefers have done this type of work," Oscar E. Hewitt, commissioner of public works, said. "They worked for the relief they obtained. Many said that they preferred working to sitting at home in idleness. They liked the idea of repaying the public for the relief which the taxes supplied."

Mayor Launches Drive.

At the beginning of the year Mayor Kelly launched a campaign for the eradication of noxious weeds. The purpose of the drive was five-fold: [1] to aid hay fever victims; [2] to provide work for persons on relief; 3] to reduce motor accidents at intersections where high weeds on corner lots obscured vision; [4] to clear lots for playground sites, and [5] to aid in beautifying the city.

Commissioner Hewitt said the pollen count in Chicago has been lessened considerably at a result of the work. More weeds have been cut and pulled this year than ever before, he declared.

In a checkup of the first eight months this year the public works commissioner has tabulated in square feet the number of weeds cut. The tabulation has been compiled by wards.

A Tenderfoot Learns to Ride

BY HAROLD SMITH.

Like many another riding instructor, Elmer J. Holdorf, from whom I am learning some of the fine points of riding form, isn't enthusiastic about teaching new riders to post the trot. He does it, of course, but only with reluctance.

Posting the trot means merely taking only one bump while the horse is giving two. This is accomplished by rising in the saddle at one beat of the trot and sitting at the next beat. [The trot is a one-two gait, as against a one-two-three rhythm for the canter.]

My instructor believes that the posting of the trot should come rather late in a rider's experience, say six months or more after he has taken up the sport, and only after he has developed a sure, balanced seat. Meanwhile, the rider ought to sit the trot always, he insists.

Merely an Evasion.

"Too many men and women learn at the outset to post presentably and then conclude they are finished riders with little more to learn," Holdorf complained.

"That's dead wrong. Posting for the novice rider is merely an evasion of the bounces he should take in order to learn balance more quickly.

"Sitting the trot gracefully is one of the infallible marks of a good rider. I've seen too many riders stop trying to sit the trot right simply because they had learned to post."

In rising properly to the trot, I learned, the lower legs remain practically still, the body and upper legs being lifted with the knee joints as the hinges. The weight is borne partly by the feet in the stirrups and partly by the knees and inner thighs bearing against the saddle flaps.

My instructions were to let my torso incline a bit forward during the trot, but to observe the oft-repeated admonition to keep my back hollow, my shoulders square, and my chin in.

In falling back on the second beat the seat does not return completely to the saddle, I found. Rather it settles onto the inner line of the thighs and the fore part of the buttocks, rising immediately at the start of the next cycle.

The rise is essentially a gentle forward lunge of the midsection, in which the feet and head scarcely move out of a vertical plane. Properly executed, it requires little effort.

I found I had to pay particular attention to my feet and hands when I began to learn posting. It's highly important to keep the knees in and the heels down [an instruction impossible to overemphasize in any department of horseback riding], and to avoid transmitting the rather vigorous body movement of the post to the horse's mouth thru the reins.

It is permissible to count aloud at first as an aid in getting the rhythm of the post, my teacher assured me. Watching the horse's shoulders I counted "one" as the right foot struck the ground, rising as I counted, and "two" as the left foot landed and I descended to the saddle.

Don't Forget the Horse.

At this point Holdorf gave me a horse saving instruction. He told me to vary my posting occasionally, rising as the left front foot lands and falling at the right footfall. Switching is easily accomplished by sitting to two beats of the trot instead of one.

This switching is necessary because on his fall the rider's weight descends on the same pair of the horse's feet at the same time—one front foot and the opposite hind foot. The change in the post brings this impact down as the other diagonal pair hits the ground. Thus the rider avoids "wearing out" one side of his horse only.

Correct posting also demands careful checking of stirrup strap length, too, I discovered.

If the stirrups are short the body rises too high, which is both awkward and tiring. If they are too long the feet do not assume their rightful share of supporting body weight on the rise.

It took quite a lot of experimenting on my part to find just the right length.

A FARM WOMAN FINDS HAPPINESS IN A VACANT LOT

A garden is a place where friendship grows. It blooms in the deep richness of midnight purple gladioli, the dainty tints of the asters. And for the more practical minded, there's friendship in green corn and tomatoes, raspberries and rhubarb.

Good health and beauty grow in a garden, too, says Mrs. M. L. Jones of 10443 Hale avenue. And Mrs. Jones speaks authoritatively. She has a garden.

Flowers Replace Trash.

Her garden is different from the usual kind, however, because Mrs. Jones lives in an apartment and has no back yard nor front yard in which to plant her seeds. Her garden is in a vacant lot, a spot where she has, in five years, substituted beauty for tin cans, and trash, and thistles!

She explains: "I'm a country woman. I lived on a farm in Iowa until my husband died five years ago. Then I came here to live with my sister, Miss Elin Larson. She knew I'd have to have a garden, so she started looking about the neighborhood. We tried several places, and finally we were given permission to use that lot between 10565 and 10603 down the street here. Well, I went to work. This year I've finally conquered the thistles, I think. But it's been a job!"

Builds "Friendship Fence."

Mrs. Jones is particularly proud of her hollyhock fence. She calls it a "friendship" fence. She says that after the flowers and vegetables were planted folks gradually stopped using the lot for a dumping ground. She didn't say anything—just worked away at her garden.

"I don't think my garden is outstanding in any way. There are certainly a lot of prettier gardens in the neighborhood. I just think that it's unusual because I borrowed a vacant lot. I should think more folks could do that here in Chicago."

LUTHERAN GROUP TO TALK PARISH EDUCATION PLAN

More than 500 church workers from 50 United Lutheran churches of the Chicago area will meet at a banquet Wednesday evening in the parish house of the Woodlawn Immanuel church, 64th street and Kenwood avenue. They will discuss the educational program for the churches.

The Rev. William J. Ducker, associate secretary of the Luther League of America, will speak on the "Luther League in Parish Education." Other talks will be given by Mrs. Howard S. Bechtolt, president of the synodical society; Miss Charlotte Rust, and Miss Wilma Kaitschuk.

The meeting is part of the Midwest Regional conference on parish education held under the auspices of the parish and church school board of the United Lutheran church.

BARBER LABORS OVERTIME AIDING PUZZLED ALIENS

Joe Helps Them on Way to Citizenship.

Joe Husek is a barber who lives at 1540 West 18th street. He says he is busier than he's ever been in his life. Maybe he'll even look for an assistant. But is isn't barbering that keeps Joe Husek's nose to the grindstone. He says business is very bad.

Joe Husek.

The cause is the law requiring the registration of aliens. For many years Joe Husek's hobby has been helping foreign people adjust themselves to their new home. Today they are flocking to him with green blanks in their hands. "Some of them are so scared," says Joe, "I've gotta help. They mumble 'What will they do with us!'"

They come to Joe because he has probably had more to do with converting aliens into United States citizens than any other man on the west side. In two years he taught 97 aliens what a democracy is. "I'm glad to do this free," says Joe, "because I know what a thrill it is to become a citizen."

51 Under Instruction.

There are 51 more aliens now under instruction in Joe's school. Twenty-four are Italians, 12 are Czechs, four Slovaks, four Poles, two Serbs, two Croatians, one Moravian, one Canadian, and one Hungarian. Plans are being made for a reunion of all the alumni of Mr. Husek's naturalization school to be held late in October. Mr. Husek is anxious to locate every one of his graduate-citizens.

Members of the class are contributing dimes for the purchase of a flag to be presented on the night of the reunion to the Italian-American Woman's Educational forum.

It was this woman's organization that made the naturalization school possible. Led by Mrs. Emma F. Martini, president, a committee of women three years ago invited Mr. Husek to become instructor of a naturalization school to be opened in their headquarters at 2253 West 24th street. At that time there were 78 noncitizens out of the club's membership of 400. Today every member is a citizen.

The women provide rooms for the school, heat, and light.

Open to Everyone.

From the beginning the school was ope nto any one who wanted to learn the elements of a democratic government so they could pass their citizenship examinations. Aliens who put off taking out their papers and some who didn't do it because they intended to "go back" some day, are now pouring in on Mr. Husek. They want help in filling out the registration blanks now required by law.

"The hardest job for the alien," says Mr. Husek, "is to remember on what boat and on what day and year he arrived in the United States. Some have been here for more than a quarter century. Some came when they were babies in arms and always believed they were citizens. Now when they must provide proof of citizenship they find there isn't any."

Mr. Husek's text books are pamphlets on the principals of democracy released by the government. They are called "Lessons in Citizenship for Naturalization" and were written by Charles P. Schwartz, a member of the Chicago bar.

Qualified for Job.

The woman's organization chose Mr. Husek as instructor because of his interest in civic matters. He is executive secretary of the executive committee of the Taxpayers Associations of Illinois which includes seven organizations. Since 1932 he has led a fight in behalf of the men and women who lost their life's savings in defaulted real estate bonds. He organized the United Bond Holders' association.

Mr. Husek was born in Bohemia. When he was 21 years old he faced three years of compulsory military training in the Austrian army with a pay of four cents a day. To escape this he fled the country and came to America. He became a citizen as early as the law allowed and says: "If I can help aliens become citizens, I feel, I can in some measure repay my adopted country for what it means to me."

Hotel Clerk Wears Out Four Knives.

BY DAVID ANDERSON.

The slowest thing in the world for a night clerk in a small hotel is time. It shuffles along like a turtle with no place to go and all night to get there.

John F. Johnson.

Before midnight, if you're a night clerk, you have things to do, usually. You have the phones to answer. The guests call and want you "to be sure to ring at 7:15, I was late for work this morning"; or, "please ask Henry to bring up some extra towels"; or, "send up some more sparkling water and a couple of hamburgers, well-done"; or, "tell that party downstairs not to make so much noise, we can't sleep" or, "leave a message for the janitor to fix the window."

Time Crawls On.

So it goes until midnight. But from then on time plods across the red-carpeted lobby and comes to a standstill at the hotel desk. It doesn't move. It stands there silent and waiting as the weary hands on the clock tick off two, then three, then four and five o'clock in slow motion.

That's how it seems to a night clerk after he's read the midnight papers, the latest G-Man pulp and all of last week's picture magazines. That's how it is, if you're a night clerk and if you don't have a hobby.

And that's how it was for John F. Johnson, night clerk at the Alden Inn hotel, 4526 Sheridan road, before he built his castle. He calls it the Agate Castle and it is a miniature of a 16th century Bavarian country manor. The castle stands about three feet high and is equipped with furniture carved out of solid walnut. Everything is made to scale and everything in the castle is in authentic 16th century design.

Studded With Agates.

He made it out of orange boxes, tarpaper, concrete, glass and stone. It weighs more than 150 pounds and the outside is studded with 1,100 agates which Johnson brought back from a trip to the Dakotas.

He built the castle as a defense against slow time at night. It took three years. Figuring up the working hours, Johnson says, "Altogether it took 3,500 hours before I was satisfied with it." His only tools were pocket knives.

One side of the white and brown castle is cut away like a doll house to show the interior. Each room is furnished exactly to the specifications which Johnson dug out of architectural histories. Candelabra [which he fashioned from a floor lamp decoration] hang from the tiny hewn beams. In the dining hall are heavy walnut tables and benches, velvet hangings and miniature copies of great works of art.

Wears Out Knives.

"I used only a knife," Johnson says. "The whole thing except for the concrete and glass is hand carved. I wore out my hands and four knives in the process."

He is 38 years old and has been in the hotel business for 15 years. He was 16 when he joined the army in the world war. When the war was over he enlisted in the navy. He claims to be one of the youngest American Legion members in the city.

"I got a great kick out of making my castle," he says. "I love to create things. But wounldn't do it again for $5,000, even tho it does fill in the time."

Pupils Again to Attend Argo-Summit.

Stickney has a high school district, No. 220, approved in a special township election last June 23. High school board members, chosen at another special election on July 13, are explaining to inquirers these days that altho there is a high school district, there isn't a high school; at least, not this fall. The board, headed by Marion F. Conway, has had to start from scratch to build up a community high school. Directors have been making surveys and plans thruout the summer. Their material contribution toward the school problem for the fall term is a school bus.

A bus route is being mapped, and board members are working toward seeing that every high school student in south Stickney township attends the high school he did last year. That is Argo-Summit. Previously, students went to school as best they could. The grade school board of district 111 assisted as much as it could by lending a bus. This practice is not authorized in the new permit, however. Leaders in the high school district work and Herbert R. Maid, Stickney township supervior, feel that a settled transportation may result in a higher percentage of high school attendance.

Sees 50 in School.

Maid estimates that a community high school in Stickney would have 50 students at the beginning. He predicts that it would grow rapidly thru real estate development and out of the township students seeking to avoid the crowding in large nearby high schools. He says he has had many inquiries about tuition alreaay.

The new high school building, Maid says, would be located centrally. A favored spot is the vicinity of 79th street and State road. Further building operations cannot go on, according to Maid, until the board members have decided what kind of plant is necessary and then, on the basis of those plans, ask an election on a bond issue.

A year old grade school, the Tobin, built at 85th street and Narragansett avenue, is already crowded, Maid says in explaining the need for school plants in the township. There are six rooms in the school now and construction of a two room addition is to begin within two weeks.

5 Million Valuation.

The Stickney high school, when built, would serve the community between 65th and 87th streets and Cicero and Harlem avenues. Before the high school district was established, South Stickney was a nonhign school district with a $5,000,000 property valuation. High school taxes paid by residents of the area were used thruout the county.

Are you selling all the people right in your own neighborhood who might trade with you?

For more than 12 years, large and small businesses located in many neighborhoods and suburbs of Chicago have proved conclusively that there is no better way to build sales and profits than by running a consistent schedule of low-cost advertising in the Sunday Tribune Metropolitan sections.

During 1939, a total of 745 neighborhood enterprises used this advertising plan to get a greater share of the patronage of the families who can best trade with them.

One or more of these five sections — North, Northwest, West, Southwest, and South — are edited for and read exclusively by the families in your trading area.

NEW BUILDINGS ARE READY FOR TERM AT N. U.

BY JUANITA DALY.

Scott hall, a $750,000 student center and auditorium, and a second Patten gymnasium costing $450,000 will be the new buildings on Northwestern university's Evanston campus this fall. The naval R. O. T. C. will begin the term in quarters doubled in size after an $18,000 remodeling job.

The student center will be opened formally on Sept. 24. Altho the gymnasium will be ready for use late this month, it will not be dedicated until Nov. 1, before a homecoming football crowd.

Decorators are putting the finishing touches on Scott hall. It has been built and endowed with funds raised by popular subscription as a tribute to Dr. Walter Dill Scott, president emeritus of the university, and Mrs. Scott. Ground was broken last May 1. The building extends for a block along Sheridan road from University place to Emerson street.

Seats for 1,225.

The auditorium, which has 1,223 seats, the first floor and the basement are air conditioned, with soundproof ceilings in the basement. The latter houses a grill, five dining rooms, a four room suite of offices and the auditorium lounge. The grill will accommodate 100 persons and will be open all day and evening. Folding doors makes it possible to use all or any group of the dining rooms together.

On the first floor are a student lounge, 35 by 75 feet, and a suite of offices, lounges and meeting rooms for the women's organizations affiliated with the university. These groups gave $200,000 toward the construction of the building.

In Women's Suite.

In the women's organization suite are two lounges, one in 18th century style and one in oriental. An exhibition corridor 130 feet long, lined on both sides with built in cases, holds the university guild's art collection. The guild's collection of oil paintings will be hung in the 18th century room along with a new oil portrait of Mrs. Scott.

Also in the suite is the associate alumnae library, paneled in Appalachian white oak, with a separate vault room for the archives. Facilities include a service pantry, check room and powder room.

On the second floor are offices of student publications and organizations, conference rooms, a music room and two lounges. The Clarion DeWitt Hardy lounge, for use of Hardy scholars in the school of speech, was given by Owen L. Coon. In the graduate lounge is a carved fireplace mantel taken from an Italian castle and presented by John C. Shaffer, a member of the University associates.

Room for Y. W. C. A.

The third floor includes a suite of tower offices for the Y. W. C. A., a room running the full length of the building for parties, and a small connecting lounge.

The Bertram Cahn auditorium, named for a trustee, is a semi-independent unit at the north end. The foyer is marble and the color scheme of lounge and auditorium is terra cotta and putty colors. The auditorium unit includes three dressing rooms, a rehearsal room under the stage, a movie projection booth, an organ, and a removable unit to put in front of the stage.

The two story gymnasium, 252 feet long and 136 feet wide, will house the physical education and intramural departments. The building is of modified Gothic design and constructed of Lannon stone to conform with other campus structures. Holabird and Root were the architects for the building, which is named for James A. Patten, donor of the old gymnasium which was razed to make way for the Technological institute.

75 Foot Swim Pool

Outdoor activities in the university's expanding intramural program will be held in the adjoining Roycemore field. A feature of the building is the 75 foot swimming pool, wide enough for six lanes, and equipped for high dive. It is illuminated by underwater lighting effects and has a capacity of 400 persons.

Opening off the lobby is the gymnasium, large enough for three basketball courts. Also on the first floor are an exercise room, two men's locker rooms, a room with 30 showers, and 11 offices. Two exercise rooms, 32 by 50 feet, take up the major portion of the secnod floor. These rooms will be used for wrestling, fencing and will be available for women's classes in dancing, archery, and volley ball. A posture room for corrective gymnastics, shower and locker quarters for the women complete the floor.

The basement will contain a rifle range for both men and women, a gun room for the naval R. O. T. C., and driving nets for golf practice.

ELECTRIC CLUB GARDENERS SHOW FLOWERS TODAY

The annual fall show of the flower and garden section of the Western Electric Hawthorne club will be held all day today in the horticultural hall at the Garfield Park conservatory. Prize blooms of 14,000 telephone makers will be on display.

In addition, to give every amateur flower and garden enthusiast in the Chicago area an opportunity to display the prize products of gardens, there will be a special guest class in which any amateur gardener may enter blooms, vegetables, fruits, canned goods, or novelties.

Must Move a Museum of 31,213 Objects.

BY MILDRED WILDS.

Sam Bornstein has 10 shrunken human heads from eastern Ecuador. He has a 200 year old turtle from the South seas, a carved ostrich egg from Africa, and a fetish stick from Zululand. Sam has almost been chewed up by a lion and eaten by a shark. He frequently has dined with cannibals.

But Sam says he's never been as nervous in his life as he is right now in Chicago. At home at 1529 South Trumbull avenue he says he can't sleep nights.

Museum in J. P. I.

For seven years his objects have had an honored place in 16 cases in a room at the Jewish People's institute, 3500 Douglas boulevard. Three months ago he received a letter from Dr. Philip Seman, institute director, telling him to pack up and move. Dr. Seman told him he needed the space.

Sam is a tailor and sews a certain seam every day for hundreds of men's suits. He's been doing this most of his life. For 15 years every time he had enough money he took a trip to some place that most people don't think of when they plan a summer vacation.

He's been to Timbuctoo, Rhodesia, the South seas and Siam, and he created a natural history museum for the thousands of people who don't want to meet up with lions or live in a Zulu hut.

Gourd with Jawbones.

By fast talking and good bartering he got a Curcurbita species of gourd wrought into a drinking vessel and decorated with 10 human jawbones. He got it at Fournbau, French Cameroun, West Africa. He has lyre birds and the hummingbird from Australia and seven birds of paradise from New Zealand.

"If I move," says Sam, with a lifetime of disappointment in his voice, "it will cost me $500 to buy materials and hire a taxidermist to pack it. I'm a working man. I can't move it all in that short time."

Sam says when he explained, the institute gave him two more months. Now he has until the middle of December to pack his weaver bird's nest, the shape of a boot and decorated by the weaver bird with a pattern of shells. He has only weeks in which to store his shrunken heads and 2,200 eggs, some of which are as tiny as a bee. "And then," mourns the explorer, "my 15 years of travel to bring these things for the west side people to see will all be wasted."

Sam Shows Letters.

Sam has the sympathy of Clifford C. Gregg, director of the Field museum, who wrote: "I believe it is to the interest of the general public to have more small museums rather than fewer. The museum movement is growing rapidly in this country."

Howard K. Gloyd, director of the Chicago Academy of Science, wrote him: "I am very glad to have had an opportunity recently to see your interesting museum at 3500 Douglas boulevard. The amount of material displayed and the variety of fields covered surprised me."

Bornstein has given every evening of his time free to the institute for the last seven years. From 6:30 to 10:30 o'clock he shows an average of 100 visitors around the 16 cases, telling his experiences in the far corners of the world. On July 9 there were 133 persons who visited the room. The explorer has also written four books, one of which was reviewed as far away as Buenos Aires, Argentina.

Also Needs Time.

Besides the $500 needed to move his collection, Bornstein says he needs time. "Maybe I could get out in a year," he says, "but I can't by December. If I don't move they say they will put my things in the basement."

"But a specialist has to handle these rare things," says Sam. "What would happen to my lyre bird and the old oriental wine bottle from Syria that they told me the Jews used for their Passover celebration? What would happen to the eggs and my fragile bird plumage?"

Sam Bornstein says he doesn't know what to do. He says he's sure that the more than one-half million who have seen his museum have liked it. He thinks it's a shame to store it in a warehouse even if he did have the money to buy packing cases and pay a mover.

Museum Goes Begging

Sam Bornstein, 1529 South Trumbull avenue, Jewish explorer is shown here holding a hand wrought sword believed to be a relic from King Solomon's time. Bornstein, who has traveled all over the world and collected curios, has been asked to vacate the room given over to his museum seven years ago by the Jewish People's institute,

CONDUCT SCHOOL FOR EPISCOPAL WORKERS TODAY

The 13th annual religious education conference which opened yesterday for 300 church and school workers of the city and suburban Episcopal churches at St. Paul-by-the-Lake church, 1606 Estes avenue, will end this afternoon.

Plans for a religious curriculum for more than 10,000 children enrolled in the diocese church schools will be discussed. Corporate communion will be held this morning at 7:30 o'clock. At 11 o'clock there will be a prayer service. The Rt. Rev. Edwin J. Randall, suffragan bishop of the Chicago diocese, will preach the sermon.

The doors of the William Booth training college, school for Salvation Army cadets, will open Wednesday to the largest class in a decade. More than 90 students will attend the college this year, following which they face five more years of intensive study in various subjects.

All of the cadets have graduated from high school, and have successfully passed six years of a correspondence course. Four definite subjects are studied each day during the college term.

Considerable time is devoted to field training, first aid, homiletics, early church history, and family case work. The college is located at 700 Brompton avenue.

MARION CLAIRE, WEBER REJOINING SYMPHONIC HOUR

End Vacation; On W-G-N at 9 Tonight.

Marion Claire, soprano soloist, and Henry Weber, conductor of the W-G-N Symphony orchestra, will return to the Chicago Tribune Symphonic hour tonight. The hour will be broadcast from 9 to 10 o'clock over W-G-N, the Mutual network, and that of the Canadian Broadcasting corporation.

The speaker of the evening, as in weeks past, will be Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE TRIBUNE.

Miss Claire and Mr. Weber—Mr. and Mrs. Weber in private life—have been vacationing for the last fortnight in Glacier National park. Miss Claire will mark her return with three solos. She will sing "The Sky Lover" and "Hat Dich die Liebe Berührt" [Has Love Touched You], by Joseph Marx, and "Balatella," by Ruggiero Leoncavallo.

Victor Herbert's "Angelus" will be presented by Miss Claire and the chorus.

The Symphony orchestra, under the baton of Mr. Weber, will open the hour of fine music with a presentation of the introduction and wedding march from "Coq d'Or," by Nicolai Rimsky-Korsakoff. "The Bee," by Franz Schubert, and Sergei Rachmaninoff's "Serenade" also will be on the program.

For the evening finale, the orchestra will play the introduction to the third act, the dance of the apprentices, and the mastersinger's procession from Richard Wagner's powerful opera, "Die Meistersinger" [the Mastersingers].

The complete program:

The Symphonic Hour is under the direction of William A. Bacher, chief of programs and production at W-G-N. Musical commentary for the program is written by Cecil Smith of the music and drama department of THE TRIBUNE.

During the absence of Miss Claire and Mr. Weber, several noted Metropolitan Opera stars appeared as guest artists on the Symphonic Hour. Maurice de Abravanel, Metropolitan conductor, and Jarmila Novotna, noted Czech soprano, were guests two weeks ago. Last week, Wilfred Pelletier, also Metropolitan conductor, and the distinguished mezzo-soprano, Rose Bampton, were presented.

PRESENT NEW W-G-N MUSICAL FRIDAY EVENING

The Friday Night Show, a new program directed by Harold Stokes, with Patti Clayton and Curt Massey as featured vocalists, will be broadcast from 7 to 7:30 p. m. over W-G-N and the Mutual network, starting next Friday. The W-G-N dance orchestra, under Stokes' baton, and the octet will be presented regularly on the weekly show.

Miss Clayton, youthful W-G-N singing discovery, will make her début as regular soloist with a presentation of "Fools Rush In." She will join Massey and the octet in singing "We Could Make Such Beautiful Music" as the evening finale.

"Sierra Sue" will be presented by Massey as his solo. A romantic baritone, Massey's singing style is sweet and smooth. In contrast, he is adept in swinging out hot music on the violin. Massey will combine his vocal and violin talents in a special adaptation of "Honeysuckle Rose."

Miss Clayton, who is 20 years old, began singing on W-G-N in January, 1938, when she appeared as one of the "Four Shades of Blue" on another Stokes program. At present she sings with the "Three Graces," and also appears in solo presentations with Pianist Harold Turner.

Massey, a drawling Texan, had his first vocal experience singing chuck wagon ballads with members of his father's ranch crew. He now owns a ranch near Roswell, N. M. Capitalizing on his open space background, Massey has sung with a singing group known as the "Westerners" for eight years.

The Friday Night Show will replace Wings for America, W-G-N-Mutual's summer drama featuring Elissa Landi and Phillips Holmes, which closed a ten week run last Friday. The new program will be an audience show, as was Wings for America.

Hollywood Stars on W-G-N Show

TWO FILM STARS TOP 'IN CHICAGO TONIGHT' SHOW

Lucille Ball, Maureen O'Hara on Program.

Two of Hollywood's most glamorous stars, Lucille Ball and Maureen O'Hara, will be starred on the W-G-N Mutual "In Chicago Tonight" program next Thursday evening from 7:30 to 8 o'clock. They will be presented in the W-G-N audience studio in a special dramatic program titled "On Stage, Please," written by W-G-N's noted producer-director, William A. Bacher, and a Hollywood author, Ashmead Scott.

Miss Ball and Miss O'Hara are coming to Chicago especially to take part in this presentation of "In Chicago Tonight." In passing thru Chicago en route east for a personal appearance tour, the Hollywood stars were offered the radio engagement. They will interrupt their tour at Buffalo to return to Chicago for this production of the nationally known W-G-N program.

Miss O'Hara is one of Hollywood's top flight actresses despite her youth. She is currently starred with Miss Ball in the R-K-O musical comedy picture "Dance, Girl, Dance," and in her rôle the 19 year old Irish girl proves conclusively that she can handle a part in the lighter vein with proficiency equal to the talent she displayed in her three previous pictures. All of Miss O'Hara's former films were heavily dramatic. She played rôles in "Jamaica Inn," "The Hunchback of Notre Dame," and "Bill of Divorcement."

Miss O'Hara is known as one of the most photogenic stars in Hollywood. Recently she was selected as the year's most promising actress as a result of her fine work in the above mentioned pictures. Maureen came to American movies from her native Dublin via the Abbey players and the legitimate stage.

Blonde Lucille Ball has a long list of movie successes to her credit. Her work in "Dance, Girl, Dance" has been hailed by movie critics in previews as outstanding. In this picture Miss Ball, like Miss O'Hara, clearly demonstrates her ability to handle rôles in musical shows as well as in the dramatic picture field.

In "Dance, Girl, Dance," Miss Ball and Miss O'Hara stage one of the screen classic fistic battles. The two girls portray chorus girls who finally decide the best way to settle their difficulties is by the manly art of fisticuffs.

The movie stars will be supported by an all-star cast of Chicago radio actors and actresses in Mr. Bacher's presentation of "On Stage, Please." Miss O'Hara and Miss Ball will arrive on Thursday morning and will be rushed into rehearsals for the evening's performance.

Football Forecast.

SEPTEMBER 8, 1940.

A—Tweed coat with checks at least a foot square, a record for size. This topper has been cut and fashioned by experts, achieving a sensational reefer coat. ● B—Inch-square tricolor harmony in checked wool makes the fitted, short, extremely smart jacket, with interesting details. Under the jacket, a calm frock the color of old bronze. This merger is separable, managing other distinctive costumes. ● C—Stripes used for emphasis in fitted streamline of this checked wool reefer. Underneath, a simple dress of dull green tailored in streamline and fastened with buttons down the front. ● D—Effective contrast of solid color with daring mixture of nubby imported multicolored tweed, with a fitted short jacket in long torso effect. ● E—Unusual combine of solid squares in patterned wool makes a snug short jacket over a rather simple wool frock. ● F—Indeterminate mixture of two live colors in a soft, warm reefer teamed with harmonizing wool dress. All models sketched from a Chicago store's showing.

New Fall Coats Blazing with Color

By REA SEEGER

AUTUMN foliage will not blaze more vividly than the newest costumes of tweed and smooth woolens, in plaids, checks, and eye-filling mixtures of handsome colorings in imported fabrics. Good, lusty colorings such as crimson, orange, tangerine, bold blues and greens, golden yellows, scarlet, and tawny old gold are combined with each other with some grand results. The size of the checks and plaids also is exuberantly autumnal. Such outfits may be "heard" for blocks in town or country, but despite their visibility there isn't anything that remotely resembles ostentation.

These are not the sporty horse blanket plaids or patterns. They are the sophisticated versions of just how far a clever designer can go with out-size designs; how, knowingly executed, these stripes may be worked vertically to achieve distinctive pattern and that greatly desired slenderness of fashion. Fitted coats, whether short or long, lend themselves particularly well to this manner of working stripes as well as six and even twelve inch squares. These coats accentuate a slender streamline.

"The Male Animal" Opens Tomorrow

Elizabeth Love, as Mr. Nugent's helpmeet, is not too helpful until she becomes impressed by the "male animal" in him.

Heading the Selwyn theater cast is Elliott Nugent as a young professor beset by a hilarious array of problems.

Two Pictures for Chicago Screens

Rosalind Russell comes to the Palace theater in another comedy titled "Hired Wife." Brian Aherne playes male lead.

Elliott Nugent Has Leading Role in New Loop Comedy

Excellent Cast to Appear in 'Male Animal'

By Cecil Smith.

Tomorrow evening at the Selwyn theater "The Male Animal" adds its mirth to the considerable merriment already engendered on the Chicago stage by "Life With Father" and "Too Many Girls." The first non-musical starter of the new season has everything in its favor—the record of a successful and extended New York run, a gay and intelligent script by Elliott Nugent and James Thurber, a cast of most endearingly normal people behaving abnormally under the stress of circumstances they can't quite cope with, and a list of bright, capable players of established skill and reputation.

Mr. Nugent is the kingpin of the enterprise. Besides writing a share of the play, he also acts the leading rôle of the young college professor, Tommy Turner. He fits the part as a glove fits the hand, and nobody who has ever seen "The Male Animal" could imagine it without him.

When you see Mr. Nugent on the Selwyn stage you will not believe that he is 40. But he is, with an altogether exceptional career in the theater behind him already. The figures are somewhat arresting: He has written, in all or in part, some 15 or 16 plays. He has appeared in about a hundred plays on Broadway, on the road, and in stock. He has acted in nine or 10 motion pictures, and he has directed 16 others. And, O, yes, he has attended college at Ohio State university in Columbus.

Elliott Nugent comes by his interest in the theater by accident of birth and early conditioning. Seasoned followers of the stage will not have forgotten J. C. Nugent, the actor-author who is Elliott's trouping and indefatigable father. Soon after he finished college Elliott began assisting his father in writing new plays and rewriting old ones. Chicago's first acquaintance with the combination of Nugent père et fils came with "The Poor Nut," jointly authored, and successfully presented at the Cort theater in 1926 with son Elliott, but not father John Charles, in the cast. To a slight extent "The Poor Nut" prefigures "The Male Animal," for it is a college tale, recounting the history of a shy bookworm of a chap who became a track star because he could not stand the shafts of fellow students and the scorn of a lovely co-ed.

Elliott Nugent and James Thurber have known each other ever since Ohio State days, when they served as co-editors of the campus daily, The Lantern. After they left college their ways parted. While Mr. Nugent devoted himself to the theater, Mr. Thurber gradually brought to light the gift for subjective and subliminally Freudian humor which his sketches and line drawings in the New Yorker have demonstrated to an amused public.

After Mr. Thurber and Mr. Nugent had finished their coöperative labors upon "The Male Animal" the inevitable problem of casting arose. Both Mr. Thurber and Herman Shumlin, the producer, wanted Mr. Nugent to portray the convulsive experiences of the young professor who discovers, at the price of drunkenness and pain, how to assert the primitive superiority of the male of the species. Mr. Nugent demurred, not feeling quite sure about the behavior of the New York critics if he ventured to return to the acting profession.

"I tried to hold out, but couldn't," he recently confessed to a New York Times interviewer. "All the time we were working on the play Thurber kept writing the part for me—anybody could see thru his foul designs, but they worked. If you've ever been an actor you're like a reformed drunkard. You never get over it. My mistake was in thinking I was cured. Thurber knew it, too. A wily one, that fellow." And he admits that he is not sorry he gave in.

How, precisely did they write the play together? Each author wrote individual scenes, and the pair worked as a team to fit the pieces into a whole, and to mold the script into a continuous unity. "Collaboration always amounts to the same thing in the end, no matter how you go about it," says Mr. Nugent. "Everything gets all mixed up." Which is all right, if a Thurber and a Nugent do the mixing.

For purposes of record let it be added that Elliott Nugent has appeared in Chicago previously in three plays—"The Poor Nut," mentioned above; "Hoosiers Abroad," a none too successful revision by Booth Tarkington of his own "The Man from Home," in 1927, and, in 1928, "By Request," written by George M. Cohan, with J. C. Nugent and Norma Lee [now Mrs. Elliott Nugent] in the cast. The most recent movie directed by Elliott Nugent was "The Cat and the Canary," starring Bob Hope.

The Theater Guild and the American Theater society, which function as a single unit with subscription headquarters in the Erlanger theater, are inclined to be quite specific about most of their 1940-'41 plays. From all present indications, subscribers may count with virtually unprecedented security upon four out of the season's six offerings.

"Ladies in Retirement," originally promised as the opening subscription item, unfortunately has called it quits put on the west coast because of poor business, and will not tour further. Secured by a definite contract, however, Robert E. Sherwood's affecting play of the Finnish war, "There Shall Be No Night," with Alfred Lunt, Lynn Fontanne, Richard Whorf, Sydney Greenstreet, Montgomery Clift, and many other fine players, comes to the Grand Opera house Dec. 26.

This fall or early winter the Erlanger theater will house Eddie Dowling's production of William Saroyan's "The Time of Your Life," which won both the Pulitzer prize and the New York Critics' Circle award, and also Franchot Tone in "The Fifth Column," by Ernest Hemingway and Benjamin F. Glaser. Later in the winter, or in the spring, Helen Hayes and Maurice Evans may be expected at the Erlanger in Shakespeare's "Twelfth Night," produced coöperatively by the Theater Guild and Gilbert Miller, and directed by Margaret Webster, who staged Mr. Evans' productions of "Hamlet" and "King Richard II."

Helen Hayes.

The fifth and sixth plays are still in the lap of the gods. While neither may, perhaps, be drawn from this list, any of the Theater Guild holds options on four new plays: [1] "Turn Again Home," a drama by Morley Callaghan, author of "They Shall Inherit the Earth" and "More Joy in Heaven"; [2] "First Stop To Heaven," a comedy of New York life by Norman Rosten, author of the poetic drama "The Proud Pilgrimage"; [3] "Limbo," a comedy of manners by Edith Garber and Toby Sagalyn, with Jane Cowl under consideration for the starring rôle; [4] "Battle of Angels," a drama by Tennessee Williams, about which not much has been divulged.

Since I find that theatergoers often find it hard to recall just which plays were on last year's subscription list, the 1939-'40 schedule may be worth reprinting: "The White Steed," Laurette Taylor and Florence Reed in "Outward Bound," Helen Hayes and Philip Merivale in "Ladies and Gentlemen," Laurence Olivier and Vivien Leigh in "Romeo and Juliet," Katharine Hepburn in "The Philadelphia Story," and "Margin for Error."

Mary Jane Walsh, who sings in "Too Many Girls," at the Grand Opera house, attributes some of her advancement to a funeral parlor organ. Born and brought up in Davenport, Ia., she was graduated from Trinity college in Washington, went to the Sorbonne in Paris for further study, and returned to Chicago to continue her preparation, as she hoped, for the concert platform. But nobody in Chicago wanted to hire her, and she returned to Davenport.

Back in the home town she unearthed an advertiser who engaged her services for a radio broadcast in which she was to sing sentimental ballads to the accompaniment of an organ. The only organ, seemingly, which was available for the purpose rested fixedly in a local funeral parlor. From this unconventional point of vantage Miss Walsh sang her songs—to the complete discomfiture of her employer. Luck, however, was listening in in the shape of both Rudy Vallee and Ben Bernie, if we are to believe a story that does, I confess, strain one's credulity. Bernie, we are told, was so impressed that he bought her services forthwith for his beer-sponsored arena at the Century of Progress, and shortly afterward Vallee summoned her to New York for his radio program. I must say I read and reprint stories like this with my tongue in my cheek, but who knows? Perhaps a career does come as easily as that to a natural like Miss Walsh.

With its total of performances somewhere between eight and nine hundred, "Hellzapoppin'" is about to enter its third year on Broadway. Except for "Pins and Needles," no other musical show has ever run so long. Since "Hellzapoppin'" seems to have become virtually a permanent fixture in New York, the Messrs. Olsen and Johnson have begun to listen to the Shuberts' suggestion that a road company ought to be formed. This touring unit, however, will be sent into the south—if it is actually formed—and not into the Chicago territory. For our glimpse of the Olsen-Johnson revue, it seems, we shall just have to wait [maybe until 1960] until the original exhausts its business in New York.

• • •

"Tobacco Road" is on the move again. While the seven-year-old New York company continues to postpone its closing, the touring cast headed by John Barton has commenced its season in the middle west. Discreetly avoiding Chicago for political reasons, Jeeter Lester and his family of share-cropper Georgians begin a two week engagement at the American theater, St. Louis, on Sept. 22.

HE'S THE TOPS IN TAPS

CHICAGO PLAYBILLS

OPENING:

"The Male Animal," comedy, by James Thurber and Elliott Nugent, with Mr. Nugent; Selwyn theater; opens Monday night.

CONTINUING:

"Life with Father," adaptation of Clarence Day's book by Russel Crouse and Howard Lindsay, with Lillian Gish and Percy Waram; Blackstone theater; 30th week.

Schwartz Does "King Lear."

A Yiddish version of "King Lear" will be included in the 1940-'41 repertoire of Maurice Schwartz and his acting group. The season will open in New York on Oct. 17 with "Esterke,' a play by Aaron Zeitlin with music by Sholem Secunda. A third production will be "The Storm," by I. L. Wollman, a newspaperman from Palestine. His play concerns contemporary Jewish life there. Another presentation will be "Sender Blanck," by the popular Sholem Aleichem.

Book Reports on Colleges in Facts, Figures

By the Rev. John Evans.

The quadrennial issue of "American Colleges and Universities," published from the headquarters of the American Council on Education, Washington, D. C., has just appeared. It conforms in style to previous issues, tho this latest is the largest hitherto, and is a valuable compendium for all educators.

There are three principal divisions in the volume; the second part is devoted to detailed information on the institutions listed and occupies about two-thirds of the complete work. Everything that can be said about a college or university, which can be told in figures, is told.

The introductory portion will especially interest the layman who will find a concise history of education in the United States from the tenth amendment to the constitution in 1791 to the bills embodying the recommendations of the Advisory Committee on Education not as yet enacted in either senate or house of representatives.

Then follows a chapter on the American college, a survey of the varied types of institutions of higher education even to their extracurricular activities and recent trends of thought influenced by the international situation and national defense. The next chapter deals with the American university from its inception to the modern university with its complex function and complicated structure.

"In practice the large modern university has many functions," the section devoted to that subject states. "In addition to the undergraduate college and the graduate school, the university may have schools [sometimes called colleges or divisions] such as law, medicine, divinity, fine arts, education, business, engineering, dentistry, each with its own administrative officers and teaching staff and its own buildings, libraries, and laboratories.

"In addition, the university as a whole maintains general libraries, often museums and frequently a university press. While the older type of university kept a safe distance from the general public, modern institutions have progressively increased their contacts with the public thru a variety of services. The division of agriculture, for example, assists the farmer in many ways; the school of business coöperates with commercial school and industrial organizations."

After giving this general view of a greater university, the next section examines bases of comparison of undergraduate opportunities between the undergraduate department of a greater university and the independent liberal arts college. While not attempting to decide this question which troubles many parents who wish their children to secure a general undergraduate education [as against the trend toward undergraduate specialization in universities] the section gives adequate opportunities to conclude that the institution is more likely to succeed in its main objectives than in its ancillary tasks.

The university, as such, stands or falls in public esteem by the success it achieves in graduate and professional fields; the independent liberal arts college as a teacher in general educational fields.

This was the conclusion adopted by this writer's "Higher Education," published in 1938 by The Tribune company. That this view held by a great many educators has been a troublesome one for university administrators is evidenced in the 1940 book of the American Council on Education by illustrations of experiments of great universities in the undergraduate or general education field. The general colleges of the universities of Minnesota and Florida are cited.

A startling summary showing the growth of graduate education points to the growth from 2,383 graduate students in all universities in 1890 to 93,659 students in 1938.

Popular Recordings

Two more recordings of a patriotic nature have been turned out by Columbia. Orrin Tucker, with the Bodyguards singing, produces a rather effective version of "Your Flag and Mine," altho the arrangement is not too strong. Gene Krupa, on Okeh, does a little better by "I Am an American," the second most popular of modern patriotic songs. Utilizing his drums to the full, Krupa gets away from the usual version of this number. He backs it up with a fair to middlin' "And So Do I."

Raymond Scott goes completely and rather uninterestingly commercial on his latest Columbia release—"And So Do I"—"Now I Lay Me Down to Dream." The arrangements are deft, but not strong enough to lift the Scott stock to any new highs.

A little oldish by now, but still good are Cab Calloway's rather mellowed versions of "I Don't Stand the Ghost of a Chance with You," and "Come on with the Come On," and Count Basie's superb "Super Chief."

"Native Son" Dramatized.

Richard Wright and Paul Green are dramatizing the former's novel, "Native Son," for Orson Welles, who has purchased the dramatic rights.

Chicago Symphony Orchestra to Open 50th Season October 10

Dazzling Array of Artists for Golden Jubilee

By Edward Barry.

"Would you come to Chicago if we could give you a permanent orchestra?"

"I would go to hell if they gave me a permanent orchestra!"

This is an excerpt from a conversation which took place in New York City in 1889 between the Chicago art patron, Charles Norman Fay, and the conductor, Theodore Thomas. The former had been revolving the idea of a resident Chicago orchestra in his mind for a decade or more. The latter, then a man in his middle fifties with 30 years of experience as a conductor behind him, had just undergone a series of reverses in New York and was open to any reasonable suggestion that might be made to him.

Out of that conversation came the Chicago orchestra. The matter of a guaranty was settled when 50 Chicago citizens were induced to underwrite the first three years at the rate of $1,000 per year, and in 1891—at just this time of year—announcement of the first season went out. "The season will consist of 20 concerts, each concert preceded by a public rehearsal, to be given in the Auditorium under the direction of Theodore Thomas. The talent engaged to make up the Chicago orchestra is of the very finest order."

The most important provision of the agreement between Theodore Thomas and the orchestral association was the one which guaranteed to the conductor the right to make his programs without reference to the box office. Neither were there to be any alliances of a possibly embarrassing kind with commercial organizations. This far sighted policy, while it doubtless resulted in a greater immediate financial loss than might otherwise have been the case, is the principal reason for the present quality and prestige of the Chicago Symphony orchestra.

This week, as announcements of the 50th season go into the mail, the orchestra is under no obligation to try to convince its subscribers and potential subscribers of the excellence of what it has to offer. Many things have changed—the Chicago orchestra is now called the Chicago Symphony orchestra; Frederick Stock, not Theodore Thomas, is in charge; the concerts are given in Orchestra hall instead of the Auditorium—but essentially the organization is the same. It is still vowed to the presentation of the best music in the best manner possible. And not only Chicago but also the world at large now knows of the Chicago Symphony orchestra and its reputation.

This golden jubilee season, which opens Oct. 10, promises to be the most brilliant in the orchestra's history. There will be a wealth of new works, some of them directed by their composers, and a dazzling array of soloists and guest artists. An eastern trip by the orchestra in November will indirectly add to the variety and interest of the home season, for the New York Philharmonic-Symphony orchestra under John Barbirolli will play a pair of concerts here while Frederick Stock and his men are occupying the stage of Carnegie hall in New York.

About the new works, compositions marking the golden jubilee and dedicated to the orchestra have been promised by John Alden Carpenter, Roy Harris, Albert Noelte, Alfredo Casella, Zoltán Kadály, Nicholas Miaskowsky, Igor Stravinsky, and Darius Milhaud. Messrs. Harris, Casella, Kodaly, Stravinsky, and Milhaud are expected to conduct the premières of their works. In addition to all this, two compositions by Americans will be chosen for performances as a result of the contest which the orchestra conducted earlier in the year. The winners are now in process of selection.

A list of the soloists and guest artists already definitely scheduled for the 1940-'41 season follows:

For the Thursday-Friday concerts: Alexander Brailowsky, Rudolph Ganz, Gitta Gradova, Josef Hofmann, Vladimir Horowitz, José Iturbi, and Rudolph Serkin, pianists; Zino Francescatti, Jascha Heifetz, Nathan Milstein, Fritz Kreisler, and John Weicher, violinists; Emanuel Feuermann, Gregor Piatigorsky, and Edmund Kurtz, cellists; Georges Enesco, Sergei Rachmaninoff, and Igor Stravinsky, conductors. [Mr. Rachmaninoff will conduct his choral symphony, "The Bells," in which the orchestra will be assisted by the Apollo Musical club and by the following soloists: Janet Fairbank, soprano; Jan Peerce, tenor, and Mack Harrell, baritone.]

For the Tuesday concerts: Josef Hofmann, José Iturbi, Mischa Levitzki, and Sergei Rachmaninoff, pianists; Zino Francescatti, Nathan Milstein, and Robert Quick, violinists; Emanuel Feuermann, cellist; Georges Enesco and Igor Stravinsky, conductors.

Choruses will participate in at least two works besides "The Bells." Pierne's "Children of Bethlehem" will be given at Christmas time with a chorus drawn from the public schools, and a portion of Beethoven's "Missa Solemnis" on Maundy Thursday and Good Friday with the Lake Shore Choral society. Soloists for these last two works have not yet been announced.

This 50th season will consist of 28 Thursday evening concerts, 28 Friday afternoon, 12 Tuesday afternoon, 14 Saturday evening [popular] and 12 Wednesday afternoon [young people's]. This is in addition to concerts by the orchestra in Milwaukee, New York, Boston, Philadelphia, and Pittsburgh.

This will be Mr. Stock's 36th year as conductor and Hans Lange's fifth as associate conductor.

HAS TITLE ROLE IN OPERA

During the approaching opera season Marjorie Lawrence, Australian soprano, will essay the title role of "Carmen" for the first time in Chicago.

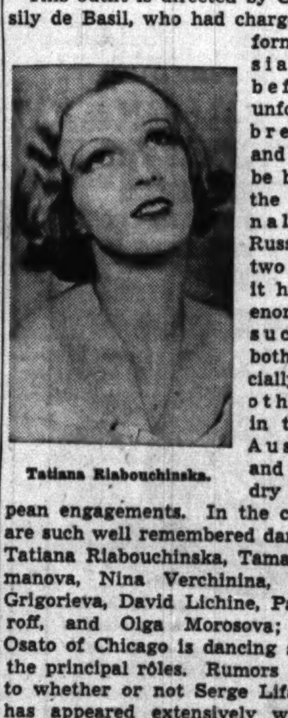
Notes of Music and Musicians

Three scholarships will be awarded by the School of American Ballet for the coming year. Each entitles the recipient to the full course at the school for the entire year. They will be awarded on the basis of a competition to be held at the school Saturday, Oct. 5. Any citizen of the United States, Canada, Cuba, or Mexico, between the ages of nine and 16, is eligible to compete, provided he or she has not previously attended the school. Registration for the contest must be made by Sept. 28. The judges will be the faculty of the school, the director, and a committee representing the donors. Judgment of the winners will be based as much on aptitude and potential talent as on present accomplishment. The school is located at 637 Madison avenue, New York. Lincoln Kirstein is the director.

Balletomanes should have ample opportunity to indulge themselves with three major companies functioning in the United States this season. In Chicago, of course, the Ballet Theater will give several all-ballet programs at the Civic Opera house during the opera season. At the Auditorium theater the Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo, headed by Leonide Massine, will make its annual visit around Christmas time. Soon a third and equally important group will reach American shores, and there is no reason why Chicago shouldn't be on its itinerary.

This outfit is directed by Col. Wassily de Basil, who had charge of the former Russian ballet before its unfortunate breakup, and it will be billed as the "Original Ballet Russe." For two seasons it has been enormously successful, both financially and otherwise, in tours of Australia and in sundry European engagements. In the company are such well remembered dancers as Tatiana Riabouchinska, Tamara Toumanova, Nina Verchinina, Tamara Grigorieva, David Lichine, Paul Petroff, and Olga Morosova; Sono Osato of Chicago is dancing some of the principal rôles. Rumors vary as to whether or not Serge Lifar, who has appeared extensively with the company, will come with it to this country.



Tatiana Riabouchinska.

On Sept. 15 the "Opera Festival" program on WAAF, sponsored by the opera company, will feature an opera "quiz" at which 60 seats for the coming performances will be awarded to listeners identifying recorded opera selections correctly. The program is heard from 5 to 7 o'clock.

John McLean, bass-baritone, will give a scholarship benefit recital at the Church of the Good Shepherd, 5700 Prairie avenue, today at 4 o'clock. He will be accompanied by Eileen Jackson, in songs by Handel, Franz, Schubert, Pessard, Purcell, S. Coleridge Taylor, Bemberg, and others.

'40 Grant Park Season One of Most Notable

By Cecil Smith.

The 1940 season of outdoor concerts in Grant park, which came to a close last week, had everybody on its side except the weather man. Thru thick and thin [and an appalling proportion of the weather was pretty thick] uncountable thousands of Chicagoans streamed over to the band shell each night to hear a two hour musical program. When rain fell, the toughest listeners protected their heads and bodies as best they could, and stayed on out in the open. Many of the less stout-hearted retreated to their parked automobiles, only to emerge and return to the shell as soon as the rain let up. On the unseasonably cold nights of June and early July they swathed themselves in whatever came to hand, and on the windy nights they swallowed dust by the peck.

But they came to hear the music, and that is all that counts. The Chicago park district and the Chicago Federation of Musicians, who sponsor the concerts jointly, faced their severest test, and emerged with a great popular victory on their hands. Never in my memory did Chicago suffer a summer so inimical to the undisturbed enjoyment of outdoor music. And never did the Chicago public give clearer proof of its deep and continuing enjoyment of its free concerts.

A little later on I shall have some suggestions to make for the improvement of the Grant park sessions. But it would be utterly unfair to enter upon any critical discussion without indicating that this is the greatest, the most completely amazing free musical program to be found anywhere in the world. Over a hundred concerts were given this last summer, by instrumental groups ranging from the Chicago Symphony orchestra to various semipopular bands. Such eminent international soloists as Kirsten Flagstad and Giovanni Martinelli, to mention only two out of a large list, appeared before thousands who might never be able to afford to see and hear them under any other circumstances. Talented young local musicians were enabled to appear before larger, and in most cases more appreciative, audiences than they could have found elsewhere.

On the purely mechanical side the concerts were better than ever. A new amplifying system, infinitely superior to the old one, put a stop to the criticism that music in Grant park sounded tinny and distorted. Experiments in reseating, especially of the Chicago Symphony orchestra, further improved the tonal result.

But the arrangement and content of the programs, on the other hand, has not changed a bit. Orchestras and bands followed one another in helter-skelter fashion, with no apparent attempt to plan or balance the offerings of any one week, or even of the season as a whole. With a little foresight, a more resourceful schedule could easily be worked out. Perhaps the bands, which draw a different audience from that attracted by the orchestras, could appear regularly on the same nights of the week. With band concerts of light music on Tuesdays and Thursdays, orchestral concerts of popular music such as that offered by the NBC and CBS orchestras on Saturdays, and serious programs of symphonic and vocal music on the other nights of the week, the musical public would always know what to expect. Such a schedule would retain, more or less roughly, the musical balance now accidentally provided, and would introduce a desirable element of system into the present chaotic schedule.

Somebody or other ought to be appointed to act as a central clearing agent for program materials. I do not envy the young conductor who chose to direct Rachmaninoff's second symphony in the very week in which Frederick Stock also conducted it. He should have been spared the odium of such a comparison, and the audience, which includes many nightly repeaters, should not have been asked to listen to so long a work twice in so short a period. Probably the young conductor had not the remotest idea that Dr. Stock had chosen the same work, and would have been glad for a forewarning.

The programs are full of precisely such repetitions, most of which could easily be avoided. Early in the season a certain "Pavanne" by Morton Gould kept cropping up again and again; this I resented not only because it was not a very good piece, but also because the composer misspelled the name of the dance form he was enjoying.

• • •

The summer's best programs were those selected by Hans Lange for his appearance at the head of the Chicago Symphony orchestra. He attained a neat balance between works of standard appeal and valuable novelties, like the Roy Harris symphony, which the public ought to hear. These, of course, were very serious concerts, but even the less severe programs could easily be prepared with more unity of purpose and more educational aim, without sacrificing one bit of their attractiveness.

This, then, is my one real objection to the otherwise notable Grant park concerts: The sponsors have taken little or no responsibility for seeing that the programs are as wisely organized as they easily could be. Conductors and soloists are hired, and turned loose with no feeling for the integrity of the season as a whole. Music is needlessly repeated, and other music is equally needlessly neglected. An opportunity for fuller public education and enjoyment is chronically being overlooked.

Good Morning!

So many times people ask about Hugh Herbert and "WHEN are we going to see him in another movie," that I thought, this Sunday morning, I'd just scribble a bit about his latest picture—which double-featured last week with "Lucky Partners" and will soon be seen at the Rialto and neighborhood theaters.

Considered alongside Grade A films and "supercolossals," "Slightly Tempted" is pretty small peanuts. But it's a good sized frog in its own little puddle of lightweight comedies that everyday folks, even as you and I, like for the relaxation and easy laughter they afford.

• • •

As the picture opens, Judy Ross, who runs a book store, is preparing to meet and bring home to the small town where she resides her papa, Professor Ross, who, presumably, has been away for five years on an exploration tour. . . . The "tour" you learn is just camouflage for time spent in the penitentiary. For the prof's profession was swindling, and one sad day the law caught up with him.

But his Judy is loyal—believing his activities involuntary instead of the other way. In other words, Papa is sick, after his fashion—not wicked. . . .

Judy's fiancé, nice, openfaced Jimmy Duncan, sees that a band plays when the Ross train pulls in and that the "professor" is met by leading citizens. Pop would have been presented with a key to the city by the mayor—hadn't he in a moment of uncontrolable "illness" swiped same before it could be presented to him. . . .

• • •

Ross' adventures with the virtuous folk of the village and with oldtime pals who crop up here and there to aid or make life menacing for him are chronicled with considerable humor. The professor, ever ingratiating, ever foxy, with plump butter fingers that get him dexterously into and out of predicaments, is amusingly portrayed by Mr. Herbert—whom, as you know, audiences adore. . . . He has effective cast coöperation and the unremarkable little story has been neatly directed.

Prominent in support of Mr. Herbert are, please note, three oldtime favorites, George E. Stone, Elizabeth Risdon, and Gertrude Michael.

See you tomorrow.

"In My Opinion."

Samson Raphaelson, author of "Accent on Youth" and "Skylark," has just seen his latest play, "In My Opinion," tried out at the Berkshire summer playhouse, Stockbridge, Mass. It is a comedy concerned with three New York drama critics, a playwright, and the actress wife of one of the critics. According to one report, two of the critical brethren are modeled after John Anderson and Richard Watts Jr., while the playwright is said to bear a strong resemblance to William Saroyan. In the tryout Mr. Raphaelson's wife, Rachel Adams, played the actress. John Golden gets the first chance to produce the comedy on Broadway.

Robert Edmond Jones is putting the final touches to the manuscript of a new book on the arts of the theater. The celebrated American designer has been co-author with Kenneth Macgowen on one other literary work, "Continental Stagecraft."

"Labor for the Wind."

Irwin Shaw has completed another play, and he is calling it "Labor for the Wind." It is a serious work and is under consideration by the Group theater for production.

eldest friends don't know me?" he demanded, very gay in his reproach. "Cicily Ranger and Jed Galt, I want you to meet Perry Collen of Faildyke. We're all here together tonight and that seems strange, doesn't it?" As they greeted him, surprised and cordial, Jed a trifle on his guard, he looked about the garish, noisy, crowded room, full of the weird types of its frequenters, put himself in a chair at Cicily's elbow and ordered champagne.

"It's worth a toast to something or somebody, destiny, or chance or the little god of luck. Who is the interesting looking chap you're dining with, Cicily?"

"Martin Sylvester."

"The artist?"

"Yes. He's been painting my portrait."

"Didn't he paint one of you, Jed?"

Jed opened his eyes. "Not to my knowledge."

"I saw a strange black and white study of you, very black and white, at Faildyke, with his initials in the corner. You were standing in a doorway, hand on the knob, done up in a white muffler and a dark overcoat, evidently just going out. Obviously . . . and I don't know how the man conveyed it . . . you were not coming in. I mean, that I never, as a matter of fact, saw a man more decidedly not coming in."

Jed frowned. "That's queer. Are you sure it was me, Perry?"

"Oh, definitely. Who else? You haven't, I could swear it, any duplicate."

"I never posed for him, in or out of a doorway. Here he comes. You can ask him."

But the introduction and the artificial talk that always follows an introduction prevented his question, and, as soon as the music began again, "Let's finish our dance, shall we, Cathryn?" asked Perry and took her away, calling back over his shoulder, "And this time, I'm not letting any one take my partner from me." He had noticed Cathryn's ghostly look and the deep dagger cut of her strained dimple.

"Not Jed," she murmured when they were a little distance away, "Not Jed, please, Perry."

He felt her shaking and his arm, a cable of supple wires, tightened. "Trust me for that, mavourneen. Never Jed again. Never."

"Can we go out . . . and eat somewhere else?"

"We can. We will. We'll eat a hundred miles from here."

"A thousand miles from . . . Jed," she besought him. "And afterward please put me on the train, Perry. Will you be awfully sweet and just put me on the nine o'clock train? I can't go on with you to any night club. I must go home . . . I must go back to Faildyke." Her long enchanting eyes lifted themselves painfully, helplessly to him, "You see, I'd forgotten something, Perry. Something terrible. You've made the days go so fast. Tomorrow is the first day of the Faildyke auction. So I must go back."

Tomorrow would really be the first day of the Faildyke auction but it was not her recollection of this dreaded date that made a night of gaiety with Peregrine impossible. It was a need that she had, half physical, half mental, to confront and to dismiss for once and forever a problem she had never solved.

Rush of Busy Station Unreal to Cathryn

The New York Central Terminal, as Perry and she went across its levels and down its stairs, the always hurrying people with those detached journeying faces, the lights, the smells, the smoke and steam, the porters with their bags, the ticket man, the Pullman conductor, and, at last when she had achieved the solitude she thirsted for, the long Pullman car, occupied by reading and drowsing strangers, the soundless, dustless, airless atmosphere, the lights above them all, the ink black reflective window panes; all these were completely unreal to Cathryn, a faintly nightmarish phantasmagoria; just as the restaurant, the dancers, the diners, the waiters, the music, Peregrine himself had been smitten into a ghostly limbo when Jed Galt had taken her into his arms.

So she must question herself and him, since always, ever since her childhood, he had possessed this power, had exerted upon her this frightening magic; always, when she was with him, he became her only solid fact, all that there was of life beyond him dissolving into a whirligig of ghosts.

"Why do you do that to me?" she asked, staring at the black window, her lips moving inaudibly. "And why did you take me for that dance? Why is it that we hate each other so?"

And a great yearning for Peregrine's "heartsease" smote her so that, sitting small and invisible in her great revolving chair, she bent her face for a minute to her hands.

It would be easy to forgive an unkind act, she thought, throwing back her head again and clenching her fingers in the plush of the arms, "what people do to you is always forgivable, yes, and forgettable. It is the cruel injustice of an opinion, a misreading of motive, that unshakable conviction of my dishonor and selfishness, my cold hearted greed. How can I forgive and forget, or, rather, of what use would be my forgiveness and forgetfulness if he is always forever my bitter and despising judge?

"I don't blame him for refusing to marry me, even less for refusing to ask me by command, by a deliberate compulsion, but I do blame him for his belief, even in the face of my solemn denial, that I wanted to conquer and to humiliate him, to take his money and his land, and his very body, for myself. And yet, tonight, he took me into his arms when there was no compulsion, when he could not have meant to teach me some bitter lesson, to betray my weakness to myself, to punish me . . ."

Emotion . . . and Cathryn's thoughts were rarely anything but emotion altho now she was struggling to translate them into rational terms . . . swept her across spacetime faster than the train. The call "Watchikiii! Watchiki-i-i-i!" startled her.

She was in the station taxi jerking thru the leafy darkness, not a star in sight, house lights shining gold and tranquil and unreal on the swelling dark hills, thru the woods and doubly gold along the lake. The taxi, too, became a sort of psychic box. All the outer world had got itself inside her brain, had lost its objectivity. She was at Faildyke, had gone swimming thru the hall and up the stairs, was in her room alone.

Mary had lit for her a tiny wood fire, her bed was turned down, her nightdress folded, her gown and slippers ready. The room, her own old room of a child-visitor was pretty and, except for a gradually increasing shabbiness, unchanged. Here she had sat at the desk a hundred times to write down thoughts and facts and feelings in the diary, to which she had added not one word since Rufus' death. And here now, by cruel, unpredictable event, she was mistress and . . . alone.

She undressed dreamily. Dreamily she stood before the three-fold mirror.

"I could have loved him," she told the small white gold-haired ghost, moving raspberry-rose lips mournfully, and then put out the lights. She did not sleep but neither was she restless. She lay still and straight on the solf narrow mattress which her body had shaped to itself, her arms along her sides. "And he knows that I could love him and, because he is a man without a heart, knowing that has made him cruel. He could have had me, always, for the taking, from the time I was a little wretched slavish girl. And so he has despised me. I would have married Perry; I would have married Rufus, only because I knew that I could never marry Jed.

"And I wanted to prove to him that I could get any man I wanted and that I wanted any man but him. And he saw thru me always. He snatched Perry away from me and tossed him aside, and kissed me under the linden tree . . . to show me how little he or any man could really care. And Rufe . . . O, my darling Rufe! . . . And Rufe he killed. Yes, Jed, altho you never knew you did it.

"I'm sure you never knew for all that I once told you that you had. You let him take your dangerous horse because, at heart, you couldn't let me triumph over you. For I would have loved Rufus faithfully and forever because he was my beloved . . . and yours . . . and yours."

After a long time of flowing darkness . . . "maybe the grave's like this," she wondered . . . feeling left her and her mind became cool. It seemed to be floating in a clear quiet medium. You must really be sensible and calm, it told her, and grow up to be a woman. You must actually forget Jed Galt even if you can't forgive him. It is not important that he should be forgiven. It is important only that he should be forgotten.

That, then, seemed to be the final solution of her problem. She sat up, turned her pillow, smoothed it, and lay down.

Just before she slept . . . and the room was beginning to surround her again, recreating its little wan world of walls and chairs and curtains . . . she said clearly to a piping bird outside:

"So I'll marry Perry after all because I'm afraid to be so awfully alone, and I can't live in hate. I'm hungry to be loved and Perry loves me. He has loved me all his life."

This golden conclusion went into Cinderella rags under the full light of the next day; which, heedless of all economic tragedies, showed March going out more like a saint than like a lamb. Cathryn blushed for her assertion. As far as resolute forgetfulness of Jed Galt was concerned, that stood, a positive solution. But to marry Peregrine! . . . Only a girl in her teens can be so cold-bloodedly certain of the profound marrying love of any man.

Perry may once have loved her, but that was when he was a boy of 19 to whom she had seemed a lovely princess. That was not Peregrine Collen, experienced, clothed in "Tyrian purple," with money in his pockets; Peregrine the wanderer. There was no way of knowing where she stood with him nor whether he had any but brotherly intentions behind his splendid cheerful entertainment of her.

He called her, with a sweet Irish tongue, "Mavourneen" and paid her compliments. His indigo eyes were superficially loving but profoundly secretive. Surely she was wise enough, at 24, to value what he offered for what it might be worth. Nor did she herself know this Peregrine well enough to entertain such intimate intentions toward him. She might as well say that she would marry any pleasant acquaintance, say, Mr. Sylvester who had given her some hours of entertainment and who always seemed interested, glad to see her when they met. No, without love she must still live and still "fearfully" alone, unless, indeed, a future Perry should link himself with the 19 year old boy who had loved her with the first fire and frenzy of his youth.

If Perry loved me now, this Perry, would I be moved to love him? This she asked herself in the coolness of the spring morning, soberly, above her coffee cup, seated in the bay window of the breakfast room. And had no answer. Examining that still, cool heart, it seemed to her for a scared instant, to have lost, with its cherished hatred, the power to love. She shrugged . . . perhaps, then, her need for love as well. She sat up straight, set her lips together. She would be a resolute executive, the shrewd manager of an estate.

To prove her, it appeared, as soon as possible, there entered the foreman of Faildyke, for once without his smile.

He began abruptly, dropping sidelong into a chair which he jerked out from the small round table . . . he had hardly waited for Mary to be out of the room.

"You're not intending to show yourself at the stable, surely?" She wore, as was her habit in the country, her riding clothes and looked sleek, wellgroomed, very much the manor's lady. His tone brought her pale color up.

"You think I'd better not?"

"I think it would just about kill our chances."

"O, Jimmie," she managed a rueful smile, "not so bad as all that!"

"It's worse than that. I've been getting about this month on purpose. You're in wrong, Miss Cathryn, terribly wrong, and that's the truth and there's no use blinking it. My idea would be for you to keep yourself dark, keep indoors, away from the windows, let folks think you're a hundred miles away, have no interest in the old place. I'm sorry now we let your name appear on the placards. "Well," he smote his knees, sighed, and rose, "I've got it fixed so that the business end of it goes thru my hands . . . checks payable to Faildyke Hunt, J. Ames, foreman, see . . . like they've always been. I can deposit 'em later in your name. I'll keep the accounts clear and report progress. But, for God's sake, just stay out of it, won't you? I don't want any ugly business."

"So you think I might be tarred and feathered or burnt in effigy. How much they must respect John Peter Galt's wishes and his memory."

"O, they say he was too ill to know what he was about when he . . ."

Jimmie paused for she had put her hand over her eyes and her mouth was quivering. "Don't take it too hard. I'm sorry I upset you. It's best to face the facts. After this is over, why don't you go away for a spell? . . . And, speaking of going away," his voice roughened, it was almost hoarse, "I wonder if you'd care to tell me what you did to my boy Dick that evening I sent him up to talk business with you?"

Cathryn understood Jimmie's recent coldness, his absences, his present cruel humor toward her. Her hand fell and her face tightened. "Where has he been? What's he been doing?"

"He's been down Watchiki way, drunk."

"O, Jim, not ever since?"

"You might say so. You must have handed him out something too hard for a boy like him to take. Dick's proud, thinks damn well of himself and, if I say it who shouldn't, has reason to. You owed him a stiff sum. Did you pay him off?"

"But Jim, you know how little cash we have in hand. I told him . . . I asked him to wait until after the sale when I'd be able to give him a check in full."

"And then what?"

"O, Jim, you're his father. I hate to hurt you. He . . . he made love to me!"

"That makes you open your eyes, eh? Why shouldn't he, then, make love to you?"

Cathryn was frightened. This suave servitor of Faildyke had never showed a trace of his present insolence.

"Let's not talk about it, Jim. You're angry and you're rude. There's no reason, I suppose, why he shouldn't make love to me. No reason why any man in the world shouldn't frighten or bully or insult me. I've no brother, father, husband, nobody to stand up for me or protect me. I don't love your son. I never for an instant gave him any reason to suppose I did.

"He thinks well of himself, perhaps too well. Perhaps you've spoiled him, and Mr. Galt and Rufus, too. He had a right to tell me about his feelings, which I respect and which he couldn't help. But he had no right to . . . to make a scene and . . . and frighten me . . . and Mary, too, and to go smashing and slamming out of my house. He broke the pane of that door you had mended for me.

"O, Jimmie," she stood up, pressing her clenched hand in under her breast, "let's don't talk about it. And, for God's sake, don't be angry or unfair or unkind. This is a terrible day for me, for Faildyke, for us all. We should stand together. I'm sorry to the bottom of my heart about Dick. I'm sick to hear he's been drinking. I'll do anything, say anything you like . . ."

"Why not reconsider his proposition? You could do worse than take him for your husband. He knows this country. He knows what could be done for Faildyke. He's got a head on his shoulders. There's timber, farming country, building lots, grazing and dairy land. He'd take care of you and of it. He'd . . ."

Cathryn was staring at him in an amazement that amounted almost to fear.

Advises Cathryn to Keep Out of Sight

He bit off his speech. "O. K. You're too much of a fine lady for the notion. I guess life will have to teach you. You'll learn. You'll learn. But, keep yourself out of sight today, tomorrow, and the next day, won't you? We've got to sell this stuff for the best price it'll bring. That's all we need consider now at any rate. Excuse me." He did smile then, the sickliest and cruelest smile Cathryn thought that any mouth had shaped. She stood quite dazed and watched him twist his way about the furniture along and out of the room.

"I never knew this man. This is the man Jed warned me of," she thought.

From her bedroom, sitting behind the window curtain or kneeling at the sill, she saw and heard the clamor and the stir of the big sale. It was a great warm sunny windless day, the cars hummed incessantly up the road.

She saw her beautiful friends, the horses, being led about; Rufe's three hunters, the gray, the chestnut, the dark bay, her own beloved Brandy, John Peter's big old Troth, dainty Cigaret, her high head tossing. She saw the feathery waving of the hounds' sterns and let her hand, wet with tears, slide tenderly over the head of the old hound, Jed's Badger, whose hunting days were over and who lived in the house and thumped his tail whenever her eyes turned toward him.

Presently there rose the sustained, level, inhuman gabble of the auctioneer, rapid and urgent beyond what seemed possible to tongue or throat, the rapping of the hammer, the shouted figures. Sick she felt with treachery . . . O, Brandy darling, forgive me. Cigaret, O, my lovely Cigaret . . .

At night Jim came to bring her his report. He was in far better humor, more cheerful and with almost his old genial manner. But she could not meet his mood.

"I was pretty bad this morning, Miss Cathryn. This thing's on my nerves. I've had no sleep, a million things to attend to. And that fool Dick got me going plenty. A father's as much of an old softie as a mother, I guess. You'll have to make out somehow to forgive me, Miss Cathryn."

She bent her head.

ONE LONG TUESDAY!

By BERTA RUCK

(Copyright: 1940: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.)

FOREWORD One short hour, filled with the simple joy of living, changes a lifetime of long hours that had been emptied of almost everything except the nerve-exhausting routine of business and the dull repetition of home life.

"LIFE is just one long Tuesday! Heaviest day of the week, here it is time to start it again!" exclaimed Grace Gibson.

At the call of her alarm clock she sprang out of bed, dashed to the bathroom to take her cold shower—no time to wait for the water to heat—pelted downstairs to swallow her breakfast, with her eyes on the clock.

"Mercy! The train up to town starts 10 minutes earlier now; shall I make it?" Grace snatched up her attaché-case and ran down the garden path.

After her ran her mother, calling, "There was a letter for you, dear!"

Grace clutched the letter, saw that it was from Stan—Stan, who "never wrote," shoved it into her handbag, dashed on, caught her train by a split second.

At 9:20 she entered the Bond street studios of the Brothers Levigne.

Here Grace was photographer's receptionist. She lived in a whirl of booking appointments, receiving sitters in the big, photograph filled outer office, guiding them to dressing rooms, taking down addresses for proofs, soothing sitters who had been kept waiting, agreeing to have proofs rushed thru for clients in the fighting services, sensing which visitors would order half a dozen of the less expensive photographs and which of them might, if suitably pleased, spread themselves upon enlargements, tinted copies, or pencil finished boudoir prints at many extra guineas. The Brothers Levigne would scarcely have made their business the success it was had it not been for their Miss Gibson's soft voice, pretty smile, sympathetic manner, and that tact which is the "Grace" of "Tuesday's Child."

Nine-thirty. Grace, repowdered her small, smooth, kissable face, having changed into her glove fitting black studio gown, her sheerest stockings, and high heeled indoor shoes. She had just finished setting out in the dressing rooms the saucers of pins [black, white, and safety], the various tinted face powders, the brushes and combs, when she heard a foreign accented voice storming in the inner studios at the new assistant—"Do you wish to drive away clients, to ruin business, to drive my brother, my mother and myself into the poorhouse?"

"Mr. Isidore in temperamental mood," noted Grace. "He would be, on a Tuesday, and with Mr. Hilary away—with Mr. Hilary one can reason."

Grace brought her peace making smile to bear upon Mr. Isidore. He was a thin, nerve racked Latin in his 40s, with black, restless eyes, white, restless hands, with which he tugged at his gray streaked hair. Grace let him run down before she gently reminded him that the first sitter was due.

Nine forty-five—enter Miss Dainty; cabaret dancer, who required "a very glamorous studio portrait for display at theatrical agents." And whilst Miss Dainty disappeared to pose in cobra skin brassiere and cobra skin dancing shorts, Grace had a moment to remember her unopened letter from her boy friend—so Grace's family regarded Stan.

Stan had haunted their doorstep for the last year. During the course of one Sunday supper he would make three remarks: "I see Twickenham didn't do so badly yesterday," to Grace's brother. "Care to see a flick next Tuesday night?" to Grace, and "Thanks, I'd like a glass of beer" to Grace's father.

Grace's father approved of Stan. "Very decent young fellow."

Grace's mother, who in middle age retained her glint of girlishness, parodied the revue song:

"Stan don't register Passion and such.
Stan don't register nuthin very much—"

Grace's father protested: "Very solid young fellow, I call him. No nonsense about Stan."

At times Grace wondered what it would be like to go out with a boy friend who had a spot of gay nonsense about him? But between working in town and helping her mother at home, she was kept too busy for fantasies; and anyhow dear old Stan was good looking and seemed [silently] devoted.

What was he writing about?

"Dear Grace—"

"Dear," after a year of Tuesday evenings, Saturday expeditions, Sunday suppers: slightly chilly?

"As I expect to be—"

Startling Phone Call Interrupts Her Reading

To be what? Appalling handwriting. Why couldn't he type? Ah—

". . . expect to be called up in a month's time, it might be a good idea—"

Before Grace could decipher Stan's "idea" the telephone on her tabledesk, beside the elephant's tusk mounted in silver as a paper weight, rang to give a rather startling call.

"Levigne's studios?" demanded a man's voice, peremptorily. "Has my wife arrived?"

"Mr. Levigne's secretary speaking. Whom do you want?"

"My wife, my wife. Mrs. Dickenson."

"Has she an appointment today? I will look it up. . . . Hold on, please. —No, we have no appointment for Mrs. Dickenson."

"Wait! She may have booked in her stage name—Miss Maureen Morrow. This is important. I know she is sitting to Levigne on the 15th—"

"Yes. Miss Morrow has a sitting. At 4 o'clock this afternoon. May I take a message?"

"No message. No!" Melodramatic, the man sounded. "On no account tell her that I rang up. At 4 o'clock, you say? Good-by."

He rang off; Grace turned back to Stan's letter.

". . . a good idea for our marriage to take place before then—"

"Our marriage? Stan's? Mine?" Grace's face was one creamy oval of amazement. "Writing about 'marriage' to 'dear Grace' before he has ever even mentioned that he liked me! He—"

Interruption: "I had an appointment for 5 minutes to 10. Miss Jane Waley."

"Ah, yes—" Hastily Grace put away her letter to attend to the Honorable Jane. She, a year before, had come to be photographed in presentation dress and court feathers. A wave of debutantes had come, that season. Grace had enjoyed their chatter, clothes, and the intriguing glimpses they had given her into the fashionable world. But nowadays society lovelies cast aside frivolity and appeared like Jane Waley, in khaki. She had looked in to say her duties prevented her from keeping this appointment.

"I should have thought you might have been on war work," commented the socialite-turned-lieutenant. She pulled her peaked cap further over her curls, and, with a military swagger, was out into Bond street. Grace, who would have preferred to be on war work, but whose weekly salary from Levigne's was now the main support of war impoverished parents, since her brother was serving and her father's business had been reduced to one-fifth, felt crushed. Except that there was no time to feel anything but rushed.

Ten-ten to eleven-ten meant a nonstop succession of men in uniform who were dragged or driven by their womenfolk to have a photograph taken before they went off on service. A baby faced midshipman was brought in by his pretty sister; Grace's heart ached to think of perils into which this mere child might be flung before his portraits were finished. But she had to cope with the young peer in battle dress, who had muddled his dates, before she could turn again to Stan's letter about "our marriage"—

Telephone! "Has Mrs. Dickenson rung up?"

"She hasn't, Mr. Dickenson. May I give her a number to—"

"No. I'll ring back. Say nothing about it, please."

He rang off.

Rapidly Grace finished deciphering her proposal—

". . . I shall be away on business during the whole of this week—"

Going away for a week, before even seeing the girl he wanted to marry?

". . . so will call next Tuesday, when we could discuss this."

Not a word until next Tuesday? "Discuss?" Could anything be put more tersely? Only if he'd used Morse. Equally unromantic. It's what is meant that counts, tho, perhaps . . . he signed himself

"Yours

"Stan."

If Grace married him, she needn't leave Levigne's, which would be a relief to her mother, who often sighed, "What we should do without Grace's salary I hate to think!" and wouldn't there be her allowance as a soldier's wife? Daddy would be pleased: would say there was no nons—

Interruption by the next sitter: Grace recognized a pleasant voice that had rung up yesterday.

"Flying Officer Dunning"—He was slight, well built, red haired, not good looking. His retrousse—not to say snubby—face was freckled, but how alive! Its laughing brown eyes had whites as brilliant as the even teeth which he showed in a friend making grin.

"Mr. Levigne has a sitter with him; he won't keep you long. Will you sit down?" Grace indicated a chair at the center table with the albums of specimen photographs; but Flying Officer Dunning perched on the edge of her table-desk, brought out a case with an air force crest, and offered her a cigaret.

"Thank you—not in business hours."

"Sorry." He smiled engagingly and told Grace that he had a fortnight's sick leave.

"You don't look particularly sick." Grace smiled back at the fresh, freckled face, the clear eyes.

"No, it's only this." He showed a bandaged left hand. "Just a couple of fingers I nearly lost in the last show. Piece of luck, I call it. Means a marvelous holiday for me. My home is in Essex. Where's yours?"

"Mine's in Essex, too."

"Why haven't we met?"

"Essex is a large county." But Grace could imagine how different from hers would be the home of this man. He conveyed the effect of spacious, gracious living. He was the sort of young man who would know, dance, motor with, and finally marry some girl like Jane Waley. His figure was superb, well matched by the cut and stuff of his uniform. One could tell that he went to an expensive hairdresser's. His manner, too, unconceited but so sure that he was welcome anywhere he liked to appear. I expect he is, too, thought Grace as the likable young airman was summoned, and swung off into the studio—while for her telephone call succeeded telephone call from clients who couldn't come till next week after all, who could only come tomorrow, who wanted to know what was happening about that additional dozen prints, or who demanded, for press purposes, a studio portrait taken four—might be five years ago. Kindly find it at once.

Reënter Flying Officer Dunning to ask when his photographs would be ready.

"Proofs will be sent to you in about—"

"O, never mind about to-ing and fro-ing with proofs. Life's too short," exclaimed the flying man. "I'll leave it to you to give 'em a onceover, Miss—Gibson, is it? You pick out the most flagrantly flattering position of the bunch.

"I'll take six of those. And look, I shall want one small. Small enough to stick inside the lid of a woman's cigaret case, you understand? Do you possess a cigaret case out of business hours, here?"

"Yes." Grace produced hers.

"That's the size. Right. You pick the photograph, print half a dozen large ones; and one lady's cigaret case size. Thanks a lot, Miss Gibson. Au revoir!"

Grace Feels as Tho Sun Had Gone Behind Clouds

Nice of him to say that instead of "Good-by," even tho he wasn't coming in again. As he went out it felt as if the sun had gone behind the clouds. What lucky girl was to slip his photograph into her cigaret case? Was he already—

Telephone! "Has Miss Maureen Morrow rung up to cancel her appointment? No? Good-by."

"Curiouser and curiouser." Indeed the curiousest Tuesday yet, beginning with the proposal from—

Interruption: Three sitters had all wanted the same hour.

One fifteen: "The sitting for Miss Honoria Hanger, please."

Miss Honoria, aged six weeks, was to be "taken" in her christening robe, and the pattern of the family lace on the robe must be most distinct—this stipulation left Mr. Isidore badly peeved.

"Myself I detest children as models," he muttered when Grace announced the morning's last sitter: a small boy in the Jacobean page's suit he'd worn at a wedding, who said he "didn't like that thing," meaning the big camera.

"Myself I have never photographed a boy more badly behaved!" barked Mr. Isidore, presently. "Madame, your son is impossible!"

Indignant young mother: "He's only 2½!"

"The little crown prince of Ruritania whose portrait you saw on the easel in the outer office was only 2! With him I did not have this trouble! Call Mlle. Gibson!"

Grace had a known "way" with children.

The tiresome little boy, watching the bunny rabbit she coaxed out of her handkerchief, forgot his fright of the big revolving camera and broke into the spontaneous happy smiles—which made such a perfect portrait.

"Now for a spot of peace to reread Stan's letter properly over something to eat—"

Interruption: "Myself I shall be incapable of further thought until I am fortified by a good lunch at the Monseigneur. You can wait until I am back, mademoiselle?"

"Certainly, Mr. Isidore."

Mercifully, Grace's mother had insisted upon slipping into her attaché case a flask of hot coffee to drink after lunch.

On this hectic Tuesday, it was all the lunch there was to be. Hardly had it been swallowed by Levigne's harassed receptionist than there sailed in—

A cloud, almost visible, of Chanel scent and 300 pounds' worth of leopard skin. Complacently their wearer announced, "I wrote that I would let Levigne's photograph me at half past 2—"

"O, yes! Lady Asterisk." Grace turned her prettiest business smile upon this wife of a dizzily wealthy financier, who had a passion for gazing at full page images of herself in the snob papers. If Mr. Isidore would realize that here was a client to study, coo at, croon over, he could make a fortune out of Lady Asterisk. Grace, promising in honeyed tones that Mr. Isidore Levigne would be ready in a very few minutes, showed her sumptuous ladyship into the dressing room. He would stay out lunching until 3 today of all days and keep Lady Asterisk, of all influential people, waiting . . .

Lady Asterisk, however, kept him waiting.

Grace reread her letter from Stan. She ought at least to let Stan know she had got it. She took paper and pen—

Interruption: The assistant was sent out to say that Mr. Levigne was ready.

"I'll tell Lady Asterisk." Grace took up her pen. Should she thank Stan for giving her until next Tuesday—?

Interruption: The assistant again: Mr. Levigne was quite ready.

But Lady Asterisk in the dressing room was still giving finishing touches.

Mr. Levigne came himself: and wildly his mop of hair was rumpled. "Where is—Ah!"

Lady Asterisk emerged, dazzling in Red Cross uniform. Her cap was a gigantic white trumpet lily over that masterpiece, her coiffure; her face was masked in stage makeup. The red cross itself was not as vivid as the scarlet with which she had redrawn the curve of her lips.

"No!" exclaimed Isidore Levigne. "There are things which are not possible. Not. NOT."

Grace steeled herself for the clash.

"What," demanded Lady Asterisk, furiously turning upon Grace, "what does he mean by 'NOT'?"

"I cannot photograph that," ejaculated Mr. Isidore, turning upon Grace. "Artistically, ruin for me!"

"Whatever does he mean? I never was so insulted; never heard such outrageous insolence. Who is HE—?"

"Myself I am too much of an artist to undertake such a commission!"

A squall, a storm, a screaming match raged—and why?

Because the lady had put on the wrong lip rouge, the red that would photograph black, but Mr. Isidore couldn't explain. He merely screamed protests in French and English. The lady fled into the dressing room. The artist rushed back to his studio.

Grace, speeding after the sitter, found her hysterically sobbing: "A ruin? An artistic ruin?"

"Lady Asterisk, let me explain," began Grace in girlish distress [actually, it was a struggle not to burst out laughing at the clownish mess into which Lady Asterisk's face had been reduced by tears of rage]. "Mr. Levigne—"

"That impossible common man! I'll have this all over London. I could ruin him——"

"Oh, but, Lady Asterisk, please don't do that. It's a mistake. Let me tell you——" Rapidly Grace explained about the nonphotogenic makeup. "That was what upset Mr. Levigne: the risk of spoiling the beautiful portrait of you on which he had been setting his whole heart!"

"It would come out dead black, you say?"

"Yes, and so hard, so ageing! I assure you, Lady Asterisk, to photograph that would make you look as if you were quite 40!"

"Oh, well, that would hardly do," murmured Lady Asterisk, who, as Grace guessed, would never again see 55. Miraculously placated, she allowed Grace to book one appointment for her to be made up by Mme. Levigne, the photographer's mother who made a study of beauty preparations which would photograph with lifelike softness; another appointment to sit here next Tuesday. Finally, smiling thru fresh makeup she sailed out to her waiting Rolls, leaving Levigne's exhausted receptionist to draw breath over the illusion that this would be the day's last flareup.

Four o'clock struck as Lady Asterisk swept out and collided, in the doorway, with a man who was hurrying in as if pursued into the studios.

"Mrs. Dickenson?" demanded the voice to which Grace had already replied over the telephone. "Has she come for her sitting?"

"She should be here at any moment, Mr. Dickenson; will you sit down?"

Doesn't Like Looks of Darkly Handsome Visitor

Grace's lips wore their pleasant business smile while her glance took in the visitor. He was a well dressed, well groomed, well bred, darkly handsome man of about 38. Yet, for no reason she could have given, Grace didn't like the looks of him. Odd, he looked. And why did he refuse to sit down? Why should his hand keep going to his jacket pocket like some one's in a film?

"Would you care to see Mr. Levigne——"

"I want to see my wife."

A slender figure simply dressed in black; a lovely serious face, pale as the gardenias at her breast. . . . That glimpse Grace had of the famous actress who entered——

In the nightmare that followed everything happened at once. Grace heard the woman's gasp of "Philip——" saw the man's hand dart to his pocket. . . . In a flash some instinct told Grace the one and only one thing to do. Snatching up the heavy silver mounted tusk paperweight from her table desk, she hurled it with all her force, at the strange man's outstretched right hand and what it gripped. Simultaneously there rang out the sounds of a woman's scream, of a shot, of shattering glass. The photographers rushed in from the studio.

People ran down from the upper stories. . . . There was an influx of policemen. One picked up, from behind the framed portrait of the crown prince of Ruritania, of which the glass had been shattered to fragments, a smoking pistol. Then a short, sturdy individual like an ex-petty officer in plain clothes came forward and said quietly, "Mr. Dickenson, sir, won't you come home?"

"Hullo; it's Brown!" exclaimed poor Dickenson, the lovely actress' deranged husband. He no longer looked odd but merely bewildered, like some man who has awakened suddenly from an evil dream. "Maureen?" And the woman whose life he had come here to take ran to him, and put her arms about him and wept over him.

The crazy sequence of inquiries, explanations, note takings by police, report by doctor, compliments by press, and fervent thanks from the woman Grace had preserved from death, had come to an end. The outer office was empty. Poor Mr. Dickenson, whose terrible aberration was for the time being over—his wife, and faithful attendant Brown had driven away. The others had gone their various ways. And now Grace, dressed for the homeward journey, could at last, at last——

He would have; Grace had barely time to make the train.

"Myself I cannot, Mademoiselle, face another day of this in present circumstances. For an artist of my caliber——"

"It's been very trying," agreed Grace, "but it's all over now, Mr. Isidore."

"No. Myself I find it absurd that you should be studio receptionist——"

"Do you" [horrors]. "I hoped I'd done not too badly——"

"Girl! You have done magnificently. Not only saving the life of that maniac's wife but pacifying odious brats, cajoling hags in leopard's fur, doing the impossible. Until today I never recognized the pearl I paid 4 pounds a week only!"

Could he [joy] be going to raise her salary?

"Mademoiselle. You are not engaged to be married?"

"Well"—marrying dear calm old Stan would save her from any more of these Tuesdays. "There is an understanding."

"Which you will break."

Grace went pink with resentment. This was the end. "Mr. Isidore! I do my best for the firm, but it has no right to dictate to me about that. Even if this means the sack——"

"Can't you see what that means? As my wife——"

"Wife——?"

"Naturally you will be permanently of the firm. Myself I cannot risk your leaving. We will marry. What do you say?"

Grace had no breath to say anything.

"Think it over tonight, mademoiselle, if you must; but why wait?"

Grace, taking him literally, turned to dash away. "Excuse me—I'm losing my train home——"

That train, it was announced was, owing to a breakdown on the line, delayed for 63 minutes.

"I simply must have something to eat." Grace, weary and famished, pushed at the refreshment room door.

"Let me!" said a pleasant voice. A man's hand opened the door for her. "Don't cut me, Miss Gibson. We met this morning—at Levigne's. Remember? I ordered a photograph to fit my mother's cigaret case."

"You're—O!" Grace felt as if the sun had come out. "You're Mr. Frank Dunning."

"And dining here while we wait for our train down to Essex. Proud to be seen with you, Miss Gibson. I read about it in the evening papers: 'Girl Receptionist Rescues Famous Actress.' Great show, that. Little girl, you've had a busy day! Champagne, I think."

The happiest hour Grace had known sped by over that gay little meal at the refreshment room's corner table.

Recounts the Long Day's Happenings

He was putting questions; interested, sympathetic. She was telling him of the long day's happenings. Even of her fear that she was going to get the sack, and how it had turned out to be a proposal of marriage from the boss.

"That excitable French fellow who puts on acts about photographing royalty? He must make a lot of money? Going to accept?"

Both laughed.

"Accept a job between being a lunatic's keeper and a baby's nanny? I'd rather tell him that I was already engaged."

The first moment of chilled silence followed before the young flying officer took up sharply "Are you?"

Grace, catching sight of the clock, had sprung to her feet, "My bill . . . My train!"

"It's my bill . . . My train, too."

He was waving aside Grace's modest "season," settling her cozily into the corner of the empty first class carriage, saying "Now! Tell me about this other man."

"But my father says he's so stolid—I mean solid——"

"Stolid, you mean. So that's Stan? And you don't know if you're going to marry him or not? Well, I'll tell you. You're not. You're going to marry—me."

Had Grace heard it?

He nodded the bright head in the lark's crest air force cap. "O, yes, you are. We belong. Congenial. Saw it at once. When you said 'not in business hours.' I meant to come in again. Didn't I say au revoir?"

He was close beside Grace, coaxing, "Listen. I'm perfectly sober; perfectly sane. No use saying you don't know me well enough; listen! You were quite capable of getting engaged to this fellow Stan. Do you know him any better than you know me? In all these months since you first met Stan, has he exchanged as many words with you as I have in the few moments since we met at the station?"

"'Moments?' An hour and a half!"

"Seems more like five minutes," said he so simply, so sincerely that Grace blushed with pleasure. "You're glad!" he cried. "If we'd met a month ago, wouldn't you consider getting engaged to me tonight?"

"Perhaps——"

"Sure! Then imagine one month has passed. We have to juggle with time, to take short cuts these war days. I've only a fortnight's leave."

"O, dear, and we're just coming to my station——"

"You're sorry!" cried the taker of short cuts. "Don't worry: it's going to be my station. Listen: I'm coming along to meet your people, telephoning my mother, and putting up at the local. Tomorrow I'll take you up to town to arrange about a special license, and your Mr. Isidore can see for himself——"

Anything Grace might have said was stopped by a clinching kiss on the mouth.

The train drew up. Frank caught Grace's attaché case, his own suitcase, and sang out gaily. "You're for it, darling!"

What could she do?

Whatever was ahead from her family, from Stan, from Levigne, all must give way to this sudden, masterful, and most adorable lover.

In blissful resignation she sighed, "Here's our house. Come in. ——Mother! Father!"

"Is that Grace? You're late, dear," sounded her mother's voice from upstairs. "Your father's out at his Wednesday lodge——night——"

"'Wednesday?'" Grace collapsed on to the hall chair. "Oh, Frank. This is the last straw. I started wrong and only looked at the date of the month—all day long I've been sure this was Tuesday!"

In a flash some instinct told Grace the one and only thing to do.

NO SURRENDER

"Listen to your heart and the music, mavourneen, and follow . . . me."

What Has Gone Before

Seventeen-year-old Cathryn Keithan overhears Jed and Rufus Galt discussing the wish of their father, John Peter Galt, and her mother, that Cathryn marry one of them. Tho she had adored both boys, particularly Jed, all her life, she is so humiliated when she hears Jed say he refuses to be baited by her mother's hook that she goes to Perry Collen, stable boy on the Galt estate, Faildyke, and begs him to elope with her. Jed stops the elopement, kisses Cathryn, and tells her she is more in love with him than with Perry. Further humiliated, she slaps him and swears revenge. Several years later, after her mother has died, Cathryn goes to New York and gets a job as social secretary to Mrs. Ranger, whose daughter, Cicily, is engaged to marry Rufus. Cathryn has turned from a weedy adolescent into a flaming beauty, and Rufus realizes it is her he loves instead of Cicily. He asks her to marry him, and she, not knowing of his engagement to Cicily, says yes. Jed, who is now a lawyer in New York, accuses Cathryn of disloyalty and greediness and in vain tries to break up the new romance. A year later, when members of the family gather at Faildyke for the wedding, Jed kisses Cathryn passionately, and when she responds he accuses her of unfaithfulness to Rufus. On her wedding eve Rufus is thrown from a horse and killed. Cathryn stays on at Faildyke with John Peter, and Jed returns to New York. Tho Jed says he hates Cathryn, when he sees a portrait of her by Martin Sylvester, a friend of Cicily's, Jed buys it. Later Cathryn goes to Martin's studio, sees a portrait of Jed, and buys that. Neither knows of the other's purchase. John Peter dies and wills Faildyke to Jed only on condition he asks Cathryn to marry him. Otherwise it all goes to Cathryn. Jed, still angry with Cathryn, tells her he will never ask her to be his wife. Jim Ames, Faildyke superintendent, cheats the estate of so much money the whole stable of horses is put up for auction. His son, Dick, tries to force his lovemaking on Cathryn, but is interrupted by Perry Collen, who has returned, a much-traveled and rich young man.

INSTALMENT X.

"O, PERRY," Cathryn cried, coming to lean on the piano, "nobody's played for such ages. Do you remember old songs, the ones we made you sing a thousand times over? 'The Mountains of Mourne' and 'The Spanish Lady' who washed her feet over a fire of coals? Please sing them for me, won't you?"

"Ah, yes," said Perry, rising and closing the lid over the yellow keys, "that Spanish lady . . . I'd almost forgotten her. I'l' sing you anything you like at dinner or on our way home. We ought to get going now, mavourneen." His eyes sent their summer lightning over her. "You were always beautiful, Cathryn Keithan, but now. . . . How does it go in the song? 'In all my life I ne'er did see a maid so fair since I did roam.'"

"Where have you roamed, Perry? Will you tell me that on our way to dinner? I've been cloistered in Faildyke."

He told her later: "Peregrine means a wanderer. Did you know that? But you must come out of your cloister, little nun. Have you forgotten how to dance?"

"Perry, I never did get anything like my fill of dancing. When Cissie came out . . . well, I was her mother's secretary. And Rufus . . ." she flushed delicately but, to him, invisibly, for they were now streaming along the dark lanes, their lights boring a viridescent tunnel for their passage, "and Rufus never cared to dance."

"You'll be getting your fill of dancing from this day forward, Cathryn. And of the theater and of music and fine food. For what else am I back with gold in my two pockets?"

"Are you really rich? Did you and your father make a fortune?"

"We are clothed in the Tyrian purple of our dye works, Cathryn."

At the small table, under its rosy light, in a well planned, private public dining room, good food and wine before them, Perry did sing, sotto voce, some of his old songs to her, between the dances, when the orchestra gave him a chance. But not "The Spanish Lady." He said, and she knew that his eyes were those of a prevaricator, "I've forgotten the words."

So she sang them to him in her very small uncertain voice, which had none of the lyrical assurance of her speech.

"As I went up thru Dublin city
At the hour of twelve in the night,
What should I spy but a Spanish lady
Washing her feet by the candle light.
First she washed them, then she dried them
Over a fire of amber coal.
In all my life I never did see
A maid so neat about the sole."

"Now," she murmured, "now, Perry, you must remember . . ." and was stopped by the look in his eyes of wild regret. It made her speech falter and her eyes fall. His hand came over hers. He said in a tone to match his eyes, "You remember the words and the tune, Cathie, but I remember . . . everything else that is past . . . Come . . . speaking of Spanish ladies, here is our tango. O, yes, you can dance it. Listen to your heart and the music, mavourneen, and follow . . . me."

When they got back, Perry asked her a question, almost his first, for he had been busily and entertainingly accounting to her for himself and describing his adventures in what she more than once suspected of being the Munchausen manner, but none the less diverting to her for that. They had been silent for the first time since the beginning of their expedition. Perry again shot out his hand, the beautiful sensitive rider's hand she well remembered, and put it over one of hers.

"Tell me something, Cathryn." His face was all in motion as tho feelings walked across it in light and shadow altering its color and its very shape as they went. "What did Jed Galt tell you that evening under the linden tree? And have you hated him or loved him for what he did to us . . . frantic as we were that night. Did he blacken me to you or did he 'speak me well in death'? O, Cathryn, tell me, tell me. I've had, for not knowing the answer, so many dreadful sleepless nights."

After a long pause she said very low but very clearly. "He didn't 'speak you' ill. But I don't think that I can talk about Jed Galt."

"But, Cathryn darling, that was very long ago."

Her sensitive mouth tightened about its edges and bent sidelong to a bitter curve. "Seven years ago was only the beginning for Jed and me. Since then there has been a history . . ."

"Of love?" he asked very softly, afraid to startle away any impulse she might have for confidence.

Her eyes met his. How cold they can be, he thought, shivering. "Not . . . of love, Perry."

Perry Puts an End to Cathryn's Loneliness

At that his eyes softened and pitied her and his smile was as sweet as a mother's. "Ah, Cathie, pansies for thoughts, but heartsease . . . for forgiveness. You don't forgive as easily as I do. I find it's for my happiness to forgive, Cathryn. No? You don't? Well, then . . ." and his face took on itself the immobile beauty and coldness of death, "Let's dance again. This time . . . on Jed Galt's grave."

She went as white as a swan's feather and stood up in his arms.

From that night there was an end of Cathryn's loneliness and of her mourning. Peregrine ran up to the dye works at Ratterskill every Friday morning and every Friday afternoon he ran down to New York City carrying Faildyke's Cathryn with him . . . to concerts and picture exhibitions, to theaters, to restaurants, Swedish, Russian, French, Italian, Chinese, German, Austrian, British, and American, to night clubs.

She would spend week-ends with Perry's married sister, with old friends of her own, of his father, or of his, at women's clubs to which he got for her visitor's privileges.

She was extravagant, used every penny she could scrape together for pretty new clothes, got out her mother's old jewelry—Emily Galt's she had shipped at once to Jed after John Peter's death—had her hair done, her face, her fingernails, revived her gaiety, her way of a maid with a man, was absurdly feverishly, wildly happy when she was with Peregrine.

But always and only when she was with Peregrine. For at Faildyke, the March days were sad, drawing slowly on toward the dreaded auction sale, and she saw little of Jimmie and nothing at all of Dick. He must, she thought, have left the place but she did not dare to ask.

Of course, Cathryn Keithan and Peregrine Collen were seen together in New York for Perry had begun to have his own importance socially; and they were seen first, as a cause for sensation, by Cicily Ranger and Martin Sylvester. That was at a Village restaurant to which the artist and his portrait model had repaired after a long sitting in his studio.

Perry and Cathryn came in while a good tango was being played and danced before going to their table.

"O, Martin, look. Please look."

"Already I have seen, Cicily. The Salamander."

"The . . . what?"

"It's the title for a picture. And the picture is of a girl before a mirror. And it is an intensely electric girl alive in the midst of another sort of fire. Hence . . . a Salamander."

"But . . . you're not seeing what I see. It's Cathryn Keithan with a man." Cicily was too much interested to pursue the Salamander mystery. "Look, Martin. Dancing. There. Who is the man?"

"Aha," said Martin. "The Demon Lover."

"I've seen him somewhere before."

"In your dreams. Every woman has seen a demon lover in her dreams."

"Oh, Martin, don't be funny. This is serious. I don't believe in Cathryn! That she's real. She looks so gay and so beautiful. Can you bear it? For Jed, I mean. She ought to be very sick and sad and sort of . . . blasted. To cheat a man out of his very own home and to have him so despise her that he'd rather lose it than take her with it! You know, I have been really sorry for her sometimes, but . . . now . . . O, Martin, Jed will be coming to join us here any minute. What can we do? Isn't this terrible?"

But before Cicily could be told by Martin, in his soothing fashion what to do or what not to do, Jed himself had done something so astonishing that Cicily had not another word to say. She could only open her great gray eyes, which Martin had called "greedy," let her pink lips fall apart and turn this countenance speechlessly from what she saw to Martin, then back to what she still saw.

Jed, threading his way along the edges of the dancing floor, his eyes seeking for Martin and for Cicily, collided against Perry and his partner, turned to ask pardon and looked down into Cathryn's lampbright face. And so, without a sign of recognition, he said to Peregrine, "Excuse me, please," took her into his own arms and they danced. Cathryn Keithan and Jed Galt danced together for the first time in all their lives.

It was a strange dance to see, as Perry and Cicily and Martin saw it and a stranger dance to experience as this man and woman experienced it. Neither of them spoke, and, tho they looked unfalteringly straight into each other's eyes, it was not the look of lovers, nor did their bodies move to the rhythm of either friends or of lovers. They stood close, as they had stood close many a bitter time before, and their pale steady faces and pale steady lips confronted memories rather than the present reality.

Dance Beautifully, Unaware of Surroundings

Cathryn's eyes were narrow and filled with quick cold tears, but Jed's, under their sweeping heavy brows, were absent, vague, as tho he did not know by name this woman he had taken into his arms. But beautifully they danced, moved by music and by the very strangeness of their act and they were unaware of their surroundings, marooned on that barren island of their hate; they had forgotten Peregrine, who stood at the wall, his face whiter than theirs, his eyes cynical, his lips set to a faintly distorted smile; and they had forgotten Cicily, who stared and wondered; and Martin, who slung an arm over his chair-back and turned himself to keep them in his sight.

"How can they?" Cicily breathed, "O, Martin, after what must have passed between them? How can he take her in his arms? How can she bear his touch? I should think it would scorch her. ["Salamander," murmured Martin unheeded.] You can feel his contempt for her . . . It's there . . . I can see it . . . in the way he holds up his head to look down at her . . . like a falcon about to strike. And I think she's crying, Martin. O, please go and take her from him. I don't think I can bear it a moment longer."

So Martin, shrugging, rose, and touched Jed's shoulder and took Cathryn from him, who seeing who it was, smiled conventionally, bowed and went over to join Cicily. An instant later—Cathryn and her new partner being on the other side of the room—Peregrine came to the table.

Critic Finds "The Lost Colony" an Impressive Pageant

Romantic Tale Is Depicted in Amphitheater

By Burns Mantle.

NEW YORK [Special].—Now that we are practically thru the current rest and recover period, there is one vacation pilgrimage that I think would be well for you to make a note of for next summer. This one will take you into North Carolina, to Roanoke Island. There, no doubt with considerable surprise, you will come upon what they are calling "America's patriotic Oberammergau." It includes the presentation of Paul Green's historical pageant, "The Lost Colony," and to any one with an interest in American history, and particularly to the Anglo-Americans among us, it is an impressive exhibit.

Katherine Cale. [Acme Photo.]

Of course the founding of the first English colony in America, and the birth of the first English child on these shores—she being Virginia Dare, for whom children have been frequently named since then—may not strike you as being of even sentimental importance. But it still is something to walk the paths the colonists walked, and look upon the scenery they helped to change a little, and finally to sit in a beautiful outdoor theater and watch a hundred or more native and professional actors act out such experiences as our forebears might have had 350 odd years ago.

It is a gorgeous setting. This is the fourth year they have been giving the pageant, and it has become nicely grooved, so far as the performances and the lighting are concerned. The night we were there was Thursday, which comes between week-ends and is a bad night for business. Still there were between 1,000 and 1,100 persons present. Where they came from I'll never tell you. I did not see that many all the way down from Norfolk.

"The Lost Colony" is Mr. Green's story of the 121 men, women, and children who came to America in 1587 and settled on approximately the site of this Waterside theater on Roanoke Island.

Sir Walter Raleigh was the colony's sponsor, and until Sir Walter was called off by Queen Elizabeth, who insisted she needed all his time and all his men to help her whip the Spaniards, it did as well as could be expected.

When support from England failed to arrive the colonists literally disappeared from the face of the earth. To this day nobody knows what happened. They may have intermarried with a friendly tribe of Indians; they may have been massacred by other warring tribes, or the Spanish pirates may have done them in.

Mr. Green carries the colonists up to their abandonment of their stockaded Fort Raleigh and starts them on their last trek toward the settlement of the friendly Croatoans.

It is a colorful and romantic story as Green tells it. It is a little jumpy, as pageants are likely to be, carrying on from incident to incident, with the help of a historian spotted at one side of the wide stage. But it is simple and straightforward in recital and beautiful in picture. Samuel Selden of Chapel Hill, the North Carolina State university which has bestowed a paternal blessing on the enterprise, did the directing with the understanding counsel of Theodore Koch and Author Green to help him.

A professional touch might give the pageant a greater fluidity and a more spectacular drama, but it might also rob it of a simplicity and informality that are pleasant virtues. Margaret Webster is the only professional director I should think of letting touch it were the decision mine. And I should insist that even she should coöperate with Mr. Selden. If "The Lost Colony" should continue to grow in importance as the inspiration of a kind of historical pilgrimage, some such combination of workers might be advisable, and prove profitable.

The islanders tell you that there has always been some sort of celebration on Virginia Dare's birthday, which is Aug. 18. It was not until 1896, however, that a Virginia Dare monument was erected, and not until 1934 that a pageant was attempted. Several thousand attended that year, Paul Green among them. Paul won the Pulitzer prize for "In Abraham's Bosom" the season of 1926-'27. When he undertook the writing of "The Lost Colony" things began to move.

Paul Green.

While the dramatist was working on the play the islanders took over the farm that was the accepted site of the colonists' Fort Raleigh and began the building of a replica of their early village. Back of a picturesque stockade they built a blockhouse, a chapel, a fort, several small houses, and, finally, the amphitheater and stage, backed by the broad but shallow Roanoke sound.

Now if you like you can wander about the fort and imagine yourself called to church service or to defend the ramparts. For the pageant there are blockhouse signal towers from which lights flood the stage. There are an electrical organ and a choir loft concealed by appropriate scenery. A choir of 18 voices from the Westminster Choir college of Princeton, N. J., sings modern versions of selected Elizabethan songs under the direction of Theos Cronk. It is all very impressive and very beautiful under the soft lights. The acoustics are amazingly good, probably because the waters of the sound serve as a sounding board.

There are something like 150 in the cast. All but a half dozen are natives or residents of the island. James Leo Murphy, an engineer who is putting in a sewage system for Manteo, doubles in the parts of a couple of Indian chiefs. Martin Kellogg, the town's attorney, is the Ananias Dare, father of Virginia. Forty lads from a neighboring CCC camp come over to play Indians. Fifty of the village folk whip up excitement as adventuring pilgrims or embattled colonists. Volunteers from Chapel Hill's most promising Carolina playmakers fill all the minor rôles.

Eventually, in carrying out the Oberammergau suggestion, it is expected the leads will all be played by North Carolina natives. At the moment Russell Collins, who was threatened with spells in "Mornings at Seven," has the nearest thing to a comedy rôle Mr. Green has written. Gregory Morton is a dignified Sir Walter, Katherine Cale plays Eleanor Dare, Catherine Moran is the Queen Elizabeth, and Sam Hirsh a slightly villainous objector. Howard Bailey, playing Essex, and Fred Howard contributing authentic Indian dances, creditably represent Chapel Hill.

We went by boat to Norfolk. A nice 32 hour coastline sail, tho the boats have not yet discovered their competition in the way of entertainment. This is a Yankee line, but it represents a backward south, progressively speaking. It is a 90 mile drive from Norfolk to Manteo, good roads, nice scenery. The country is lush with crops and dotted with weather beaten buildings. An occasional chain gang of roadworkers steps aside for you. The man with the shotgun leaning against yonder tree discourages hitch-hiking.

A couple of long bridges and a short causeway take you on to Roanoke Island. It is about the size of Manhattan—13 miles long by 3 wide. Across the sound is Kitty Hawk, where the Wrights learned to fly. There is a monument marking the spot; it stands out firm and proud against a peaceful sky. Across the ocean Stukas and hurricanes born of this Wright success are still keeping the monument works busy.

Manteo was a fishing village and without a bathroom—the natives tell me—before the pageant came to Fort Raleigh, two or three miles down the road. Now it is a busy little village with a bath in nearly every house. And a hotel that could be made attractive with a couple of vacuum cleaners and a pair of interested jitterbugs to run them.

Contract According to Culbertson

By Ely Culbertson.

[Copyright: 1940: By Ely Culbertson.]

In bridge, one partner must command, the other obey. There never was a successful bridge team with two captains—nor is the combination of two privates any better. The second best teams in bridge are those which have one permanent captain and one permanent buck private of the rear rank. The truly great pairs, however, are those which consist of Captain-Private North and Private-Captain South; in other words, they are composed of two players who know both how to take control and how to obey! And not only how but when!

I have known partnerships where the battle of the bidding is waged not between sides but between partners. In one such battle, North and South were struggling for the mastery from the very opening bid. Into the higher ranges the conflict soared:

North	South
3 hearts	3 spades
4 hearts	4 spades
5 hearts	5 spades

To North the result seemed inevitable. His partner's suit was higher than his, and obviously that hand was not going to be played at hearts. "So," he announced, "I'll save two rounds of bidding. Seven no trump!"

No partnership built on jealous antagonism can succeed. Bridge, like life itself, must be give and take. And so the question is, "What partner shall take command—and when shall he surrender it?"

All bids in bridge fall naturally into three classes; the "captain" bids—situations in which the bidder is commanding, urging, or strongly recommending a certain line of action; the "soldier" bids—situations in which the bidder is simply obeying the directions of his partner; and finally, the "noncom" bids—situations in which the bidder attempts to convey specific information and leaves the decision, for that round at least, entirely in his partner's hands.

"Captain" bids include all types of forcing bids, but not all the bids in this class are actually forcing. The "soldier" bids include conventional responses, and all limit responses that definitely indicate a minimum. The "noncom" bids are all nonforcing and semiforcing bids which announce more than absolute minimums, but which limit the maximum strength, including the one exception—a forcing bid—the forcing pass.

Usually the command rests with the last player to make a forcing bid. Each new forcing bid either reëstablishes or changes the position of the commanding hand. "Command," in this use, however, does not mean that partner is commanded to bid again. On the contrary, certain "command" bids really tell partner to pass!

The "noncom" bid is noncommittal in the sense that it neither commands nor obeys. It places the command in partner's hand, regardless of the fact that he may never have been in command during any previous stage of the bidding. Command may be referred back to the first player by responding with another "noncom" bid.

In the army they say that the soldier must learn to obey before he can command. In bridge that goes double! When the captain's command is in order, the soldier must obey. Conventional "soldier" responses must be given in answer to conventional "captain" bids. Even tho the responding hand may wish to become the captain, he cannot do so until he has first "obeyed."

Perhaps the best explanation of which partner is in command, and how the command is passed back and forth, will be given by the notes on the bidding of the following hand:

15. Forcing pass. South passes control. A "noncom" bid.
16. Penalty double. A "captain" bid. North resumes his commanding rôle—not because he has the big hand, but because South's last bid passed the control to North.

There can be no partnership misunderstanding if each partner understands the meaning of his bids as they will be read by the hand across the table from him. The good player knows when to assume command and when to relinquish the command to his partner. Knowing how is the first step toward knowing when.

South's contract is six clubs. West opens the heart king. Can the small slam be brought home against the best defense; if so, how?

Answer: The small slam contract can be fulfilled against the heart king opening and any subsequent defense, as follows: South wins with the heart ace, leads a diamond to the king, and discards two hearts on the ace and king of spades. He then ruffs a heart with the five of clubs—not the deuce! Dummy's hearts are now good. South now leads the eight or seven of clubs and puts up dummy's queen. East's best defense is to win with the king and return a spade. South must shorten his trump holding by ruffing this trick with the club deuce and, in order to land in dummy, must overruff with the club three. The hearts are now run off. If East ruffs the fourth round, declarer over-ruffs, picks up East's remaining trumps, then returns to the diamond ace and cashes the remaining heart trick. If East refuses to ruff a heart, declarer gets rid of his losing diamonds, then, with only three cards left in each hand, can take the balance of the tricks by leading a diamond and just over-ruffing whatever club East is forced to play.

If on declarer's early lead to the club queen East refuses to accept his king, the play becomes easy. The club three is led back and South just tops whatever trump East plays, then cashes the club ace and drives out East's last trump by concession. After this South can use the other diamond entry in dummy to cash the established hearts.

If, after winning with the club king, East chooses to return a heart, declarer discards a diamond while winning in dummy, picks up East's remaining trumps on a finesse, after which dummy is reëntered with a diamond and the heart suit is cashed.

2 Stars Shine Brilliantly in New Chez Show

By Will Davidson.

Imagination may, as the song explains, be funny, but it is a most desirable ingredient in entertainment. Unfortunately, pernicious anemia of the imagination seems to be an occupational disease among those harassed souls who think up night club acts, and the effects of that malady are felt most unhappily by those of us who from choice or assignment frequently eat our meat and potatoes in the cozy atmosphere of mimics, mademoiselles, and maracas.

When some one with imagination does answer the plaintive call of a booking agent the contrast is apt to be so refreshing and so pronounced that the act profits [perhaps beyond its merit] in the matter of critical huzzas. To one sated after many force feedings of "Martha" in bounce time, Raymond Scott, for an example, is a musical peppermint—a delightful change in diet. It is easy to forgive his preoccupation with unusual musical patterns, even tho they sometimes overwhelm the melody.

The current show at Chez Paree displays two new and distinct talents, and the prime element of each is imagination. Jack Cole and his Balinese Dancers, and Danny Kaye, the newly discovered comedian, are the spectacular stars of the revue.

Mr. Cole is a supreme artist, doing an authentic job, yet it is not his technical skill alone that silences a night club crowd and finally sends it into spontaneous and sincere applause. It is more than anything else, a rather devilish undertone of humor. That almost [but not quite] satirical mood lifts Mr. Cole's amazing dances far above the usual night club level. Mr. Cecil Smith, whose sanctuary is situated farther up the slopes of Parnassus, has given Mr. Cole's public a really authentic report on what makes the young man click. I merely wish to record that I like Mr. Cole very much.

Danny Kaye is an artist just as surely as is Jack Cole. His sense of the ridiculous, his sense of timing, and his ability to go completely cockeyed in a restrained and gentlemanly way are remarkable. He puts an O. Henry touch in his material and makes full use of a very versatile set of vocal chords. His Parisian milliner burlesque, his excursion into the mysteries of Russian dramatic art, and his baseball adventure that turns into a conga are hilarity at its best. As a clinching demonstration of his showmanship, Kaye completely silences the crowd with a plaintive Irish street song—a beautiful example of change of pace. The boy is not only a star, he is a dazzling meteor shower.

By contrast with this excess of brilliant talent, Miss Kitty Carlisle has a difficult time living up to her top billing. But she is a gracious and a lovely showman, and tho her voice lacks that indefinable something known as color, she is well received. Bobby May's juggling is as deft as ever, and Gloria Day's dancing hasn't lost its relaxed, easy charm. Fred Evans has stepped up the quality of the production numbers presented by the adorables, with one exception—an unfortunately costumed Mexican sombrero number.

Emil Coleman's music is an important factor in the success of this revue. Suave, genteel, and sometimes almost shy, it proves its real strength during the show. There it provides the perfect vehicle for each of the varied acts, and, while making itself felt, at no time intrudes upon the act it is supporting. The Coleman band is not the type you really would expect to find in a busy night club. To which I might as well add, "thank heavens." For a change it is very restful.

With Duke Ellington's arrival in the Panther room scheduled for the current week-end, first nighters are turning to Harry's New Yorker, which starts its fall season Thursday, and the Stevens hotel, which brings Eddie Oliver into the redecorated Continental room on Saturday.

Adopting its new decor from Leon and Eddie's of New York, Harry's is also bringing it some of the L and E acts. Chick Darrow, emcee; Mildred Craig, singer; Charles and Jean Brewster, dancers, and The Four Clovers, acrobats, have been booked so far. Arne Barnett's band will play and Winnie Hoveler's girls will be back with new routines.

Phil Levant is back in the Walnut room of the Bismarck hotel, maintaining the satisfactory cycle of Keller, Levant, and Kassel. Gone for nearly a year, Phil brings back with him two young vocalists who add sparkle to his entertainment. They are Gale Robbins and Don Gordoni. The Levant music is conventional and of good craftsmanship, and Phil has a personal appeal that makes him a good maestro for a friendly room such as this one. The Jane Hadley dancers and the Asburns, a smooth working team, present floor shows that are of traditional Bismarck quality.

HER SONGS HAVE SPARKLE

Gloria Gilbert lends the feminine touch to Dick Shelton's band with songs that are a sparkling part of the entertainment in the Blackhawk restaurant. The Four Inkspots are the featured entertainers.

Feeding Fifty Is Easy with Right Recipes

Miss Meade contributes daily to the feature pages of the Chicago Tribune, guiding housewives to the best knowledge of cookery and hostessing. When writing for information please inclose stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Large quantity cookery differs in many ways from household cookery. When a housewife is suddenly faced with the problem of planning and helping to cook food for 50 or more persons at some social gathering, she often becomes confused. A common mistake is to multiply standard household recipes to get the proportions of ingredients for large group cookery.

Often these recipes won't work when tripled or quadrupled. A tested large quantity recipe is the safest guide. Church societies and other groups which often sponsor group gatherings where food is of primary importance should invest in an institutional cookbook or two.

This department is always willing to help out an "eats" committee chairman in search of quantity recipes. The following are of the kind most often requested by readers, and are printed for the benefit of others who may be looking for the same information.

SPAGHETTI CREOLE.
2½ pounds spaghetti.
1½ cups chopped onion.
2 green peppers, chopped.
¼ cup chopped pimiento.
1 cup ham or bacon drippings.
2½-3 pounds ground beef.
1 tablespoon salt.
1 teaspoon paprika.
½ teaspoon pepper.
1¾ quarts concentrated tomato puree, diluted with
3 cups water.
1¼ pounds cheese, grated.

Cook the spaghetti for 20 to 25 minutes in 5 quarts of boiling water to which 1½ tablespoons salt have been added. Drain and run hot water over spaghetti. Cook onion, pepper, and pimiento with ground beef in bacon drippings. Add seasonings, using more salt, if it is needed. Combine spaghetti, meat mixture, tomato puree, and cheese. Bake in oiled pans at 375 degrees for half an hour.

POTATO SALAD.
15 pounds potatoes.
1 pint sharp French dressing.
1 quart chopped celery.
½ cup chopped parsley.
2 medium onions, minced.
1 dozen hard cooked eggs, chopped.
Salt, pepper, celery salt.
1½ quarts boiled salad dressing.
Lettuce.

Wash potatoes and cook in the skins. Peel and dice while warm, and pour French dressing over the potatoes. Chill for several hours. Add celery, parsley, onion, and eggs, and combine with half the boiled dressing. [Equal parts sour cream and boiled dressing may be combined for this salad, if desired.] Season to taste. Mix lightly. Serve on lettuce leaves, each portion garnished with a teaspoon of dressing and a sprinkle of paprika.

BAKED BEANS.
5 pounds dried beans.
2 pounds, 9 ounces salt pork.
3 tablespoons mustard.
1¾ cups sugar.
½ cup molasses.
6 quarts water.
5 medium onions, if desired.

Soak the beans for 12 hours. Drain. Cube the salt pork, fry until browned, and mix pork and fat with remaining ingredients. Mix with beans. Place in crocks, place an onion in the top of each, and cover. Bake at 250 to 275 degrees for seven or eight hours. Uncover for the last hour. Add more water if needed.

MACARONI AND CHEESE.
3 pounds macaroni.
4½ quarts evaporated milk.
3 pounds American cheese.
1½ teaspoons dry mustard.
⅛ teaspoon cayenne pepper.
1½ quarts bread crumbs.
1½ cups butter.
Paprika.

Boil macaroni until just tender in a large quantity of salted water. Drain and rinse with hot water. Fill pans with alternate layers of ham, eggs, and well seasoned white sauce. Top with remaining buttered crumbs and bake in a 425 degree oven for 20 minutes, or until hot and browned.

For the white sauce, use 1¾ cups each of flour and butter and 3½ quarts milk.

SHRIMP GUMBO.

Points and Curves Conspire in This Afternoon Dress

By Bettina Bedwell.

SIZES 12-40

Points and curves coöperate to give this simple frock its special smartness. The curves are those of your natural figure; the points are found in the shoulder yoke that simulates a sailor collar and in the peplum effect of the long torso bodice. This is a one-piece frock, but its effect is that of two. Broad shoulders lead into three-quarter length sleeves, fashion's latest pet, which are notched to show a point of arm flesh in conspiracy with the points mentioned in connection with the waistline.

Full, flowing lines are the skirt's contribution to this dress, with most of the shirring centered in front and a lesser amount right in the middle of the back waistline. The sides are sleek and form fitting.

The original of this pattern, which was adapted from one of the smartest of the current offerings, is in dull-surfaced black crêpe. Crêpes of almost any type, and silk jersey and soft silk velvet, too, may be made up to advantage. This is strictly a social dress, for it has an elegant air it would be a shame to waste on any uninteresting occasion!

Style No. 5364 is designed for sizes 12, 14, and 16, and 36, 38, and 40 inch bust measurements. Size 16 requires 3½ yards of 39 inch material.

Address orders to Chicago Tribune Salon Patterns, 119 West 19th street, NEW YORK CITY, inclosing 15 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred — wrap it carefully) for each pattern ordered. IMPORTANT! Be certain to state clearly the number of the pattern and he sizes desired, and write your name and address plainly.

Mr. and Mrs. Leo P. Salinger of 7615 Sheridan road announce the marriage on Aug. 23 of their daughter, Jane, to Robert S. Long of St. Louis, son of Mr. and Mrs. David F. Long of 4519 North Wolcott avenue. After Oct. 1 Mr. Long and his bride will be at home in St. Louis.

Jelly Making Hint.

In making jelly, remember that rapid boiling rather than long, slow cooking of the sugar and juice, and cooking in small rather than big lots, help to get a bright, clear product.

A FRIEND IN NEED

If you are in need, perhaps I can help you. If you have household articles or clothing you no longer use, please let me place them with needy families. Address correspondence to Sally Joy Brown, The Chicago Tribune, Chicago. Activities of this department are sponsored by The Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc.

By Sally Joy Brown.

It sometimes is easy to forget that all children are more or less alike and that the small sons and daughters of needy parents have just as strong a desire for fire engines and doll buggies as those youngsters whose wishes can be fulfilled. We think of underprivileged children in terms of nourishment and warm clothing, we are concerned for their physical needs and their health problems. True, a healthy, well nourished body makes a happy child, and these are the goals which we desire for all the children of the country, but we must not forget that there are other factors as well.

Any community house in a poor neighborhood will provide an excellent example of the importance of playing, of a proper place and proper tools for recreation. There one can see youngsters who never have owned toys of their own, little girls of 9 or 10 who spend their free time caring for small brothers and sisters, boys to whom street corners and alleys have been recreation centers, toddlers who lovingly cherish old tin cans and bits of cloth or wood.

Country bred children have fields and forests, room to romp, birds and animals for pets, but the city slum child is not so fortunate.

We recently received a request from one such center, which is situated south and west of the loop, in one of the poorest sections of the city. An average of 130 children, ranging in age from 2 to 16, come to seek recreation.

"Dear Miss Brown: Are there among your readers persons who have any dolls, particularly Negro dolls, which they would be willing to donate to the center? We have a nursery and kindergarten in the morning, as well as several groups of small children who come in after school to play 'house,' and our dolls get plenty of wear. We would appreciate any donations, especially of the dolls mentioned, as we have a great many little Negro children who will play with these toys.

"We also could use scraps of materials for our sewing classes, wheel toys of any kind for the kindergarten, and doll houses or furniture for those who play house."

This address will be given to any reader upon request.

• • •

If you haven't any of the above mentioned toys perhaps you have a discarded set of tools for woodwork, or a metal or wood construction set for a needy boy. He is under supervision at a hospital clinic and the social worker sent the following appeal on his behalf:

"Dear Miss Brown: Again we seek your aid for one of our patients.

"James M., 13, attends our children's cardiac clinic, due to rheumatic endocarditis.

"Because of his physical condition a research worker who examined him suggested that he have a construction set or tools for woodwork. This boy has many long hours at home, due to the fact that his activity must be severely restricted.

"At the special school which he attends James has shown particular interest in manual training. His father, who is a kindly, coöperative parent, cannot buy the requested items because of his very small salary."

The Stamp Collector

By Richard McP. Cabeen

Mr. Cabeen will answer questions about stamps, except concerning values. Do not ask where stamps may be sold, at the Stamps and Coins advertising section adjoining contains offers to buy and sell. Inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope for reply.

This first day cover from Brisbane, Queensland, shows the new Australian war issue. Three examples of the armed forces are shown with a nurse faintly outlined in the background. Nathan Gershon lent this cover for illustration.

The 10 cent value of the artists' group of the Famous Americans series of commemorative postage stamps will honor Frederic Remington and will be placed on first day sale on Sept. 30 at Canton, N. Y., where he was born.

Collectors who wish to obtain first day postmarks upon covers bearing the Remington stamp may send not to exceed 10 self-addressed envelopes to the postmaster at Canton together with a cash or postal money order remittance to cover the exact cost of the stamps to be affixed. Place a notation in pencil in the upper right hand corner of each envelope stating the number of stamps to be affixed.

Enclose the prepared covers and remittance in a large envelope addressed to the postmaster at Canton, and endorse this, "For first day cover service, Famous American series."

Prepared covers should not reach the first day postoffice more than one week before the scheduled event.

There are rumors that the postoffice department will issue a series of three stamps this fall to call attention to the need for national defense.

Apparently the purchaser of the world's No. 1 rarity is one of those individuals with a passion for anonymity. It is reported on good authority that more than $40,000 changed hands when the British Guiana stamp was sold by Macy's and that the new owner desires to remain unknown. This stamp was buried for many years in the great collection of Count Ferrari and since it was never exhibited became somewhat of a myth thruout the stamp world. Now it appears the stamp will go into seclusion a second time. If the purchaser holds to the idea of remaining unknown it may be that collectors have had their last view of the rarity until the collection is brought out when the estate is settled.

Cecil Betron, director of publicity for the World Wide convention of stamp collectors which will be held in Detroit, Mich., Oct. 24-27, has released several announcements. In addition to the very large exhibition space already leased, an additional 3,500 square feet has been taken for the use of the precancel display. This will require 56 frames 36 x 48 inches. The United Polish Philatelic societies will conduct their annual session during the convention and arrangements for this are in the hands of the Pulaski Stamp club of Detroit. Mrs. Charles S. Brisley will be chairman of the ladies entertainment committee and has arranged a program which will keep the wives, daughters, and sweethearts of collectors so busy they will not notice how long the collectors remain in session.

Chicago collectors were well represented at the exhibition held in connection with the recent American Philatelic convention in Buffalo. Fourteen entries from this section took 15 awards, the apparent overage being accounted for by the fact that the winners of the grand awards also received prizes in their classes. The gold medal went to L. H. Barkhausen of Chicago for a display of stamped envelopes of the Nesbit series. Roy E. Morrison took the silver medal with a collection of Belgian precancels. Including these Chicago collectors carried off six first prizes, three second prizes, and two third prizes in the competitive section and two special awards in the noncompetitive display.

The Philatelic section of the Pan-American union calls attention to a new Nicaraguan stamp commemorating the 50th anniversary of the union. It bears the portrait of Leo Stanton Rowe, director general of that organization. Only a few Americans have been pictured on the stamps of foreign countries, the best remembered being Lindbergh on a Spanish stamp, Jane Addams and Carrie Chapman Catt on Turkish stamps, and Franklin D. Roosevelt on stamps recently issued by Guatemala and Brazil. Dr. Rowe has been director of the union since 1920 and came to that position after being chief of Latin American affairs in the department of state, and before that assistant secretary of the treasury. He was called to the governmental service from the chair of international law at the University of Pennsylvania.

The advance pages of the Standard Postage Stamp catalog now being distributed by Scott Publications, Inc., are rapidly bringing the book to completion. It is not possible to give more than a brief analysis of this work in the columns of the Stamp Collector and those countries which have been carefully examined show very few price changes. There have been some complaints from dealers on account of the continued numbering changes brought about by grouping stamps of a design under a single head unless perforations or watermarks interfere. In some cases the dealers believed that countries which were renumbered last year were not to be changed this year. It requires time and a vast amount of labor to renumber a large stock of stamps.

Newfoundland, a country very popular among American collectors, is a typical example showing the small extent of price changes. The 19th century section is untouched, in fact there is no change until we reach the issue of 1923-'24. In this pictorial set two unused and six used stamps are advanced. In the pictorial issue of 1928 four unused and 5 used stamps are advanced. In the remaining varieties of general issues there are six advances in unused and eight in used stamps. The advances are generally confined to the Gilbert issue and to the Silver Jubilee issue. The coronations both long and short sets remain as in the previous catalog. Airmails have taken a sharp decline, there being 13 reductions each in unused and used varieties with reductions averaging about 20 per cent. However, the very high priced varieties such as the First Trans-Atlantic Air Post, the De Pinedo, and the Columbia stamps remain unchanged.

[ADVERTISMENT]

Why Envy a Steak When Eating Spinach?

Here is good news for many who suffer stomach pains due to excess acid. It has been found that bismuth coats the stomach lining on the sensitive parts, thus preventing the irritating action of digestive secretions and foods. It enables many to eat hard-to-digest foods, such as steaks and corn beef and cabbage without after-irritation. Udga Tablets contain bismuth and other valuable ingredients in a balanced formula. YOUR CHILDREN by Gladys Huntington Bevans | BEAUTY NOTES by Eleanor Nangle | PATTERNS by Clotilde

Moral Type of Courage Often Underestimated

By Gladys Huntington Bevans.

[Copyright: 1940: News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

We're likely [fathers are especially] to be proud of physical courage in children, incidentally very often confusing the quality of courage with simple fearlessness.

Especially do we need to emphasize moral courage, because acts of physical courage always have plenty of people to laud them to the skies. Newspapers make headlines of them. School books extol them to inspire young people. Parents, too, will praise extravagantly some deed of physical courage described in the papers.

But seldom are moral battles described or moral courage extoled. Yet that is necessary in the training of our children, and especially as an ideal in these days when we are demonstrating spiritual values to a world ruled by force and dictatorships.

We probably shall always bow down to physical valor and it is right that we should, to valor of any kind. But we are likely to lose sight of the fact that there is another kind of courage besides the physical kind. That other sort doesn't get into the headlines. It isn't as colorful on the scene of events, but it is as great, as important in character, in life, as physical courage, perhaps greater.

This other kind of courage we commonly call moral courage. Of course this doesn't mean "moral" in the ordinary sense of the word. "Moral courage" is a general term for intellectual or spiritual bravery.

Our lives are full of opportunities to exercise moral courage. When we do so, there is rarely any one to know, much less applaud. Such courage is not front page material, but it certainly helps the world in its upward climb.

• • •

Courage to cling to our opinions in the face of opposition or disapproval, courage to tell the truth under difficult circumstances, courage to be honest in spirit as well as literally honest, courage to think independently, these are only a few forms of moral courage. They are rarely spectacular. Often no one even knows of them, but they are worthy of as much admiration as deeds of physical bravery.

We know all this is true, but we're likely to think of it only in connection with adults. It's something that we're not likely to relate to our children. We're not even likely ever to bring it to their notice.

We let them see plainly our approval of physical courage. We talk about it. This is all right. We should show our admiration of what is admirable. We should appreciate fully our children's bravery and that of their playmates.

• • •

But usually we go too far in another direction. We are likely to be rather free with our use of the word coward. We tend to overemphasize both the fineness of bravery and the shame of cowardice, physical cowardice. We over-glorify deeds of physical valor in man and child, in books and out.

And that is where we make our great mistake. Just because we want our children to be physically brave, we should not leave the ideal of moral courage so far in the background.

As children grow old enough to comprehend it we should try to get the idea across to them, either directly or indirectly, that to be courageous does not mean only to be physically brave.

We need not, of course, use the expression "moral courage" to them, but we should make them understand by explanation or by admiration of some one that there is more than one way to be brave. To stand pain; to tell the truth when it is hard to tell it; to be able to say "No"; to cling to honest opinions in the face of ridicule; to acknowledge you're in the wrong; to stand by a friend when every one else deserts and condemns him—there are many forms of moral courage which a fairly young child, certainly a growing boy and girl, can understand.

There are children, just as there are grown people, capable of a high degree of moral courage who might not be capable of great physical courage. Often children like that will be made ashamed or unhappy because their parents are disappointed in them, because those parents hold physical courage and athletic achievement above everything.

There's more to this than appears on the surface. Some children are not physiologically fitted to do deeds of daring. Physical prowess may even have no appeal for them. For instance, there are some children, boys, too, who do not care to fight. Often they're strong and unafraid, but they don't care to fight. It doesn't interest them. All these children must become mixed up in their minds, when they see physical courage surrounded by such glamor as it is, in aviation, in navigation, in exploration, in the saving of life on land and sea, in mine rescues and earthquake disasters, and train wrecks and in pugilism. And when, at least in childhood, they rarely hear of any other ideal of courage than the physical one, they can scarcely, in this way, get a true set of values. They can scarcely understand that moral courage, while different, is a high attribute, and as fine as physical bravery.

Thru the Looking Glass

By Eleanor Nangle

[Tribune Studio Photo.]

For the Ladies of the De Luxe Bath there is a brand new family of glorifiers in the sweet, fresh, and distinctive fragrance of clover. The toilet water is more than 50 years old. Recently it has been done up in a new dress and artfully ensembled with cologne, talc, perfume, and dusting powder in the same delightful scent.

Since before the turn of the century one of the beauty houses has had a "standby" in a toilet water in the scent of clover. It was one of those unspectacular successes that had a quiet, large following, but it came to be taken for granted—which seems to be the fate of faithful standbys, animate or inanimate!

We know women who used this toilet water with great consistency. Other scents claimed their attention for a while occasionally, but they always went back to their first love. It is a simple fragrance, very fresh, and somehow typically American. "Umph" was never claimed for it, but it has all the charm of wholesome delightfulness, which is an extra special kind of "umph" in itself.

• • •

One day not so long ago somebody took a good look at the old standby, called for the figures on its sales, and realized that a grand bet had been almost overlooked. Anything that was as well liked as their little clover number deserved some loving care so that it would be well liked by a greater number of users.

First of all, they dressed it up in a lovely new costume of magenta and yellow. Then, on the very sound theory that women like their fragrances ensembled, they brought out cologne, talc, perfume, and dusting powder in the same heavenly scent. It's a larger family, and an exciting one. And it's distinctly inexpensive.

• • •

You'll love the cologne especially. It's one of the most lasting of the perfumed colognes that we've ever come across. The scent has everything to recommend it. It's crisp, bright, sweet in the way that fresh cut clover is sweet, and it's the kind of a fragrance that's appropriate to all occasions and all kinds of costumes.

The powder for the bath is nice and fine. Talcum comes in a smart cylinder with a sifter top, and the new bottles for the cologne and toilet water are stunning.

The Lady of the House

The first public school in the United States was founded 319 years ago today. Once again the great annual back-to-school trek is on.

Yesterday I woke at 5 to the wild rat-a-tat-tat of machine guns on the tin roof. At least that's what I thought it was for an instant as it dragged me out of sleep—until I remembered that I am an American living in America, and discovered it was only my friendly neighbor, the flicker, who has been summering hereabout. He gave me a nice early start for a long full day, so that by the time the doorbell rang I was giving my kitchen floor a good shampoo and massage. With the door open I couldn't pretend I wasn't at home.

"I have a nice present for you this morning, madam," yodeled a melodious voice as I rose from creaky knees to shoo away the owner. My hands dripping suds, I went to meet a handsome boy with friendly eyes.

"I'm not selling a thing," he protested. "Here is a big free box of . . . It will . . . [going thru the whole rehearsed sales talk. Ever try to stop one? They just start over]. After you have used this you will go to your neighborhood store and buy another box, won't you?" putting all the appeal of conscious good looks into that last.

I descended to the jam closet in the basement, which is about as far from the front door as this long, thin house allows. Promptly the telephone rings. I race up the basement stairs, thru pantry and kitchen, dining room and living room, to the desk [yes, it's just that kind of a house], grab the receiver just as the third alarm sounds only to hear, "Number pliz."

"Why, operator, this phone just rang," I pant.

"Nooneonyourlinenow. Excuzitpliz."

Briskly back to my task. One shelf is cleared and I have assembled the strawberry jam on that when the phone rings again. I hesitate. Some day I won't answer that phone. Up I go, again.

"Mrs. M.?" asks a too sugary voice.

"Yes," trying to guess whether it is more knitting for the Red Cross, some cookies for the circle food sale, or another galloping tea.

"Is your fur coat ready for the winter? Blank's is offering a better than ever service on furs—cleaning, glazing, repair, lining . . ."

"Well, you see, the rabbits are still wearing my sealskin and a hungry moth took a couple of bites out of my neckpiece. Rabbits need their furs and a moth doesn't eat much. So live and let live."

"Oh, thankyougoodbyeeee," retreating from the phone in obvious doubt of my sanity.

The iceman and the garbage man clatter about upstairs and I have that section of the basement nearly organized when I realize that lunch must be ready in 15 minutes. A hasty cleansing of hands at the kitchen sink, a dive for the emergency shelf and my good friend the can opener.

Back from an hour at the dentist's to find a basket of the first red astrakans at the grocer's—and two of my molars gone forever! A succession of like irritating incidents gradually brought me to the boiling point. Trying to calm myself while getting dinner, the doorbell rang again. Carrie Nation and her hatchet had nothing on me as I marched to that door and fairly yanked it open. I deflated promptly at finding no one confronting me. Then I heard. a small voice and, squeezed against the house, was a very small boy with a handful of bright garden flowers to sell. Well, I like flowers.

Campus Modes by a Co-ed

Dear Penny:

From your last letter I deduce that your evenings this year on campus won't be spent at the fireside with needlework! You certainly are turning out to be the social butterfly, but there's needlework in store for you anyway. What I mean is this dress, the sewing of which will pave the way for absolute success at any informal event you may attend.

Everything about this frock is new. There's sidesaddle drapery, an unusual shoulder yoke, fashionable three-quarter length sleeves and swathed waistline. In case you happen to be a diehard and want full length sleeves, I've provided for them in the pattern.

May I suggest a rich green crêpe to go with your hair? By all means use brilliant costume jewelry, especially neckline clips, with this dress, and if you're as smart as I think you are, you'll go in a big way for the hat I've concocted. It's a pompadour pillbox and has just the right air for this dress.

That makes two patterns for you today, my love, so hone the shears and put the needle thru the emery, for it's going to be a busy week for Penny! The hat pattern, No. T-8683, is a separate one, and its headsize fits everybody with only a little adjustment.

Style No. T-8685 is designed for 12, 14, 16, 18, and 20 years. Size 16 requires four yards of crêpe, 39 inches wide, if your choice is for three-quarter length sleeves. Make the yardage 4¼ yards if you're going to have long sleeves.

Knitted Sleeveless Sweater

By Jean Macdonald.

Boys' sweaters of the sleeveless pullover type, with a ribbed waistband and loosely fitted, are inspirations for the favorite feminine types of knitted jackets for the fall collegian. These same sleeveless sweaters are attractively worn with shirts and slacks as well as with a shirtmaker dress of the same shade. Moss stitch at the bottom of the jacket gives it a firm foundation, while the body is knitted in the popular stockinette stitch. The ribbing at the waist is done in K1, P1.

For instruction in knitting the sleeveless, V necked sweater, No. 820, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 Fifth avenue, New York City.

Looking ahead to fall home renovations, or new work in homes:

If you want to give your knotty pine paneling a very blond treatment, and make it very fair indeed to look upon, there's a special method to achieve just this. Your wood will be effectively textured at the same time. Nor does this finish require a great deal of work.

Or if you have a fondness for beautiful leather and would like to go very modern in some room with WHITE WALLS, there is a white leatherlike fabric on the market which is washable, smooth to the touch and faintly glistening in finish. Or if you prefer color, this wall surfacing, which can be applied like wall paper to your walls, can be had in some half a hundred shades.

FASHION indicates the return to favor of fairer, softer skin. Ever in stride with the latest mode, Mercolized Wax Cream lends its subtle bleaching and beautifying action to help you win a fashionable, lighter, lovelier complexion. Mercolized Wax Cream hastens the natural shedding of the dull, surface skin and uncovers the fairer, softer, smoother underskin. REMOVE FACIAL HAIR with PHELACTINE DEPILATORY—Phelactine not only takes off the surface hair, but actually extracts the portion embedded under the skin, leaving no fuzz or stubble. It can be applied quickly and easily in a few seconds. Not a cream or powder. Has no obnoxious odor. You will like Phelactine.

TRY SAXOLITE ASTRINGENT, the DELIGHTFUL SKIN FRESHENER. It is a quick acting, refreshing aid for daily care of the skin. Saxolite reduces excess oil on the surface skin; and its contracting action temporarily tightens the skin tissue. Simply dissolve Saxolite in one-half pint witch hazel and pat this lotion briskly on the skin several times daily.

Scene: LIVING ROOM IN HOME OF MRS. WHITE

Mrs. Green. Helen, this is marvelous. I've never seen a more inviting and livable room. Who on earth is your decorator? He's certainly done a wonderful job!

Mrs. White. Believe it or not, Dorothy, my decorator is—myself!

Mrs. Green. You? Really? Why, I didn't know you had studied interior decoration. And this is certainly no amateur's work.

Mrs. White. But I haven't. I've dabbled in decoration, and I've always had a keen sense of color, but I'm not really an expert—and am the first to confess it.

Mrs. Green. Then however did you accomplish this? How did you find all these fabrics and wallpaper and accessories that harmonize so perfectly without the help of a trained decorator? I know, from having shopped myself, that color-blending is the hardest thing on earth to accomplish successfully.

Mrs. White. Of course it is! And I wish I could take full credit for it. But, in all honesty, the secret of my success is—the Regency Ensemble at Carson's Wishmaker House!

Mrs. Green. I read about it in the papers and saw the article about it in the September issue of "House and Garden"—but I didn't realize that things like this could come out of it. And I haven't been in to see it.

Mrs. White. Well, do go. Words simply can't describe it! Honestly, despite my confidence in my own ability, I should never have been able to produce this result without the unique service they render.

Mrs. Green. It must be good—for a smart magazine like "House and Garden" to devote the greater part of their September issue to it.

Mrs. White. It is good. Imagine finding right in one place everything you could possibly need to furnish a home—and everything so perfectly harmonized that no matter what you select it will go with everything else you choose! There are almost two thousand items in the Ensemble—not only the "big" things like carpeting and furniture, but all the important "little" things, too—soap and candles and ash trays and closet accessories. They haven't forgotten a thing!

Mrs. Green. And your room certainly proves that everything does harmonize! But, with such carefully worked out co-ordination—aren't things pretty expensive?

Mrs. White. No! That's another wonderful thing. Prices are very reasonable—and quality is far superior to many similar things I've seen at the same prices. And that's not all! Both the colors and the designs are brand new—and Carson Pirie Scott & Co. is the only place in town where you can get them. I think they're so lovely I can hardly wait to do the rest of my house.

Mrs. Green. And I, too! There's that guest bedroom of mine . . . I'm so enthusiastic I'd like to go downtown right now. I certainly shall—first thing tomorrow! I can't tell you how grateful I am to you for telling me about Wishmaker's House and the Regency Ensemble. Now, I can be my own decorator, too!

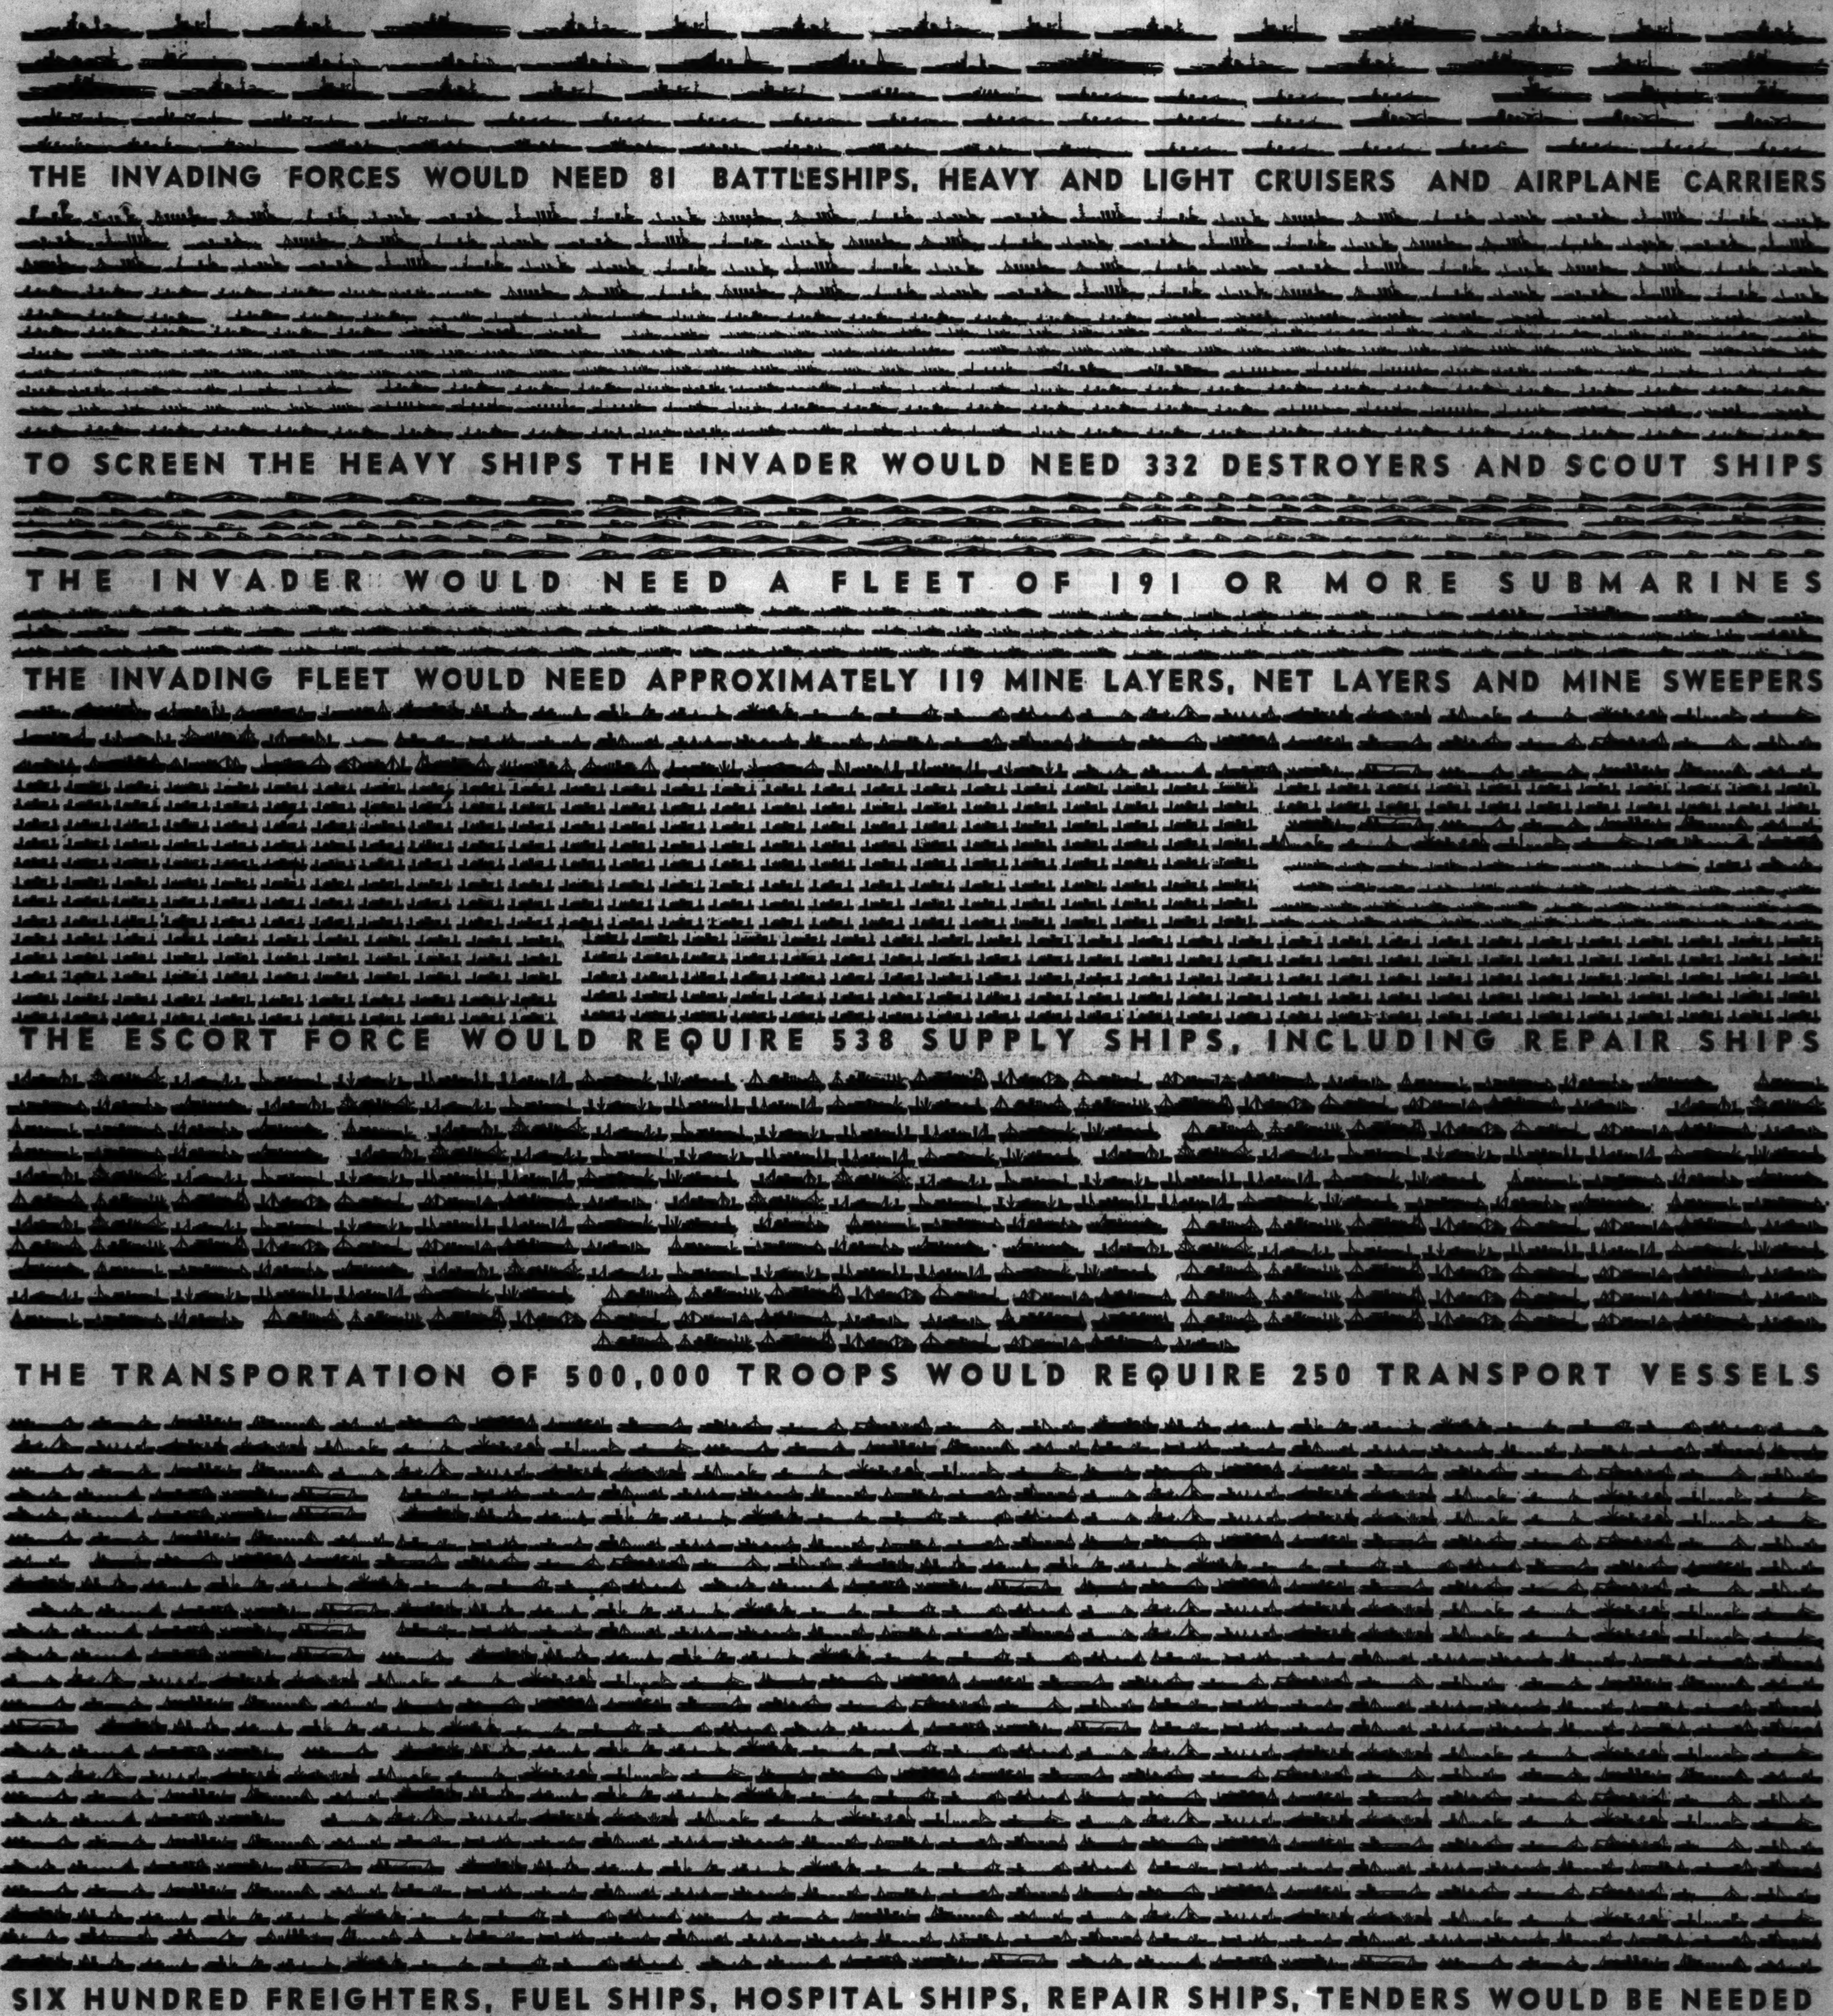
Estimate Size of a Naval Force Required for Invasion of America



A foreign power, or combination of powers, planning an invasion of North America, would have to transport a fully equipped army of 500,000 men, according to United States naval and military experts. The movement of such a force, with the tremendous weight of equipment and supplies required by modern troops, would require the greatest armada ever conceived by man.

The invading fleet, prepared for fighting and landing operations thousands of miles from its bases, would number at least 2,111 vessels, according to naval estimates. Of these, 850 would be required to carry the half million troops, the minimum of equipment and supplies for such a force, and the necessary naval stores.

Such a war transport cannot venture into hostile waters without an escort powerful enough to meet and overpower the defending navy and to silence shore guns for a landing. The fighting ships and their trains adequate for such objectives must number 1,261 vessels. Such an escort would match the tonnage and fire power of the American navy. The escort would suffer the disadvantage of distant bases, and would be forced to bring battle to well based defenders fighting in familiar waters.

When naval and air bases recently acquired by the United States from England are developed the task of the invader will be tremendously increased. The invader's sea communications would be at all times dangerously exposed to American long range bombers and the American fleet.

If he is to have any hope of success in his shore operations, the invader, according to military men, must land the entire force of 500,000 men, supplied for a minimum of 15 days. After that he must maintain supply lanes over a wide ocean. It would be a naval problem without parallel in history.

Autumn Comes in Full Colors to Hot Springs

By Cousin Eve.

HOT SPRINGS, VA.

Last week, with one leap, autumn rushed in overnight, and the trees were flaunting red banners in our green valley. The maples, always first to come out in fall colors, have many a red branch, and tree toads and whippoorwills are chanting a dirge for the end of summer.

Banners last week caused a diplomatic "incident" at The Homestead. "The Star Spangled Banner" and those of Argentina, Italy, and Canada should be hanging in unison from the high white arch at the end of Peacock alley. Not only is agreeable Felipe Espil, ambassador from the Argentine, here, and Loring C. Christie, Canadian minister to the United States, but Princess Colonna, beautiful wife of the Italian ambassador. The prince, chief of that ancient Roman family, isn't here. When the princess arrived Fay Ingalls ordered the Italian flag to be hung in the foursome, and that caused the incident. But it wasn't the Canadian minister who objected—it was various Baltimore people, pro-British in their feelings.

The management asked Mr. Espil if it might retire the Argentine flag; the ambassador said "certainly," and so an impasse didn't happen after all.

Princess Colonna is a tall, slender brunette, with a vivid expression and gentle, charming ways. I met her some years ago in Rome dining at Alexander Kirk's house, where she was hostess for Premier Mussolini during the season. Her duties were to sit opposite the Duce at state dinners and to receive at receptions with him. In short, Princess Colonna was official hostess of Italy. It was Mussolini's way of honoring the lovely women of the Roman aristocracy. Each lady held office for one year, or until another was appointed. The Duce said frankly that his own wife had not been educated for public life.

The Colonnas live in a handsome embassy in Washington, a real palace built by the half-English Prince Caltoni, also of the Colonnas. It has a patio and Italian garden and Washington loves to go there in normal times.

There was a tremendous upheaval over golf during the Labor day holiday at The Homestead. The golf kits stacked up in the vestibule were a little mountain in themselves. On Saturday night the green Empire dining room was filled to the last seat with golfers and their fans, rich men from as far west as Pittsburgh and St. Louis, from New York and Philadelphia, and Washington and Baltimore. These golfers had their checkbooks and were all set to buy up their favorite golf champion at the auction-to-be. For 10 days hotel guests had been buying $5 chances on the players, and during dinner a silver bowl was passed, from which 16 of Hot Spring's leading belles drew numbers. These numbers each stood for a golfer. Thus Mrs. Ballard Moore of Chicago drew William Wetmore, and she was entitled to half the sum that he brought at auction, $175. It mattered not that Wetmore fell by the wayside and never got into the finals. Olive Moore drew a lucky ticket and won anyway.

It was a lively, noisy party, very very crowded and the auction was well worked up. James Watts of Lynchburg must be pretty good, for his backers put up $700 and he won the qualifying medal on the Cascades course, which everybody says is one of the most uphill in the country. Alvin Dollins and George Craig Jr. were former winners and brought high prices. These golf auctions are a new and fancy way of gambling. One saw it last winter in Palm Beach at the Seminole club, when the bidding was far more hectic. But then look at the multi-multis who were there and the plutocratic Londoners, going and coming from Nassau!

It was a unique dinner, good food, champagne, pretty clothes, many new faces, and when it was over, the crowd moved into the adjoining ball room where a "golf ball" began lasting until about 4 a. m. No wonder so many aspirants for golf honors fell out next day!

The weather completely reformed in honor of these matches. One can't believe it—deep blue sky, great white cottony clouds, and wildly roseate sunsets. All in the marvelous, glittering setting of old trees, ancient gardens, and all enveloping mountains. And the air has an extra soft caress, heady as it is with box and fall flowers.

The whole country in this region was laid out in the old days, with spas and springs, hotels, and semicircle of cottages. Guests from the south can reminisce world without end about their young days at the White Sulphur Springs, the Bluegreen and Yellow Sulphur baths, and a dozen others, including Sweet Rockbridge Alum and the Warm Sweet Springs, which are 10 miles from the Greenbrier hotel, and laid out by Thomas Jefferson. Olive Moore was all set for an evening picnic at the Warm Sweet spa—with a swim in the pool and a general browse around the fascinating place. But the rainy downpour frustrated her noble plan—and it almost looked as if my tents would be folded and I gone away with the wind and rain, when Chicago came to the rescue.

Mrs. John J. Bryant arrived with her lovely young daughter, Anne, in a new car. Mrs. Bryant, one of Chicago's prettiest matrons, was once a southern belle out of Norfolk, and had summered at Warm Sweet Springs. She longed to revive those days for her child, so Anne motored us the 45 miles of mountain roads on a clearing day, with great distant vistas of the Blue Ridge, and innumerable other green valleys. Just as we came up the hill, the Chalybeate spa, a runner-up to the aristocratic Jeffersonian water cure, hit us with its heart breaking decay. Nothing of its former life is left but the never failing springs and its magnificent trees. Thomas Jefferson chose a protected hillside for his brick caravansary, its end abutting on the highway. A roadside marker said that James Moss owned the Springs in 1760 and that William Lewis was the owner in 1792. In his time Martin Van Buren Franklin, Pierce, Millard Fillmore, and Jefferson had been his patrons, and the latter had designed the main house in 1833.

Caroline Bryant remembered dancing at sixteen with John Lewis, great-grandson of William Lewis. And as Anne and I wandered at her heels she rebuilt the past for us around the sad and empty relic of days that are gone. We heard about Miss Vermillion, her sedate chaperone; and here they sat on the velvet lawn—now all bumps and weeds. And in this blue ballroom were the dances, and we peered in the wide, many paned windows, to see the old blue settees, still there. But to absorb the beauty of the old hotel, two-storied, with a wide bricked arcade, we had to drive in the half circle of brick cottages, the usual half moon of little villas that went with every true southern resort. And down by the pool, a perfect little Jeffersonian pool, red crenellated brick, trimmed out in white, we could see the splendors of the main house. It had three groups of four white pillars, a high veranda paved with stone, and pale green shutters at the wide paned windows. Mrs. Bryant continued to paint her pictures of feasting and dancing and we listened. Here Mrs. X of Charleston sailed out to drive behind her blooded horses and there they had played croquet. The golf links had utterly disappeared. As we walked on the worn bricks under the beautifully arched arcade one thought of the happy Negroes and the human high steppers who had had their day. All vanished, only the empty Jeffersonian relic left to tell the tale.

Olive was put out that we didn't have a swim in the Jeffersonian pool, but we had other fish to fry. Ninety miles to look over an abandoned spa, for beauty's sake, was after all quite a pilgrimage. I shall never forget the Warm Sweet Springs of Virginia! They did for me, in a few minutes, what "Gone With the Wind" took months to do.

• • •

One of the most celebrated of southern beauties and belles arrived last week. Mrs. Archie McCrea, daughter-in-law of the late noted railroad executive. Mrs. McCrea is the owner of Williamsburg's most famous early day house, Carter's Grove. She was born on the estate, which is six miles outside of town. Some years ago I journeyed to Carter's grove early in April with Mrs. Mark Willing of Bushfield farm on the Potomac, and in 10 days we made a clean sweep of Virginia's celebrated great houses.

Mrs. McCrea was very amusing about her house, and indeed so fascinating is she with the tales of her everyday life there that she holds her hearers spellbound. It was a great thing for her to come up here in the mountains, she said. She hears not a word of Hepplewhite or Chippendale, and nothing of beds slept in by Washington and Jefferson. But one had to undeceive her—and tell her that after all Washington and Jefferson did sleep at The Homestead.

• • •

Another dashing southern woman to arrive is Mrs. John W. Garrett of Baltimore. And Mr. Garrett, too—I was forgetting the former ambassador to Italy in the excitement of Mrs. Garrett's momentous appearance. Electricity immediately pervaded the corridors, and one has been expecting the strains of Mrs. Garrett's symphony orchestra to replace the soothing trio we have for tennis and Sunday evenings for a concert.

Nine years ago Mr. Garrett, who is a very wealthy man, was American envoy to Rome, and the family occupied a fine old palace on the Quirinal, near the king of Italy's domicile. Mr. Garrett was most popular, but it was Mrs. Garrett—tall, raven haired, dark eyed—who created the real breeze among all classes of Italians.

She was simpatica, molto simpatica. She was up and doing and racing up and down Italy with her chamber musicians, having old theaters opened, giving concerts for the aristocracy in little aired halls, and in short giving them all something to think about. Then Mrs. Garrett learned Italian in a jiffy and took to delivering high brow lectures at the Academy in Rome in that language.

One summer Mrs. Garrett took Dr. Axel Munthe's famous villa at Anacapri and the symphonic orchestra spouted music by day and by night from villas scattered over the top of that ancient resort in the Gulf of Naples. Nobody in the diplomatic corps had ever done these things before, in or out of Rome. And one keeps expecting even here in Hot Springs to find one's self in a room listening to chamber music. Mrs. Garrett has kept her figure and wears the smartest evening gowns—lipstick red with sable furs! The nights are fresh, indeed, and a great change in guests is already here. The fall people are coming in swarms and we summer ones are fading away on crowded trains.

Sunday, Sept. 8.

A jittery day here, unless we relax mentally as well as physically; detour temptation to quarrel, argue, and compete. Week ahead can be made truly progressive and profitable, but avoid tendency to imagine things better than they are.

How?

Analysis of history shows that the great shifts of social and economic conditions have come at the times when planetary positions and vibrations were of the type we in America must go thru in the next several years. Sometimes they have been achieved in painful struggle, less often in peaceful, orderly ways. We'll get the changes; it is up to us to decide how—in ignorance or in wisdom.

Your Year Ahead.

Your year ahead demands that you invest in yourself, if this is your natal date. Train yourself, develop creative talents, learn more, then apply, and ask for rewards—they'll come. Danger: now to Sept. 18, Jan. 20-28, May 26-June 9, 1941.

Wood Detecting Tip.

To distinguish real mahogany or walnut in furniture, look at the end of a leg or arm of a chair, or the edge of a table, where the end grain of the wood is visible; if the wood is mahogany or walnut, pores in the end grain will look like small pinholes.

Early Days

By Eleanor Jewett.

There is goldenrod in the pasture
And sumach red in the lane—
Apples are ripe in the orchard;
The patter of autumn rain

Falls on leaves that are blowing
Like torches of gold in the wind;
And children are going to learning
With summer quick on their mind.

What better burden to carry
Than a weight of golden weeks?
If a child is slow, forgive him—
In his ear, still, summer speaks!

The outdoor girl still glows with health and vitality from swimming, diving, and handball on the beach. Too often, with the close of summer, she lapses into the sedentary worker whose only recreation is movies or late parties. Perhaps she does a few languid setting-up exercises, but for the most part she sits.

Yet autumn, which will soon be with us, is an ideal time for delightful outdoor sports. The air is cool and invigorating. Outdoor life is even more stimulating in the fall than in the summertime.

If you live in the city, it will take a bit more effort. You may have to take a street car, but don't let your summer tennis lapse. The movements you make stretching for the ball will keep your figure slim and graceful. The game will give you suppleness. Running up to the net will keep your circulation active. In the coolness of autumn you won't perspire to the point of exhaustion, but you will perspire enough to rid your body of poisons.

No matter how many fascinating pleasures town offers, save them for evenings. Keep your free afternoons over the weekend for the courts.

• • •

Bicycling is splendid for the hipline. In the heat of the summer it is a bit too strenous. In autumn, it is ideal. There are clubs near where you can hire bicycles and go for an hour's spin. Outlying districts also have many delightful cyling runs. The railroads often put on bicycling trains that are tremendous fun.

On these excursions you will be able to keep track of the reds and golds and browns of the autumn foliage. The beauty you see will be reflected in your own happy face and lithe figure.

There is nothing quite as peaceful and soul-satisfying as canoeing on an autumn day. The broiling summer sun does not beat down upon your head. Glare from the water does not tire your eyes. Outboard motorboats no longer tear up the lake or bay. There is a delicious coolness in the air, a lull of activity. You dip your paddle rhythmically into blue waters and enjoy canoeing at its best.

And while you are drinking in peace and refreshment, you also are building muscle beauty for your neck and chest. You are twisting away a tendency to plumpness at the waistline while hardly being aware of the exercise. O, yes, you can stretch away surplus flesh by daily exercises, but in a canoe you will be tempted to keep exercising longer. You simply must paddle past the next bend in the bay.

• • •

If you can't get away to the idyllic haunts of canoeists, at least you can go to a park lake and hire a boat and row. It isn't as romantic as padding thru still waters, but it pads boney chest muscles and strengthens the back. The rocking movement of rowing may even knead away some of the surplus flesh on your hips.

MARRIED ON AUG. 21

Mrs. Maurice C. Perlstein, the former Myna Frankel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gustave Frankel of 2920 Commonwealth avenue. Her marriage to the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Perlstein of 400 West End avenue took place on Aug. 21.

Household Forum

[Have you some household help that lightens labor; is there some comfort you could enjoy; are there ways you've discovered to make the household wheels run more smoothly? Address Louise Bargelt, The Chicago Tribune. We'd like to pass on your ideas.]

Mrs. Ellen Thomas, Chicago—To remove grass stains from flannels, I apply a mixture of equal parts glycerine and egg white. I let this mixture remain on stain for a couple of hours, and then wash garment in usual manner.

* *

Faye Rose, Chicago—Why aren't all dog collars designed with a round, small case attached which holds a leash—this leash to be wound up when not in use, and unreeled when you need it?

* *

Sarah Toms, Detroit, Mich.—Ever try insulating the front seat floor of your automobile with a sponge rubber kneeling pad? I traveled with a friend last summer who had provided just such a cushion on the floor of the car's front seat. It made the floor a cooler and more comfortable spot in the hot weather.

* *

Mrs. Helen Todd, Chicago—My two girls, age 10 and 12, were getting to be critical eaters. Just never seemed entirely pleased with my choice of foods. I made a bargain with them. If they would eat what was on the table and say nothing each week, each of them could make one menu entirely of what she liked, once a week. They no longer are so finicky, and the menus they select when it comes their turn are improving all the time.

* *

Jane Cool, Milwaukee, Wis.—I slip a clothespin in each finger on my doeskin gloves after I've washed them and while they are still wet. Easier to slip them on, then, when they have dried.

* *

Kathryn Lee, Springfield, Ill.—Why won't they put up radishes in cans so you can simmer them with your steaks in winter, and think you're eating mushrooms? [I use radishes all summer long this way, and some of my friends have thought they were eating mushrooms!]

* *

Arline Ray, Chicago—When a room is being decorated I hang sugar sacks over lighting fixtures to keep them from being spattered.

* *

Laura Mason, St. Paul, Minn.—I like my floors nicely waxed and to lessen risks of baby's slipping and falling, I stick strips of heavy surgical adhesive tape on soles of her shoes.

Fashion Writer Adds Filmland to Her Travels

By Bettina Bedwell.

As a collector of fashion capitals I have accumulated a tidy lot of the rarest specimens in the last eighteen years. Paris, London, New York, Rome, Chicago, Vienna, and Madrid have been part of my collection for some time, and I know intimately how their fashions happen and why their great designers tick.

And now, at last, I'm in Hollywood, which is the latest contender for the title of No. 1 fashion capital of the world, with many of the former contestants out of the race. When Kipling said, "the cities are full of pride," he might have had this fashion capital angle in mind, for pride of place is what they all show. And by pride, I mean PRIDE.

• • •

Hollywood has its pride of supremacy, about which I expect to say a lot more in future pages. At first glance I'll admit one thing. Against the ancient tradition of Paris, with her hundreds of years of knowing how, and setting the fashions; against the assured aristocratic superiority of London, the dynamic never ceasing production of New York and other claims of cities, Hollywood has right off the bat the superiority of vastness. It occupies the most ground space.

Fashions, here, are spread thruout many square miles of broad avenues strung with palm trees, gorgeous flowers, blue pools, and countless spotless, imposing mansions. Styles, likewise, are threaded thru immense movie making cities, closed behind secret walls, and covering another fifty mile radius at least. Then you must look for more fashions in the cafés, night clubs, restaurants, cinemas, Hollywood bowl, spreading race courses, shopping centers, and homes of celebrities, which add up to another fifty miles!

Fashions I'm seeing, too, are presented in strange atmospheres. The quota of velvet hung, suave dress salons is less than elsewhere, altho not less impressive. Adrian, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's ace designer, has a cream and beige atelier, set with mirrors that reminds me of Capt. Molyneux's atelier in gray and white in Paris. He showed me dresses designed for Hedy LaMarr, Katharine Hepburn, and other first water beauties, but to see them paraded I wandered over several miles of sets. "Wandered" is a slight exaggeration. Myself and guide were taken around in a creamy limousine belonging to the studio. Scowling guardians reluctantly let us in to see Katharine Hepburn wearing one of Adrian's grand dresses, and Myrna Loy in a "divine" number by Dolly Tree.

There's another point for Hollywood, by the way. Mannequins are champions, without rivals anywhere in the fashion world. Altho when I saw them showing the clothes, Hepburn, Loy, and LaMarr had their minds on higher things, for they were doing scenes for forthcoming movies. They all wear clothes supremely well wherever I've seen them, on or off the set. Norma Shearer, Ginger Rogers, Carole Lombard, Kay Francis, the rest. Not so much because they're so beautiful, this is important girls, but because they walk and carry themselves superbly, and look easy and natural. I think the French mannequins have this quality also, but they are left at the hitching post when it comes to looks. The English girls have copious beauty, but walk like amateurs.

Society Editor Captivated by Maine's Beauty

By India Moffett.

Until a week ago Maine was a far off place, an unexplored country, to us. Now, having BAR HARBOR, ME. motored along its coast and having spent several days here, we feel that it belongs to us, that it is part of us. Its mountains, its pounding surf, its massive rocks, its marvelous air in which salt and pines are blended so skilfully that it is invigorating and at the same time soft, almost caressing; all these are ours. Not in the sense in which they belong to those Maine residents who live here the year around, or even to those who have summer homes here, but ours because having seen and enjoyed them we shall never forget them and always we will cherish the desire to return to them.

Now we know why ever since we first saw it years ago we have loved Wisconsin's Door peninsula. It is akin to Maine's seacoast. The Door peninsula is a miniature reproduction of the stern but friendly, constantly changing shore of Maine. Just a tiny edition of the majestic Maine coast, to be sure, but a true one, built to scale and having many of the rugged qualities that make those who know Maine well insist that it is "God's country." This is what Mrs. Cecil Barnes [Margaret Ayer Barnes to the fictional reading public] called Mount Desert when we talked to her at her home at Southwest Harbor, the oldest of the several resorts on the islands.

Mount Desert Island covers an area of 100 square miles and is the largest of an archipelago that stretches along the center of Maine's strangely indented and rock bound coast. A coast that is about 2,500 miles in length, but only about 200 as the crow flies. A coast so uneven that many of its bays are like lakes and one, Somes Sound, between Southwest and Northeast Harbors, is a real fjord. The only one on the North American continent, we are told. The Acadia National park is on Mount Desert and so are Bar Harbor, Northeast and Southwest Harbors, Hulls Cove, Somesville, and several other smaller resorts.

Bar Harbor is the Palm Beach of the north. It has supplanted Newport, it seems to me, as the summer home of wealth and fashion. All the gorgeous artificiality that only great wealth can provide is here, but, in addition, there is natural beauty that takes one's breath away. Natural beauty that is so grand, so magnificent, that man's contribution seems puny and unimportant. A mansion atop a mountain may be wonderful, but it is nothing compared to the views obtainable from it. A house built on high rocks against which, far below, the surf beats most of the time [for the sea only occasionally shows itself in a gentle mood on this shore] may be imposing, but it is the surroundings that are awe inspiring, not the combination of the architect's and interior decorator's skill.

• • •

John D. Rockefeller Jr. has a home on a high hill overlooking Seal Harbor. His generosity has given much to the island, including a road up Cadillac mountain. The mountain is 1,530 feet high and the road winds 19,950 feet up to the summit. It is a superb drive with magnificent views most of the way, we are told. When we drove up it was foggy, but when we reached the summit the fog rolled away for a few minutes and the sun shone brightly on the scene below. We appreciated it almost more, perhaps, than if we had enjoyed it during the whole ascent. The government built the summit road, but Mr. Rockefeller gave the mountain one.

Edsel Ford also lives at Seal Harbor. His home is on a hilltop, too, and can be seen plainly from nearby roads.

Most of the large houses on the shore of the island cannot be seen at all by passing motorists, but those who sightsee in boats obtain splendid views of the millionaires' homes. Chicago is represented at Seal Harbor by the Chauncey McCormicks, who appropriately call their place East point.

It is not a new house, for it was built years ago by the late Mr. and Mrs. Mark Hanna, but Mrs. McCormick has renovated and redecorated it since it became hers, so that it is modern and chic to the nth degree. There is a strong Chinese motif evident in the decorative scheme, especially in the dining room. Mammoth pots of flowering fuchsias add color to the terrace, which is the main living and dining portion of the house when the weather permits. The sea pounding at the rocks below supplies a constant accompaniment to conversation and radio broadcasts, but a pleasant, restful one.

Roger, the youngest son, spent the summer with Mr. and Mrs. McCormick at East point, and Deering, the eldest, was there whenever he could leave his work in New Jersey. Brooks and his bride still are honeymooning in Hawaii, so they were not in Maine this season. They will return to Chicago Oct. 1 and start housekeeping at 12 Scott street. Mr. and Mrs. McCormick will be back shortly. Col. and Mrs. George T. Langhorne occupy a pleasant rented house in Seal Harbor.

• • •

Northeast Harbor and Somesville are in the same township as Seal Harbor, Mount Desert. Northeast, at the entrance of Somes Sound, has one of the safest harbors along the Maine coast and claims the largest amateur fleet east of Marblehead. Fourteen 33 foot sailing yachts brought directly from Norway recently were added to it. The Joseph T. Ryersons, Mrs. Clive Runnells, and Mrs. Frank B. Bersbach are among the Chicagoans in the summer colony at Northeast.

The Ryersons have a big house, filled with guests most of the time, for there are three daughters in the family. Postdeb Mary, who returns to the University of Chicago this fall; Subdeb Anne, who enters Vassar at the end of this month, and Ellen, who still goes to the Chicago Latin school. Joseph Jr. and his wife, who live in New Jersey, spent last week-end with the family. Mr. and Mrs. Ryerson and their daughters went to New York last Wednesday and will return to Chicago shortly.

Mrs. Runnells' place, on Somes Sound, is opposite the Northeast Harbor Golf club. This was the second season she had leased the place, and according to the way she and her sons, Clive and John, feel about it, they probably will be there for many years to come. They left for home by motor last Thursday and will arrive tomorrow. John, who is 16, is entering the Brooks school at North Andover, Mass., this fall, and Clive, who is two years younger, is going to St. Paul's.

Mrs. Bersbach will spend the winter in Naples, Fla., but before going south she will go to Chicago for a visit with her daughter, Mrs. Robert H. McCormick III., and to make the acquaintance of the McCormicks' new baby. Their other child has been spending the summer with Mrs. Bersbach. Robert, the youngest of Mrs. Bersbach's children, also goes to the Brooks school.

Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Barnes have a delightful house right on the water. They will remain there until October. Their three sons have been there all summer, sailing and taking an active part in all the life of the community. This is the 21st year the Barnes family has been at Somesville, so they are considered "old settlers" even by the year 'round inhabitants. Cecil Jr. is going to teach physics at the Fresnal Ranch school near Tucson, Ariz., this winter and his brothers, Benjamin Ayer and Edward, both will be in Cambridge, Mass. Ben is an undergraduate at Harvard and Edward is in the Harvard architectural school.

Young people, especially, have a glorious time at Mount Desert, for there is much for them to do. All the clubs welcome them and plan for their entertainment. For tiny tots, such as Potter and Rose Palmer, the Potter Palmers' grandchildren, and for big ones like glamorous Josephine Ford and her beau on many occasions, Roger McCormick, there is something going on every minute. They swim and play tennis at the Bar Harbor club, of which Mr. Palmer is the president, or at the Northeast Swimming club; they play golf at the Northeast or the Kebo Valley Golf club; and they're even allowed to have luncheon at the Pot and Kettle, which used to be a men's club exclusively. Women were invited once a year, but those days are gone, and now the whole family of a member is welcome at the exclusive little club at Hulls Cove.

• • •

Mulls Cove is the location of Baymeath, the home for 47 years of Mrs. Joseph T. Bowen of Chicago. She just has sold the big place, however, and next summer will rent a small house somewhere on the island. The late Jane Addams also had a home at Hulls Cove.

The Potter Palmer home, Hare Forest, on Schooner Head road, Bar Harbor, has one of the most beautiful and secluded locations of the section. Secluded, that is, from passing motorists, not from those who pass in ships, for the house stands high on the rocky cliffs with a superb view of the sea and the nearby islands. Mr. Palmer has bought Thrumacp Island, a small unoccupied one near his shore, to insure the privacy that he and his family prize so highly. Hare Forest is well named, for the day we were there we saw three deer bounding thru the pine woods. They stopped for a look at us, we stopped for a look at them, and for five minutes we all were motionless. Then off they went, gracefully and noiselessly, deeper into the woods, and off we went, less gracefully and far from noiselessly, onto the highway.

The Palmers stay at Hare Forest until Oct. 1, for they love the autumn there as much as the late spring and summer. There has been an effort recently on the part of some year around Bar Harbor residents to make it a winter resort as well as a summer one, and to add winter sports to the long list of summer ones that may be enjoyed there, but so far it has come to little. Snow is not a certainty in spite of the fact that one always thinks of Maine as being far north and definitely a land of ice and snow.

Mrs. Harold A. Howard, Mrs. Robert Hall McCormick, Miss Mildred McCormick, and the Charles B. Pikes are other Chicagoans who own homes at Bar Harbor. Mrs. Howard is returning to Chicago on Sept. 15 and the Pikes on Oct. 1. Miss McCormick rented her house this season and herself occupied a small guest cottage. Mrs. McCormick did not open her house at all, but visited Mrs. Howard in Bar Harbor.

The Eugene Duponts have a home at Bar Harbor and so has Mrs. Elisha Dyer Hubbard, the former Muriel McCormick of Chicago. The young Duponts, who live in Lake Forest, visited his parents earlier this summer. Other Bar Harborites with Chicago connections are Maj. and Mrs. George G. McMurtry, who had as guests during part of the season just past Mr. and Mrs. Jarvis Hunt Jr. Mrs. McMurtry is the former Louise Hunt, "Jay's" only sister. A. Atwater Kent, Henry M. Morgenthau, Mrs. Edward T. Stotesbury, Walter Damrosch, Mrs. John T. Dorrance, Joseph Pulitzer, Herbert L. Satterlee, Mrs. Stanley M. Rinehart [Mary Robert Rinehart], and Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd are among other notables who spend their summers in Bar Harbor.

Cotillion Will Begin Season of Germania Club

The Germania club, which will celebrate its 75th anniversary in November, will open the autumn season with its annual homecoming cotillion Saturday evening at the clubhouse in Germania place. Another annual jollification, a Gay '90s party revived from the early days of the club, is scheduled for Oct. 26. The club's anniversary celebration, to which leading German-Americans in many parts of the country will be invited, will be held Nov. 23. Capt. A. F. W. Siebel, president of the club, and a special committee recently established that the organization was chartered in 1865. The club was an outgrowth of German-American participation in Chicago's tribute to Abraham Lincoln when the martyred President's funeral cortège came to this city.

U. Women Are to Have Leader School Again

By Betty Browning.

How to "help to maintain and strengthen the best elements of the civilization we wish to preserve" is the problem to be considered by branch leaders of the American Association of University Women at the Illinois state division's annual leadership school Saturday at Starved Rock state park, Utica, Ill. A similar school for downstate leaders was held yesterday at New Salem.

"The task is urgent and immediate; it calls for all our energy and resourcefulness," Mrs. Earl H. Fyler, first vice president and press chairman of the Chicago branch, quotes in comment from a pamphlet just issued by the national organization. The brochure suggests a number of steps that the association's 68,000 members may take.

A survey of its own community by each branch is proposed as a first step where such surveys previously have not been made.

"Confer with leaders in different fields—education, youth problems, social welfare, consumer interest, etc.—to discover where your help will be most needed," the pamphlet suggests.

Among the specific things a branch can do is to offset hysteria by promoting clear public thinking on important issues thru discussion groups and forums.

Protection of the public schools against unwise economies and from infringement of academic freedom is another responsibility which branches may assume, yet another is to safeguard consumer interests by watching changes in price and quality of goods, and by urging that consumers be represented on defense committees.

Preserving fundamental social welfare programs, aiding the adjustment of immigrants to America, supporting constructive youth programs, and cataloging association members in order to make their talents available for public service are other steps propose.

• • •

Already the national association has done extensive work in behalf of war victims who were members of European associations of university women. Money has been raised to help these women refugees and their children. Thru a nation-wide appeal the American members also have made available 6,000 homes for the use of British refugee children.

Mrs. Paul M. Mitchell, new president of the Chicago branch, and half a dozen other officers and chairmen will represent Chicago's 250 members at the conference Saturday. Mrs. A. W. Clevenger of Champaign, Ill., president of the Illinois state division, will conduct the all-day meeting. Mrs. Mitchell, Mrs. Adolph H. Pass, program chairman of the Chicago branch, and Mrs. C. B. Cooper, membership chairman, will be among the speakers. Mrs. Alfred Sawyer, Dr. Victoire D. Lespinasse, Mrs. John Cornyn, and Miss Rebecca Robins Mack will be other Chicago delegates.

• • •

The season that opens formally for the Illinois League of Women Voters with the first autumn board meeting Tuesday at Chicago headquarters also will bring a revival of the nonpartisan voters' schools which the league has sponsored in previous years. This week the first of a series of schools will be held at Elgin, Springfield, and Flossmoor, and in Chicago under the Southwest league's auspices.

Mrs. George G. Bogert.

Mrs. W. W. Ramsey, vice president of the Illinois league and long a leader of these schools this summer, conducted a class for prospective leaders.

"The league was organized because it recognized that the most important factor in a democracy is the citizen himself," commented Mrs. George G. Bogert, state president, who was a member of Mrs. Ramsey's class.

• • •

"To set up a measuring rod for ourselves as citizens the league has trained a group of leaders to demonstrate standards for citizens and officials."

Mrs. Walter T. Fisher, Mrs. Donald H. Mann, Mrs. Florence Fifer Bohrer, Mrs. Marc A. Law, Mrs. Raymond S. Simons, Mrs. Carl Wiegman, Mrs. G. H. Gifford, and Mrs. Raymond S. Knapp are among other league members who attended the class and who will lead voters' schools.

Under the leadership of its new president, Mrs. Park Q. Wray, the Cook County Federation of Women's Clubs will meet for the first time this season Monday, Sept. 16, at the Auditorium hotel. Mrs. C. E. Ruthruff, chairman of the fine arts, literature and radio department, has arranged the all-day program. Al Hollender, public relations director of a radio station, will speak on "Youth of Tomorrow" following the opening business session.

Mrs. C. E. Ruthruff.

At luncheon Mrs. Willam T. Bruckner, president of the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs; Mrs. L. B. Herbst, Mrs. H. B. Bauman, Mrs. Charles W. Stigman, respectively art, literature, and radio chairmen of the federation; Mrs. Beulah Christian Mayher and former presidents of the federation will be guests.

George A. Schwebel, superintendent of Cicero schools, will discuss "Education of Modern Youth" in the afternoon, and the 30 piece state champion orchestra of the Cicero grade schools will play. The federation has 56 member clubs.

Arrangements for the care of two British refugee children will be discussed by the Soroptimist Club of Chicago at a business meeting Thursday evening at Fred Harvey's restaurant, 308 South Michigan avenue.

The children already have been assigned to the club by the Committee for Evacuation of Soroptimist Children in accordance with action taken by the American Federation of Soroptimist Clubs at its conference in Salt Lake City last June. The Chicago club's charges are children of Soroptimist members in Rotherham, England. Mrs. Gertrude B. Cummings heads the Chicago organization.

Register Now! ABC Politics School Urges

"Register now!" will be the predominant theme at the ABC School of Politics, which will reopen for the fall season Thursday afternoon in its new headquarters at the Hamilton hotel. This "practical school of politics," founded last year by Mrs. Bertha D. Baur, Republican national committeewoman for Illinois, is sponsored by the Woman's National Republican club of Chicago, of which she is president. The school is free to all.

Mrs. Bertha D. Baur. [Koehne Photo.]

Registration will be emphasized during the first half of the school's fall term. At least 1,000,000 qualified voters, Mrs. Baur estimated, not yet are registered in Illinois. Men and women who recently have reached the age of 21, brides, and college students are in this group. The school will stress ways and means of reaching them.

The correct way to vote, duties of judges and clerks of election, volunteer precinct work, and jury service for women will be other subjects for study. There will be classes in public speaking. Republican doctrine and campaign issues will be studied, and national leaders of the party will be presented as speakers.

Classes will be held Thursday and Sept. 19, and from then on every Tuesday and Thursday until election day. There will be evening sessions for business and professional women.

• • •

Instructors, chosen from the Woman's National Republican club membership, will include Miss Jane A. Magan, Mrs. Irene B. Reidy, Mrs. Leona Rohen, Mrs. Mary B. Quinn, Mrs. Henry Mehrle, Mrs. Hollis E. Potter, and Mrs. Ralph J. Sherman.

The school program may be obtained until Thursday at Mrs. Baur's office, 120 South La Salle street, and at headquarters of the Woman's National Republican club of Chicago in the Palmolive building.

Asks Ferguson Fund Be Used for Sculpture

By Eleanor Jewett.

The exhibition of sculpture by Chicago artists current in the east wing galleries of the Art institute has brought in a great many questions about the lack of sculpture in Chicago's parks. A recent letter, typical of several along the same line, is from a Chicago landscape architect and reads:

"Your recent acknowledgments of the current exhibit of sculpture at the Art institute are heartening to one who is in full accord with your allegation that our city is poor in sculpture.

"The exhibit, containing works of many Chicago artists, opens up a perennial question: What has happened to the Ferguson fund? This sum of money, willed to the people of Chicago by Benjamin Franklin Ferguson for the beautification of our city, is for sculpture. The Fountain of the Great Lakes represents the last use of that legacy. Years have intervened. This generous gift must now be immensely increased. Why are we not benefiting by more pieces of sculpture? Surely the trustees [of the Art institute who are also the trustees of the fund] are not bereft of ideas for memorials. If they need assistance let them sit among the children adoring "Wynken, Blynken, and Nod" in Lincoln park, or, on the 55th street promontory, catch the joy of the children's shouts as they come upon Elisabeth Hibbard's "Fawn," whose pedestal furnishes a drinking fountain for their pets and another for themselves.

"I can see Sylvia Shaw Judson's 'Spring,' 'Summer,' 'Fall,' and 'Winter' baby garden figures built into a garden designed for them in one of our parks. They would delight a world of visitors of all ages, so simple and at the same time so charming are they. Green leaves and gay flowers and running water should live with them.

"More than entertainment, sculpture may be a happy source of precept and inspiration. Do you recall the statue of Nathan Hale in the New York City hall, the work of Frederick MacMonnies, who said to Lorado Taft as both men sat before it: 'I wanted to make something that would set the bootblacks and little clerks around here thinking . . . something that would make them want to be somebody and find life worth living.'

"It must have been this idea and ideal that lived also in Mr. Ferguson's mind. Surely no day of the past could have had a greater need for lessons in leadership than our own. Sculptors, creators in stone and marble and bronze, thinking men and women who delight in beauty for its own sake, have something to give our city which no one else can give.

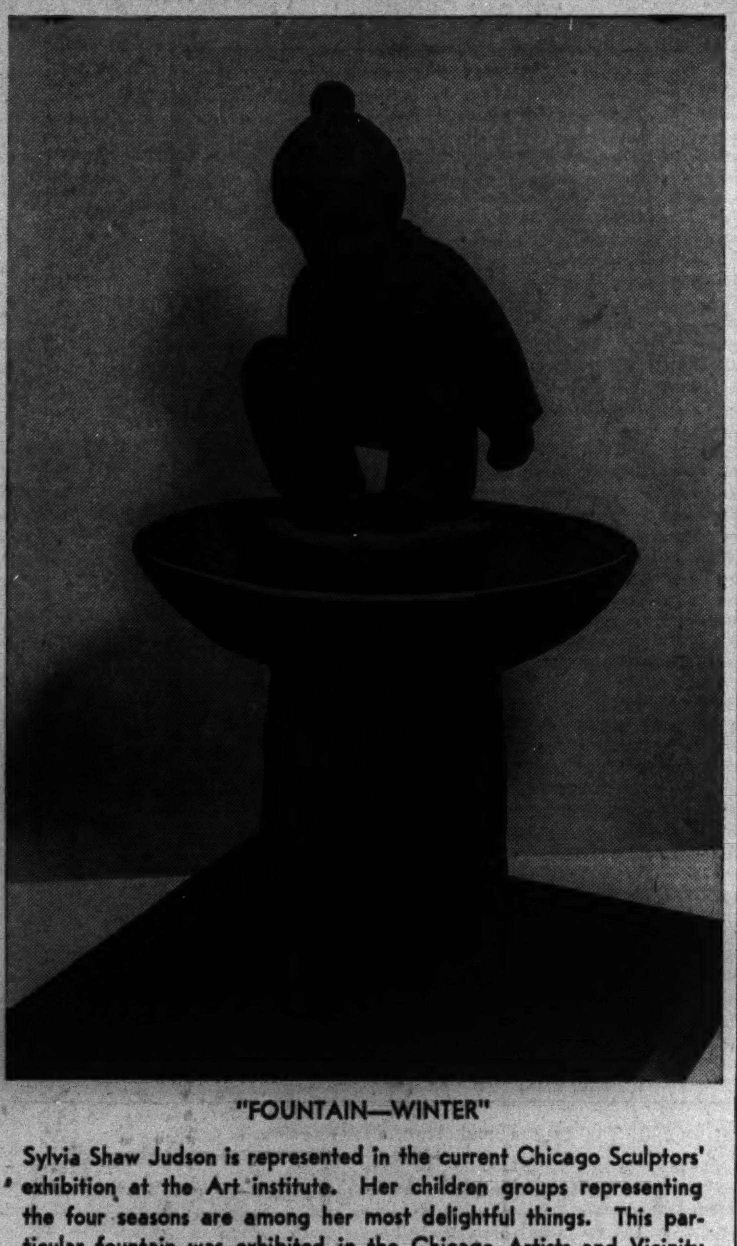
"Admitting that Chicago's cultural program has not kept pace with her industrial development, let us do something about it; let us propose a competition among sculptors with assurance that winning groups will be erected in our city. Artists will dream and from their dreams action will spring; ideas will come alive. Sculptors then will be among those many business men who have Chicago's future at heart and who are eager to make the Windy City a better place in which to live."

In the printed booklet, "Exercises at the Dedication of the Ferguson Fountain of the Great Lakes, Sept. 9, 1913," you may find on page 21 a copy of the inscription which is on that piece of sculpture. The words are very clear:

"Benjamin Franklin Ferguson bequeathed in trust to the trustees of the Art institute of Chicago a fund of one million dollars to be known as the B. F. Ferguson Monument fund. The income derived from the fund MUST BE USED for the erection and maintenance of enduring statuary and monuments in the parks, along the boulevards, or in other public places within the city of Chicago commemorating worthy men or women of America or important events in her history. Anno Domini MCMXIII."

These words are crystal clear. They embody the exact intentions of the donor, but his intentions have not been carried out; a scant handful of works have been given to Chicago in his name. One would be hard put to it to name a single piece erected since 1926. Meanwhile, the annual income applicable to sculpture has been during the last 14 years in the neighborhood of $30,000. But it has not been spent for sculpture; what has happened to it? We have been told by a number of artists in Chicago that several years ago Mr. Ferguson's will was taken into court and a new interpretation read into that crystal clear statement of his. According to the new interpretation the money may be used by the Art institute to build a new wing or new development of the museum.

Perhaps the trustees of the Art institute are in the right, but if they have succeeded in giving a new interpretation to the will in favor of the Art institute and at the cost of Chicago sculpture, it seems to us a shabby trick to have played upon the single business man we have had who considered the beauty of our parks and streets worth leaving his fortune to.



"FOUNTAIN—WINTER"

Sylvia Shaw Judson is represented in the current Chicago Sculptors' exhibition at the Art institute. Her children groups representing the four seasons are among her most delightful things. This particular fountain was exhibited in the Chicago Artists and Vicinity show last spring. Each fountain is an endless joy in itself.

Anton C. Visbeck of Chicago announces the marriage last Wednesday of his daughter, Louise, to Henry Wagner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Wagner of 1922 Oakdale avenue. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Paul Meyer at the Ravenswood Evangelical church, and was followed by a reception and dinner. After a wedding trip to New York, Mr. Wagner and his bride will be at home at 5907 Glenwood avenue.

Two Bibs Made in Crochet

By Ellen Bruce.

Here are two of the most becoming crocheted bibs that any infant possibly could wear. They are both made of mercerized crochet cotton in pink and white, which proves that they are serviceable, pretty, and easily laundered. It requires little time to create these biblets and they are ideal for gifts for a layette.

For instructions in crocheting the two bigs, No. 811, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 Fifth avenue, New York City.

Design Vital in Arranging Your Flowers

"Clever Tricks in Decoration," a new booklet by Claire Winslow, explains methods of making a large room appear smaller, and a small, difficult-to-decorate one appear larger and more attractive. Price, 3 cents by mail, 2 cents at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower.

By Claire Winslow.

We've often wondered why the woman who spends hours of thought preparing a festive meal for her family and guests and more hours on her wardrobe and still more on seeing that her home is spice and span and then neglects the finishing touch of arranging flowers artistically.

She will read recipes and study them; she will go to fashion shows and study her own type so that her clothes enhance her beauty, but she won't spend any time learning the intricacies of the art of flower arrangement. She just flops her posies in a vase, and that's that.

Once you succeed in arousing her interest, however, a whole new world will open before her and she'll probably end by making a collection of books on the subject and adding it to her hobbies. There are fascinating volumes to be found in every well supplied book store.

A brand new one that is a joy to the eye because it is illustrated with natural color photographs is "Flower Arrangement in Color," by E. F. Rockwell and Esther C. Grayson [Wise & Co., $2.95]. Besides the pictures, which will surely inspire any woman to improve her technique, there are many black and white sketches of the various steps in making an arrangement which serve to make doubly clear the points of the various suggestions and instructions.

• • •

We like this book especially because it is written with great clarity, because it is interesting and intelligent, and because it applies to the small as well as larger budgets. There are chapters on planning the arrangement, on understanding color, on cutting and caring for plant material, on line arrangements, mass arrangements, miniature arrangements, and on containers and accessories. Also, there is valuable advice to the beginner in the form of do's and don'ts.

Here are a few of the don'ts:

"Don't leave an open space near the middle of the composition which looks as tho a heavy shot had plowed thru it. The eye seeks this and it becomes the focal point.

"Don't think it necessary to use every scrap of material in the florist's box or garden pail in one arrangement.

"Don't copy other peoples' masterpieces in different colors and materials.

"Don't be afraid to use a common garden weed, vegetable foliage, or any unconventional material. The unusual helps give originality to a composition if cleverly arranged."

• • •

When arranging flowers in a round pottery bowl, or in any type of tall vase that is not transparent we always find chicken wire to be most helpful. You can buy it at a hardware store and at most florists. You simply crush it into the receptacle and then stick the stems of the flowers in it in your own design.

If it is necessary to keep a needlepoint holder from slipping simply apply a small piece of child's modeling clay to the under side and then stick it to the bowl, before you put the water in. When using several such holders you may like to conceal them with small pebbles, with low bits of foliage, or with the new crystal balls of various sizes, made for the purpose,

Cape Cod Ends Season with a Patriotic Ball

By Mera Galloway.

CAPE COD, MASS.

The Labor day week-end ball held annually at the Wianno club was an especially stirring and dramatic climax to an unusually successful summer season on Cape Cod. It was a particularly significant occasion, too, for it was the first time in more than two decades that the summer colonists in these fashionable resorts have attended an affair so vehemently nationalistic and patriotic. More than a few of the 400 guests wondered aloud what changes may be wrought before they meet again in this pleasant vacationland.

The fancy dress ball was held in the spacious high raftered ballroom of the Wianno club, where tall French doors were thrown open to warm breezes blowing off Nantucket sound on the one side and to attractive pine-bordered Sea View avenue on the other. The strains of "The Star Spangled Banner" and "God Bless America" floated out into the summer night as dancers and guests raised their voices together at the end of the grand march.

The name given the ball was "America First" and the decorations of pine boughs and huge American flags made a perfect background for costumes drawn from the pages of American history, current events, and the coming election. Even the orchestra "went patriotic" in United States doughboy uniforms.

• • •

The grand march circled the ballroom floor, passing before a flag draped reviewing stand from which the judges handed down their decisions on the winning costumes. Acting in this capacity were Dr. Thomas S. Gates, president of the University of Pennsylvania; Mrs. Gates, and Mr. and Mrs. Stevenson E. Ward, and Mr. and Mrs. Durham Jones.

In the center of the dance floor a prize winning group dressed as Navajo Indians pitched its tepee, smoked the pipe of peace, and pounded its tom-tom. Miss Caroline Crossett was a member of another prize winning group of sunbonneted ladies and their "men folks" who led the grand march with a donkey and a covered wagon bearing the sign "California or bust."

Mrs. Harry Kimbark, in a gleaming white costume and a torch made of cellophane, represented the Statue of Liberty and received a prize for the most beautiful costume. Another prize winner was her brother-in-law, Norman A. MacColl, who was voted "most original" in a huge question box for his costume, a dice box for his head, and pictures of Roosevelt and Willkie forming his headgear. The MacColls were among those who entertained at the dinner-dance at the Wianno club before the ball. Also entertaining on this occasion was Mrs. Edward Rankin, who is visiting her daughter, Mrs. Edward C. Crossett, at Wianno.

Mrs. Rankin entertained before another recent dance at the Wianno club and saw her graceful granddaughter, Caroline Crossett, wearing an exquisite gown of white tulle embroidered with tremendous yellow daisies, dance an exhibition rhumba with Joseph J. Bodell Jr. of Providence, R. I. Mrs. Samuel I. Motter also was a dinner hostess at Wianno club before this party.

A most eagerly anticipated feature of the Labor day week-end entertainment was the grand final dance contest which attracted such a large audience it had to be moved from its usual location in the Wianno club cocktail lounge into the main ballroom. The contest was better than many a floor show to watch, for all the participants were accomplished dancers and winners of previous contests held weekly at the club thruout the season. Mrs. Crossett, in a trailing chiffon of delicate pink, was a spectator. Another was Mrs. Seymour Wheeler, looking tanned and handsome in a white dinner gown with a gold sequin trimmed mess jacket.

Mr. and Mrs. Wheeler said their farewells to their friends at their annual oyster party on Labor day afternoon. Mrs. Wheeler's son, Morris Eddy, will soon be back at Trinity college in Hartford, Conn., but her other son, Augustus, will return with her to Chicago. Also coming as a farewell to the closing season was the cocktail party given by Mrs. Harold Whitehouse, the former Mrs. George Jaeger, and Mr. Whitehouse at their home, "The Ramblers" on Sea View avenue.

Another well attended event at the Wianno club over the week-end was a fashion show of stunning fall tweeds and glamorous evening gowns which was held for the benefit of Cape Cod charities. Mrs. Wheeler was one of the most attractive models. Mrs. Charles B. Goodspeed made one of her rare appearances at the club this season for this affair and might have been one of the models herself in a dramatic scarlet and black striped gown which she topped with a luxurious silver fox cape.

Mrs. Warren Fairbanks observed the coolness of the evening with a short mink jacket over her grey and white print, and Mrs. Norman MacColl chose grey kidskin to wear over a tailored blue and white print.

• • •

Visitors have come and gone rapidly at Wianno as the season neared its end. The Wentworth P. Mackenzies went to Duxbury, Mass., to visit the Roswell Parrishes and then to Vermont before they returned to Chicago from Pittsfield. Mrs. John Alden Carpenter drove down from her summer home on the north shore of Boston to discuss some fall and winter plans with Mrs. Goodspeed. The Robert Hixons and their daughter, Barbara, who are spending their second summer at their farm in Vermont, were at Wianno as the guests of the Seymour Wheelers. They were much entertained and one of the parties given in their honor was a Sunday night supper at which Mr. and Mrs. Crossett were hosts. Mrs. W. W. Wheeler Jr. arrived the week before Labor day. Mr. and Mrs. Thomas F. Geraghty and Tom Jr. were late season visitors at the Wianno club.

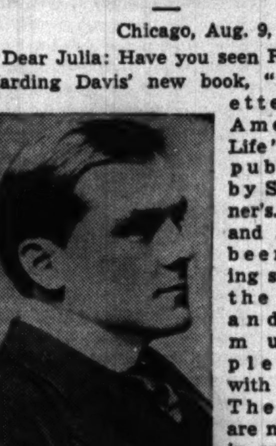
When Chicago Was Young

By Herma Clark

Letters from Martha Freeman Esmond to her friend Julia Boyd of New York.

Chicago, Aug. 9, 1892.

Dear Julia: Have you seen Rebecca Harding Davis' new book, "Silhouettes of American Life"? It is published by Scribner's. Will and I have been reading some of the stories and are much pleased with them. The scenes are not laid in any special part of the country, I am glad to say. I am a little tired of the localized fiction which fills our magazines today. One author writes exclusively on Louisiana; another on New England; another on California, etc. Harping on one string becomes monotonous after a time.



Richard Harding Davis.

Mrs. Davis' types are taken from all parts of the country . . . north, south, east, west; and her pathos is relieved by humor, and never exaggerated. I had often read her stories in the Youth's Companion, a publication much favored by our grandson, Esmond Macleod, but somehow I had not read so much of her work intended for the more mature. She is a charming writer. A remarkable family, the Davises. Ink should flow in the sons' veins instead of blood, for the husband and father, L. Clarke Davis, is editor of the Philadelphia Ledger; the wife and mother writes indefatigably for many magazines. It's no wonder that Richard Harding Davis, editor of Harper's Weekly, is so talented. His book, "Gallagher" has already sold more than 22,000 copies, while "Van Bibber and Others," the newer one, promises well, having already sold 12,000, they say at the book stores. His brother, Charles B. Davis, is assistant editor of the New York World.

Speaking of current writers, don't you enjoy Frank Stockton? Will and I revel in "Rudder Grange" and "The Lady and the Tiger." I was glad to see, in a column from New York on books, that Andrew Lang, British literary man, says Stockton and Mark Twain have made him laugh more heartily than any other writers. To be coupled with Mark Twain is to have immortality conferred on one.

We are looking forward to the fall opening of Hooley's theater. Daniel Frohmann's New York Lyceum company will be the first entertainers, presenting Belasco and Mills' "The Charity Ball." Herbert Kelcey, Effie Shannon, W. J. Le Moyne, Georgia Cayvan, and Mrs. Whiffen will all be here, a treat for theater goers.

Are you planning a "suspender suit" for your autumn wardrobe? This might be called merely an academic question, since I am certain that like myself, you are too old fashioned to take up such a revolutionary mode. I had thought I should be horrified to see it on any friend of mine, but when Martha Junior lunched here today wearing hers, made by Miss Dodd, of Marshall Field's, I thought it quite pretty, the straps over the shoulder supporting the bell skirt.

The papers are full of satire on the subject of women's somewhat masculine attire. A cartoon in our morning paper shows a woman wearing a derby hat, a shirt waist and a mannish coat, while she gazes longingly at a window display of men's trousers. The caption is: "She won't be satisfied till she gets them." And a New York comic paper has a series of small pictures, showing Jenkins' predicament. Jenkins, returning from work, sees in the front window his consort, apparently being embraced by a man whose back is toward the window. Jenkins, furious, executes a flank movement and comes in the back way with a gun. Sheepishly, he recognizes in the suspendered figure, back to the window, his sister-in-law, with her arm around his wife.

The whirl-i-gig of time brings many strange fashions.

And now, good night. Your loving friend,

MARTHA FREEMAN ESMOND.

FOOT NOTES

Richard Harding Davis [1864-1916], American journalist, served as special correspondent for many papers, making a great name in the Spanish-American war. "Gallagher" and "Van Bibber and Others" are perhaps the best known of his stories.

Wyoming and the Indians.

By a typographical error, in a letter in this column, the state of Wyoming was given only a one per cent increase in population in the late census. It should have read "ten per cent." . . . Frank Kovatch, who is a student of the American Indian, writes of his pleasure in reading of the sun dance of the Shoshonis. He believes that this dance has a common origin with the dance around the "Trouble Tree," as shown in the moving picture, "New Moon."

Guard lilac bloom, half hidden by its screen;
Beyond the great north gate the grass is green
And clipped precisely. Shrubs have grown more dense
With passing years. And over all a sense
Of loneliness . . . desertion . . . roods unseen,
As if that one who walked aloof, serene,
In this, her little world, having gone hence
To her long rest, had left this garden's space
Ownerless for all time. No more, no more,
Her slender feet leave prints on dewy grass
In early dawn. None other takes her place.
The shuttered window and the guarded door
Alone keep vigil as the slow years pass.

Horse Show Is Top Attraction of Beverly Set

BEVERLY, MASS.

Highlighting the week for Chicago sojourners along the Massachusetts north shore will be the annual horse show of the famous Myopia Hunt club to be staged next Saturday at the polo fields of the club in Hamilton. Always a colorful as well as a thrilling picture, featuring as it does the hunters, the show will bring out one of the largest galleries in years, with all the resort colonies represented. It will be a gay occasion, with a dinner-dance at the club, one of the oldest hunt clubs in the country, and much entertaining in the shore and country homes, especially in the Myopia district.

Events of interest last week for sport lovers included golf and tennis at the Myopia and Essex Country clubs, the annual fair of the Essex County Agricultural society at Topsfield, in which summer folks take an active part, and yacht races at Marblehead, Beverly, Manchester, and Gloucester. For the social calendar the north shore summer theaters continued to draw fine gatherings. A fashion show was held at the Seven Pines home of Mrs. B. Preston Cutler in Larch Row, Wenham, for the benefit of the Beverly branch of the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children and the presentation last night of "Yes, My Darling Daughter" by the Ipswich Parish Players.

The hunting season at Myopia opened this week and will continue until the snow flies. Meets of the drag and fox hounds are held weekly with morning and afternoon runs alternating. The Myopia country, with its hills and dales, is ideal for hunting. Gordon C. Prince is master of the Myopia hounds. The Myopia pack is one of the finest in the country. Hunting has been carried on as a fall sport for more than 60 years. The picturesque club is the center of activity, and during the season there is much entertaining by members.

For those interested in yachting the Sears Cup races off Gloucester provided enjoyment. The races were under the auspices of the Eastern Point Yacht club and the winner was the Eastern Yacht club of Marblehead. There were eight clubs represented from many sections of the country. The trophy was presented by Herbert M. Sears, former commodore of the Eastern Yacht club. Robert C. Mechem of Chicago and Annisquam was active in making arrangements for the races.

For the Chicago sojourners along the north shore the September art shows and exhibitions offer some of the season's best in oils, water colors, and etchings. It is at these exhibitions that much of the work done in the artist colonies during the summer is shown. There are exhibits this month at the Rockport Art association, the East Gloucester society, the Gloucester Society of Artists, and the Marblehead Arts association. There is a happy social side to these exhibitions with teas served in the afternoon. Mr. and Mrs. James Clement Dunn [Mary Armour] of Washington, D. C., are at their Arbor Vitea cottage at Smith's Point, Manchester, for a late season stay. Gen. and Mrs. Clarence C. Williams of Washington are to spend the late season at their Sagamore farm estate in the Myopia district at Hamilton.

Many English children are to find refuge in north shore homes. Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Winthrop are to have a number at the Groton Hall estate in Hamilton. Miss Helen Frick is to have a large group at her Eagle Rock estate at Pride's Crossing.

An engagement of Chicago interest, that of Miss Nancy Burrage, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Cameron Burrage of Candlewood Farm, Ipswich, to William Bowers Chace, son of Mrs. David Boyd of Long Beach, Cal., and the late Radcliff Chace, has just been announced. Miss Burrage, a member of the Junior League and Vincent clubs, is a cousin of Francis Chalifoux, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Chalifoux of Willowbank, Beverly Cove, whose engagement to Miss Evelyn Lilly, daughter of Mrs. Frederick Clay Bartlett of Chicago and Beverly Cove, was recently announced. Mr. Chace is a graduate of Phillips Exeter academy and Harvard university. A spring wedding is planned.

Mrs. William Kennard Kenly and her debutante granddaughter, Miss Mary Ann Wyman of Chicago, gave a luncheon Wednesday at "Hyghe Contente," the Kenly summer home at West Manchester, in honor of Miss Mary Coolidge, debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Coolidge Jr. of Manchester.

George H. Swift Jr. of Chicago has been visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George H. Swift, at the North Shore Country club, after a cruise along the Maine coast to Bar Harbor. The Swifts for many seasons summered at Beverly Farms where they had the Synditha Terrace cottage of Sydney E. Hutchinson of Philadelphia.

Miss Nancy Leiter and her mother, Mrs. Joseph Leiter, are planning to be on the north shore until late in the autumn when they will return to their Dupont Circle home in Washington for the winter.

New Luncheon Cloth.

A new luncheon cloth, coated with a synthetic called koroseal, is said to resist spots, stains, water, acids, and fire.

Home Owners' Queries

Chicago—[To the Home Building Editor.]—Which is the best color of shellac to use on a wood floor before waxing—white or orange? Can a "handy woman" do a good job of sandpapering a floor with a brick wrapped in sandpaper or should I use a polishing machine? JANE T.

Answer: White shellac will leave your wood floor practically the same shade as before, since it is colorless. Orange shellac will not turn it "orange," as the name suggests, but will merely deepen the shade of the wood. Experiment on a board if you are not sure which you prefer. "Sandpapering machines" are work savers, but if you have persistence and strength and are willing to rub and rub you can do a nice piece of work with brick and sandpaper.

Wisconsin-Born Chicagoans Form New Organization

Mrs. Reed Myers.

In May Mrs. H. T. Berg wrote to The Voice of the People suggesting the need of a club for Wisconsin natives now, like herself, living in Chicago. Within a few hours she had telephone calls from 10 would-be members. There were 20 at the organization meeting of the Wisconsin Women of Chicagoland in June. Tomorrow evening some 40 women are expected to attend the group's first dinner meeting at 6:15 o'clock at the Central Eleanor clubrooms, 16 North Wabash avenue.

Mrs. Reed Myers, 552 Brompton avenue, one of the first to respond to Mrs. Berg's suggestion, and now president of the club, will conduct the meeting. William H. Haight, president of the Wisconsin Men's society, will speak, and Mrs. Donnel C. Howe will review a book by a Wisconsin author.

Only Wisconsin born women are eligible to join the club, which will sponsor philanthropic as well as social activities. Mrs. Berg is vice president, and Mrs. Melville A. Nelson, Mrs. Elsa DeMare, and Mrs. Alfred G. La Barge are other officers.

Day to Bring Dedication of Catholic Home

With the dedication of Chicago's first Catholic home for crippled children this afternoon on the grounds of St. Mary of Providence institute, a dream of the sisters and their friends will be realized. The Most Rev. Samuel A. Stritch, archbishop of Chicago, will be the principal speaker, and the Catholic Casino male chorus of more than 50 voices will provide a program. The outdoor ceremony will begin at 3 o'clock.

Mrs. Emma Huising Wall.

For several years Mrs. Emma Huising Wall, supreme grand lady of the Ladies of Isabella and president of the St. Mary of Providence auxiliary, has directed the efforts of both organizations to obtain a cottage for the crippled children at the institute.

• • •

The building is a modern adaptation of the mission style, furnished with every possible convenience for 40 children. They will take possession immediately after the dedication.

The living room is furnished in warm beige, yellow, and rust tones, with tall windows on three sides to flood it with sunlight. A wood burning fireplace, book shelves just the right height for the children, and reading lamps make the room particularly homelike. In the dormitories counterpanes match the rose and green window draperies. There is a playroom, and a large swimming tank soon is to be installed.

Sister Mary, superior of St. Mary of Providence institute, and Sister Clare, directress, with Mrs. Wall have arranged the dedication ceremony. Chairmen of assisting committees are Miss Margaret M. Dasse, Mrs. Cecelia Vandervoort, Miss Marie Zimmerman, Miss Anne F. Horne, Mrs. Mabel Powers, Mrs. Berenice Tucker, Mrs. Margaret Thommes, Miss Anne M. Pontius, and Miss Mary M. Mutterer.

Miss Rose Ottenfeld was elected president of the B'nai B'rith Junior council of district six at its recent Chicago convention. Miss Ottenfeld had served the council previously as corresponding secretary for two years and trustee for one year, and had been president of the Albany Park juniors.

Miss Rose Ottenfeld.

Other Chicagoans elected to offices were Miss Mary Koss, second vice president; Miss Shirley Berinstein, third vice president; Miss Ann Zamek, corresponding secretary; Miss Annette Goldstein, financial secretary; Miss Phyllis Fogelman, treasurer; Miss Florence Rothstein, Miss Racille Miller, Miss Adrienne Narens, trustees; Miss Dorothy Schimel, councillor; and Miss Ruth Vinikar, honorary junior council president.

Chicago members of the council are Miss Ann Roth, Miss Marsha Bellas, Miss Miriam Bernstein, Miss Elizabeth Szega, Miss Jerry Simon, Miss Lillian Needleman, and Miss Lorraine Berinstein.

Besides contributing to various projects of B'nai B'rith the council undertook to contribute to the Red Cross and to blood transfusion funds for the National Jewish hospital at Denver and the Leo N. Levi hospital at Hot Springs, Ark. The juniors also will maintain a refugee student scholarship fund, and will support a student at the University of Illinois. District six includes 22 junior auxiliaries of the midwest and Canada numbering some 2,000 girls.

Plans for its annual benefit will be discussed by the Adolph Kraus women's auxiliary of B'nai B'rith at its first meeting of the season at 1:30 o'clock Wednesday at the Palmer House. Mrs. Florence Bourke Ellis will discuss her recent trip to South America. The benefit will be a minstrel and dance, to be held Dec. 1 at the Drake hotel, with Mrs. Abbie Shoen as general chairman. Mrs. Helen Rothschild heads the group.

Another early winter benefit, an $11 plate luncheon and fashion show, will be discussed by the board of directors of the B. M. Z. Woman's club at a luncheon tomorrow at the Old People's home. The club, which contributes to the support of the home, will sponsor the luncheon and fashion show Dec. 2 at the Drake hotel. Mrs. Benjamin Sherry will be chairman. Mr. and Mrs. Michael Gidwitz will be hosts to the board at luncheon tomorrow. Mrs. Samuel Hokin is the club's new president.

With its annual show in mind Ruth lodge, No. 139, Free Sons of Israel, is calling its meeting next Sunday evening a pre-rehearsal rally. The show will be sponsored by the Ruth lodge and the Ruth league Oct. 27 at the Civic Opera house under Howard Tooley's direction. Rehearsals will start Sept. 16 at the Medical and Dental Arts building. The rally next Sunday will be held at the Free Sons clubrooms, 316 North Michigan avenue. Dancing, cards, and refreshments will be in order.

Dunham Woods Horse Show to Be Held Today

By Judith Cass.

The day will start bright and early for horse show enthusiasts, for the annual Dunham Woods Riding club horse show that is being held today in Wayne will commence at 8:30 o'clock this morning. There are 19 different classes in the show, so an early start was necessary if the final events are to be finished in daylight.

The noon luncheon period was shortened considerably this year, so there will not be time for the usual luncheon parties. The contestants and many of the spectators undoubtedly had their fill of gayety, for a few hours at least, at a horse show ball held last night at the club, where the merriment continued until the wee sma' hours. This afternoon, after the last ribbon is awarded, the merriment will be continued at the Arthur Farwells' house where Mr. and Mrs. Farwell will be entertaining at cocktails for the exhibitors.

The show is being held in a new ring down in the meadows farther away from the clubhouse than the old one. The time honored custom of watching from cars parked around the ring is being continued, however, and there will be many picnicking parties around the automobiles. Of especial interest in the Dunham Woods show will be the class for hunt teams in which members of the Wayne, the Longmeadow, and the Onwentsia hunts will ride. A class for hunters and one for members of families riding together are other highlights. The Wayne fire department will receive the proceeds from the show, which is the 9th annual one.

The second week of September finds the usual round of autumn committee meetings and benefit-conscious organizations getting up full steam ahead. The Evanston Junior league's first fall meeting will be held tomorrow at the Georgian hotel. The meeting will not mark the start of the league's fall activities, however, for members have been busy as bees during the last few weeks preparing for the reopening of Thrift house, which is to be managed by them this year. The grand opening is set for Sept. 16.

The Fashion group is to have a luncheon meeting at the Drake on Tuesday. Lois Barnes will clarify fashion trends in a lecture on "Fashion is Different," which will be illustrated by models. That show, in which the models will be professionals, and one at the Deerpath inn on Thursday in which amateurs will show clothes, will interest especially the women in charge of the St. Luke's fashion show, to be held on Oct. 15. The fashion show committee keeps an eagle eye out for modeling talent at this time of the year. The committee will meet on Wednesday morning at the Lake Forest home of Mrs. Huntington B. Henry to give reports. Mrs. Henry will entertain her fellow workers at luncheon. The St. Luke's show will be held at the Stevens hotel.

• • •

The Chicago Junior league's offices in the Drake were opened last week. The league's Children's theater workshop will be opened on the 16th and members of the theater department will start preparing scenery and costumes for the fall play, "Sambo and the Tigers," which is to open on Oct. 19 in Winnetka.

The Service club, too, is keeping an interested eye on debutantes of the season.

A second full week of debut parties will continue the merry autumn whirl for young women who are entering adult society this season. Miss Janet Jenkins is to have a luncheon party for the buds of the season on Tuesday at the Winnetka home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Austin D. Jenkins. That afternoon Miss Martha Stevens will bow at a tea at the Lake Forest home of her mother, Mrs. M. Simpson Stevens.

Other young women who will have parties during the week are Miss Helen Chancellor, Miss Alice Harvey, Miss Helen Ruth Clayton, Miss Barbara Warner, Miss Patricia Cathcart, Miss Mary Adams, Miss Harriet Case, and Miss Betty Butler.

MARRIED ON JUNE 29

September Brings Three Events to the Garden Club

September brings three events of interest to the Garden Club of Illinois. Tomorrow the Glen Ellyn Garden club will be hostess to the state organization at a luncheon meeting at the Glen Oak Country club. Mrs. Charles Clarahan of Glen Ellyn will speak on "Grandmother's Garden in Glass."

The second annual presidents' luncheon, to which presidents of all member clubs in the Garden Club of Illinois are invited, will be held Monday, Sept. 16, at the Lake Shore Athletic club. In round table discussion preceding luncheon, plans for the 1941 Chicago flower show will be announced, and schedules will be given to the presidents. The show will be held March 28 to April 5 at Navy pier.

B. Y. Morrison of Washington, D. C., will lecture under the Garden club's auspices Tuesday afternoon, Sept. 24, at the Palmer House. A member of the American Horticultural society, Mr. Morrison will discuss "Fundamentals of Horticulture." Mrs. Warren W. Shoemaker of Hubbard Woods is president of the Garden Club of Illinois.

New Hampshire Resort Auction Aids Red Cross

WHITE MOUNTAINS, N. H.

Mrs. Ernest Poole, chairman, and members of her committee, who worked untiringly for the success of an auction held Friday at the Red Cross workrooms in Franconia, well may feel gratified at the result. More than $1,400 was raised. The chapter, formed this season and having members of the summer colony as workers, has been judged best appointed and most efficiently operated of all state units and also ranks first in production. Miss Bette Davis, screen star, modeled gowns which were sold. Summer residents who acted as auctioneers were Fletcher Brown, John B. Cornell Jr., and George E. Clark.

Mrs. John G. M. Glessner opened her summer home, The Ledges, for the annual meeting of the women's auxiliary of the Littleton hospital on Monday. Miss Emily Glessner resigned as vice president, an office she has held for the last two years. The Glessner gardens are counted the most beautiful in this region, as are the wild gardens along the stone walled Glessner roads.

Mrs. Howell B. Erminger Jr. of Chicago was a guest hostess presiding at one of the tea tables at the Mountain View house, Whitefield, on Saturday when the holiday crowd, driven in by rain, filled the foyer. Noted there also were Miss Helen M. Wadsworth and Mr. and Mrs. Walter E. Miller of Chicago, who are spending the autumn there.

At the Mount Washington are Mrs. William C. Thresher of Chicago, Mr. and Mrs. Dwight Dean and Miss Dean of Glencoe, Mr. and Mrs. William C. Findlay Jr., Mrs. John Michel, and John Michel Jr. of Chicago, Mrs. W. H. Brown and Miss Ruth Colman of Park Ridge, Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Place of Chicago, Miss Helen J. Compere of Kenilworth, and Mrs. Curtice Dodge of Chicago.

Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Donahue have arrived at the Forest Hills hotel, Franconia. They attended the horse show given by the Forest Hills Riding club on Monday for the benefit of the Littleton hospital. Miss Emily Glessner has headed a committee of the White Mountain Garden club for landscaping and planting the hospital grounds.

• • •

The secretary of labor, Madam Frances Perkins, paid a short annual visit to Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Poole this week-end. Mr. Poole has been busy autographing his new book at the local bookshop at Littleton, where it is best seller of the month. Members of the Poole family attended the annual luncheon of the Profile Golf club on Monday, later playing in tennis and golf events there.

Clotilde Children's Patterns

Particularly for young scholars is the princess style dress appropriate. There's an air about such a frock that is a blend of both tailored detail and dressiness. Depending upon the fabric selected, this dress may be for party wear or for classroom.

Sketched at the left is a version with scalloped "wings" at the shoulders and contrasting collar and cuffs which echo the scallops. The buttons are used only on the bodice. This is a delightful model in either wool or silk crêpe, and pastels and bright colors are equally as smart as navy, brown or black.

Right hand illustration: A version with buttons all the way down the front in true princess style, with long, full sleeves captured into snug wristbands, and a contrasting collar. The same materials suggested for the other version are "tops" for this one, too.

Style No. 3450 is designed for sizes 10, 12, 14 and 16. Size 12 requires 3 yards of 39 inch material for short-sleeved dress; 3½ yards for long-sleeved version.

Address orders for Clotilde Children's Fashions to Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central annex, NEW YORK CITY, inclosing 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred — wrap it carefully) for each pattern ordered. IMPORTANT! Be certain to state clearly the number of the pattern and the size desired, and write your name and address plainly.

Can one dress be worth $3,000?

Decide for yourself—at the Chicago Tribune's American Fashion Show to be held October 2 in the W-G-N audience studio. On display will be the winning original models in the Tribune's $7,500.00 American Fashions competition.

Tickets for reserved seats, available only by mail, are now on sale. Price, afternoon show, $1 each; evening show, $2 each. Kruger Park Is World's Finest Game Preserve

By Mason Warner.

The greatest wild game sanctuary in the world dates back to 1898, when Oom Paul Kruger, president of the Transvaal republic, proclaimed an area of 1,500 square miles to be devoted to the preservation of the animal life of Africa. The Boer war upset the original plans, but the project was resumed by the British in 1902, and since then the development of the project makes it one of the world's wonders.

KRUGER PARK, TRANSVAAL, SOUTH AFRICA.

Additions to the original territory make Kruger National park today a domain of 880,000 square miles, or more than 5,000,000 acres—as large as Massachusetts and four times as big as Delaware, and eight times the area of Rhode Island.

• • •

For more than 15 years the park was closed to the public to give the animals an opportunity to multiply. Early surveys showed there were too many carnivorous beasts to preserve the proper balance with the herbivorous, for, while man did not prey upon them, the animals preyed upon one another. So the wardens went in with guns and thinned out the flesh eating lions to such an extent that they would not wipe out the vegetarian antelopes, zebras, wildebeest, and others of the carnivora's daily menu.

It is estimated that the offspring of 1,000 deer or similar animals will provide one adult lion with food in regular supply. At any rate, the proper balance appears to have been attained. The 1939 census, estimated section by section and checked by airplane observation, gives 1,500 as the number of lions roaming the wilds.

"The sanctuary," says a government publication, "if it is broadly considered, harbors half a million antelopes of all ranks."

After the animal paradise had remained closed and undisturbed for 15 years, men blazed trails and opened roads thru it. There are now 850 miles of motor roads open to visitors. For several years closed cars traversed the roads to accustom the beasts to the sight, sound, and scent of automobiles. They know that motor cars are not good to eat, and experience has taught them they have nothing to fear from attack. Apparently they do not associate a car with man, and show no fear at the near approach of one.

The rules governing the area are rigidly enforced. Since under no circumstances are the animals to be disturbed or frightened, no person is permitted to get out of a car on a trip thru the park. The car must not leave the road, or chase an animal on the road. Speed limit, 25 miles an hour. Dogs are not allowed; wardens shoot them on sight. No firearms can be taken.

No one may sleep elsewhere than at a rest camp, of which there are five, protected against wild beasts by stockades. All visitors must be within the inclosures half an hour after sunset, and may not leave earlier than half an hour before sunrise. Camps are in telephonic communication with one another. When a car leaves in the morning its destination is recorded and telephoned ahead. If it does not reach there by sunset a rescue crew goes after it.

There have been remarkably few accidents to visitors. Two weeks before we went in two native boys had been fatally mauled by a lion. One of them was sleeping so near the stockade that the lion could reach him. The other was killed when he went to the rescue of the first.

The camps consist of a number of round huts, with walls of concrete and thatched roofs. They are ventilated and clean, and furnished with simple bedsteads, washstands, tables, camp chairs, benches, and hurricane lamps. My daughter and I stayed over night in four different camps and suffered no inconvenience. The food was wholesome, but limited in variety. We slept soundly, tho awakened several times by lions roaring at the stockades.

• • •

The greater part of Kruger lies in the Low Veld of the Transvaal, in a region not suitable to white settlement, owing to the prevalence of malarial disease. Only a small section—that near the Pretorius Kop gate—is open to visitors the year round. The main part—more than 90 per cent—is open from the first part of June thru October, the South African winter season.

In 1928 the park was opened to the public for the first time, and 200 motor cars entered to view what was and still is a virgin wilderness, for the few camps and winding trails are not sufficient to change its appearance or character. In 1929 800 cars registered. Last year 4,000 cars brought more than 12,000 visitors.

Nowhere else in the world can be found wild animals in such number and variety. Perhaps some readers will not believe me when I write that on our first day's drive from Pretorius Kop gate to Skukuza rest camp we saw out of our car window lions, giraffes, wart hogs, zebras, gnus or wildebeests, kudu and impala, antelopes, baboons, monkeys, tsessebe, hartebeests, one leopard, two hyenas, and birds and insects of strange species.

• • •

Only once did we leave the car, and that was, of course, with our guide's permission. We walked 100 yards to the Hippo pool on the Sabi river and beheld a score of hippopotami slowly wading about, half submerged in the water, and basking in the sun. Three were extraordinarily large beasts.

"That fellow there," said our guide, pointing to one, "will weigh no less than three tons."

I am certain he told the truth.

WHEN CALIFORNIANS GO "NATIVE"

Plan a Winter Sun Carnival in So. California

Going on the theory that travel is a necessity, rather than a luxury, and that in these exciting times a periodic vacation is the best possible antidote for cases of bad nerves, Southern California has set up a rest cure for overworked business and professional men. The cure will take the form of a winter sun carnival.

Don Thomas, managing director of the All-Year Club of Southern California, told a group of newspaper men and railroad officials about it last Tuesday at a luncheon at the Chicago Athletic club.

• • •

"This winter we will have a sunshine cure for the war jitters," he said. "For business men fagged by the unusual demands and worries of the times, we will urge a trip to the Pacific southwest, there to relax and enjoy our All-Winter Sun carnival."

"With attention focussing upon America as one of the happiest places on earth at the present time, it has become almost a patriotic duty to travel in America and thus know America. A trip to southern California offers most persons the broadest possible picture of the nation, and this winter will be an especially opportune time to take such a trip.

"The carnival opens Nov. 1. Between that date and April 1 there will be 300 events—pageants, fiestas, rodeos, fairs, flower shows and athletic contests. These will take place on the beaches, in the valleys, on the deserts and mountains. There will be events almost daily.

• • •

"Among the fêtes scheduled for November are the Mexican fiestas along the border country, the flower shows and an exhibit of the Will Rogers ranch home in the movie colony.

"Santa Anita Park racetrack opens in December, and there are ski sports in the mountain snows a short time later.

"For the Christmas season, Southern California will have miles of lighted trees, and numerous fiestas. On Jan. 1 Pasadena's Tournament of Roses and Rose Bowl football game move into the spotlight.

"The Chinese colony, oil, oranges, Hollywood, the desert, and dozens of other phases of our region are to be featured."

Mr. Thomas related that his organization was one of the first to start a nation-wide advertising campaign telling of its regional attractions. Forty-one states have followed suit. Last winter Southern California entertained 1,700,000 visitors. Its tourist industry thereupon became its second biggest—with oil first, movies third, and citrus growing fourth.

"It don't know of a better means of preparing Americans for any eventuality than to have them get out into their own country and evaluate it," he said. "Once they realize how big it is, and how tremendous are its possibilities, they will know it is worth defending. We believe campaigns such as ours are making better Americans of all of us."

• • •

He added that transportation agencies, such as the railroads, air lines, bus lines, and intercoastal steamship lines, were joining in the campaign, and that the carnival promised to become one of the biggest opportunities in the history of the travel business.

"We are making it plain that a trip to our part of the country is an investment in physical and mental health," he said. "The mental attitude of a person is largely controled by his surroundings— and we believe we have the best of surroundings. With more than 300 events highlighting our winter carnival program, we are going to see to it that we make every possible contribution to the national welfare."

Lakeside Bids Summer Adieu at Barn Dance

By Lolita Linn.

LAKESIDE, MICH.

"Swing your partners—promenade all." To the tunes of "Turkey in the Straw" and "Darktown Strutters' Ball," Lakeside said its gay farewell to summer. From the first even unto the third generation, summer residents were almost resigned to return to the calm of city life after a Labor day week-end of intensive barn dancing.

The Chikaming Country club closed its 1940 social season with a barn dance done in the best tradition of overalls and straw in the hair; while the next night, the Fred P. Warrens rendered a slightly more sophisticated version as a housewarming for what started out to be a garage and ended up as an artistic achievement.

A French-Norman landowner of the 1600s would have thought three centuries too short a time in which to build an ancestral court. The Warrens have built theirs in less than three years, but they have wrought as painstakingly in their own workshop and forge as did the medieval craftsmen, and they have adhered to the same rigid standard of working only with materials and artisans native to the region.

Some of the beautifully darkened beams of the court came out of an old wagon shop, one of the first in the state, at Buchanan, Mich. The bricks owe much of their oddity in tone and texture to having served for many years as fire brick in an old brick kiln in Indiana. And the blacksmith who forged the ornamental iron work, after designs created by Fred Warren, learned his art in Czecho-Slovakia, and came to his new home in Michigan never daring to hope that he would find there an American carrying on the dreams of the old world.

The Fred Warrens were long-time residents of Evanston, altho they now claim Lakeside as their year-round home. Among their many Chicago friends who came out for the party were the Charles Pajeaus and the Arthur Frosts of Evanston, the Stuart Templetons of Lake Forest, the Harry Applegates, the Winn Moores, and the Walter Kleins of Chicago.

The guests danced in the courtyard with its semi-circular backdrop of tall trees and swarmed from the root cellar to the great garage—transformed by firelight, flickering tapers and enormous dahlias into a reception room. They climbed up a covered stairway illuminated by an old chateau lantern to a storeroom large enough to hold a plentiful harvest and across a hooded walk, which looks out on the tiny white gates of the garden, to a guest chamber with all the makings of a mystery story. In its ceiling is a concealed stairway which leads to the tower and the giant weights of an old French clock.

Among the guests from the Lakeside summer colony were Chief Justice Francis S. Wilson and Mrs. Wilson, the Raymond E. Dalys, Mrs. Percival B. Palmer Jr., the Ernest J. Stevenses, Eugene H. Garnett, Mrs. Douglas K. Huntress, Mrs. William Lewis, Mrs. R. W. Parker, the Ralph J. Foleys, and the Stanley D. Faircloughs. Stanley Fairclough, whose banjo would start the most conservative person "swinging," has designed many of the beautiful homes in Lakeside. He started his Labor day week-end sailing on the Souther Cross on the first leg of the "three-legged race" from Chicago to St. Joseph to Michigan City.

Lakeside cherishes the tradition of the far-away western ranches. Three generations show up for the dances, and it is impossible to say who has the best time, grandfather or granddaughter. Some of the charming portraits from the Chikaming country club barn dance: the Walter C. Warrens square dancing with their children and grandchildren—Louise Warren Tremaine's bucolic costume, complete with pipe and little brown jug, was the sensation of the evening; pretty Courtney Ann Reid waltzing with her father, Leonard C. Reid; Herbert Taylor Jr., director of the show, telling stories of Paul Bunyan and the great Round River drive—how that man can tell 'em; Franja Hutchins square dancing— she learned how at school in Arizona; Mrs. Paul S. Russell, whose five children frolic all summer at Lakeside, doing a rustic dance; Mrs. George L. Cragg with her two tall sons, Thomas and Richard—Richard had just received his ensign's commission in the naval reserve; Virginia Shilton, mistress of ceremonies, leading the "corny kids;" Peggy Parker, demure in a blue and white pinafore, dancing with Robert Brinker of Evanston; Mrs. Harold J. Gordon promenading with her twins, Hal and Frances; Francis Wilson Jr. of Winnetka jitterbugging in approved 1940 style.

Francis Wilson, who is a third generation Lakesider—his grandmother, Mrs. Thomas J. O'Connor, was one of the first to build a summer home here—has spent his summer entertaining a group of small boys. He enters Yale as a freshman this fall.

The Leonard C. Reids of Chicago entertained their neighbors of Lakeside last Sunday morning at a trout breakfast. Mr. Reid, who was Thomas E. Dewey's Illinois campaign manager, had just returned from Wagon Wheel Gap, Colo., where Gen. Charles G. Dawes had taken a party of his friends trout fishing. While he was in Colorado, Gen. Dawes celebrated his 75th birthday by catching a 2½ pound rainbow beauty.

• • •

The Reids occupy one of the two large homes belonging to the Orvis T. Henkles situated at the very tip of Eighteen-mile Point, 123 steps above the beach. Mr. Henkle likes to tell how the local antihorsethief association used to hold its annual picnics on his property; and if he is urged, he will show you the old beech tree which the association is supposed to have used in its occasional hanging bees. The Winslow Henkles and Mrs. Henkle's mother, Mrs. Charles Brintnall, occupy a cottage in Mr. Henkle's park which is distinguished for its roses and its wide variety of native trees.

Near neighbors of the Henkles are the Wallace B. Wolffs, whose two houses and large grounds were formerly owned by the W. T. and Howard Fentons.

Long Campaign to Get 'Cave of Enchantment'

By Alden Powell.

MAMMOTH CAVE, KY.

Recent announcement of the discovery of miles of hitherto unknown avenues in Mammoth cave has called attention to the history and present status of these world famous "caverns of enchantment."

Legend has it that Mammoth was discovered in 1809 when a hunter named Houchins pursued a wounded bear into the entrance. Authorities, however, believe the cave was known to white men as early as 1799, and that it had been used by Indians for many years prior to that. It is regarded as probable that trees and underbrush hid the entrance prior to its recorded discovery.

• • •

Long known as a tourist attraction, the area was not incorporated into the national park system until a few years ago. Before that it was owned and operated by private interests.

The history of the park project is roughly divided into three eras: that of promotion, that of acquisition, and that of operation. The first period was civic; the second and third were combined civic and governmental. All told, they cover 16 years.

In 1924 the Mammoth Cave National Park association was organized in Bowling Green, Ky. In 1926 congress passed a bill designating the area as suitable for national park status and outlining a maximum district of 70,618 acres. A provision in the bill set forth that if a minimum of 45,310 acres, including all the caves, were to be acquired and donated to the federal government by the state of Kentucky the area would be made into a people's playground. It was further stipulated that when 20,000 acres had been acquired the government would take over the property for administration and protection, but not for development.

In 1927 and 1928 a campaign for private subscriptions was waged by the association. It resulted in a total of $800,000, of which more than $600,000 has been collected.

After having been run privately for more than a hundred years, the cave, with its spectacular formations, emerald waters, and such weird phenomena as Echo river, Dead sea, and Purgatory slough, thus entered the final stages of the long campaign to turn it over to the people as a part of the public domain.

The story from 1927 to the beginning of 1940 is told by W. W. Thompson, general manager of the operating committee.

"It soon became apparent," he says, "that additional funds would be necessary, and that the group formed at Bowling Green had no power of condemnation. Therefore, at the instance of the association the state legislature in 1928 passed an act creating the Kentucky national park commission, to be appointed by the governor. This commission was given an appropriation of $30,000 to survey the situation and find out how much money would be needed to complete the project. This amount had been variously estimated at from $2,000,000 to $4,000,000.

"With the funds it had raised the association, on Jan. 1, 1929, bought a two-thirds interest in the Mammoth Cave estate, which owned the old part of the cave. The price was $446,400. From that date until 1933 a subcommittee from the association, acting with a representative of the one-third interest still unacquired, operated the old portion.

"In 1930 the legislature passed an act appropriating to the Kentucky national park commission 8 per cent of the ad valorem tax for the following two years. It was understood that all money appropriated would be used for the actual cost of the land and for court costs. This resulted in the sum of approximately $1,380,000.

"In 1934 the legislature made a further appropriation of $250,000, and soon after that President Roosevelt allocated to the project the sum of $300,000 from reforestation funds for the purchase of lands.

"In order to acquire the remaining one-third of the old entrance, the commission condemned the entire cave in 1930. On Jan. 4, 1931, it bought the new entrance — now known as Frozen Niagara — for $290,000. From that date to 1933 Frozen Niagara was operated by a committee of the commission, and the old entrance was run by a committee of the association. In 1933 the two bodies formed a joint committee to operate both entrances, and this arrangement is still in effect.

• • •

"It was obvious that the commission was not having any great success in condemnation suits, since these had to be brought in local courts. So it was apparent that land probably would never be acquired unless this obligation were assumed by the federal government. In that way the condemnation proceedings could be started in federal court.

"On May 28, 1934, the national park service agreed to take over the task of buying the land. It was agreed that all funds and properties belonging to the commission and the association should be turned over to the park service, and that their leases would be canceled.

"Since then the federal authorities have been buying the necessary additional lands, and the cave properties have been managed by the operating committee.

"On May 22, 1936, the park was formally accepted by the secretary of the interior for administration and protection and given the status of a national park, with the understanding that no regular government funds would be forthcoming until all lands had been acquired.

"Since 1934 the operating committee has turned about $400,000 over to the park service, this to be used for purchasing property and making necessary improvements. These improvements have been obtained at nominal cost—due to the coöperation of the CCC, which now numbers about 600 boys, within the park.

"As a result of this coöperation Mammoth is many years ahead in its development, as compared with other new national parks. The properties taken over from private interests were almost unsuitable for use. Since they have been under the new type of operation these improvements to take care of the traveling public have been made: Mammoth Cave hotel rebuilt, and refurnished with modern equipment; building of new cave trails and remodeling of lighting system; 10 new cottages and 31 cabin homes built; amphitheater, tennis courts, shuffleboard courts, and surface trails constructed; remodeling of Frozen Niagara entrance.

"The present status of the project is that practically all funds have been exhausted. It is understood that approximately $175,000 will be needed to enable the national park service to complete its purchasing program, and there seems to be no way to obtain this money except from future earnings of the cave properties. These earnings range from $50,000 to $90,000 annually.

"Under the arrangement now in effect, all money sent to Washington is earmarked for the benefit of Mammoth Cave National park. When taken over by the government, the park will be dependent on congressional appropriations."

THE LAKE OF THE TORCH.

Lac du Flambeau, Wis., Aug. 27.—To the Travel Editor: We noted, in last SUNDAY'S TRIBUNE, a splendid article by Anson Brown under the heading: "Life Is Casual in Wisconsin's North Woods."

We wish to thank you for the consideration given us. We believe we really have something here at Lac du Flambeau. Your paper's wonderful coöperation, by means of articles appearing from time to time, has enabled us to bring our attractions to the attention of the traveling public. This pleases us, who are endeavoring to make each visitor's vacation a pleasant one.

APPRECIATION.

Oak Park, Ill., Sept. 1.—To the Travel Editor: Just a word of appreciation of your series of letters on Guatemala. Your articles have augmented my record of names, places, and pronunciations, and I find them highly convenient when I make my amateurish talks in connection with parlor showings of my colored slides.

Mrs. Foster and I toured Guatemala two years ago. In last SUNDAY'S TRIBUNE I noted your reference to highland fishermen. Mr. Logan, of Clark's Tours, told me that there are no fish in Lake Atitlan, for the probable reason that there are no shallows in which they can spawn.

Just Where Is the Gold Buried by Senor Diaz?

MEXICO CITY, MEXICO.

A few men become legends either during their lifetime or shortly thereafter. One was Pancho Villa. Another was President Porfirio Diaz. Just before he began his revolutionary coup meant to oust the elected president, Lerdo de Tejada, Diaz betook himself, so legend has it, to an obscure mountain top near Tehuacan, and there, with the help of a guide, Juan Hernandez, buried several trunkloads of gold and silver ingots. He would, he said, send for them if he failed in his plan to overcome the established government and take charge himself. He had little difficulty overthrowing Lerdo de Tejada and soon began a series of presidencies. Mexico now has a law forbidden reëlection. [It is based on the almost absolute dictatorship Diaz built up by his recurring elections.]

• • •

But he never came back for his treasure. And, to all intents and purposes, there it is still, for Juan Hernandez died not long after he had helped hide it, passing along his knowledge of the buried gold and silver to his children only.

If the children really knew where it was, presumably they would have dug it up. They are not rich and, tho members of the Hernandez family think they know where the treasure is, they do not produce it.

So, along the lonely mountain tops bordering Puebla and Oaxaca states, many a man with a spade may be seen working in the earth, while others burrow in old libraries looking for maps, reading old diaries, and in general dedicating themselves to the romantic work of the treasure seeker.

• • •

Mexico is studded with localities supposed to hold buried treasures. The routes of the gold trains from Zacatecas, the vicinity of Mexico where the Aztecs may have hidden gold and jewels, the beaches at Campeche and Acapulco, which galleons and pirates knew, the barren Mexican islands—all are suspect of hiding wealth.

Real treasure, when it is archaeological in interest and value, is immediately claimed by the Mexican government. Were it not for this, the Monte Alban finds would have made a millionaire out of their discoverer.

Perhaps it's their freshness, their new furnishings, their spacious arrangements, their scrupulous cleanliness, the unusual lobby and service, or perhaps it's a combination of these things. In any event, it's worth your while to see a Coronado apartment. You be the judge.

NEAR NORTH SIDE
If you are planning on keeping fit this winter by walking to and from your office every day, on having a fireplace and reading a lot of books, and on attending theaters and concerts and still getting a full night's sleep, you can do all this quite easily if you live on Cook Estate properties, just a few blocks north of the river on or near N. Michigan-av. One has a tremendous 37 ft. living room flooded with light, and no one to bother you after 6 p. m. A 5 room so quiet you can't believe you are in Chicago; others have 2 story living rooms and another like a little French peasant house in a group of six, heated and serviced by us. Some of these are furnished and still others are very reasonable in price.

A MODERN brick 2 flat; a home for yourself, an income from your tenant, no janitor service, because there are two heating plants. These important advantages will give you a home that pays for itself. That's home buying comfort at its best.

A very modest down payment and the balance for buyer to pay after collecting rent from tenant is far, far below rent value from your apartment.

Day by Day on the Farm

By BOB BECKER

Overture to Autumn

Sept. 7, 1940.

WHEN the temperature rises in early September and a warm sun carries a definite suggestion of summer's return, the outdoor fan has only to look closely at the farm landscape to find the telltale evidence that these balmy days are just a sort of overture to autumn. The new season merely is taking its time before it dominates the scene.

The soft haze that spreads over the landscape at twilight . . . the chirping of crickets . . . thornapples ripening and slowly turning red . . . brilliant cardinal flowers in blossom along the creek beds . . . ripe black Fredonia grapes hanging in luscious clusters on the vines . . . leaves of the dogwood turning a purplish pink . . . deserted martin houses . . . these and many other beautiful and typical signs are reminders that summer is losing its grip.

Outdoor Fan's Reward.

These and other seasonal features are some of the compensations and more decorative features of farm life—the things that reward the outdoor fan who enjoys watching the seasons change.

The crickets which chirp so joyously seem to be trying to fill the void left by the songbirds which are beginning to leave. Every August we watch for the appearance of one or two crickets that move into some as yet undiscovered tiny space around our fireplace. We never have found them, altho we have hunted diligently. Their music cannot match the songs of the birds, but they do their best with their rather crude instruments.

The noise they make is accomplished by scraping or rubbing one part of a wing against the other. When magnified, these specialized wing parts look something like files. Americans do not show as much interest in singing crickets as residents of other parts of the world. In some parts of South America, Italy, and Portugal natives cage singing crickets for the sake of their songs, and they even sell them in gayly decorated cages.

Hickory Leaves Falling.

The hickory and the oak trees on the Du Page county farm are reacting to September's arrival in wholly different ways. The oaks still are green, and their foliage is still a mass of luxuriant color on the farm landscape. The hickories seem to be ready to give up the struggle and call it a season. Their big leaves are fading. Some already have turned a dirty brown and now are falling to the ground.

The squirrels are doing a little quiet bombing from the tops of the big oaks. We stood under one tree this week when the animals were working on the acorns. There was a rustle in the branches, and then came the kerplunk of shell fragments on the ground nearby as the busy squirrels fed on the new acorns.

When we walked around Half Moon pond yesterday morning a picturesque old rail fence framed a scene that included a bright field of green alfalfa, clear blue sky, a hedge of sumac on which some of the leaves have turned red, a row of graceful willows, a small flock of sheep lazily grazing in the hayfield, and a back drop of tall oak and hickory trees. It was a scene to thrill the hiker or outdoor fan.

DO YOU SMOKE THE CIGARETTE THAT SATISFIES

How easy to open!
Yes..and how easy to like!

Make your next pack Chesterfield and you'll say "How easy to like everything about them." For example, Chesterfield's new cellophane PULL-TAB gives you what you've always wanted . . . a cigarette package easy to open.

And when you light one, you'll find Chesterfields are COOLER-SMOKING, BETTER-TASTING and DEFINITELY MILDER.

Chesterfield's right combination of the world's best Turkish and Domestic tobaccos has the advantage of every modern improvement known to cigarette manufacture. THEY SATISFY.

You see here one of the many interesting and intricate machines used in making Chesterfields. This machine is equipped with an electric detector which automatically checks every Chesterfield. This and many other modern machines make sure that every Chesterfield is made right.

For Hair That Dances
WITH YOUTHFUL HIGHLIGHTS!

Just one shampoo with Halo imparts seductive sparkle to your hair, leaves even dry hair silky soft and easy to curl.

YOU'LL be enchanted to see how a radiant transformation comes over dull, "mousey" hair with one Halo Shampoo.

Halo contains no soap to leave that stubborn, sticky film that makes your hair so dull and dingy, that makes it feel stiff, look lusterless and lacking in color.

But what a thrilling difference when Halo's rich creamy lather removes the curtain of film that clouds your hair's natural color. Brunette hair shines with enchanting, deep tones. Blonde hair sparkles like streaming sunlight. Whatever the color, hair looks brighter, richer, more entrancing. And because Halo leaves no soap film, you need no lemon or vinegar rinse.

You will find Halo economical, too. Try it today, won't you? Halo Shampoo is tested and approved by Good Housekeeping Bureau!

For a generous bottle of Halo, send this paragraph with your name, address and 10c to Halo, Dept. N-908, Jersey City, N. J. This offer expires October 8, 1940.

FOR THE 1 MAN IN 7 WHO SHAVES EVERY DAY

A Special Shave Cream—It's Not a Soap, Needs No Brush!

Daily shaving leaves many men's faces raw and sensitive. Yet, because of his business and social status, one out of every 7 men must shave every day.

To meet this condition, Williams has now developed GLIDER—a special cream for daily shavers. With no soap base, it's a complete departure from ordinary shave creams. No brush. No lather. Not sticky or greasy.

A superabundance of moisture is contained in this rich cream. It won't dry on your face. Applied with the fingers, it quickly softens each whisker. A protective layer is formed over which your razor glides. Off comes each hair at the base without scraping. Like a cold cream, yet not greasy, Glider helps keep your skin smooth all day. Glider is the result of 100 years' experience in making fine shaving preparations. FREE—tube of Glider. Send your name and address today. The J. B. Williams Co., Dept. OG-18, Glastonbury, Conn.

"I WINCED when I sat down!"

"I was a 'silent sufferer'—one of the many people with rectal irritation they don't talk about, but whose expression of pain when they sit down so often gives them away. Harsh laxatives only aggravated my condition. So I especially appreciate Saráka's gentle action that brings such blessed relief for common constipation sufferers."

Here's why Saráka* is a more modern way to "keep regular": Saráka gives you "softage"—a moist, jelly-like bulk that, unlike harsh roughage is not irritating to tender tissues. Results are satisfyingly thorough, without violent upset or griping. No purging—no weakening after-effects.

Next time you're constipated, don't irritate your rectal tissues with scratchy roughage or brutal, harsh-acting purges. Play safe by getting Saráka from your druggist today. Experience for yourself the gentle, satisfying relief Saráka is famous for. Saráka is economical to buy, pleasant to take.

Clear drains with Drāno

Take the quick, easy, sanitary way. Just pour Drāno down the drain. Drāno's exclusive formula puts the heat on right down at the stoppage, causes a churning, chemical, concentrated boiling that soon melts and loosens greasy muck, so that water easily flushes it away. A teaspoonful after the dinner dishes guards against clogged drains. Drāno won't harm pipes—no objectionable fumes. Never over 25¢ at grocery, drug, hardware stores.

HAVE YOU A SON?

VALENTINO SARRA PHOTO

Gladys Huntington Bevans Pens a Message to Mothers!

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

IT ALL started long ago.

There was the day you came out of the doctor's office and swung down the avenue with your feet scarcely touching the ground and a song in your heart.

There were the months that followed when your life, flowing along as usual to the casual observer, built itself little by little but more and more around the thought of the baby you were going to have. Here were shopping, purpose, plans, sewing, thoughts, rearranging the house, anticipation, imaginings; even disputes over what college the baby should go to; once in a while there was a thread of prayer that all would be well, following just a momentary inner gasp of terror as you thought of what life would be like for your baby if you didn't come thru —or what life would be like for you if the baby——

But that lasted only a moment, for those months were happy months, with that little song continuing to sing itself in your heart.

Then came the day of those sharp warnings — like none other — and hours later, miracle ever miraculous no matter how often in this world it happens, your baby. You had borne a little son.

And then in a sense it began all over again, but in a different way. Each day was filled with the hundred details that constitute the physical care of a baby yet are so much more than just physical care, because all mixed in with the actual motions of bathing and feeding and dressing are the fascinating side lines: his funny little frowns, that first smile, those indescribable sounds of contentment, and the changes that you can see even from day to day, which mark a step forward in growth and strength, and, as if a flower unfolded petal by petal, the visible expanding of your baby as a personality.

Between these full days came nights that were different from those before the baby was born—nights when, altho you might sleep thru the shrieking of fire sirens past your very door, you would awake in a flash if the baby gave so much as a kitten's sneeze!

• • •

A little later came his first walking days, when you were on the job (and on your feet) every minute—those days when a mother has to be eternally vigilant, and when, too, she experiences the very special delights that come with the lovably absurd things her small son does — as when he walks with a slight stagger and leans over, with the inimitable bend they have, to pick curiously and laboriously from the floor an infinitesimal piece of fluff, which he examines with the minutest care!

Then there came the first time he was really ill—when his fever ran so high that, as you held him in your arms, it burned thru his sleeping suit from his body to yours. For you night merged into day and day into night, until at last came the sweet, timorous, peaceful days of convalescence.

Later, as the very masculine small boy began to emerge from the cuddly and dependent baby, you saw vividly the beginnings of the work cut out for you, in addition to the difficulties and joys that each day held. For, in addition to wanting this little son of yours to be well and happy thru his childhood, your thoughts were leaping for-

GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS ASKS:

A MESSAGE TO AMERICAN MOTHERS

"The death of youth is the most poignant death in the world." . . . The tomb of the Unknown Soldier in Arlington cemetery. (Acme photo.)

ward and you realized how much you wanted him to grow into a fine young manhood and how large your part in it must be.

So while you loved and enjoyed this son of yours, and while he grew buoyantly and noisily thru the days and months—while you learned to toughen your nerves to onslaughts of racket and wails over washing beyond the "lines of visibility," and managed to survive experiments in shadow boxing and tests of strength of grip, and an enthusiasm for sports, gangs, dogs, cats, mice, and snakes—you hovered over him in spirit and you thought much about him in other ways. Would that quick temper, aroused by the injustices and cruelty he saw, be outgrown with experiences in living—or was it a serious fault? Should he later, you asked yourself, be forced to plug away at mathematics and foreign languages, which he hated, as a discipline, or should that energy be allowed to flow into natural channels of interest and expression?

You watched and thought over the years in order that this young life might be rounded and useful to him, that he might learn to live with others, that he might eventually take his place in the world.

• • •

All this was interrupted by high spots and low spots. There were those two years at high school when you wondered if he might be lazy—or was he perhaps just growing and changing and living in a new inner world?

There was the time he suffered a broken leg, and the gods burst thru a barrier against grownups you for some time felt had existed. There were the long days following, which you had at home together when no one else was there, when you caught glimpses of his wonderings and thoughts and feelings about himself and life, his present and his future; and about his love for you and his father, that you had not suspected was like that, tho you thought you knew your son.

Mixed in among all these experiences were the practical plans and budgeting that you and your husband went into when he was at a party or sound asleep in bed.

"I don't need a winter coat this year," you'd say. "He's simply crazy to have a tux—you know, real dinner clothes." Or, "I remember what my first real football outfit meant to me," his father would remark. "I can pick up an old cherry desk any time. Besides, that one I saw needed too much refinishing for me to do this winter."

• • •

And then came the days of late adolescence, when your wisdom and your patience were drawn upon—and yes, even your love and understanding were often sadly strained, at the same time that your pride and love in this young son of yours warmed you from within. But you stood by. You wanted him to be fine—to come eventually into a fullness of living—you could "take it."

Gradually thru the years difficulties resolved themselves, and it was with ease of mind as well as with pride and love that you could regard your son—now more man than boy, and so evidently on his way to all you had hoped for him.

And, last, do you remember how one evening it seemed to culminate? How—that night after he'd gone off for a week-end, giving you each a sweet look and a rough kiss and sudden hug in good-by, with a "Thanks for everything, parents" (unusual demonstration for him)—you and his father turned back into the room and exchanged a long, slow smile?

• • •

And then the next morning war was declared in Europe! And almost simultaneously the specter raised its head.

What specter? The specter—too ghastly, too incredibly, cruelly, ravagingly wasteful; the specter which wore the unbearable question: "Will America become so involved that our youth will be forced to take part in this horror of death and destruction?"

• • •

We lingered pleasantly over coffee and dessert before an open fire one chilly night last fall. And suddenly one of our guests broke out:

"My sister who lives on the west coast is in a panic. She says she would like to outfit John and the family car and send him away for a couple of years until this horror is over. She says she hasn't spent the last 21 years preparing John to be gassed, to be maimed, to be blinded, to be brutalized, to kill and be killed.

"But," went on our guest with an intensity in her voice that I had never heard there before, "she isn't doing anything about it. What is the matter with the mothers of Amerca? Why don't they rise in protest—a protest that will keep America out of war and preserve their sons to live and love and work out their destiny? If I had a son, and if this country sent a force to take any part in this European struggle, and if my son were drafted and killed, my country could not pin a gold star on me. The last time we were drawn in, deluded, and we fought as idealists what we truly believed to be a 'holy war.' This time we know better. Why don't American mothers do something so this thing cannot happen?"

A silence fell on our dinner table. Mothers and sons were both there. Gone was the serenity of our meal, of kindred souls in pleasant talk, of candlelight and the snapping fire. In its place were thoughts that could not be borne—of uniforms, of farewells, of bombs and destruction, of American homes desolated forevermore because a blithe young spirit in a healthy body had been snuffed out—to what purpose?

One in which we have no part.

• • •

And a Sunday morning when I was visiting some friends started much as our dinner had—with pleasant lingering over coffee and talk, until a relative of theirs dropped in. Before long the thought so evidently nagging at his mind came out.

"We must not send an expeditionary force out of this country again," he said. "We must not waste our youth. My two sons are of an age to be drafted, but I hope I'm not just thinking in personal terms—I hope I'm not letting that influence my opinion. I hope I can be detached in thinking about this thing—and I say that I believe we should keep out of this war—that whatever issue may arise, we should never send our boys out of the United States to fight again."

And I looked at his fine, earnest American face and thought:

"You're trying so hard to be fair. But why should you or any of us be detached about this? For it is your two sons and my son, and the sons of my neighbor and the boys in each family in this land, who added together make up the youth of America. Why shouldn't we be passionately personal in preserving the young men whose lives are still to be lived—who have in their hands not only their individual destinies but the destiny of their country? Why shouldn't we be personal who have labored and loved and sacrificed (gladly) to help our sons to grow to a fine maturity?"

Let us be as passionately personal as we like about this. In that way we can save our hundreds of thousands of young men from the waste of war. We who have given them the gift of life must see that it is not snatched from their hands and trampled in the mud of battlefields or blown to horrible shreds by the bombs of hatred.

• • •

But that, you may say, is a mother or a father speaking. What about the boys themselves? Let me tell you.

Our sons don't want to go to war. I've talked with a number of them. Individually they don't want to go to fight as part of this European dog fight. They not only do not want to—they do not think they should.

But collectively, too, they feel this way. Already at Princeton and Harvard organization is under way. At Columbia university another nation-wide effort is being launched in this direction.

Shall we lag behind our sons in keeping America (and them) out of war?

Thank God, American boys are not afraid to take such a stand—I mean not afraid to be called slackers, cowards, or even to be subjected to the humiliation of the actual white feather pinned upon them, as was done by hysterical, war-crazed English girls to their own men in the last war. Our girls are too clear-headed for that. Certainly they will not want the flower of our youth, who will be their husbands and the fathers of their children, maimed or killed. Perhaps they, too, will enlist in this movement that is being put in motion by the boys themselves—and by a fast-growing group of mothers.

We know that American youth is valiant and ever has been. And so it makes me proud to know that they are morally courageous enough to say that they do not want to fight in this conflict—to lose their lives for the bitter quarrels and hatreds of Europe.

Our boys know they have work to do in the world. They know that that work consists of two things: to make the most of the gift of life that is theirs, and, besides working out their personal destinies, to do their job as Americans, which is to help bring to realization here the most magnificent experiment in human relations the world has ever seen—the realization of the ideal of freedom in its expression as democracy. They know, if they look with a still bigger vision—and some of them can and do—that the world needs one spot where peace and sanity reign and where human life goes on in the way it was meant to go.

• • •

There's little more that I can say—except that one day in Washington a few weeks ago I went to Arlington cemetery—as I always go when there—to the tomb of the Unknown Soldier. Before me was a place of honor set apart, guarded unceasingly day and night by a pacing soldier.

I walked forward—and it seemed as if my heart stopped beating and my breath ceased coming—as if the grief of every mother who had lost a son in war pressed down unbearably upon me as I read those words of ineffable sadness:

HERE RESTS
IN HONORED GLORY
AN AMERICAN SOLDIER
KNOWN BUT TO GOD

The death of youth is the most poignant death in the world. Will you allow such a fate to overtake your son—perished and perhaps unidentified on a foreign battlefield?

You and his father can save him from such a fate by using your energy, your intelligence, and any group or organization with which you are connected toward that end. He has a right to his life of which no whipped-up indignation or emotionalism, no misguided or selfish political force should have the power to cheat him.

You have worked and fought to secure many things you thought your son should have. Work now as never before—to secure for him the vital right to live. You gave him life once. Give it to him again.

• • •

If we hold inflexibly to our determination—if we who are mothers will act now to make our resolve spread and felt—we shall find it within our power to keep our boys at home where they can help to create a greater and finer democratic America.

Looking at Hollywood with John Chapman

Deanna, a Smart Girl; and the Witching Auer

Hollywood.

ON SEPT. 10 Deanna Durbin, who is far more beautiful than the Comstock Lode but nevertheless is a working gold mine, will have completed the fourth year of her contract with Universal. Her eighth picture, "Spring Parade," is ready, and she has three more years to go on a job that has been a delight to everybody, including herself.

Every so often some by-line journalist will announce right from the feed box, "Deanna Durbin will sing at the Metropolitan Opera this season." She won't.

"I'm still under contract," she says, "and it takes a whole year to make two pictures. Besides, I'm not ready. Naturally I want to sing opera, because that's the kind of voice they tell me I've got, but I haven't had time to study it yet. My teacher and I fool around with songs from 'Butterfly' and 'Don Giovanni' and things like that, but we haven't had the time for really serious study. You can't just stand up and say, 'I'm going to sing an opera.' It takes training."

In two of her films Miss Durbin has had the company of a popular Hollywood screwball, Mischa Auer. In "100 Men and a Girl" Auer was a flute player (or flautist, as they say in music programs), and in "Spring Parade" he tries to dance Deanna down in a gypsy marathon, the czardas. You can have one guess as to who it is who gets danced down.

The soft-cheeked, big-eyed Deanna has confessed the ambition to become an opera singer; the dark, chin-whiskered Auer wants to be no more than what he is—a film comedian. In fact, he has the very definite ambition to have nothing but short parts; he isn't lazy, just smart. He figures if he comes into a picture quickly and breezes out of it soon he will be most successful.

Having finished a short part with Miss Durbin, Auer is now doing one with Marlene Dietrich in "Seven Sinners." He worked eight days in "Destry Rides Again" and will have a slightly longer stint in "Sinners," playing a kleptomaniac magician. Every time he steals something Dietrich makes him give it back.

• • •

When you figure that a pretty good western can be made in two weeks, six months seems a long time for even a Durbin movie. It breaks down this way—three months for the shooting, which is not bad on a big film, and three months of preparation. The preparation includes not only the story but also the testing, practicing, and recording of many songs.

A fair sample of a day between pictures must have been the one on which I saw the young lady. Shooting of "Spring Parade" had ended, but portraits were needed. She arrived on the lot at 7:30 a. m. and had her hair washed and set. Dressed in a pale gold party gown, she spent until 12:15 in the picture gallery. Lunch until nearly 1. A music lesson from 1 to 1:30. From 1:30 to 2, a conference on musical arrangements for the new picture. From 2 to 2:30, back in the studio beauty shop for another hair-do. From 3:30 to 5, a session with a magazine photographer.

Time was, up to now, when she couldn't have put in that much time on business, on account of having to attend the studio school, too. School, however, is over for her, and maybe the next six pictures will be shot a little more quickly on that account. She finally has been graduated from high school and from now on will study nothing but music. Her sister has outlined a reading course in the classics for her, in case she has some spare time at home.

The papers have been full of stories about this wonder child, Deanna, and how she managed the transition from small-girlhood to — well, to — uh — well, without passing thru the awkward age. They have also been full of stories about the success of her producer, Joe Pasternak, who has so cleverly piloted his young charge thru the shoals of —uh, well, the shoals.

I told him some time I was going to do a story about Joe Pasternak, the producer who never went thru the awkward age. He said these stories have had the wrong angle. Deanna, he says, has always been not only a lady — which is something that was born in her—but also a woman.

"She's like a college girl," says Pasternak, "who goes around the campus in flat-heeled shoes and nobody pays any attention to her. Then she dresses up and goes to a dance and puts on high heels, and the boys who haven't been noticing her all this time flock around and say, 'BABY!' But she's the same woman she's always been."

• • •

If any one person can be said to be the mainstay of any one studio, the person is Durbin and the studio is Universal, simply because her pictures have been magnificent money makers. A woman interviewer once tried to get a story about how the poor girl isn't being paid enough. She queried:

"How much money do you make?"

Deanna, with her big, candid eyes, said:

"I don't know."

"Well, it isn't enough, is it?" pursued the lady journalist.

"I don't know," chirped Miss Durbin.

"Well, who does know—your mother, here?" asked the interviewer.

"No, she doesn't. Daddy does."

Since daddy wasn't around, the subject was dropped right there, with the interviewer blushing and fumbling with her knife and fork like an embarrassed schoolgirl.

Maybe Deanna isn't being paid enough compared with the money she brings in and the money Clark Gable is paid. But she seems to be perfectly happy, with enough steaks to eat and clothes to wear and a car and a swimming pool, and is not at all dismayed with her work. Best information has it that she gets $1,750 a week, plus a $50,000 bonus on each picture. That makes $190,000 a year. She might pick up quite a few thousand extra for advertising tie-ups and radio appearances, so let's not worry about her.

Deanna's 18th birthday will be Dec. 4. She was born in Winnipeg, has been in southern California since the age of 1. Her father, James Durbin, is a real estate broker. Her music teacher has always been Andres De Segurola, an old Metropolitan Opera singer. Her first picture was "Three Smart Girls." Her sister Edith—the one who outlined the reading course—is 12 years older, and married, and comes with her husband to Deanna's home every Tuesday for dinner. Her mother's name is Ada.

The home is in Laughlin Park, near Hollywood. There are two servants—a cook and a handy man. The living room has a harp, a piano, and an electric organ, none of which Deanna plays. The family call Deanna Edna, which is her real first name. Mr. and Mrs. Durbin have managed to remain parents even after their young daughter became a national sweetheart. Deanna might some day marrry Vaughn Paul, now an associate producer at Universal, who was an assistant director on "Three Smart Girls Grow Up." All the Hollywood correspondents have been clucking over this romance until it has become the nation's business.

Mischa Auer, the man who wants to remain a comedian with short shots in pictures, comes by his reputation for being an amusing fellow quite honestly. He doesn't try to be what Arnold Bennett called a card, doesn't work hard at being an offstage clown. He's just naturally amusing and given to being the life of a party without tearing a house down.

He has some parlor tricks, like giving an excellent imitation of a piano virtuoso by rolling two grapefruits up and down the keyboard, and a fine assortment of imitations, some of which are classics. One of his best stunts is a hilarious visual and vocal cavalcade of all the airplane pictures ever made, down to the place where the hero crashes and somebody yells for brandy.

The day I saw Auer he had just been to court. His car hadn't run over anybody, he wasn't suing or being sued for divorce, he hadn't been painting the town red. He and Mrs. Auer, the former nonpro Norma Tillmann, had been to court to go thru the final process of adopting a 14-month-old girl. They had taken the child a year before, but had been on probation all that time. The court decided they were okeh, and the law in California isn't particularly awed just because somebody happens to be a movie star. The Auers have a son, 6½, named Tony, who has been spending the summer in camp.

"I hear you've been to court," I said to Auer.

"Yes," he said, "and we've got the pink slip."

It is better to have a pink slip than a Phi Beta Kappa or a master's degree in California. It means that you have finally paid for your automobile and can put a pink slip in the license holder on the steering post. Sometimes no motorist ever gets a pink slip. When he's about to make the last payment some salesman, having heard of the impending event thru spies in Sacramento, persuades the motorist to turn the old thing in on a new model and start payments all over again.

Auer has a number of agreeable hobbies, foremost of which is photography. He is building a ranch house at Encino which will include a portrait studio and a darkroom. He specializes in portraits and landscapes.

"Photography," he says, "is very handy. There is something mysterious about it. When somebody wants to see me and is told, 'He's in the darkroom,' he says, 'O!' and lets it go at that. Everybody seems to realize you can't come out of a darkroom, and it's a good place to get away from it all. I even have a telephone in there, so they don't have to call me out to answer the phone."

Other Auer hobbies are a five-gaited show horse and deep-sea fishing in the company of Humphrey Bogart.

Mischa is 35, the son of a Russian aristocrat. When he was 12 the Red revolution separated him from his mother and he became a member of a band of parentless children who roamed Siberia. He finally got to America on money cabled by his noted grandfather, Leopold Auer, master teacher of the violin. Leopold adopted Mischa, whose family name was Ounskowski, and gave him the Auer name.

The young man got small rôles in Broadway productions, including that early Edward G. Robinson number, "Kibitzer." He got his first Hollywood job in 1928 and had his first great success in "My Man Godfrey." He plays an average of three benefits a week, but says it's easy, because all he does is the grapefruit-on-the-keys trick.

Dear Miss Tinée: In your review of "Waterloo Bridge" you stated that Kent Douglas played the part of Roy Cronin in the first version of that film. I remember the picture well, but thought Douglas Montgomery did the superb acting. Mae Clarke was wonderful, too. Perhaps I am mistaken re the name. Sincerely,

NADIA HUTCHINS.

Editor's note: No, you are not mistaken. Douglas Montgomery was known as Kent Douglas when that film was made.

Dear Miss Tinée: Some time ago you wrote about Janosik. In there you say "Bohemian Robin Hood." Perhaps you don't know it, but he is a Slovak Robin Hood, and the person playing the part of Janosik is also Slovak.

I can't understand why in the world such mistakes happen, but anything that was worthy of praise and had something to do with Slovaks in former Czecho-Slovakia was always considered as being done by the Czechs, even tho they didn't have anything to do with it. They always wanted praise even if it wasn't due them.

I know you're not interested in what they did, but it makes me very angry to see your heading, "Praises Film of Bohemian Robin Hood." Is it possible to correct such statements? Yours truly,

MARY KUNA.

Editor's note: Don't be angry! I assure you any mistake was unintentional.

Dear Miss Tinée: I have been reading your column for some time and have enjoyed it very much.

A VERSATILE young man with imagination and initiative is pretty well equipped to make good in this world. Gardner Benedict is versatile, he's imaginative, and he abounds in initiative. That is why he is making good in a way that looks as if it may become spectacular.

• • •

The son of Edward Benedict, a well known organist, Gardner got an early start in the world of music. His proficiency at an early age won him a place alongside his father as half of a duo that gained fame in many a radio station, club, and theater. This experience in many fields gave him an invaluable background, on which he now is cashing in.

The piano and organ are Benedict's favorite instruments, but he is adept at playing the saxophone and clarinet. He has an excellent voice and a personality that invites immediate friendship. That combination of talent and personality has an almost inevitable result—leadership. Gardner Benedict is now directing his own band at the Netherlands Plaza hotel in Cincinnati.

The words to "Little Annie Rooney"

She's my sweetheart, I'm her beau,
She's my Annie, I'm her Joe.
Soon we'll marry, never to part;
Little Annie Rooney is my sweetheart.

(Original words, music © by Jerry Vogel Music Co., Inc., New York. Reprinted by permission.)

The story of how Benedict landed that job is interesting. He had been featured with a number of bands and was playing second piano to Griff Williams when that popular maestro broke into his sensational engagement at Chicago's Stevens hotel to fulfill a previous contract at the Netherlands Plaza. After six weeks Griff returned to pick up where he left off in the Stevens, and Gardner came along. But not to stay. He had heard that the Cincinnati hotel was looking for a band for a long engagement, and decided that this was his chance. With Griff's blessing and advice he organized a group that eventually became the present Benedict band.

• • •

Auditions usually are pretty cut-and-dried affairs, with little color. The accent is on music. Imagine the surprise of the Plaza manager when Benedict's band appeared in uniform, his vocalist in full dress, and Gardner himself in summer formal attire.

The audition went off just as if hundreds of dancers were on the floor. Genius, they say, is a capacity for taking great pains, and that smacked of genius. It helped sell the Benedict music, and to date there have been no reports that the Cincinnati hotel regrets its bargain.

Shop, Look, and Listen!

Beauty, Style, Practicality Guide Coeds' Buying

By ELEANOR NANGLE

A NONMILITARY army soon will be on the march. These are the college girls, and ye shall know them not so much by books beneath their arms as by their saddle shoes and knee-length socks and long glamor-girl bobs.

Lately we've been accompanying these attractive marchers on their shopping expeditions, trying to find out what they buy—and why—as equipment. They're basically quite sensible. They like their little fads such as boxing glove mittens and caps and hoods, but they wear the mittens to keep warm, the little hats to keep their hair flat, and hoods on their coats because they're as practical as they're flattering. They know pretty much what they're doing.

When it comes to beauty shopping they're smart as can be. Natural beauty is their goal. They don't fuss a lot, but they do the right, simple things. Here, for example, is their idea of complete beauty equipment:

For the complexion, bland soaps, a light cleansing cream, one softening cream, complexion brush, a blackhead preparation if necessary, and above all a creamy, inexpensive lotion that can be used to prevent or soothe chapped skin.

Their makeup wants are few. Powder, of course; a variety of lipstick shades (they like those little kits that feature three different shades and cost very little); a light foundation, and dry rouge. Mascara is used only for evening, eye shadow ditto.

Bath glorifiers are a passion with them. Oils, bubble creators, dusting powders, body lotions, and colognes are what they love best in the line of luxuries. These, they say, are their very favorite gifts. Perfumes they also love, but use sparingly, usually because of budget trouble. For daily use a perfumed cologne is their compromise.

A good manicure kit is essential; most of them do their own nails most of the time. They do their own brows, too, and each marcher totes a good tweezer. And a hand and nail brush.

They value lustrous hair more than other women do. They want a good hairbrush, and they use it daily. A popular piece of equipment in any dormitory is the hand dryer, used when a trip to the beauty shop isn't feasible. (There are wonderful new dryers very reasonably priced.) They use bobby pins all the time and little metal curlers almost every night.

In the community life of dormitory or sorority house it's advisable for the girl with possessions to have her name on them. This year the collegiennes were delighted to find bath oils, colognes, and various containers—not expensive—that could be decoratively and shrewdly adorned with the owner's full name.

A hand hair dryer will cut beauty expenses.

Colognes and bath oils in containers have the coed's own name on them.

Gems of American Eloquence

AMONG the orators of the south of early days none was more celebrated than Sargent Smith Prentiss of Mississippi. Born in Portland, Me., Sept. 30, 1808, he was graduated from Bowdoin college in 1826, and in 1827 he moved to Natchez. Two years later he was admitted to the bar and moved to Vicksburg, where he was residing when he was elected to the national house of representatives in 1837. He died at Longwood, near Natchez, July 1, 1850. His speech at a public dinner given in honor of Daniel Webster was described by Edward Everett as "the most wonderful specimen of sententious fluency which I have ever witnessed." Sargent Smith Prentiss, whose first name sometimes appears in biographies as Sergeant or Seargent, delivered a eulogy to the late Marquis de Lafayette in Jackson, Miss., in 1835, which has been preserved for more than a century as typical of his style of oratory. An excerpt from it follows:

● American eloquence has played an important part in the history of our country. From a long list of famous speeches The Tribune is selecting gems of American eloquence which are being presented in this, the Graphic Section, every Sunday. The content of these speeches is important both historically and politically. Persons learning to speak in public will find in them helpful lessons. Speakers and writers can learn a great deal from studying their style. This is the sixty-sixth of the series.

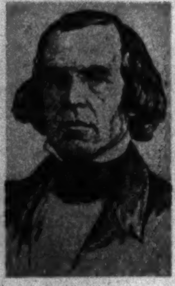
"Death, who knocks with equal hand at the door of the cottage and the palace gate, has been busy at his appointed work. Mourning prevails thruout the land, and the countenances of all are shrouded in the mantle of regret. Far across the wild Atlantic, amid the pleasant vineyards in the sunny land of France, there, too, is mourning; and the weeds of sorrow are alike worn by prince and peasant. Against whom has the monarch of the tomb turned his remorseless dart that such widespread sorrow pevails? Hark and the agonized voice of Freedom, weeping for her favorite son, will tell you in strains sadder than those with which she 'shrieked when Kosciusko fell' that Lafayette—the gallant and the good—has ceased to live.



Sargent Smith Prentiss

"The friend and companion of Washington is no more. He who taught the eagle of our country, while yet unfledged, to plume his young wings and match his talons with the lion's strength, has taken his flight far beyond the stars, beneath whose influence he fought so well. Lafayette is dead! The gallant ship, whose pennon has so often bravely streamed above the roar of battle and the tempest's rage, has at length gone slowly down in the still and quiet waters. Well mightest thou, O Death, now recline beneath the laurels thou has won; for never since, as the grim messenger of Almighty vengeance, thou camest into this world, did a more generous heart cease to heave beneath thy chilling touch, and never will thy insatiate dart be hurled against a nobler breast! Who does not feel at the mournful intelligence as if he had lost something cheering from his own path thru life; as if some bright star, at which he had been accustomed frequently and fondly to gaze, had been suddenly extinguished in the firmament?

"History's page abounds with those who have struggled forth from the nameless crowd and, standing forward in the front ranks, challenged the notice of their fellow men; but when in obedience to their bold demands we examine their claims to our admiration how seldom do we find aught that excites our respect or commands our veneration! With what pleasure do we turn from the contemplation of the Cæsars and Napoleons of the human race to meditate upon the character of Lafayette! We feel proud that we belong to the same species; we feel proud that we live in the same age; and we feel still more proud that our own country drew forth and nurtured those generous virtues which went to form a character that for love of liberty, romantic chivalry, unbounded generosity, and unwavering devotion has never had a parallel.

"The history of this wonderful man is engraved upon the memory of every American."

It is said of Prentiss that his utterances as they appear in cold print do not do him justice and that much of his charm as an orator was due to his dramatic delivery. When addressing a large assemblage, it has been said, "he experienced an electrical excitement at times almost maddening, and he seemed to be rather spoken from than speaking." His vivid imagination as an orator, however, is clearly brought out in the foregoing sentences, which are rich in beautiful figures of speech, even tho in modern times they might be considered too flowery.

FOREWORD

An expose of fifth column activities in America is being made by Lorna Carroll, ace reporter, and Riley Davis, radio news commentator. Lorna at one time joined the "Advance Front," a ring of foreign sympathizers, to uncover their plans for sabotaging America's defense program. Now a new threat appears . . . .

(Tribune Studio photos.)

1 "There's something BIG in the air, Miss Lorna," says Whitey Peters, ex-convict, who admires Miss Carroll and has supplied her with many a tip on Advance Front activities. "They're meeting at main headquarters, and they mentioned fires. I think it's the final blowoff."

2 Riley Davis has not returned from covering the war games, so Lorna determines to carry out this expose alone. Calling on her experience as a radio and stage actress, she effects a disguise that alters her personality and appearance.

7 Reaching the tunnel, Riley confronts the sentry alone, enabling Whitey to attack the man from behind. That clears Riley's way into the tunnel meeting place . . .

8 There he finds Pavlo conducting a meeting of Frontists. As Pavlo asks questions of the mysterious unseen "Leader" the latter answers over a loud-speaker. Riley, however, recognizes the "Leader's" voice and leaps to the stage to ask a question. The answer is completely unrelated to what he has asked. . . . Another question . . . another meaningless answer. . . . The Frontists, startled at Riley's appearance, begin to murmur their confusion . . .

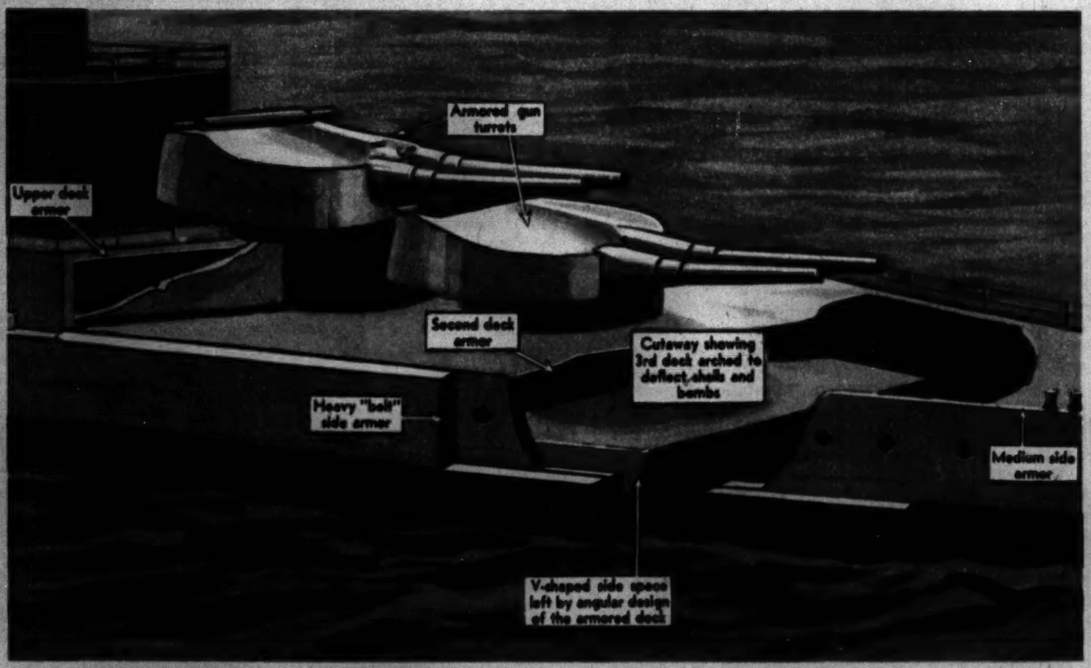
How Armor Protects Warships

By LLOYD WENDT

THE ARMORING of warships is a constantly changing problem: new developments in gunnery and new methods of attack are likely to make a great capital ship obsolete in some respects almost before it is launched. Consequently naval architects make changes in design as far as possible while the work of building the ship is in progress, in order to keep up with the latest innovations in the art of naval warfare.

The general principles of armor structure are, of course, more constant, changing in great cycles, as when Callinicus introduced Greek fire, when oak planks would no longer withstand the pounding of improved cannon, when long-range artillery took to sea, and when the air bomber became a naval as well as land weapon.

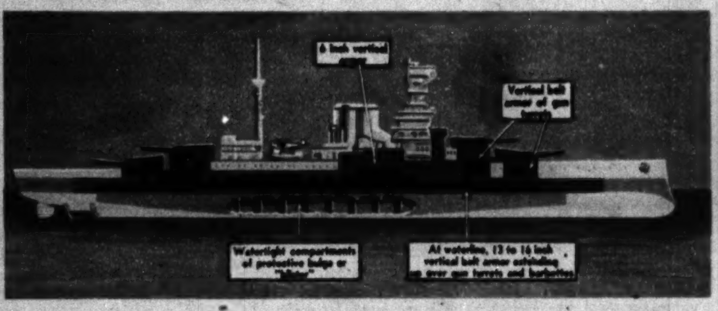
The modern battleship must have speed to reach and outmaneuver the enemy, it must have power to sink the enemy once it has made contact, and it must withstand punishment and keep afloat. The armorer thinks particularly of the latter problem, but the other two are constantly before him. His ability to protect the vessel with steel is determined by the speed it must attain and the guns and equipment it must carry. Not an inch of space, not a pound of weight can be wasted. Modern warships must travel faster and farther, carry more offensive equipment, and yet be better protected than ever before.



Cutaway of the stern half of a battleship, showing armored turrets, heavy side armor, and special construction of the armored decks. Note design of third deck. V-shaped space formed by it and belt armor is usually filled with coal or cellulose.

The first ships to add metal armor to their wooden hulls were the viking boats and the war galleys which employed ramming as a part of sea tactics. This offensive armor gradually extended down the sides of boats to replace the rope cables which helped to hold ships together and provide a certain protection as well. Greek fire, potent mystery weapon of the Byzantine empire, introduced about A. D. 650, forced the adoption of special leather or soaked wool armor, and the use of boiling pitch, catapults, and heavy crossbows as marine artillery resulted in the construction of decking and turrets to protect the rowers and fighters.

Archimedes, about 250 B. C., built one of the first completely armored ships for King Hiero, but the development of war vessels in the modern sense did not begin until the western world discovered the use of gunpowder. Then, until the close of the Napoleonic wars, heavy oaken hulls two feet thick were adequate protection against the cannon of the time.



How heavy belt armor is extended to protect gun turrets. External "blister" armor is cut away to indicate water-tight compartments.

• • •

In 1805 Sir William Congreve in England and John Stevens in the United States proposed to build ships or barges completely covered with iron. The French used three iron-cased barges with good success against the Russians in 1855, and then covered the wooden frigate Gloire with an armor belt in 1859. But it remained for the Americans, in the famous battle between the Monitor and the Merrimac on March 9, 1862, to demonstrate that the day of the wooden warship was ended.

Naval architects then laid on iron until ships could scarcely be maneuvered. This policy changed when steel plate was developed. Then, when long-range guns with arcing fire ended the era of close broadside fighting, it became necessary to armor the decks as well as the sides, and now the deadliness of airplane bombs and the use of the torpedo have made double and triple shells of steel, covering the whole ship, absolutely necessary.

A heavy capital ship must stand up against 16-inch guns which throw a ton of armor-piercing shell 20 miles. Its basic armor is a 16-inch steel belt along the sides and extending up to protect the barbettes (gun turrets) and funnel bases and the control tower. In addition there is a "blister" or protective bulge of steel running along the sides of the ship, sectioned off to form a series of water-tight compartments. Should a torpedo or shell expend its force against the "blister" this portion of the armor will collapse, absorbing the shock and protecting the inner armor belt.

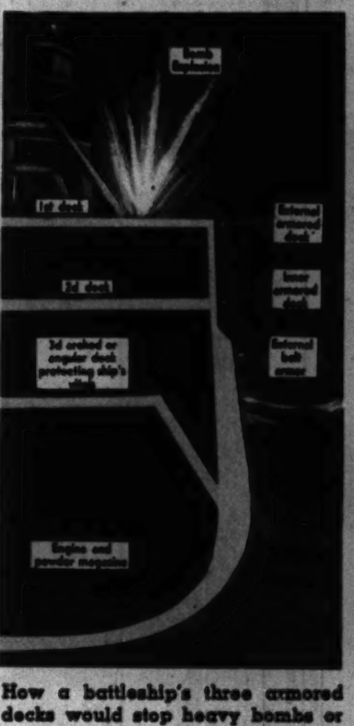
The area of protective fire provided by a battleship's antiaircraft defense. If the plane attack is unusually hot the high-angle secondary batteries may go into action.

• • •

This principle of shock absorption is carried farther in the design of deck armor. The first deck is covered with flat steel plate from three to six inches thick. It may give way under a big shell or bomb. The second deck beneath is a similar flat level of steel. The third deck, arched, or shaped like an inverted pie tin, especially protects the powder magazines and the engine room. Its angular arch is designed to deflect shells. This third armored deck arches down to join the heavy belt armor below the water line, as shown in the drawings on this page, forming a V with the outer armor at the point of juncture. The V space is filled with coal or cellulose, and it absorbs shock should a direct hit be scored on the outer belt armor.

The vertical belt armor just above and below the water line is of varying thickness, attaining a maximum of 16 inches. Above and below this belt is medium thick armor, six to eight inches thick. The horizontal armor on the decks and turrets is of varying thickness, running to a maximum of six inches. In addition, as protection against raking fire, there are armored bulkheads across the ship. If damaged they can be closed off to keep the vessel afloat.

The heavy cruiser, being lighter and faster than the battleship, carries less steel, the vertical belt of side armor usually running to a maximum thickness of six inches. The general disposition of the steel plate follows that of a capital ship.



How a battleship's three armored decks would stop heavy bombs or a shell fired by a long-range gun.

In both types of craft the purpose of the armor is not to afford an absolute barrier to the shell, torpedo, or bomb, but to turn it aside as much as possible while absorbing the force of the blow. The series of decks, their arched design, the external side "blisters," and the armored bulkheads all follow this shock absorption principle. The tough, thick belt armor alone can actually withstand a direct blow.

Since it is generally conceded that no armor will take the repeated blows of bombers if they can attack unmolested, the modern warship must carry elaborate antiaircraft equipment. This consists usually of several 3 to 6 inch antiaircraft guns, from 12 to a score of heavy machine guns, and several "pom-poms" or 37-mm. guns. The pom-poms are multibarreled Vickers-Maxim one-pound guns used by the British. The 37-mm. guns, firing 85 shots a minute, are used by the Americans and Germans.

• • •

In addition to this the elevation of the big guns of the fleet is being constantly increased, so that they also can be used against planes. It is possible for a battleship to send up four or more curtains of fire that will effectively keep off attacking planes, according to British experts, and the blast of the 16-inch guns will actually capsize a plane by concussion. Since it is extremely difficult for planes to hit moving ships from great height, warships are better protected against bombs than is generally supposed.

European warships generally have lighter armor and greater speed than American boats. The Americans are more interested in gun power and ability to take punishment. The theory of our navy is that the enemy can be bottled up or forced to fight, and in event of battle we will be less interested in running away than in taking everything the enemy can give and returning more with our superior offensive power.

MOSTLY ABOUT DOGS

By BOB BECKER

Afghan hounds four and five weeks old. The Afghan was known as a hunting hound as early as 3000 B. C. It hunts by sight. Mature specimens may weigh around 60 pounds.

HOW TO FEED a puppy, how to cure a dog of whining when it is left alone, what to do with a dog that is afraid of thunder and lightning, and how to train a 3-year-old dog to obey commands are just a few of the many dog problems that come to this department every week. Some of the typical inquiries received from readers are as follows:

Open Forum on Owner's Problems

I have a 6-year-old male wire-haired fox terrier which is afraid of thunder and lightning. As soon as a storm begins the dog is very frightened and comes to some member of the family. Is there any way of curing this dog of its fear of thunder and lightning?—R. L. R., Boston, Mass.

We know of no way to make a dog like thunder and lightning or get used to it. It's a curious thing that some dogs pay no attention to even the most severe electrical storm, while others run when the distant noise of an automobile backfire is heard and are terrified by a thunderstorm.

One of the best known and most widely distributed breeds, the fox terrier continues to be a prime favorite with American dog fanciers because of its stylish appearance, intelligence, and gay temperament.

Will you please tell me where I can get information about my dog? She is a schipperke. How do I go about learning something about the breed? A dog is new to us.—M. F. K.

I would suggest that you buy a book about the schipperke breed in order to learn its origin and how it has been used in Europe for guard dog duty and also as a ratter. Another excellent way to learn about the breed in which you are interested is to visit with dog fanciers who have had more experience with the breed.

We have just purchased a German shepherd dog seven months old. Your advice on feeding her will be greatly appreciated. I am not sure of the amounts and types of food she should get. I also would like to know where a copy of the Tribune "Dog Book" may be obtained.—H. T. L.

Your young shepherd should get three meals a day. Two of these meals should be mostly solids. For example, the morning meal should be made up of a pint of milk with a raw egg and a dog biscuit. At noon give the dog a half pound of high-grade dog food or fresh meat, either raw or slightly cooked. For the evening meal feed three-fourths to a pound of meat in some form plus a small amount (about half a cup) of mashed cooked vegetables. Once or twice a week canned fish may be used in place of meat. You can judge by the dog's weight and condition whether the amounts you are providing are correct. "The Dog Book," published by The Tribune, may be purchased from the Tribune Public Service Office, 1 South Dearborn street, Chicago. The price is 25 cents over the counter or 30 cents by mail. It is a 94-page handbook giving information on many breeds, feeding, house-breaking, worming, and other dog subjects.

I am thinking about buying an Irish setter puppy and raising it with our baby. I wonder if the disposition of the Irish setter is such that it would be suitable to raise with a young child?—H. B. B.

The Irish setter has a gay, friendly disposition. We can see no reason why an Irish setter puppy wouldn't make an excellent companion for your baby.

When Worming for Tape, Round (ascarid) and Hook Worms

You Cannot Worm Your Dog WRONG

—if you follow the sound, "no-guess," commonsense Pulvex Worming Method.

The Pulvex Worming Method (embodied in every package of Pulvex Combination Treatment Worm Capsules) insures your worming your dog properly for those worms . . . even though you've had no worming experience. It is so sure that many breeders of champion dogs say the Pulvex Worming Method is the method the average dog owner should use. Here's why—

Your dog can have Tape, Round (ascarid), Hook or any combination of those worms at the same time. Your dog should, therefore, always be wormed for all those worms whenever you worm him.

Contrary to common belief, no single-type capsule made can expel all those three worms. Two distinct types of capsules must be used. Each package of Pulvex Capsules contains two types of capsules which, when given a few days apart, will expel Tape, Round (ascarid) or Hook Worms—not just one or two kinds of worms.

Avoid worming your pet wrong for those worms. Worm only with Pulvex Capsules. Packaged two ways: for puppies; for dogs. Either type 50c. At Drug, Pet, Dept. stores.

Gain Depth Effect by Shadows

SHADOW effects can be put to many interesting uses in photography. Shadows are present in every picture; they are the only means by which a flat two-dimensional picture can create the impression of depth and reality. But when we speak of shadow effects we do not mean this normal function of shadows in photography.

In many a striking picture the shadows themselves form an important part of the story conveyed by the picture. If, for example, a portrait is posed in such a manner that a shadow of the profile is cast on the background and repeats in dark outline the picture subject, the shadow is being used for pictorial purposes.

The most interesting shadow effects are found in other fields of photography. The classic examples of such pictures are shots in which only the shadows of objects appear, not the objects themselves. Instead of picturing a farmer hoeing his field, you show the field with the shadow of the farmer and his upraised arms falling across the earth. Or you show the shadows of gossiping women instead of showing the fully lighted figures themselves.

Shadows can be used to excellent advantage in building up the atmosphere of a picture. You can describe a situation or indicate action by having the shadows of objects fall on your background. You have probably seen more than one picture of the Thanksgiving turkey roosting under the shadow of a suspended ax, and having the shadow of a murderous hand reach out for a victim is a popular way of symbolizing action in the movies. The same means can be employed in still photographs.

• • •

Often the composition of a picture calls for a background which may be an expensive prop or one that cannot be obtained at a moment's notice. In such cases elaborate studios use backgrounds projected on a translucent screen. The amateur can resort to the simpler and less expensive device of projecting the shadow of a cardboard cutout on a plain background. Such cutouts can show in sketchy silhouette an endless variety of subjects—anything from a harvest scene to Grecian ruins.

• • •

It is true that preparing such cutouts for projected shadow backgrounds requires some amount of nonphotographic skill. However, the work is not too exacting, and if you cannot do it yourself, some of your friends may be able to help you out.

To project shadows with the aid of a cutout you need a source of strong, concentrated light, preferably a spotlight. If this light illuminates your back ground clearly the shadows cast by the opaque cutout will stand out in strong silhouette. The size of the shadow image can be controled by the size of the cutout, by its distance from the background, and by the distance of the spotlight from the cutout. The nearer the spotlight is to the cutout the larger the shadow image will be.

In most pictures you will use the shadows merely for background and atmosphere. Your main subject will be in the foreground, and you will have to light it separately from the background. If any of this light intended for the main subject should fall on the background it will soften or entirely kill the shadow effect. Therefore you will have to use shields on your reflectors to prevent this light from reaching the background. The whole process may sound complicated, but it is very simple in practice.

Try shooting for shadow effects first by snapping the shadow patterns cast by various objects in brilliant sunlight and later by creating shadows with the aid of artificial light. The shadow shots you make will add a welcome variety to your pictures.

Projecting a shadow image on the background gives this still life by Lowell N. Miller of Rochester, N. Y., added interest and meaning. For backgrounds of this type you can use cardboard cutouts or various objects. Here a jug and a branch were placed in front of a spotlight for shadow projection.

125 A new enlarging paper, used in conjunction with colored filters, yields in a single grade of paper several degrees of contrast. A blue and a yellow filter as well as a filter holder are included with each package of paper. Enlarging thru the blue filter gives contrasty prints, projection thru the yellow filter leads to soft effects.

126 Photomontages are easy to produce with a new 8x10 easel. The paper is covered with a jigsaw puzzle consisting of 12 separate pieces of cardboard. By lifting off one of these at a time you can print 12 pictures on an 8x10 sheet of paper.

127 A completely modernized 5x7 portrait camera, with reducing backs down to 2¼x3¼ size, has a tilting and swinging front and a vertical and horizontal swing back. These adjustments make the camera suited for correcting distortions, or creating them at will.

128 For quick washing of film you can place the reel of your developing tank in an aluminum container and put the washer under running water. Holes in the bottom of the container allow the water to carry away the hypo.

Peaches on Parade!

Broiled peach halves with bacon and waffles make a delicious Sunday breakfast or weekday luncheon.

By MARY MEADE

PEACHES, peaches, peaches! Fat, juicy, ripe ones for breakfast, lunch, and dinner. Let's eat all we can of this luscious fruit while it's still in season, for the time isn't so far off when nary a peach will be found in the market.

Broiled peach halves with bacon and waffles are suitable for Sunday breakfast or for a weekday lunch. Canned peaches may be used later on, but let's try the fresh ones while we can get them. Scald and peel the peaches, cut them in halves, and drop into a medium sirup to cook for several minutes. Drain them out, brush with butter, and sprinkle with a little brown sugar, and broil them with the bacon until they are tender and brown. You may add a little vanilla or maple flavoring to the sirup in which the peaches were precooked and use it on the waffles.

This recipe will make light waffles if you follow it with reasonable care:

WAFFLES
(Five 7-inch waffles)

2 cups sifted flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
3 eggs, separated
1½ cups milk
6 tablespoons melted shortening

Sift flour, baking powder, and salt together. Beat egg yolks until light and add milk. Add to flour mixture. Add melted shortening. Fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Bake in a hot waffle iron.

Fresh peach slices chilled in port wine are an elegant yet simple dessert.

I can think of no more elegant and delicious peach dessert than the fresh fruit slices chilled in port wine. This combination is such a quick and simple one that it's hard to believe it will do for the most fastidious of guests. But it will please gourmet guests more than almost anything you can think of.

To prepare this dessert, which you both eat and drink, slice fresh, fully ripe peaches into a dish, cover with port wine, and chill for several hours. To serve, place peaches and wine in parfait glasses or deep glass dessert dishes.

Domestic wines such as port are inexpensive and readily available, so if you've been a hostess who has considered wine cookery extravagant you're in for a nice surprise.

BALTIMORE WOMAN, MOTHER OF 4, SAYS—

"I'd be LOST without Spry FOR MY BAKING AND FRYING"

Read Mrs. Erdman's enthusiastic letter

"MY HUSBAND and youngsters all have real appetites for good wholesome food and I do my best to give it to them," writes Mrs. Audrey Erdman, Baltimore mother. "Time after time I'm complimented on the good things I make, but a lot of the credit belongs to what goes into them and to Spry in particular. I simply could not get along without Spry!"

Thousands of fine letters like this are in our files—letters brimming with enthusiasm for Spry and the lighter cakes it gives, the tender, flaky pastry and crispy, digestible fried foods. And the reason you get such wonderful results is because Spry is purer, it stays fresh longer, creams so easily. Three big extra advantages and only Spry gives you all three! Change to Spry.

FRESH PEACH SHORTCAKE

2 cups sifted flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
2 tablespoons sugar
1 teaspoon salt
⅓ cup Spry
2 teaspoons grated orange rind
⅔ cup milk (about)
6 peaches, peeled, cut in pieces, and sweetened
½ cup heavy cream, whipped

Sift flour with baking powder, sugar and salt. Cut in quick-mixing Spry and grated orange rind until mixture is as fine as meal. Add milk, mixing until a soft dough is formed. Knead lightly about 20 seconds.

Roll to ⅓-inch thickness. Cut with 3-inch biscuit cutter. Spread half of the biscuits with Spry and top with remaining biscuits. Place on Spry-greased baking sheets. Bake in very hot oven (450° F.) 8 to 10 minutes.

Split biscuits and put together with peaches. Top with sweetened whipped cream. Serves 6. See what light, tender, delicate-tasting biscuits Spry gives. Use this purer shortening for all your baking—frying, too.

HOLLAND GETS OUR VOTE ON HEATING!

Holland's Quality and Expert Engineering Gave Us Perfect Heat In Every Room Yet Actually Cut Fuel Costs!

We Were Paying 2 Fuel Bills in One Room . . . Even with an extra heater going full blast, our living room was barely comfortable and that ran our bills sky high. A couple of other rooms were almost as bad on really cold days and there were chilly spots and cold floors in almost every room.

We Called the Holland Engineer! He showed us how we had practically burned up our furnace trying to do the impossible. Then his demonstration showed us how Holland would end our discomfort—positively guarantee perfect heat in every room!

More Comfort . . . Healthier Too! Now we're not only cozy anywhere in any room but have fewer colds besides. Gone are drafty chilly spots—cold floors and bone dry air that encouraged colds. Our coal bill has shrunk too and no extra heaters are ever needed.

● Nobody would buy a suit of clothes that was too small even if a few dollars could be saved that way. By the same token, no family would think of buying a home heating plant of too little capacity if they had any way of judging what they need. Not knowing that there is such a way, they all too often accept the lowest estimate, not realizing that it means an under-sized heating system. Such fancied savings are soon wiped out by higher fuel bills, extra repairs and shortened furnace life.

Fortunately, such costly mistakes are wholly unnecessary! At your request, the Holland Furnace Company will send its own trained heating engineer to make a detailed scientific analysis of your heating needs. He will then plan a heating system to fit your home as accurately as an expertly tailored suit fits your body. Insist that all specifications must equal Holland's and you'll not only be sure of getting adequate equipment, but you'll also find Holland's installed price will be lowest of all. Part for part and size for size, Holland's prices are less than any other. Holland's generous financing makes ownership extremely easy too. You virtually make your own terms—if necessary, you may take as long as . . . .
